DERBY WON BY BUBBLING OVER

NORGE LANDS IN TELLER, ALASKA; CROSSED POLE

Capt. Amundsen on Way to Nome.

BULLETIN.

Nome, Alaska, May 15.—(AP)—It was authoritatively learned here at 10 o'clock tonight, eastern standard time, that Capt. Roald Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth, and two others of the crew of the dirigible Norge were en route in a launch to Nome from Teller, seventy-five miles northwest. They were expected to arrive here tomorrow morning. Amundsen probably came over twenty-five miles of frozen ice on Port Clarence to reach open water where a launch could be boarded.

The last reports from Teller said the big airship was still afloat, but it was believed here that this was only to maintain radio communication.

Nome, Alaska, May 15.—(AP)—It appeared virtually certain tonight that Capt. Roald Amundsen had terminated the transpolar flight of his dirigible Norge at Teller, seventy-five miles northwest of here. The vessel was undamaged, reports said, and the Nome army radio station was in communication with the dirigible throughout the day.

Nomeites became convinced the Norge would come to earth and be deflated at Teller after a day of conflicting reports. Preparations had been made for a gala celebration of the arrival here. Business houses were to close, as were the schools. Natives and whites poured into the city from surrounding districts.

Lost More Than Two Days.

The Norge had been lost to the world for more than two days when the first message was heard from the dirigible's wireless this morning. Fears that a storm, reported brewing in Bering sea north and west of here, might have swept the explorers far from their goal were growing when the Norge reported "all well."

Communication with the Norge failed again several times during the day, and new fears for the safety of Amundsen and his crew of seventeen were expressed. Conditions for radio transmission gradually improved late today. Many telegrams from the Norge to all parts of the world and congratulatory messages to the explorers were passed back and forth by the army radio station here and the ship's apparatus.

The messages were uncommunicative as to details of the flight from the north pole to Alaska. The reason for the delay in reaching Teller after the Norge was reported over Point Barrow, some 400 miles to the northward, early Wednesday was not ascertained here.

New Fears During Day

Many of the messages were garbled by static and interference. A seemingly fragmentary message mentioned "drifting" and "windstorm." Then for a while the Norge's radio lapsed into silence again. This led to the fears today of the possibility that the Norge had been unable to land at Teller because of the smallness of the population and that it had been torn away by a sudden storm to be driven helplessly out over the frozen sea again.

Later messages were reassuring, however, and Nome felt sure tonight that Amundsen and his band of explorers had succeeded in anchoring or lowering the Norge to the ground in a safe harbor at Teller.

Future plans of the expedition were in doubt tonight. Because Teller is ice blocked, it was believed it might be several weeks before steamers from the south can reach there and take the explorers and the dirigible to the States.

U. S. Announces Norge's Arrival.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Washington was notified by the war department at 10:55 o'clock this morning that the dirigible Norge had landed at Teller, Alaska, after a flight from Spitzbergen over the north pole. It was stated at the office of the chief signal officer that the army radio net had been in communication with the Norge, commanded by Capt. Amundsen, with Lincoln Ellsworth, former Chicagoan, second in command, since 11 o'clock, May 14, Alaska time. This would correspond to 4 o'clock Washington time.

"The office of the chief signal officer," said the brief announcement which was made public by Secretary of War Davis, "is in receipt of a

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., May 15.—[Special.]—Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, carrying the colors of E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour Farm, finished 1—2 in the fifty-second renewal of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs this afternoon, just as Behave Yourself and Black Servant from the same stable did in the Derby of 1921.

There was no question of this pair's superiority.

Bubbling Over, leading the entire route, was five lengths before his stablemate at the finish, which, in turn, was three lengths in front of Rockman, the latter lasting long enough to nose out Rhinock for third position. Four lengths still farther back was Pompey, champion two year old of 1925, pride of the east and carrying the big money of Wall street.

Pompey Raced Out.

Pompey, attempting to match strides with the great son of North Star III., raced himself to exhaustion. He was beaten, soundly beaten, three furlongs from the finish. Display and Blondin, which were first and second in the Preakness last Monday, were never prominent at any stage of the journey. Blondin was ninth and Display tenth in the field of thirteen starters.

Bubbling Over's time for the mile and one-quarter Derby route was 2:03 4-5, within three-fifths second of the track record and within two-fifths of a second of the Derby record set by Old Rosebud 'way back in 1914. Had he been pressed he could easily have cracked the mark.

Backers of the Bradley entry for each $2 invested received $5.80 to win, $5.80 for place, and $4.60 to show. Rockman rewarded his admirers with $30 for $2 placed on him to show. The race was worth $50,075 net to the winner, $6,000 to second, $3,000 to third, and $1,000 to fourth.

Never Such Cheers for Winner.

Never before, not even in 1921, has a Derby winner received such a welcome from the holiday crowd to which Derby day is the day of days. From the time Bubbling Over took the lead at the start, there was a roar from the 75,000 onlookers.

As the laggards, laggards by fractions of seconds only, passed the judges' stand, the crowd in its enthusiasm and determination to get a close up of the winner broke away, despite frantic efforts of mounted police, and swarmed over fences from both the brick lawn and the infield until 5,000 frenzied victory-mad Bubbler partisans were out on the track. Police then cleared a way for the equine hero as he cantered back to the stand through a human lane.

Flowers for the Victor.

Without a trace of nervousness at all the noise, yells, and waving hats, Bubbling Over stopped before the judges while across his withers was placed the floral blanket of victory.

Jockey Albert Johnson, astride the winner, was almost phlegmatic in his acceptance of the acclaim and bouquet of red roses which was handed to the triumphant rider of the triumphant colt. But if Johnson was unemotional, Owner Bradley, Trainer Dick Thompson, and Manager Barry Shannon were not. They wended their way unsteadily from the clubhouse through the still surging, cheering crowd, which broke into yells again and again at each new development of the aftermath. Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York presented the gold trophy to Owner Bradley, and the colts were led away toward their stables for cooling out and, let us hope, an extra hearty dinner.

This result might not be repeated in years, perhaps never, so why should not these clannish Kentuckians out on the track make the most of its Kentucky bred colts that had finished first and second and done it decisively in the country's greatest 3 year old race. Whatever the rest of the year may bring forth, Bubbling Over has settled and settled decisively the moot question of superiority hanging over from

SHEFFIELD TWINS NABBED AGAIN ON EVE OF NEW TRIP

The 17 year old Sheffield twins, Elizabeth and Margaret, 5539 Ingleside avenue, were taken into custody last night as they were planning a repetition of the runaway jaunt that recently took them to Iowa with Alexander and Leonard Swartz, brothers. This time, it was said, the girls were going to Los Angeles.

They were arrested at request of their father, Elliott Sheffield, a public accountant. Sheffield became suspicious, he said, when the pair stayed away from home Friday night. The girls admitted they had been working at the office of the Celotex company, 645 North Michigan avenue, and saving their wages to make the trip, by box car and afoot.

"It's spring," said Elizabeth, "and we want to be in the movies."

They were taken to the Juvenile Detention home.

FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING GIRL ON SON'S TESTIMONY

Jack Yusewicz of Gary, convicted by the testimony of his own son, yesterday was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment by a Lake county jury at Crown Point for the murder of Florence Guazea, 14 year old East Chicago girl, in the fall of 1924.

Yueswicz' son, 21 years old, took the stand to tell how his father had come home, covered with blood, on the night of the murder and had told him of the killing. The jury was out 25 hours before reaching a verdict.

The Guazea murder was unsolved for more than a year after the girl's body was found. Yusewicz was arrested when his son, angered at mistreatment by the father, told his story to juvenile officers.

Liner, with 235 Aboard, in Distress Off Miami Bar

Miami, Fla., May 15.—(AP)—The Clyde liner Seneca was off Miami Bar tonight taking water in her hold through a leak which was detected when the vessel was off Hollywood on her way from Miami to New York, according to repeated radio messages. The vessel had 235 passengers aboard. The captain radioed for a tug after the Seneca had turned back to Miami. Later messages urged that a tug be sent immediately.

Spaniards Burned to Death by Mexican Rebels, Claim

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mexico City, May 15.—Spaniards were treated brutally by insurgents while in possession of the port of Acapulco, according to information received here by the Spanish minister. He says two Spaniards were burned to death when their property was fired by rebels, who burned Spanish factories and stores.

Pope's Envoy in Mexico to Be Deported

Mexico City, May 15.—(AP)—The Mexican government tonight ordered the deportation of the Right Rev. George J. Caruana, papal representative in Mexico, an American citizen, on the ground that he had improperly entered Mexico by concealing his identity and mission. Msgr. Caruana denied the charge, but said he would leave for the United States tomorrow.

British Priest Faces Expulsion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mexico City, May 15.—Despite reports to the contrary and intercession by the British envoy, the position of Dean Peacock of Christ Episcopal church, has not been altered and the foreign churches are sitting on an anxious seat. Christ church remains closed.

If the Christ church question is settled unfavorable to Dean Peacock, it means, according to a prominent Mexican lawyer, that no foreign language church can remain open in Mexico, because no ministers or priests of these congregations were born in Mexico.

LABOR APPEALS TO MEXICO.

Labor officials representing virtually every large union in Chicago met yesterday in the Federation building to discuss what they termed the antireligious attitude of the Mexican government toward Christian churches.

The conferees represented all denominations. After the situation had been discussed by Michael Kelly, first vice president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters, a committee was selected to draw up a resolution of protest, which was wired last night to President Calles in Mexico City.

Communistic Element Blamed.

"Acting on instruction of a meeting of Chicago trades union officials," says the communication to President Calles, "we are sending you this resolution of protest against the Mexican government's attitude in denying its people the right of religious worship. It is the belief of those attending this meeting that practically all the antireligious agitation now going on in Mexico can be traced to communistic sources. This belief is substantiated by authentic data gathered by conservative labor leaders in Mexico City and in other parts of Mexico.

"The American labor movement is interested in the welfare of the Mexican labor movement, this being evidenced by the fact that some 300 American labor delegates made a trip at your invitation to Mexico city to attend your inauguration.

Change in Policy Urged.

"It can safely be said that 70 per cent of those making the trip would have refused had they known then the attitude you later were to assume on the question of religious freedom.

"We hope this message will awaken you to the fact that the American labor movement is not in accord with the Mexican government's anti-religious policy."

The communication was signed by a committee composed of Mr. Kelly; John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Charles Wills, machinists; Paul David, building service employés; James J. Conroy, secretary of the Building Trades council; James Jacobs, building service employés; Claude Peters, janitors; Hugh Mulligan, asbestos workers; Michael Galvin, truck drivers, and Michael Artery, machinery movers.

JUST ONE ADVENTURE LEFT FOR AMUNDSEN; AND THAT'S MARRIAGE

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Only one great adventure is left for Roald Amundsen, conqueror of the north and south poles, and that is marriage.

Just before his trans-Polar flight, Amundsen was asked what thrill would be left for him after he had conquered both poles.

"None, probably, but marriage," he said, "although I have not yet found the girl. Certainly I think I should then retire and let younger men do something, for flying is but started and there will be many new fields to conquer in that realm."

FORCES GIRL TO DOFF STOCKINGS IN MONEY HUNT

An old fashioned robber, who believed that women carried their money in their stockings, held up Miss Theodosia Sullivan, 20 years old, 4209 North Paulina street, near her home last night.

He demanded her purse. She handed it over, and the robber counted the 35 cents it contained.

"You've got some dough," he said. "Take off your shoes and stockings."

Miss Sullivan demurred until he threatened to shoot her. She complied, and the bandit looked through the stockings. There was no money. He apologized and gave her back the purse and the 35 cents.

Let States Do Their Part, Is Coolidge Plea

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Williamsburg, Va., May 15.—[Special.]—President Coolidge celebrated today the 150th anniversary of the first formal declaration for the independence of the thirteen colonies that combined to form the Union by uttering a vehement declaration for the independence of the present commonwealths of the Union from federal centralization and federal bureaucracies.

His keynote and refrain were "Wake up, townships! Wake up counties! Wake up, commonwealths!"

His appeal—demand, rather—was for a rebirth of enthusiasm for local self government and for better guardianship and more earnest exercise of the privileges of local self-government.

Coolidge Is Outspoken.

It was Calvin Coolidge's most outspoken speech since his inauguration a year ago last March. There was nothing placatory about it. Usually in his public addresses the President likes to counsel and conciliate. But this afternoon none of that.

He tore into bureaucracy and all its works, declaring that there was neither health nor efficiency in it, and he made a states rights and anti-centralization speech that would have thrilled even the austere heart of that pioneer states rights man, John Caldwell Calhoun, dead these six and seventy years.

The President's day in this historic tidewater region of the old dominion—that broad strip of land between the York river on the north and the James river on the south—was crowded with highly pictorial incidents.

Coolidge Relishes Pilgrimages.

He relished them all—relished most of all, perhaps, his pilgrimage to the site, now marked only by the lines of the original foundations and a monument of granite bronze, of the Virginia House of Burgesses, where the Independence resolutions that this day commemorates were adopted. Here too, Patrick Henry uttered the defiance to tyrants which began with "Caesar had his Brutus," and amid cries of "Treason! Treason!" ended with Henry's words, "If this be treason, make the most of it!"

As the President and Mrs. Coolidge drew near to the foundations of the vanished structure, a battery of coast artillery from Fort Eustis roared the presidential salute of 21 guns.

Every step of the President's progress from the site of the House of Burgesses to the College of William and Mary, where he delivered his commemorating address and where he received the degree of LL.D., was vocal with memories of illustrious days.

Sell Virginia Gazette.

Literally vocal, for at every corner boys were selling facsimiles of the old Virginia Gazette, a newspaper that scooped the world on the publication of the Declaration of Independence, a feat which, so local tradition says, the editor was able to achieve through the good offices of the author of that document, Thomas Jefferson.

The publication still functions and the President was much pleased with the display in its title of the motto of its long gone founder, which was "Always for Liberty and the Publick Good."

Inserted in today's issue was the facsimile of the one page issue of July 26, 1776, which first gave to the

CIVIL WAR OVER, WARSAW BEGINS TO BURY DEAD

Federal Generals Quit Lost Cause.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WARSAW, May 15.—A new cabinet selected by Marshal Josef Pilsudski, who, by a bold military coup, seized control of Poland, has taken charge of all government departments.

The selection and installation of the new government followed closely the resignation of President Wojciechowski and the Witos cabinet. The president and all but two members of the cabinet have fled from the capital, and, in accordance with the provisions of the constitution, the speaker of the diet has assumed the presidency in the interim.

Call Off General Strike.

With the taking over of the machinery of government by the forces of the military dictator, Pilsudski, the general strike, which was called by the laborers to assist Pilsudski's attack on the troops supporting the Witos government, has been declared off. All public utilities are functioning again, with the exception of street cars and railways, which await repairs on tracks which were torn up by the warring armies. The country is quiet. It is believed peace has been restored.

To strengthen the position of the outlying provinces, Marshal Pilsudski has dispatched officers to Ukraine, the former German and White Russian districts, to assure the population that the Pilsudski government will "protect their rights as minorities in the true democratic spirit."

Withdraw from Fight.

Gen. Haller and Gen. Sikorski, Pilsudski's archenemies, having failed to rally troops to their standards, have withdrawn their opposition to the dictator. The provincial governors have gone over to Pilsudski.

While it is impossible to determine the casualties in the fighting between the government troops and those of Pilsudski, the killed are known to number considerably more than a hundred. Several hundreds have been wounded. Frederick D. Hibbard, American chargé d'affaires, who is in charge of the American ministry here in the absence of Minister Stetson, announced today that no Americans had been killed in the street battles.

Minister Stetson is speeding here from Paris in an airplane.

Warsaw Buries Its Dead.

WARSAW, Poland, May 15.—(AP)—The battle smoke cleared away today and Warsaw, enshrouded in mourning, buried the uncounted dead who fell during the military revolt in a great public funeral.

A new cabinet, headed by Prof. Charles Bartel as prime minister, was formed tonight. August Zaleski, former ambassador to Rome, was named temporary minister of foreign affairs. Marshal Pilsudski took over the ministry of war. Prime Minister Bartel announced that the government would remain in office until after the election of a new president.

TORN BY WAR

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

EN ROUTE FROM KATTOWITZ TO WARSAW, Poland, May 14.—[Delayed.]—That part of Poland along the railroad lines from the Czecho-Slovakian frontier to Warsaw is in a state of war. The coal and iron industries of Upper Silesia are disorganized.

Loaded troop trains are given the right of way over all other traffic and other trains are standing in readiness to move at a moment's notice. All communications are down. THE TRIBUNE correspondent endeavored to file telegrams at four station in the last hundred miles south of Warsaw, but found the offices occupied by military officers who refused to accept the messages or said that if a message was filed it would not be sent.

Trains Held Up.

Country people coming into the towns are crowding out the police and military lines thrown around the station platforms. Passengers on the train, which left Vienna tonight were told it would not be allowed to advance beyond Skierniewice [about 37 miles south of the capital]. It is reported that the tracks between Skierniewice and Warsaw were torn up two days ago by the Witos troops in order to prevent mutinous regiments from reaching Warsaw to aid Marshal Josef Pilsudski.

The traffic interruption also is explained as a measure taken by Marshal Pilsudski himself to prevent the flight of the old government from Warsaw.

Military in Charge.

At Czesochowa, where I arrived at noon, I expected to see the general strike order go into effect suspending all transportation, but the report to this effect exploded when I found the military in full charge of everything there. The army officers told me that the Czestochowa garrison had mutinied and gone over to Marshal Pilsudski's side.

I talked with privates manning a brace of machine guns on a flat car in front of a locomotive on a train waiting at the station. None of them knew whether they were fighting for the old or the new government. The officers declared the regiment had announced its allegiance to Marshal Pilsudski. One machine gunner said his men were loyal to the government, but he was not sure whether Marshal Pilsudski represented the old or new government.

I saw troop trains loaded down with young infantrymen with bayonets fixed and spring flowers in their rifle barrels. All were well equipped with gas masks, steel hats, uniforms, and accoutrements in the best of condition. Other trains contained batteries of French field guns and box cars loaded with horses.

Eager for Taste of War.

The soldiers apparently were not affected by the special enthusiasm concerning the political events taking place, but, being young, were eager and keen to leave their garrison duty for the prospects of excitement in the streets of Warsaw.

The wildest rumors are prevalent. They say several hundreds were killed or wounded in Warsaw street encounters between the mutinous and loyal regiments, but the best information obtainable indicates that there were few casualties and a tacit truce is prevailing in the capital.

The Witos newspaper, distributed in the south of Poland by airplane from Warsaw, reported that the Polish general commanding the garrison at Posen killed himself rather than fight against Marshal Pilsudski, but the regiment, which received this paper, declared he had been executed by the old government authorities when he refused to obey orders to move against the revolutionists.

Fear for Families.

The only concern felt among the Pilsudski supporters is the attitude of other military leaders, especially Gen. Sikorski, who long has carried on a feud against Marshal Pilsudski.

Polish business men on the train to Warsaw are worrying about their families and the attitude which Russia will take toward the events in Poland. Some go so far as to say that the continual political disruption in Poland is caused by Russian money spent in Warsaw to weaken the national feeling and bring civil war thereby leaving the country to the mercy of a Russian invasion.

Attention also is being called to the Russian ambitions to aid the Russian minorities in Bessarabia at a time when a weakened Poland could not aid Roumania.

Hindenburg Calls Marx to Form a New Cabinet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 15.—President von Hindenburg in a special hand written letter has appealed to former Chancellor Marx to try to form a cabinet to replace that of Dr. Hans Luther. Dr. Marx is chairman of the Center [Catholic] party and was minister of justice in the Luther government. Dr. Otto Gessler yesterday gave up the attempt to form a ministry.

WETTEST SPOT A POLITICAL WARD OF FAMOUS DRYS

Coal Miners Ignore Views of Pinchot and Mellon.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Scranton, Pa., May 15.—[Special.]—Pennsylvania has the reputation of being the wettest state in the Union under the prohibition régime and the wettest parts of Pennsylvania appear, paradoxically enough, to be the coal mining regions which that militant dry, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, looks upon as his political stronghold.

Certainly this anthracite mining district I have been touring could be no wetter if prohibition had never been. In degree of present wetness I would compare it favorably with Chicago's South Clark street in the heyday of Hinky Dink's goldfish bowls of suds and the liquid lightning of the barrel houses.

It's Almost a Flood.

Moonshine, beer, and hard liquor, flood this part of the country. Three, four, and five per cent beer is on tap in more or less open barrooms in every mining community. It is sold over the bar to all comers at 15 cents a glass. Moonshine spirits may be had for the asking in any barroom.

This "white mule" is sold at various prices over the bar, ranging from 10 cents to 40 cents a drink. The forty cent grade is pronounced by competent judges to be the equal of the best corn liquor ever produced by the most gifted Kentucky moonshiners in the dear old days. The ten cent "white mule" has a kick that jolts the constitution of the hardiest coal digger.

Uncle Andy Also Ignored.

All of these intoxicants are manufactured right here in Pennsylvania despite all that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who is a political power in this, his home, state and is head of prohibition enforcement in Washington—despite all that Uncle Andy can do to stop it.

Prohibition has put Pennsylvania beer on the map—made Pennsylvania as famous as Schlitz made Milwaukee. The breweries of Pennsylvania, pouring forth their flood of high power beer, meet not only the home demand but supply eastern states for hundreds of miles around. The thunder of the beer trucks on the highways at night is becoming a familiar sound of the countryside, we are told.

In the villages nestling about the mine tipples all through this region the saloons are open and well supplied with beer and white mule. Most of them purport to be "soft drink parlors" and if you ask them what kind of beer they have you are told it is near beer.

Solid Block of Barrooms.

In the town of Tamaqua you see a solid block of barrooms and the miners trooping in as they come from the shafts and stowing the suds or a shot of white mule before wending homeward. At Sugar Notch an official of the United Mine Workers, in charge of organization work for Gov. Pinchot for senator, sets 'em up to the boys at the bar just as openly as he would in the pre-Volstead era. The only difference is that the liquor is inferior and costs three times as much as it used to.

The Pinchot worker is telling the miners they ought to stand by the governor, who was their friend in the negotiations to settle the strike.

"Yep, I guess he was our friend all right," says a grimy miner, wiping his mouth with the back of his hand and looking around expectantly.

"Have another on me," says the union official, and they do.

Vare to Split Miner Vote.

Afterwards the Pinchot worker tells me that he estimates Pinchot will get the support of about half the miners in the primary next Tuesday. The other half will suport Vare in the belief that the Philadelphia boss is going to bring back plenty of cheap beer.

Sugar Notch is in the parish of Father Kasaczun, who told the senate investigating committee that there is a still in almost every house in that region and that the children help make the hootch in the home. My conductor tells me the priest gave an accurate account of conditions. Others say he grossly exaggerated the number of stills per capita.

Fatal Still Explosions Frequent.

The explosion of stills with casualties has become a common occurrence, my informant said. Only yesterday at Plymouth, near Wilkesbarre, a still blew up, setting fire to the house and burning a mother and five children to death. This made a total of nine deaths from still explosions in the the Wyoming valley alone in the last two weeks.

At Edwardsville, Larksville, and a multitude of other towns the saloons are doing a thriving business as we pass through. In Scranton and Wilkesbarre and the towns in between almost any one can direct you to a saloon or speak-easy. Once inside you have your choice of high power beer or white mule.

One hears it said frequently in these parts that the public officials make no pretense of trying to enforce the prohibition law. The officials point to a certain number of arrests in various localities and assert they are doing the best they can with limited forces and funds.

Leaders Let Saloon Alone.

The notorious lack of enforcement is a foremost topic in the primary campaign for nomination of Republican candidates for United States senator and governor. It is being made much of by the supporters of wringing wet Vare. The adherents of Vare's dry rivals, Pinchot and Pepper, don't like to talk about it.

The Vareites charge that Pinchot could not hope to get a fraction of the mine workers' vote if he were to close the saloons in the mining communities. They declare it the common understanding in this anthracite region and in the bituminous fields in the western part of the state that the saloons would not be molested by either the state enforcement officers responsible to the governor or by the federal officers, many of whom were selected by Pepper.

An official of the Mine Workers' union at Scranton gave it as his opinion that Pinchot would carry the anthracite counties, but that Vare would be a close second. He said he was doing all he could for Pinchot among the miners, but found a large percentage were going to vote for Vare on the wet issue.

Lewis Helping the Governor.

"You see the miners are overwhelmingly wet," he said. "It is hard to keep them all from going to Vare. Pinchot and John Lewis are now stumping this section, and they may be able to get the boys back in line. Still, I think that with the church people and the miners we can deliver Pinchot will have a plurality in the coal counties."

Vare also is campaigning this district. He is having large and enthusiastic meetings. Beer is the sole topic. E. E. Beidleman, candidate for governor, and Arthur James, candidate for lieutenant governor, are on the Vare ticket, and both have been indorsed by the mine workers and Pennsylvania Federation of Labor at the same time these bodies indorsed Pinchot. This will help Vare with straight ticket voters.

PINCHOT CHARGES HUGE EXPENDITURES BY VARE AND PEPPER

[Copyright: 1926: By U. P. Association.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—A charge that excessive sums are being spent in the Pennsylvania senatorial primary campaign in preparation for balloting over the wet and dry issue next Tuesday was made today by Gov. Gifford Pinchot, a dry candidate in the three-cornered race.

Pinchot charged that his opponents, Representative William S. Vare, wet, and Senator George Wharton Pepper, another dry, are using more funds than "ever before known in Pennsylvania."

The charge was contained in a statement Pinchot wired to the United Press, from Wilkesbarre, Pa., on his campaign tour.

The statement follows:

"More money is being used in this campaign than in any other I have ever known in Pennsylvania.

"Reports of actual happenings in every county I have visited in the last month have convinced me of the fact that campaign expenditures of my opponents have set a new high water mark.

"I have refused to compete with them in this respect. I am spending but a fraction of what each of them is spending, and I have kept my expenses down to the minimum, actually unavoidable for the legitimate cost of making the fight.

"I am winning, but not by force of dollars.

"GIFFORD PINCHOT."

CABARET DANCING GIRLS MAY HAVE TO HUNT NEW JOB

Girls in Chicago cabarets who dance into the small hours with gentlemen guests may soon be looking for new jobs as clerks, telephone operators, and stenographers.

Miss Jessie F. Binford, director of the Juvenile Protective association, has written to Corporation Counsel Busch asking the "legality and propriety" of the following ordinance:

"No female shall be employed in any dance hall for dancing with male patrons. However, this rule does not apply to bona fide instructors of dancing, regularly employed in bona fide dancing schools or dancing classes which are open to both male and female patrons."

Mr. Busch replied that he could not render an opinion except to city officials, and suggested that she take the matter up with Chief of Police Collins. The headquarters of the Protective association is 824 South Halsted street.

FEAR VIOLENCE TO DRY AGENTS WHO SHOT YOUTH

North Platte, Neb., May 15.—(AP)—Officer Harry Johnson and C. H. Runyon, prohibition agent, who are being held in connection with the fatal shooting of Harold Zollers, North Platte youth, were removed to the Dawson county jail at Lexington last evening. The move was prompted by fear of violence to the men.

Zollers was shot and killed Thursday night when a party of four North Platte city officers and Johnson, who was aiding Runyon in liquor raids, attempted to stop Zollers and a school teacher while they were automobile riding. Zollers in a dying statement said he believed the men were drunk and that he was afraid to stop. Four shots were fired at the couple and Johnson admits, police say, that a shot from his rifle killed the boy.

SMASHES WINDOW; GETS $1,000 GEMS.

While several customers were in the jewelry store of Ralph Goodman, at 2415 Lincoln avenue, last night a thief smashed a front window with a brick, seized a handful of gems worth $1,000 and fled.

Merely lack of thought, no doubt, but wearing those heavy shell rimmed spectacles (a positive disfigurement with such a costume) has done much to detract from the charm of youth and beauty, that were otherwise hers. ¶ Men and women who give the most thought to their apparel reserve their shell glasses for reading, working or sports, while for evening and street wear, they have the trim, unobtrusive, "rimless" type, either of spectacle or noseglass, which come in a variety of styles and shapes, and are not only correct, but much the better looking. ¶ There are more than twenty authoritative accepted Almer Coe styles; and each pair is made up with frame or mounting and lens shape selected to meet the requirements and preferences of the individual. You can have your lenses duplicated in the style you choose.

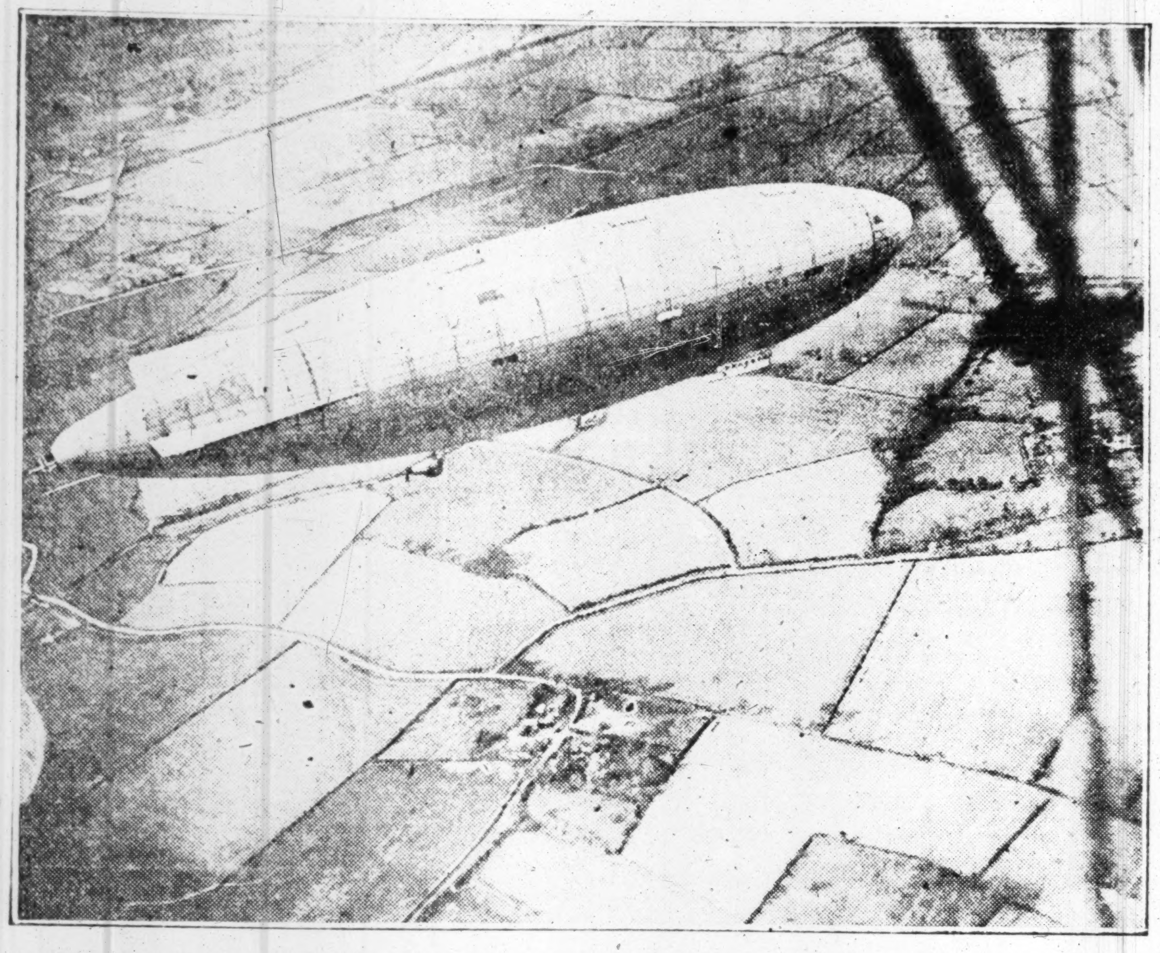
AMUNDSEN-ELLSWORTH NORGE LANDS IN ALASKA



The airship Norge, in which Capt. Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, former Chicagoan, explored polar regions before landing safely at Teller, Alaska, 75 miles southwest of Nome. This picture was taken as the Norge was nearing Pulham, England, before its journey to Oslo and Spitzbergen, from where the hop-off for the north pole was made.

The map shows the route which the dirigible Norge took in its flight from Spitzbergen across the north pole to Point Barrow, thence down Bering sea to Teller, Alaska, where it landed safely.

message from Nome, Alaska, to the effect that the Norge is in Teller, Alaska, about seventy miles northeast of Nome. Communications between Nome and the Norge were established at 11 p. m., May 14, Alaska time."

A garbled message received by the navy department late this afternoon from the radio station at San Francisco indicated that the Norge had been caught in a storm and was drifting at 8:45 a. m. today. The San Francisco station picked up the message from the naval radio station on St. Paul's island. It was dated 8:45 a. m. and read:

"Terrific gale from northeast. Drifting. Probably latitude 8—10160—0—0."

Naval officials were unable to figure out the location of the dirigible from the dispatch, which was forwarded as received. The message from St. Paul island was interpreted by the naval operator there as having been sent by the Norge. Granting that this theory and the date of the receipt of the message were correct, navy officers advanced the possibility that the Norge, having reached Teller in safety, had again taken to flight after one safe landing in Alaska, and had bumped into a terrific gale on the way to Nome.

Others advanced the opinion that it was an "Amundsen trick" to give him a chanace to get out first with his own story of the trans-polar trip. No bad weather has been reported in the vicinity of Teller, Alaska.

Ellsworth Wires Coolidge.

The White House received a communication from Lincoln Ellsworth, the American member of the Amundsen expedition. As the President was at Williamsburg, Va., the message was forwarded there. Officials would not make it public here.

The message said:

"NORGE, May 14, via Nome, May 15.—The President, White House: "Trans-polar flight successful. Respectful greetings.

"LINCOLN ELLSWORTH."

The President replied:

"Message received. Hearty congratulations. CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur expressed himself as greatly pleased at the news and voiced the hope that all the crew was landed safely.

Moffett Is Jubilant.

Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, and leader in this country of the fight to make the rigid airship a commercial and financial success, was jubilant at the news.

"The airship has justified the faith of Amundsen," he declared. "It justifies this country's faith in the lighter than air transportation, which is certain to be a success. The lighter than air ship is particularly suited for use over the top of the world."

Oslo Greatly Excited.

OSLO, Norway, May 15.—(AP)—News of the arrival of the Amundsen-Ellsworth dirigible Norge at Teller, Alaska, caused great excitement here. United States Minister Swenson has sent greetings and congratulations to Nome. Another congratulatory message was sent by Frederick Herman Gade, Norwegian consul at Chicago, who is here on leave. Before renouncing his American citizenship in 1911 Mr. Gade was mayor of Lake Forest, Ill., and was a close friend of Roald Amundsen. Mr. Gade first introduced Amundsen into the United States and has supported him in all his expeditions.

Rome Wild Over "Triumph."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 15.—Rome went wild this afternoon when a telegram announced the safe arrival of the Amundsen expedition in Alaska. Throughout the city flags were raised, while through the downtown streets vast crowds paraded, shouting and crying their pleasure at "this new Italian triumph." The Roman press gives practically all credit to Col. Nobile.

The first news of the arrival was received in the chamber of deputies at 5:15 o'clock in a telegram from Col. Nobile to Gen. Bonzani, chief of Italy's aviation, which said:

"We arrived, but the trip seems all a dream to me."

Signora Nobile, who also received a telegram from her husband, at first refused to believe it was authentic, for she has gone through a terrific strain the last twenty-four hours. Then happiness overcame her and she broke into a hysterical fit of weeping.

CONVICTS KIDNAP AUTOIST; MAKE HIM DRIVE THEM

Pair Later Are Captured in Detroit.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—Edward J. Fredericks, vice president of the Field Motor Body corporation of Owosso, today told of a battle of wits with two escaped inmates of the Michigan reformatory at Ionia, who, at the point of guns, forced him to drive them from near Ionia to Elkhart, Ind., Thursday night.

At Elkhart, Fredericks, who during the wild night ride had been in constant fear of losing his life, abandoned his automobile to the fugitives and returned to his home here by train.

Frederick's kidnapers were James Schaules, and Edgar Heald, both sentenced from Detroit. Schaules was arrested at Lincoln Park, near Detroit, this morning, and later Heald was arrested in Detroit.

Car Blocks Road.

"I was driving from Owosso to my home in Grand Rapids," Fredericks said. "Near Ionia, I saw an old touring car ahead. I started to pass it but the car blocked my path.

"Then I saw the end of a shotgun poked from the back of the car. I stopped. Two men wearing bathrobes got out of the car and approached me.

"'We want you to drive us,' one of them said as they climbed into my car. He told me that they had escaped from the reformatory.

"They kept looking at my clothes—they had nothing on but pajamas and bathrobes—and I got nervous. I knew what their glances meant. And it was a cold night and raining in the bargain.

Stopped to Buy Gas.

"We stopped several times for gas and oil, which I ordered and paid for, while the two men sat in the rear seat. Then we would start on again.

"I had hard work keeping the two from getting out of the car and getting men who they saw walking along dark roads or streets and robbing them of their clothes. Along toward morning I turned to the two in the back seat and said:

"'Boys, I'm through. You can take the car and do anything you want to with it. I can't stand this any longer.'

"I expected trouble but instead of that I found myself shaking hands with one of the men, who took the wheel. The men yelled goodbye to me as they drove away."

The prisoners headed for Kalamazoo. They lost their way, however, and went to Hillsdale, where they abandoned Frederick's automobile, stole another car, robbed two men of their clothes, and drove to Detroit.

U. S. to Build Concrete Locks in Wisconsin River

Portage, Wis., May 15.—[Special.]—Messages today from Congessman Edward Voight at Washington announce that Gen. Taylor of the war department has approved the building of modern concrete locks at the Wisconsin river entrance of the government canal here to replace the wooden structure which collapsed several weeks ago, threatening whole Fox river valley with flood destruction.

PEEP AT ORIGIN OF LIFE IS GIVEN BY CELL STUDY

N. W. U. Scientist Reports on 5 Years' Work.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

A glimpse into the origins of all life is afforded in the report of a five years' investigation into cell phenomena just published by Prof. Conrad E. Tharaldsen, cytologist at Northwestern university.

In experiments carried on at the marine laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., where Jacques Loeb developed an adult frog without fertilization, and at Northwestern, Prof. Tharaldsen has shown why cells go wrong and develop abnormal bodily growths, such as cancer, thus paving the way for the chemists to step in with new specific cures for the bolshevik cells.

No Way to Stop Abnormal Growth.

At present, the investigator says, there is no way to stop a cell from developing abnormally once it has started so, and therefore the only remedy appears to be surgery or the X-ray. But these destroy living cells as well and leave some of the bad cells, which go on multiplying abnormally, and he has hopes of a chemical agent which will counteract these evils. At least he has paved the way for this.

The so-called dynamic center or nucleus of cells, which was supposed to be indispensable to growth and cleavage into new cells, has been shown to be something of a fake, according to Prof. Tharaldsen.

New Life by Chemical Means.

With the aid of a machine that he invented, which cuts cells under the microscope, he has taken away this central body and shown that new central bodies arise under chemical agents in the purely protoplasmic part of the cell. New life, then, comes through chemical and mechanical agents, rather than through the nuclear mystery alone. This is getting close to ultimate origins, for the cells of the starfish eggs, with which he experimented, are the same as human cells.

"It has been demonstrated," writes the investigator, "that the central bodies of asters in enucleate fragments arise de novo. Since these asters have all the qualities of nuclear asters and the cytasters of the entire egg, it would seem reasonable to infer that the latter, too, may arise in this way.

[An aster in biology is the radiant arrangement of the chromosomes of the nucleus cell during indirect division.]

"Asters may give rise to the central bodies de novo, which, if associated with the nucleus, may divide and thereby become genetically continuous from one cell generation to the next.

Asters Possible at Any Point.

"Facts of both normal and artificial activitation [butyric acid treatment] show that asters may rise at any point in the cytosome. The entire protoplasm is thrown into a state of more unstable equilibrium, but this is not uniform.

"It may be influenced by local conditions, such as membranes where an interchange of materials is taking place, or the location of previous asters where the restoration of equilibrium is not yet complete, or because of the metobolic gradient of the cell.

"Therefore, definite points may be determined, such as the surface of the nuclear membrane nearest the animal pole, where the protoplasm is more susceptible to the activation process.

Normal Cellular Development.

"Asters arising at such points naturally gain the ascendency in development. Thus a definite location may be predetermined in the cytosome at which, following the proper artificial activation, a single center may arise de novo, which may be capable of continuing automatically so that normal development follows."

Normal cellular development always means an equal distribution of chromosomes, and the abnormal means an unequal distribution. The unfolding of these living forms under the microscope may lead to a closer understanding of the metabolism of the body and control of the abnormal.

Founder of "Daughters of Cross" to Be Made Saint

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 15.—An impressive beatification ceremony will be held in the Vatican tomorrow evening when the Rev. Andrew Hubert Fournet, founder of the order of "Daughters of the Cross," will be sanctified. He was born in 1752 at Saint Pierre de Maille, near Poitiers, France, and was ordained in 1776. In 1807 the Rev. Fournet founded the order, which has become one of the most important charitable organizations in the Catholic church world. He died in 1834.

FIANCE BLANCHED AT WEDDING VOW, SAYS GIRL'S SUIT

Her fiance balked at the doors of the marriage court and refused to go ahead with a ceremony for which she had prepared at great expense, Miss Carolyn Emmert, 2827 Warsaw street, charged in a suit for $10,000 breach of promise filed in the Circuit court yesterday.

The bill, filed by Attorney Adolph A. C. Mayer, stated that Florian L. Domek, 2636 North Avers avenue, proposed to Miss Emmert in June, 1925. A marriage license was procured in August, but Domek postponed the wedding until last April. On the 21st of that month, the couple procured another license and started for the marriage court in the county building.

But in the doorway of the court Domek turned pale and fled, Miss Emmert said. She waited until yesterday, her 24th birthday, and then ordered her attorney to file suit.

COL. E. H. SCHULZ APPOINTED ARMY ENGINEER HERE

He Will Succeed Putnam About July 1.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Secretary of War Davis today announced that Col. Edward H. Schulz, one of the most experienced officers in the engineering corps, would be the next district engineer at Chicago. Col. Schulz will also be corps engineer.

Had Post in Hawaii.

Col. Schulz at present, on leave, has been district engineer and colonel of a regiment in Hawaii for the last three years. Prior to that time he held numerous posts in the United States. At one time he was district engineer of the Kansas City district.

One of the reasons the appointment went to Col. Schulz was due to the fact that the engineering officer has never been connected in any way with the lake level controversy between lake ports and the Chicago sanitary district. At least two of the men recommended for the position were passed over because of their contact with the lake level problem.

Col. Schulz is 53 years old, and a graduate of the military academy. He will succeed Maj. Rufus W. Putnam, the present district engineer at Chicago, about July 1.

Previous Order Canceled.

Previous orders assigning Col. Schulz to the Philadelphia district were canceled in the order sending him to Chicago. Naming Col. Schulz as corps engineer gives added importance to the army engineer's office at Chicago.

Charge Manslaughter in Honolulu Bay Rum Deaths

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., May 15.—A warrant charging manslaughter was issued for the arrest of Walter Goodman, Honolulu representative of Rothschild & Co. of San Francisco, today as a result of an investigation into the deaths of several army and navy men a few months ago, attributed to drinking bay rum adulterated with wood alcohol, which, it is alleged, was sold by Goodman.

LOSES PURSE TO PICKPOCKET.

Charles W. Anderson, 1648 North Washtenaw avenue, an elevator operator, was robbed of his wallet and $10 by a pickpocket as he was boarding a Chicago avenue car at Western avenue last evening.

LEAGUE COUNCIL REFORM PARLEY NEARING ROCKS

GENEVA, May 15.—(AP)—Owing to the persistent demands of Spain and Brazil for permanent seats, it seems likely that the commission on the reorganization of the council of the league of nations will separate without reaching an agreement on the future composition of the council and that efforts will be concentrated through regular diplomatic channels to induce the governments at Madrid and Rio de Janeiro to abandon their claims.

With the exception of Spain and Brazil, there is practical unanimity in the commission that the non-permanent seats can be increased to nine without augmenting the permanent seats. These two countries will be urged to accept the probability that they stand a good chance of becoming virtual permanent members through constant reelection.

Spain's representative informed the commission today that unless she was accorded a permanent seat, Spain would be convinced that it was not useful to collaborate longer with the league.

E. R. Stettinius Weds Miss Virginia Wallace

Richmond, Va., May 15.—[Special.]—Hampstead, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Wallace, in New Kent county, was the scene at noon today of the wedding of their daughter, Miss Virginia Gordon Wallace, and Edward R. Stettinius of New York, son of Mrs. Stettinius and the late Edward R. Stettinius of J. P. Morgan & Co. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Noble Towell of the University of Virginia, and Dr. W. H. Burkhardt of Richmond. There was a large representation from Richmond and the University of Virginia.

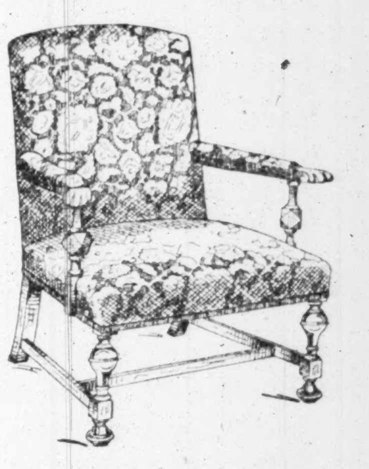
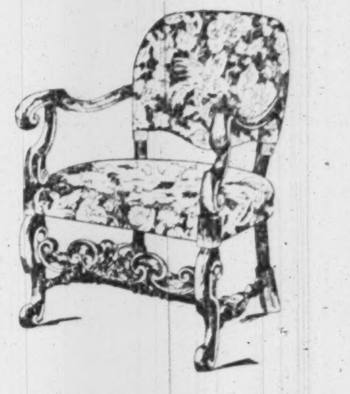
QUALITY AT LOW COST

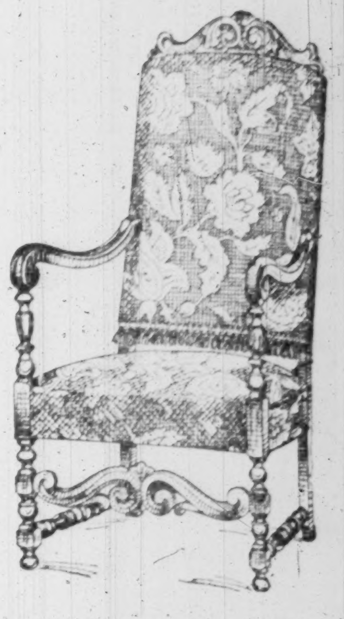
A Special Sale of Scholle's Good Furniture



Solid Walnut Lounging Chair in brocaded linen frieze, special price, $69.00.



Spanish Renaissance Solid Walnut Arm Chair in linen frieze, special price, $54.00.



French Renaissance Mahogany High Back Chair in imported tapestry. Special price, $59.00.

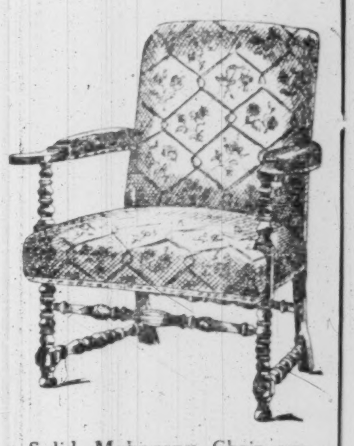
JUST now, when you're getting settled in new quarters, perhaps; or when the furniture needs of the living room may be freshly impressed on you, we are able to offer you some very special values in odd chairs.

Our buyers made a careful search among the various factories on which we call for our supply of fine furniture; and they have gathered a choice lot of these living room chairs, made specially for us, at very low prices.

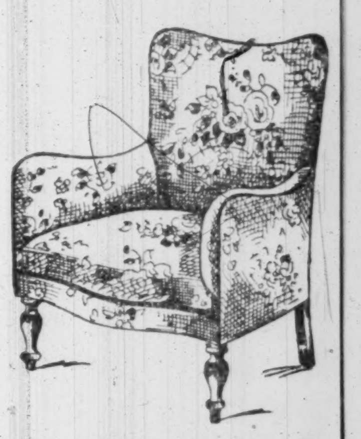
We are able to show only a few of them here; and the illustrations do not, of course, do them justice; no illustrations could. Many of them are very richly upholstered; in some cases the covering alone is worth as much as the price of the chair.

It seems to us a very opportune thing that we have, just at this time, so interesting a lot of these chairs. There are over 175 of them—a quantity of some patterns, but of many only one; and we therefore suggest early selection. We doubt if a similar opportunity will soon occur again.

They're all Scholle-quality; they're all backed by our guaranty of satisfaction.



Solid Mahogany Chair covered in small figured tapestry, special price, $43.00.



Comfortable arm chair, suitable for either living room or bedroom, in a selection of glazed figured sateens. Special price, $27.00.

We also have many other bargains in pieces for your living-room, dining-room and bedroom, just as attractively priced.

FRENCH SMASH DRUSE ARMY IN BATTLE AT FORT

Hundreds Slain at Suedia; Fierce than World War.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.

SUEDIA, Syria, May 12.—Arriving here by military airplane, crossing the Druse and French lines and dodging rifle bullets, and landing four miles outside and then motoring the rest of the way to the newly captured capital of the Hauran mountain Druses, THE TRIBUNE correspondent was the first outsider to witness the day and night fighting which began a new French advance by which Gen. Andrea hopes to end the Druse rebellion with a complete victory.

Today the defeated Druses are fortifying themselves in the craters of volcanos, which died before their ancestors came here from the Garden of Eden. The black stone with which the Druses built the fortress city is the same as those the Romans used when they found Dionysos here, where Caesar's legions found water after crossing the desert.

Wars of Many Races.

Pagens, Romans, Mohammedans, Christians, have fought for Suedia. The French themselves entered the capital in October, relieving the garrison, beisieged for two months, and now the Druses again are lighting fires on the mountain famed in the Bible, to rally 6,000 men to a counter attack.

"The most ferocious and savage battle in modern war," is the way the officers of the foreign legion who fought in Villers-Cotterets woods between the American first and second divisions and with the Rainbow division south of Rheims, described the fighting which gave Gen. Andrews possession of the great Druse stronghold. "Neither the French, Germans, nor Americans ever saw anything like it in Europe."

Fight Like Maniacs.

"The Druses fight like a nation released from a lunatic asylum," Gen. Andrea told THE TRIBUNE correspondent at dinner tonight. "For example, twenty charged a tank, trying to hold the wheels with their bare hands. Five were crushed to death under the caterpillar, ten were killed, and the rest still fought. The Druses charged machine gun nests time and again. In one instance fifteen lost their lives, so the sixteenth, armed with a knife only, leaped into the pit, slashing the gunners.

"In the main battle 6,000 left their trenches and stone walls and attacked the French, and despite the modern machine guns, mine throwers, grenades, and artillery bombs engaged in hand to hand fighting until Col. Duclos, the leader of one column, ordered a bayonet charge, which turned their chance for victory.

Cannon Wipe Out 300.

About 300 Druses sacrificed their lives in an attempt to kill Gen. Andrea. They hid in a ravine, letting the advancing army of 12,000 cross above. They suddenly charged the French center. The advancing cannons were turned backward, firing point blank and annihilating the enemy.

Altogether the Druses lost nearly 2,000, while the French, thanks to their perfect organization, modern weapons, and tanks, which poured death into groups of rebels, and airplanes which arrived when the mists cleared, lost fewer than 100 killed. The Foreign Legion again led the column.

The victory was so complete that THE TRIBUNE correspondent was able to walk unaccompanied by armored cars for miles around Suedia. The most impressive sight was the Turkish citadel, which was the scene of the French garrison's siege when the war broke out, and which has been completely demolished by the Druses.

Outside the fort THE TRIBUNE correspondent saw the French graveyard, now a series of empty graves. When the French arrived they found that the Druses had dug up the bodies of officers and men who died during the siege or were killed in previous battle, scattering the bones to the dogs. The French army was furious. Nevertheless, Gen. Andrea gave an order that not a single Druse's house must be destroyed, nor a temple desecrated, nor a single thing left behind looted.

Most of Fortress Intact.

Despite the air bombing and shelling a great part of Suedia is intact.

"The whole city is one veritable fortress," said Gen. Andrea. "Every house is a blockhouse because it is built of stone. Even the roofs are made of great stones, a trick the Druses learned from the Romans, many of whose wonderful houses still are intact. Generally it is to our advantage that the enemy, instead of using the city, came into the open for a decisive battle.

"However, it is plain that the Druses were aided by officers with European training. In October they had great gun emplacements and were able to hit Col. Duclos' column as well as mine, and their marksmanship was good. Among the war material found was recently made stuffs, as well as German rifles, bought since the world war, with which all the orient is still armed.

Tribesmen Shattered.

"The enemy is shattered. I can move anywhere now. Our problem is food and water, as well as battling the Druses. I have got a three months' supply of water. The nearby springs furnish some, but the Druses are also without water, and the sun, which already is registering 104, is burning up the country. The decisive battle is over, but this is the orient, and we must have patience to accomplish our purpose."

53 SUSPENDED OAK PARK HIGH BOYS SUE BOARD

Say They Were Tricked Into Frat Confession.

Fifty-three Oak Park high school students were tricked into signing confessions that they belonged to secret societies in the belief that their most severe punishment would be a week's suspension, according to their suit filed in the Superior court yesterday, asking that the school board be forced to permit them to return to their studies.

The bill, filed by Attorneys Frank E. Cantwell and Robert E. Cantwell, charged that the school board employed Hinton G. Clabaugh as a detective, who secured written confessions from each of the boys. After obtaining these each boy was suspended for one year and repeated pleas to be allowed to return have been of no avail, the bills says.

Charges Anti-Athletic Plot.

In addition, John Wymond, chairman of the committee of fathers, issued a statement in which he declared he believed that a desire to crush out athletics in the school was responsible for the expulsion.

More than forty of these 53 boys were very prominent in the athletic activities of the school," he pointed out. "I am informed that at an election for president of the class of 1925 the principal compelled the senior class to reballot for their choice for president and told them that Oak Park High was not an athletic school."

On May 4 each of the boys was closeted with Clabaugh, according to the bill, and charged with belonging to a fraternity. They were told that if they would "come clean" and resign from the fraternities and pledge themselves to prevent the renewed establishment of any fraternity, Clabaugh was of the opinion that the board of education would inflict only a nominal punishment, at the most a week's suspension, the bill stated.

Expected Light Punishment.

Each of the boys, under the impression that they were to be lightly punished, then signed the confessions, it was charged.

The bill attacked the expulsion on other grounds. The fraternities to which the high school boys belonged did not bar nonhigh school members, it was said, and thus the societies did not come under the heading of "high school fraternities."

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

LET STATES DO THEIR PART, PLEA OF PRESIDENT

Virginia Address Hits at Centralization.

In sharp contrast with the deep interest of President and people in the facsimile of the immortal defiance was the applause which, when they had settled down to the speechmaking of the day, the same President and the same people gave to that part of the address by Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia in which he expressed the sympathy of the people of Virginia and of the whole country with England in her present difficulties. He prayed that the old land might find a speedy and happy issue out of all her troubles, and again there was a volley of handclapping by the descendants of men who were the cause of the gravest troubles and the costliest difficulties England ever faced.

Calvin Coolidge entered the ancient, weather worn, ivy-clad precincts of this second oldest college in the United States, an Amherst man and left them a William and Mary man. Just before he mounted the speakers' platform the President doffed the silk hat of the statesman on parade, replacing it with the gold tasseled mortar board that went with the doctor's degree Amherst gave him. He also donned his Amherst gown.

Becomes an LL. D.

After his speech he descended from the platform into a close packed throng of students and professors and was presented by James A. Dillard, rector of the board of regents of the college, to Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, its president, who retained his position on the platform. Chandler then bent forward and placed in the President's hands the parchment which makes him an LL.D., by grace of the institution that was the alma mater of Thomas Jefferson. Thus was fellowship established between the third president of the United States and the thirtieth, and Calvin Coolidge left the campus with the white and gold hood of his William and Mary doctorate draped over his black Amherst gown.

In opening his speech the President addressed the Virginians as "My fellow Americans," and with every paragraph he released the fellowship between him and them became closer.

Quip Brings Laughter.

It reached the stage of joviality when he described their ancestors as men who "were mostly bent on seeing what they could put into the government" then came a roar of laughter when he added "while we are mostly bent of seeing what we can get out of it."

"The states," said the President in his attack on bureaucracy, "should not be induced by coercion or by favor to surrender the management of their own affairs.

"No method of procedure has ever been devised by which liberty could be divorced from local self-government. No plan of centralization has ever been adopted which did not result in bureaucracy, tyranny, inflexibility, reaction, and decline."

Takes Democratic Trend.

Throughout this part of his discourse our Republican President put himself in notable democratic company, for by all the public men who came here today from Washington Mr. Coolidge's speech has been instantly coupled with scathing speeches along identical lines made last Thursday evening in the United States senate by the Democrats, Reed of Missouri and King of Utah, and in the house of representatives by Huddleston of Alabama.

The nonpartisan White House breakfasts, it is asserted, have resulted in an agreement by leaders in both parties to launch a systematic fight against the growing disposition of the American people to "let Washington do it" by means of the creation of new federal bureaus and the breeding of more bureaucrats.

Washington cannot do it, the President believes, when it comes to looking after affairs everywhere from a backwoods township to a commonwealth as vast as the European kingdom and controlling the activities of everybody from a county supervisor to a state game warden.

"The national administration," he said to the attentive throng assembled from every shire of the Old Dominion, "is not and cannot be adjusted to the needs of local government. It is too far away to be informed of local needs, too inaccessible to be responsible to local conditions.

States Must Be Responsive.

"But, on the other hand," said he, "when the great body of public opinion of the nation requires action the states ought to understand that unless they are responsive to such sentiment the national authority will be compelled to intervene."

Then came the best Coolidgeism of this day. Thus:

"The doctrine of states' rights is not a privilege to continue in wrongdoing, but a privilege to be free from interference in well doing."

Granting so much, granting that the states would use and not abuse the great power for initiative and for achievement which the founding fathers left with them, the speaker had but one wish, and that was this:

"I want to see the policy adopted by the states of discharging their public functions so faithfully that instead of an extension on the part of the federal government there can be contraction."

More cheering for that.

Leaving Text for Sermon.

As his custom is when he makes an anniversary speech, Mr. Coolidge plucked the vital significance out of an event long since enshrined in the annals of the republic and made it the living text for his sermon on new phases of old problems. He recited the words of the two resolutions unanimously adopted 150 years ago today by the Virginia convention which instructed Virginia's delegates in the continental congress, "to propose to that respectable body to declare the United Colonies free and independent states, absolved from all allegiance to, or dependence upon, the Crown or Parliament of Great Britain."

Then came the big qualifier in which the President found the text for his sermon on the menaces of centralization and bureaucracy:

"Provided, That the power of forming government for, and the regulation of the internal concerns of each colony, be left to respective colonial legislatures."

Every Virginia gentleman who put a potential noose around his neck by signing those resolutions knew what he was about, was the President's intimation.

"Their import," he said, "was well understood in this locality. The event was marked that evening by a celebration, the ringing of bells, and the firing of guns. The British flag went down at the state house never to rise again, and in its place was flown the crosses and stripes, the temporary emblem of a new government."

"Each generation has its problems," the President continued.

"The days of the revolution had theirs and we have ours. They were making an advance in the art of government which, while it has been broadened in its application, has not changed and does not seem likely to change from the fundamental principles which they established.

"We are making our advance and our contribution to the betterment of the economic condition and the broader realization of the humanities in the life of the world.

"They broke the power of parliament because its actions did not represent, were not benefiting the American public. They established institutions guaranteed under a reign of law where liberty and justice and the public welfare would be supreme.

"Amid all the contentions of the present day nothing is more important to secure the continuation of what they wrought than a constant and vigilant resistance to the domination of selfish and private interests in the affairs of government in order that liberty and justice may still be secure and the public welfare may still be supreme."

Hit Blocs, Propagandists.

Next to his arraignment of bureaucracy and centralization, the presidential utterance that today won most favor was the denunciation of minority rule, the dictatorship of blocs, and the interference in measures of government of paid propagandists and agitators who have no responsibility to the people.

"The principle," said Mr. Coolidge, "that those who think alike ought to be able to act alike wherever they happen to live should be supplemented by another rule for the continuation of the contentment and tranquillity of our republic. The general acceptance of our institutions proceeds on the theory that they have been adopted by the action of a majority.

"It is obvious that if those who hold to the same ideals of government fail to agree the chances very strongly favor a rule by a minority. But there is another element of recent development.

"Direct primaries and direct elections bring to bear upon the political fortunes of public officials the greatly disproportionate influence of organized minorities.

Scorns Paid Agitators.

"Artificial propaganda, paid agitators, selfish interests, all impinge upon members of legislative bodies to force them to represent special elements rather than the great body of their constituency. When they are successful, minority rule is established, and the result is an extravagance on the part of the government which is ruinous to the people and a multiplicity of regulations and restrictions for the conduct of all kinds of necessary business, which becomes little less than oppressive.

"Not only is this one country, but we must keep all its different parts in harmony by refusing to adopt legislation which is not for the general welfare."

The presidential party returned to Yorktown in the afternoon and boarded the Mayflower, which will land them, after a short cruise, in Washington tomorrow.

COOLIDGE, THIRTIETH PRESIDENT, GREETED BY SON OF TENTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Williamsburg, Va., May 15.—[Special.]—A venerable educator and historian, whose father became President of the United States eighty-five years ago, was presented to President Coolidge today. He is Dr. Lyon Gardiner Tyler, now president emeritus of William and Mary college. He was born eight years after the presidency of John Tyler and is now 73 years old. Thus a son of the tenth President of the United States has lived to do the honors of this day to the thirtieth President of the United States.

WASHINGTON QUIET WITH CONGRESS AND COOLIDGE ON HOLIDAY

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Wheels of government almost ceased to turn today, with both houses of congress in recess and President Coolidge out of the city.

The desire of a number of southern members of both houses to attend the celebration at Williamsburg, Va., today, where President Coolidge was the principal speaker, was one reason for the adjournment until Monday. Another reason was the Pennsylvania primaries, scheduled for next Tuesday, and the desire of all Pennsylvania members to be in their home state during the final days of the campaign.

With final adjournment approaching, both houses will have a busy week ahead of them when they resume work Monday.

U. S. REPORTS SLIGHT CUT IN EMPLOYMENT IN MONTH OF APRIL

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Employment in manufacturing industries in April decreased 1 per cent and pay roll totals decreased 1.9 per cent, according to the department of labor. Employment nevertheless was 0.8 per cent greater than in April, 1925, and pay roll totals were 3.2 per cent greater.

The department index of employment for April is 92.8, as compared with 93.7 for March, and 92.1 for April, 1925. The index of pay roll totals for April is 97.2, as compared with 99.1 for March and 94.2 for April, 1925.

Decreases in employment and pay roll totals have appeared in April with regularity during the years for which the department has records, 1920 being the only year showing an increase, and 1923 and 1918 being the only years showing an increase in pay roll totals.

The figures for April are based on reports from 9,689 establishments having 2,971,407 employés, whose combined earnings in one week were $80,094,288.

Per capita earnings in all industries combined decreased 1 per cent in April.

CLOSE CLARK ST. BRIDGE TO SPEED NEW DRIVE WORK

An order was issued yesterday for the closing of the Clark street bridge, beginning at midnight, until 5 a. m. Wednesday to permit uninterrupted work on the new South Water street improvement.

Surface cars using the bridge will be rerouted during the period. The Riverview-Larrabee line will use the Dearborn street bridge, and Clark-Wentworth cars will go through the La Salle street tunnel. Clark-Chicago avenue cars will use the Wells street bridge, turning west at Randolph street while bound north and at Illinois street while bound south. Waveland cars will turn east from Clark to Dearborn at Monroe, north on Dearborn to Kinzie, and west on Kinzie to Clark.

SCOTT SANITY CASE POINTS TO LEGAL TANGLE

Three Alienists Named to Make Examination.

Complications may arise should Russell T. Scott be declared sane and sent back from the Chester prison to Cook county to be hanged for the murder of Joseph Maurer. Lawyers yesterday, following publication of the news that such a move was imminent, foresaw possibilities but no precedent.

A jury of twelve saved the convicted slayer from the gallows after a similar body had condemned him. The second jury found he had become insane since the death sentence was pronounced and, under the law, an insane may not be hanged.

Jenkins Orders Investigation.

Chauncey Jenkins, head of the state department of public welfare, let it be known that he believes Scott now to be sane and proposes to have him examined by state alienists.

These three experts have been named by Jenkins to make the examination: Dr. Herman Adler, state criminologist; Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, superintendent of the Elgin State hospital, and Dr. Frank A. Stubblefield, head of Chester prison. They will sit as a commission tomorrow at the prison. Should they find Scott sane, he must, under the terms of his commitment, be returned to the custody of Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman.

Assistant State's Attorneys Michael Romano and Lewis Blumenthal are to be present at the hearing by order of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. They left last night for the prison and will later proceed to St. Louis to investigate details in connection with the forthcoming trial of Martin Durkin.

Attorney William Scott Stewart, who brought the proceedings through which Scott's life was saved, is now the attorney for Robert Scott, Russell's brother, who is to be tried for the same murder of which his brother was convicted. Russell Scott, if found legally sane, might be used as a witness in that trial, it was pointed out.

Slaying Blamed on Robert.

Originally the convicted youth blamed the murder on his brother. What story would come after a meeting of the brothers in the Cook county jail was a matter of conjecture yesterday among prosecutors and defenders.

Attorney Stewart was at the Derby. His office associates said he would undoubtedly file another petition asking that a jury of laymen again pass on Russell Scott's sanity. Or he might insist that the pronouncement of a few doctors employed by the state could not set aside the finding of a jury. In any event, opinions were Scott might be within his rights in again asking that a jury fix his status: sane and eligible to be hanged or insane and ineligible to be hanged.

CAUGHT AS KILLER

MEYER GOLAND.

Meyer Goland, 1250 North Western avenue, charged with shooting and killing Richard R. Williams, 60 East Chicago avenue, a taxicab driver, in a quarrel that followed a collision between automobiles driven by the two men, was arrested yesterday by Sergts. Welling and Miller of the detective bureau. The killing occurred on Wednesday and a search has been conducted for Goland since. He fled after firing.

'Aphrodite' Author's Books, Wilde MS. Sold for $4,144

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 14.—The sale of books belonging to the late Pierre Touys, author of "Aphrodite," and an autographed manuscript of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," brought 135,000 francs [$4,144], a record price in Paris. A locket containing a clipping of the hair of Victor Hugo and a love message from the great poet, brought a mere 400 francs [$12.28].

20 SALOON MEN WILL FACE GRAND JURY TOMORROW

New Facts Are Unearthed in Parole Expose.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Gilbert Keeler, confidence game, sentenced to one year in the Bridewell by Judge Marcus Kavanagh.

New evidence in the parole exposé was examined by State's Attorney Crowe and his assistants yesterday afternoon and it is expected that tangible facts will be presented to the special grand jury at its next session tomorrow.

A score of Cicero saloonkeepers have also been subpœnaed for tomorrow, and it is hoped that from them some evidence may be obtained to assist in the search for the slayers of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin.

Easy to Get Witnesses.

First Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman discovered yesterday how easy it is to get witnesses for gangsters who are in trouble. The prosecution questioned Edward Hanrahan, roadhouse owner, whose place was raided Friday night and three repeating shotguns, a rifle, and a supply of ammunition seized. He was a witness at Gov. Small's extradition hearing for Frank McErlane, beer runner, who is awaiting removal to Indiana on a murder charge.

"I do not know what date it was that McErlane was in my place," Hanrahan said. "It may have been May 4, 1924 (the day of the murder) or the Sunday before or after. The investigator for McErlane's lawyers told me it was May 4, so I testified to that."

Hanrahan was charged by the police with violation of the prohibition act.

Further Inquiry on Leopold.

Meanwhile State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn of Will county reopened his investigation to determine whether Nathan Leopold Jr., serving a life sentence in Stateville prison, was involved in the plot that resulted in the murder of Deputy Warden Peter Klein and the escape of seven convicts, two of whom are still at large.

Leopold was questioned soon after the escape, but satisfied Mr. Rehn that he was not in the plot. Later it was learned he was friendly with the other convicts in the plot. The possibility has been advanced that he knew the solitary cells of the prison would be the rallying point for the fugitives, and stole sugar to be placed there.

CHARM!

THE CABLEGRAM—

CHARM! Who shall say what constitutes that indefinable attraction we call charm? And, yet, what woman does not long to possess it?

Music with its peace and calm, its buoyancy and thrill is akin to charm.

Played on a beautiful Piano—or faithfully re-enacted on the famous Ampico—music will greatly aid any woman to radiate that elusive quality, charm.

Music gives tone to the universe; wings to the wind; flight to the imagination; a charm to sadness; gayety and life to everything.—Plato

THE TIME HAS COME TO ELECTRIFY ALL CHICAGO RAILROADS.

Electrification of all the railroad lines in Chicago is overdue. The question of electrification has been allowed to lapse since 1915, when the railroads culminated four years' work with a report seeking to show that complete electrification was "financially impracticable." It is time to reopen the question.

Since the issuance of that report, and despite its avowal that the thing could not be done, one railroad, the Illinois Central, has gone about the business of electrification. The suburban service will be electrified within two months and all its trains in the Chicago district will be operated by electric power within another fifteen years.

It is time that Chicago ceased being a back yard for the country's railroads. It is significant that the majority of the directors of the railroads which run into Chicago live in New York and that New York began electrification of its terminals some twenty years ago. We are sure that if the directors were to change their residences to Chicago it would soon be found that electrification of the Chicago lines was financially practicable after all.

It is true that the railroads made Chicago, but the benefits that Chicago has enjoyed by being the railroad center of America have not been without their drawbacks. Great tracts of the city adjacent to the twenty-two trunk lines, the seven switching lines, and the eight industrial lines within the 400 square miles of the Chicago freight rate district, and in the vicinity of the area's 206 freight yards are paralyzed. The noisy, dirty, smoke and soot pouring steam lines are the cause. Electrification is the only cure.

Annually the city's railroad transportation grows greater and the railroads cannot keep pace under the old steam power. The suburban passenger traffic of the Illinois Central, which carries approximately one-third of the city's annual load of 67,000,000 local passengers, has increased from 75,000 week day passengers in 1922 to almost 90,000 passengers today. The Illinois Central had no room in which to spread out, and thus care for the increase, so it turned to electric power. Other railroads must of necessity, sooner or later, follow suit.

Electric traction is faster, more powerful, more economical, and more efficient, besides being cleaner. The story of the Illinois Central has been told many times, but it bears repeating, because it illustrates what may be done if a road will electrify. When the Illinois Central begins operating electrically between Randolph street and Kensington on July 15 it will effect an average saving of time of between 15 and 25 per cent. The road will be enabled to add some 30 trains to its present daily schedule of 378 and to put in use 9,400 extra seats during each rush hour period. That is not all that electrification will do for the Illinois Central. The railroad figures its air rights over the property between Randolph street and the river will be worth $200,000,000, a sum almost four-fifths of the amount the railroads said it would cost to electrify completely back in 1915. The Illinois Central has a particularly fortunate location, but the benefit that is coming to it in the future value of the air rights made available by electrification will be matched in some degree by every other road.

We do not know how much the development of its air rights brought the New York Central following the electrification of its lines running into the Grand Central terminal, but it is said that a full realization on them would more than pay for the change of system. The enhancement of adjoining real estate values in New York—and the same thing would follow in Chicago—has been stupendous.

Once installed, an electric road far surpasses a steam road in its economy and operation. The cost of maintaining a steam locomotive is more than twice that of keeping an electric engine in running order. The steam locomotive's time in the shop for repairs is at least three times as great. The electric locomotive is by far the more powerful; grades do not bother it; it accelerates more quickly; it does not burn up fuel while it is standing idle.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, over the 646 miles of mountain route which it electrified, and despite the falling off in freight which it suffered after 1920, was able to show a saving of $12,400,007 for the period since it went to electricity compared to what it would have cost with steam.

Suburban service is a costly thing to most roads. The Northwestern has said that its suburban service has represented an annual loss of something like $1,500,000. Yet an electric road like the North Shore can make money giving much the same class of service. Electrification offers the way to make suburban service pay.

Congestion has forced street traffic to take to the double level. Railroads will soon be forced to follow suit, and then electrification will be a necessity. The saving in the cost of property for terminal sites, and the efficiency and convenience of the double level system—separating suburban and through trains in the station—requires its adoption within the near future. The Pennsylvania found that out at its Broad street terminal in Philadelphia. Congestion forced economy of space through electrification.

The Chicago railroad terminal operating district now covers some 1,750 square miles and contains 6,898 miles of track. The day will come when all the main and suburban lines in this system will be electrified. Some will be electrified as far out as one operating division from the city. Express trains will make Milwaukee in an hour and a quarter. Switching at first will be done with oil electric locomotives. But electrification of all trackage will follow.

New York has electrified its terminals. Philadelphia has also.

To be profitable as an investment electrification requires a dense traffic needing fast service. The Chicago district fulfills that requirement. Moreover—and this is the most important—Chicago is tired of the inefficiency and the costly nuisance of the steam locomotive. It was predicted optimistically that other railroads would follow the Illinois Central's lead. They do not seem inclined to do so. Their directors do not live in Chicago, but Chicagoans do.

MINISTERS OF RELIGION.

Will Hays, speaking before a number of business men, members of the Presbyterian church, asserted, "We cannot live without men who can interpret God to us."

Mankind cannot live without such men, but it is fortunate that their response to the need is not measured by the recompense they receive. The poverty of its ministers is as old as the Christian religion itself.

Mr. Hays spoke in behalf of an intended fund of $15,000,000, to be collected for the purpose of supporting and pensioning ministers of his denomination. By providing such support, he said, interest in religion will be revived.

The Presbyterian church is approaching the problem of a religious revival from the right direction. The ministerial life offers little inducement to the young man with ambition. Ministers are human. They find their greatest solace in service, but they need also some human appreciation on the part of those they serve. Many a splendid minister has been lost to the church, not so much because of the poverty of his calling itself, as because his poverty meant a congregation callous to the service he attempted to render. The ministry needs successful men if a new interest in religion is to be aroused. And how many men can live in poverty all their lives and face an old age of charity and still feel that they have made a success of life?

Money spent for the support and care of ministers is one of the best religious investments it is possible to make. It is far more effective than money spent for reforms and legislative campaigns, even though these claim to be carried out in the name of religion. It is unfortunate that so many associations for betterment have eaten up funds that should have gone into the collection plate. Still more unfortunate is the tendency of a small group of ministers of a certain type to follow the path of the money. That is a tendency that adequate compensation will do much to correct. The ministerial title, which should be sacred to the cause of religion, is misused when it serves to obtain money for non-religious causes and to clothe the handling of that money with a righteousness that it would be presumption to question.

The minister needing aid from such a fund as the Presbyterian church proposes is the devout man, serving God and his people.

Mr. Hays put it this way: "Religion is the one essential industry." He was translating into modern terms a very ancient exhortation. Christ told the tempter, "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone," and He was recalling the words of Moses to the Children of Israel, "that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live."

On the other hand, ministers cannot live by religion only. They need bread. And man needs both religion and good ministers.

ILLINOIS' WORLD TRADE.

Statistics made public by the department of commerce show that Illinois, which in 1924 was the fourth state in the Union in the value of its exports, dropped to eighth place in 1925. In 1924 Illinois shipped to foreign countries merchandise valued at $239,314,270. In 1925 the value of Illinois exports was only $224,569,234.

Making due allowance for the fallacies bound to enter into such figures, the department's report shows clearly that Illinois is under a distinct disadvantage in the competition for foreign trade. There is no incentive to export. The obstacles, compared to more fortunately situated states, are too great.

Illinois, in common with the other producing states of the Mississippi valley, needs an outlet to the sea. Illinois and the middle west need the waterways, the lakes-to-gulf route and the St. Lawrence seaway. Only when these are actualities can Illinois and the middle west grow as great export states, as they will grow when these world trade routes are completed.

THE DEBT SETTLEMENT IN FRANCE.

[New York World.]

It was expected that the French debt settlement would encounter as much opposition in France as in this country, but from present signs Premier Briand may face an even harder fight in the chamber of deputies that Senator Smoot is likely to encounter from the last red cent orators in the American senate. The half-hearted defense of the agreement a few days ago by M. Péret, the finance minister, did not make it any more popular with his countrymen.

Socialist leaders have insisted that the agreement should set up machinery for effecting the transfer of funds without demoralizing the exchanges, and as no such machinery has been provided their attitude is problematical. Conservative opposition is taken for granted. The votes necessary for ratification must come from the center and from the more moderate members of the right and left. M. Briand has been successful heretofore by holding enough of these votes together to maintain a working majority, and he must look to the same elements again for ratification.

The most effective argument for ratification will be a citation of the consequences to France of a repudiation of the agreement. The renewed decline of the franc, threatening the theoretically balanced budget, will do much to buttress this argument. It was a sinking spell of the franc at the end of March which enabled the government to corral enough votes to adopt a balanced budget. In that case M. Briand's opponents did not dare assume responsibility for the results which would have followed his defeat. Similar considerations may influence their votes on the debt settlement.

HOW A UNIVERSITY MAY EXPRESS RELIGION

BY WALTER DILL SCOTT, PH. D., LL. D.
[President Northwestern University. Dr. Scott is a Presbyterian, although head of a Methodist school.]

A religious census of Northwestern university shows that a large majority of the students are members of or affiliated with some church. There is probably no body of an equal number of young men and women associated together with so large a proportion of them moral, religious, and idealistic as the groups found not only in our university but in the universities of America taken as a whole. Just because the accounts of football, baseball, and sports in general, an occasional escapade or instance requiring necessary discipline get the largest and most prominent space in the newspapers and create the most gossip on the campus is no reason for the belief that the university student body is not serious minded.

To meet this religious need the university provides the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations and, according to its facilities, with chapel exercises. It maintains a department of religious education, and students and members of the faculty do practical work in teaching and in project work. The university takes religion for granted and makes no apology for its faith or practice. Northwestern, like so many of our colleges and universities, was founded by deeply religious men whose chief ambition was to establish a school for the training of youth under Christian auspices. While its cosmopolitan character and great growth in numbers have broadened its sympathies, yet it has always maintained a standard in harmony with the evangelical faith and sought to maintain an atmosphere favorable to religion.

The university recognizes there have been various ways in which educational institutions have expressed their religion. There have been suggestive types of architecture, special costumes, bodily postures, and certain vocal expressions thought to be in harmony with devotion and the practice of religion. Our modern institutions, originating as a rule far removed from the cloister, clerical garb, obeisances and intonations of medieval Europe, will be misunderstood in matters of religion if these historical expressions of faith in symbol and form are deemed essential. We do not criticize those who still cling to the heritage of the past, but we beg the public to accept as religious certain ideals and purposes which we cherish, even though wearing the plain vestments of the every day life of the people.

We believe we have come into the larger conception of seeing life and seeing it whole. We do not believe we underestimate the personal relationship of the individual soul to its maker less than was taught as the almost exclusive aim of these older universities which made the salvation of the individual a matter of greatest significance. We still hold to the supreme value of the individual soul, but we regard this conception of life as only a part of the truth. The old teaching declares: "Get the individual converted and the development of society will take care of itself as the outgrowth of this conversion." The modern university says: "Get the individual converted—that is in harmony with the will of God—but do not abandon him there, but train him to see the relationship of the individual to all life." Religion is expressed today not as something apart from our every day existence but as an enrichment and completing of life. Not only is the relation of the individual to his maker important but also the relation of the individual to his fellows. Not only is the salvation of the individual regarded as essential but also the welfare of humanity.

The university is primarily an organization for training young men and women. Formerly many seemed to think that the chief and perhaps the only task of the university from the religious standpoint was the training of ministers and missionaries. This is still our task, and we regard it important that we do train ministers, missionaries, and other professionally religious workers, but we now assume the additional responsibility of training men and women for all worthy walks of life. We believe a man can express his religion in business, politics, statesmanship, in the diplomatic service, in engineering, and a woman in teaching and in the home as truly as can those who enter fields of work technically called religious. We do not desire to drag angels down, but we desire to lift all men and women up, so that a standard of life shall be established in which all talents, gifts, acquirements, and opportunities shall be regarded as consecrated.

The university is a place for intimacies lifelong in their reach. Some of the most lasting impressions made upon students come from the character of the members of the faculty and from that of fellow students. Occasional comment in the classroom, if reverential and constructive, sometimes starts thoughts that radiate influences like waves from a pebble thrown into a pond until they reach the farthest shores of time.

Religion is expressed by the university preëminently after the manner of the Good Samaritan who cared for the man wounded on the Jericho road, took him to an inn, and gave him medical care until the hour when he could provide for himself. Jesus said to the lawyer, who asked him the question, "Who is my neighbor?": "Go, thou, and do likewise." The university has become a public service institution to perform four functions: to overcome suffering resulting from poverty; to overcome suffering resulting from disease; to overcome suffering resulting from sin; to overcome suffering resulting from ignorance.

A school of commerce, by its training and research, may increase the prosperity of a nation and thus remove suffering resulting from poverty.

A medical school and a dental school, by their teaching, clinics, dispensaries, and research, reduce the suffering resulting from disease.

A law school, by promoting the science of justice; a theological school, by extending our knowledge of God; a department of religious education by improving the practice of teaching religion, contribute to reduce the suffering resulting from sin.

Each school and department in the university finds its chief justification, however, in the contribution it makes in overcoming the suffering resulting from ignorance.

Universities are also in an increasing degree research institutions. They regard it as their duty to increase knowledge concerning God and his universe. This duty on the part of the faculty members of a university is sometimes exaggerated so that we hear it stated that for a university professor his science is his religion. This exaggerated expression carries a partial truth because the spirit of the university emphasizes the importance and even the duty of research and regards the discovery of truth as an expression of religion.

The modern university expresses its religion by a ministry among the people. It touches the eyes and brings sight to youth, healing to the afflicted and truth to the world. Surely this is close to the spirit of Him who was the Great Teacher, the loved Healer, and who was Himself the Truth.

ROCK THE BABY.

It was a hot, sultry day in a great city. Seven cars were lined up in front of a busy filling station. Third from the end stood a leaking, steaming, rattling little five-passenger. In due time the line dwindled and the little five-passenger found itself parallel with the gas pipe.

"How many?" the man asked impatiently.

"One," answered Mr. Fliv with the air of a Rockefeller.

"One? What cha' tryin' to do? Wean it?"—Tennessee Tar.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

THE CANCER THAT KILLED GRANT.

In 1885 the nation was thrilled by the last fight which Gen. U. S. Grant was ever to make. The fight was against a cancer which had started in the mouth and extended to the throat. The thrill was because the poverty stricken hero was trying to write in spite of his pain and trying to live long enough to complete his autobiography, which was to care for his family.

If Grant were living today he could have been spared that fight and the nation would miss its thrill.

Dr. Bloodgood is responsible for the statement that cancer of the mouth is preventible and that no death from it need ever occur. To prevent it, no one should chew or smoke, the mouth should be kept clean and the teeth free from jagged points and edges. If his program stopped there it would mean little. Many people are willing to take a chance. A pipe tastes good, and its charm is right at hand. Cancer is over the hill at worst. Why not keep the bird in hand? Dr. Bloodgood's program permits those who want to smoke to take a chance. He even allows some flirting with dirty mouths and jagged teeth. Now we come to the second line of defense.

The smoker should go to his physician and dentist periodically. If any leukoplakia patches are found, smoking must be stopped at once. The teeth must be smoothed if necessary and the mouth must be made clean and kept clean. There need be no other treatment of the leukoplakia. It must be watched, however. If any symptoms of trench mouth develop, the subject should go at once to the physician and have that disorder cured with perborate of soda. If symptoms of geographical tongue, or the mouth symptoms of pernicious anemia, pellagra, scurvy or diabetes appear, the symptoms should be investigated.

Any man with a reasonable degree of intelligence and with a fair degree of wholesome fear and caution should be able to make himself secure behind this second line of fortification in the Bloodgood scheme of defense.

Gen. Grant would have been saved at this line. He loved to smoke too well to have gotten behind the first line of defense.

But for those careless or ignorant people who flaunt the second line of defense, Bloodgood has a third. This is early operation. Cancer of the mouth, removed by the electric or the heat cautery, and properly removed, does not return, as a rule. Of the hundreds operated on in this way since 1920, seven out of each ten were cured and remained so for more than five years. It is not customary to consider cancer safe until it has stayed away five years. Other hundreds operated on and now free from cancer are awaiting the end of their five year probation period. The operation of early cancer of the lip and early cancerous ulcers and warts on the cheek and gums is simple, easy, quickly done and not severe. That of early cancer of the tongue is not so simple.

Surgeons generally are doing these operations successfully. The third line of fortification will save most of those who, while they have disregarded the other ramparts, look for refuge there.

WHY PEPPER HARMS.

R. L. F. writes: Will you let me know just what harm pepper does to a person? I know a party who uses it to excess at every meal. In fact, he cannot eat a meal without blackening his food with pepper.

REPLY.

All condiments are harmful. They destroy the taste for more wholesome foods. So much for the negative side.

On the positive side, the essential oils, including the oil of pepper, are slightly poisonous even in small doses used on foods.

HOW ABOUT THE MAN.

A Reader writes: Kindly let me know if it is wrong or right for a girl to marry between the ages of 20 and 21.

REPLY:

Age is all right.

The next question is, is the man all right?

PAY PROMPTLY.

Chicago, May 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We bought furniture on the installment plan for a small amount and due to sickness I have not been able to keep up payments regularly, sometimes missing a month at a time; but paying some so as not to get too far in arrears. They have sent letters to me saying that if I do not pay more promptly they will garnishee my husband's wages. As long as I am willing to pay some, can they do this? MRS. D. B.

Yes, they can, if you pay less than you originally agreed to.

DOUBLE WORK.

Chicago, May 8.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I had my apartment cleaned and it cost me a total of $88 which included cleaning of rugs, curtains and draperies. After it was all finished the owner had the outside of the building cleaned with a sand blast machine. Although the windows were kept closed the mortar and dirt from this machine came through and just ruined the rugs and curtains which were just cleaned. Have I any recourse?

TENANT.

If the damage could have been prevented by reasonable precautions that the landlord failed to have taken, he would be liable. The question is largely one of fact.

AMBITIOUS YOUTH.

Chicago, May 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a young man 19½ years old start a jobbing wholesale furniture business independently?

2. What procedure could he follow to get a loan of $5,000 without security?

3. To what extent is he legally liable to his creditors and business?

4. Can any one legally take his business away, that is, parents or a creditor, because he is a minor? J.

1. Yes.

2. It does not seem probable that any procedure would be effective.

3. Not at all in the sense that his minority would be a defense.

4. It could be placed in the hands of a guardian under appropriate legal proceedings.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 16, 1861.

WASHINGTON.—A. D. Banks, formerly of the Cincinnati Enquirer and now of the Richmond Enquirer and spy for Jeff Davis all winter, has kept himself concealed here for several days. He was discovered yesterday, but managed to escape.

BALTIMORE.—Gen. Butler is here with 1,400 troops. He has issued a proclamation asserting the military power in Baltimore. He proposes a friendly concert with the authorities to preserve order, but demands the delivery of all arms and munitions of war, except those possessed by the regular military, and claims the right to establish posts here. He seized 5,000 stands of arms yesterday.

WASHINGTON.—It is reported that Virginia troops are throwing up breastworks within a spyglass view of Washington. There is also a report that Washington's remains have been removed by the rebels from his tomb at Mount Vernon.

WASHINGTON.—The secretary of war announced to the President that Gen. Sickles offered his brigade, 5,000 strong, to the government for the whole war, fully armed, equipped, and ready for service. The President ordered that it be accepted immediately.

EDITORIAL. — The report which comes to us of the speech of Maj. Anderson at Harrisburgh, in which he is made to say that John C. Breckenridge would join him in Cincinnati for the purpose of entering the service (Union), is to be received with many grains of allowance. That man Breckenridge was late one of the most malignant, and because sneaking, dangerous of secessionists. That he now proffers his aid in putting down by arms the men whose rampant disloyalty he has steadily encouraged is evidence that he is a greater villain than the world has thought him—a villain to desert those whom he pushed on or a villain who embraces the Union cause only to betray.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 16, 1901.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Mrs. McKinley is seriously ill. A special consultation of physicians was held early in the evening, but no statement was made. However, Dr. Rixey, the President's personal physician, and Dr. Hirschfelder decided to remain all night at the bedside of the patient. President McKinley is sanguine of his wife's recovery. While he announced that he will abandon his trip through the northwest, he also announced plans for taking the invalid back to Washington. Late in the evening Secretary Cortelyou said the physicians reported a slight improvement in Mrs. McKinley's condition.

DENVER, Colo.—Judge John Gibbons of Chicago is at the point of death here. He was seized with an apoplectic attack last evening and at midnight was declining rapidly. He was taken sick in Cripple Creek a week ago, and was brought to this city.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—M. Jules Cambon, French ambassador to the United States, will arrive in Chicago at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The chief purpose of his visit to the Illinois city is to give sanction to the coöperation of the Alliance Francaise with the University of Chicago. He will be welcomed by President E. J. James of the university and will address the students at Kent theater in the afternoon.

CHICAGO.—Miss Margaret Hubbard, daughter of Mrs. Robert Mills Hubbard, and Henry Gordon Strong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Strong, 27 Banks' street, were married at St. James' Episcopal church.

PARIS. — The political peace of France is threatened by the audacious return to Paris of Count de Lur Saluces, one of the escaped royalists inculpated in the plot against the republic a year ago and who was sentenced to ten years' banishment, although he was not present at the trial.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 16, 1916.

EAGLE PASS, Tex.—Twenty-four persons were killed in the derailment by bandits of a through passenger train from Mexico City to Laredo, according to authorities in Piedras Negras, opposite here.

LONDON.—Britain's determination to press to a conclusion the prosecution of leaders responsible for the Dublin revolt in spite of all objections by members of parliament became clear when Sir Roger Casement was placed on trial. The outline of the crown's case against the prisoner showed a wide conspiracy, involving Germany.

WASHINGTON.—Republican politicians were thrown into a state of excitement by a report that Associate Justice Hughes of the United States Supreme court has admitted his willingness to become the Republican candidate for President. It is said he made known his position to former President Taft, who called on him in his home and conferred with him more than an hour.

CHICAGO.—The city council adopted a resolution fixing June 10 for the great middle west parade for preparedness. There were but two dissenting votes—Ald. Rodriguez and Ald. Kennedy, the Socialist councilmen. Leaders in every phase of the city's activities are getting behind the movement. A committee of civic leaders will meet at noon today to map out plans. It is composed of John W. O'Leary, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Col. George Buckingham, William Mather Lewis, James B. Forgan, Robert S. Iles, S. M. Hastings, Francis S. Peabody, F. H. Millard, Charles S. Cutting, George H. Taylor, Frank J. Loesch, Richard W. Wolfe, Allen B. Pond, Frank C. Caldwell, Benjamin C. Sammons and F. L. Bateman.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.

Chicago, May 7.—"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," as indicated in your Friday editorial column, undoubtedly points an accusing finger at us from the viewpoint of standardized morals. But its almost sublime honesty—after the hundreds and thousands of American books, plays, and movies in which the heroine somehow turned out to be "pure" after all—is a welcome relief, indeed, a breath of fresh air, in this great land of self-deception.

Whatever Miss Loos may have intended, the result has the hopeful ring of ironic truth. This is no David Belasco nonsense! The condition she has so unaffectedly caught is by no means confined to prostitutes—or even to semi-prostitutes. It is a widespread attitude of mind—a sign of the times, as your writer truly says, but a sign of the commercialized times, as he carefully does not say.

As a nation we stand today—or try to stand—with the ideals of our pioneer ancestors clutched nobly in our one hand, while the other busily practices an utterly opposed code of actual daily expediency. Until we can find the courage to admit that this popular brand of go-getting philosophy is at the very root of all our moral ills we'll hardly get on very far toward reform. We are the only nation in the world to make of greed a virtue. Older civilizations at least have no hallucinations on the subject. Yet we continue to teach our children the glories of making good—of getting ahead—of putting it over—and then have the characteristic naïveté to be incensed at so unmistakable a product as Lorelei Lee.

Miss Loos has written a satire—a bitter satire, if we but read it aright. And I, for one, give her the high credit of having intended to do just that.

FREDERIC HAYES.

WHY HE DOESN'T VOTE.

Chicago, May 10.—Regarding your editorial, "Why They Don't Vote," don't you really know? It is because the people are becoming more intelligent.

They realize that it is a futile and therefore an unintelligent act to vote. As time goes on they will become more and more intelligent and fewer and fewer will go to the polls. It is futile because the people have no power of any consequence. Their power is practically limited to defeating a candidate who has violated his duty of representation while in office. They can defeat him if he decides to run for reëlection and if his opponent is not even more undesirable. Example—McKinley.

A candidate may promise one thing and when in office do the opposite thing. Didn't Wilson make fools out of those who voted for him because of his promise to keep us out of war? The people had no redress. They had to wait four years before they could get a wallop at him. In the meantime we had war, prohibition, crime, heavy taxation, etc., etc.

Is this power to defeat candidates, if they happen to run for reëlection and if their opponents are no worse, the "self-government" that Coolidge talks about? Do you think that if we had "self-government" that American men would have been forced to go to European trenches in the "last" war? That an American citizen would be prevented from drinking a glass of beer? That our country would be allied to a group of European politicians [the ones who make and want wars] in an effort to do away with war?

There is only one way to increase the number of voters. Make our government a genuine democracy. Make it an intelligent act to vote. Pass a law making it impossible for our government to declare war without previous ratification by the people through a national referendum. Make it possible for the people to recall immediately an office-holder or law. When the people reach a certain level of intelligence they will demand and obtain these things. They will reach this level some day.

Give us something to play with and we'll play. Give us some power to make our vote mean something, thus making an intelligent act, and we'll vote.

AN EARLIER OIL-ELECTRIC ENGINE.

Chicago, May 5.—"I see by the papers," as Mr. Dooley says, the statement that the recently acquired oil-electric locomotive by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company is the first to be run on western railroads.

For the sake of history, permit me to correct this statement. In the year 1891 I designed and built for Charlie Pullman and Clarence Pullman, brothers of George M. Pullman, an oil-electric locomotive, then known as a Patton motor. This vehicle had a closed body resembling a passenger car. The engine compartment was amidship. The engine was built by Van Duzes of Cincinnati, O. I built the electrical equipment. The generator, or dynamo electric machine's armature, was mounted directly on the shaft. The field magnet was bolted directly to the engine frame. The armature was 42 inches in diameter. The dynamo was over-compounded to give it torque when called upon to work in conjunction with the battery of storage cells. There were two 40 horsepower electric motors, one carried by each truck of the car. The motors were series wound and had commutating field coils. There were 48 storage cells, developing 110 volts floating on the line with the motors. Controlling devices were located in a cab at each end of the car.

I placed the car on the tracks of the Illinois Central road and took it to Pullman, Ill., by its own power. As an exhibition test I pulled ten loaded freight cars with it and switched them about the yards at Pullman with greater power than required for this test.

Furthermore, I built the first authenticated electric locomotive to run on the streets of Chicago, to-wit, in the spring of 1891. The power was furnished by 70 cells of primary batteries.

The locomotive and automobile referred to above were built in my shop at 47 South Jefferson street in this city.

FORD BAIN.

SENATOR WATSON'S REWARD.

Springfield, Ill., May 8.—Senator Watson of Indiana has been nominated for reëlection by an overwhelming vote of the Republicans of that state. When the league court proposition came before the senate for approval, through an organization Republican of the regular type, Senator Watson hesitated. The old guard, including Postmaster General New of Indiana, urged him to desert and support the Democratic policy of Woodrow Wilson indorsed by Harding and the leaders in the senate. Senator Watson rebelled at home and considered, wisely, that his political welfare lay in truly representing the will of his constituents rather than in following the lead of those who sought to ignore the wishes of those who elected him. His constituents have rewarded his fidelity. Political regularity in representative government consists in fair and honest execution of the will of a constituency and not in an effort to circumvent its will. Hoosiers and Suckers are smart enough to know that, as the primaries of Illinois and Indiana in this year of our Lord 1926 amply prove. Let the people's servants take notice.

TELEPHONE RATES.

Chicago, May 7.—What became of the agitation started sometime ago towards lower telephone rates. In my opinion the present rates and service rendered by the public are unfair to the public, furthermore it takes a professional auditor to understand their monthly statements.

AUTOS KILL GIRL AND WOMAN, 70; TWO MEN DEAD

Another Woman and Boy May Die; Toll 280.

Eight year old Stella Wictorski, 4845 South Ada street, was knocked down and fatally injured yesterday by an automobile driven by Frank MacLean Jr., 3444 West 65th street. The accident occurred while the child was crossing Ashland avenue at 47th street. MacLean took her to the German Deaconess hospital, where she was pronounced dead. He is being held on a charge of manslaughter by New City police.

John S. Nelson, 67 years old former general manager of the Western Cold Storage company, was run down and killed by an automobile at 64th street and Stony Island avenue last night. The driver of the car, B. W. Nichols of Kalamazoo, Mich., was arrested by Woodlawn police. Nelson lived at the Colonial hotel, 6323 Kenwood avenue.

Aged Woman Fatally Hurt.

Mrs. Carmella Veci, 70 years old, was struck by an automobile driven by an unidentified man last night in front of a small store she conducts at 1814 West 69th street. She died while a passerby was taking her to St. Bernard's hospital. The driver of the car that struck her did not stop.

These three deaths and one other during the day raised the county motor toll for the year to 280. Paul Smith, 60 years old, 3626 South Park way, the third victim, died in the Provident hospital. He was apparently only slightly injured in an accident two weeks ago, but became seriously ill. Police began looking for the driver of the car that struck Smith.

Another Woman Run Down

Mrs. J. H. Shonesey, 52 years old, 7801 East End avenue, was injured possibly fatally last night when the automobile in which she and her husband were riding was struck by a car driven by Edward J. Morris, 12 Keystone avenue. The accident occurred in 95th street near Longwood drive. Mrs. Shonesey was taken to Roseland Community hospital. Gresham police arrested Morris.

Stanley Rodowski, 7 years old, 2743 North Central Park avenue, was possibly fatally hurt when he was struck by an automobile while at Diversey and Drake avenues. The car did not stop. Witnesses said it was being driven at high speed. Police took the boy to St. Mary's hospital, where his condition was said to be serious.

ARTY CHUCKLES IS PUZZLED BY CONSCIENCE FUND

Arty Chuckles, editor of THE TRIBUNE's Sunday joke and jingle page, is puzzled.

Yesterday morning in his mail he came across a plain envelope addressed "Arty Chuckles, THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago, Ill.," and postmarked Joliet, May 14, 7:30 p. m., 1926.

The envelope contained a picture and joke clipped from last Sunday's section. The picture was of a man thanking a little boy for having returned to him his pocketbook. "You're an honest lad," the owner is saying. "Here, I'll give you a dime."

"Aw, you don't hafta," the lad is replying, "I kept a quarter out."

And folded with the picture was some real money, $35, and a pearl and gold brooch that may or may not be real. The pin, a crescent studded with sixteen pearls, was bent and twisted and old. The money was new.

Conscience money? Joliet?

ATTACK ON U. S. GOBS BY FASCISTS IS CONFIRMED

On April 7, 1926 THE TRIBUNE printed a story from its correspondent, George Seldes, stating that Fascists in Venice during the Easter holidays had attacked the sailors of four American destroyers anchored there. Several readers of THE TRIBUNE took exception to this story. THE TRIBUNE now is in receipt of a letter from a member of the crew of the United States destroyer Bruce, 329, in which he says that there was "a mob demonstration on the evening in question and all the American sailors returned to their respective ships upon orders from the division commander. On the following day, continues the writer, the sailors were granted shore leave, but were not molested.

Mahatma Gandhi Plans Trip to Europe in August

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—Mahatma Gandhi, famous Indian nationalist leader, is planning a visit to Europe as guest of the world students' conference in Finland in August. Gandhi announced he will not make an address to the conference. He also said he will not wear European clothes or change from his simple Hindu diet. He will appear in a small loin cloth, spun and woven by himself, round his waist and a woolen shawl over his shoulders.

TEXAN DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

The body of a man about 45 years old, believed to be Jack Killroy of Pine Land, Tex., was found yesterday in an alley in the rear of 553 South State street. The death was attributed to heart disease. A certificate found with the body indicated the man had been under treatment for tuberculosis.

DIES IN OFFICE

DAVID REVELL.

DAVID REVELL DROPS DEAD IN FRIEND'S OFFICE

David Revell, practicing lawyer in Chicago for 34 years, dropped dead of heart disease yesterday afternoon while visiting in the office of Attorney Thomas A. Hogan, 816 Ashland block building, Clark and Randolph streets.

Mr. Revell, who was a brother of Alexander H. Revell, head of the company bearing his name, was 60 years old. He was apparently in good spirits just before his death, chatting with Attorney Hogan, an old friend. Then he collapsed in his chair and was dead before medical assistance could be summoned.

He served as a member of the state legislature from 1895 to 1899. A fellow legislator was Fred Busse, later mayor of Chicago. Mr. Revell was a bachelor and lived at 633 Fullerton avenue. Besides A. H. Revell, another brother, John T. Revell, and a sister, Mrs. Alice R. Judd, survive him. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Bandits Take Tobacco Co. Truck and $2,500 Smokes

Cigars, tobacco and cigarets valued at $2,500 were stolen yesterday by three armed bandits who took charge of a delivery truck of the Bridgeport Tobacco company, 3267 Halsted street, at Harrison street and Racine avenue. The driver, Frank Kleba, 3048 Poplar street, was taken to 53d street and California avenue and released.

Father of Three Hangs Himself in Basement.

Manitowoc, Wis., May 15.—[Special.]—George Boehm, 36, married, and the father of three children, hung himself in the basement of his home this morning. The body was found by his widow.

BANK ASKS AID IN DISPUTE OVER LAWSON RICHES

Heirs Seek Ruling on the Profits of News.

Differences of heirs to the $20,300,000 estate of the late Victor F. Lawson, publisher, yesterday caused the Illinois Merchants Trust company, executor and trustee of the property, to file a suit in the Circuit court asking judicial assistance in interpreting certain clauses of the editor's will.

Incidentally, the exact purchase price of the Chicago Daily News, of which Mr. Lawson was owner, was revealed in the bill. The amount had hitherto been placed at from $12,000,000 to $14,000,000. The executors received exactly $13,671,704.30 for the newspaper property, it was stated.

Dispute Over News' Profits.

The chief point of dispute between the heirs and the trustee concerned the disposition of the profits of the newspaper during the period from Aug. 19, 1925, when Mr. Lawson died, to Jan. 1, 1926, when the Daily News was sold to a syndicate headed by Walter A. Strong, business manager of the paper.

Some of the beneficiaries claim that the profits during this period should be treated as income and not turned into the body or corpus of the estate. In other words, the court was asked to answer this question:

"Are the profits of the News between Mr. Lawson's death and the sale of the paper applicable to the payment of income to which the legatees are entitled?"

Question of Inheritance Tax.

And, it is asked if the court should decide that the profits are income, is such income to be computed as the actual amount of the profits of the paper or is the income of the legatees to be determined by what the property as a permanent authorized investment would produce during the same period?

Another question raised was whether Iver Norman Lawson, brother of the publisher, one of the chief beneficiaries, shall be forced to pay an inheritance tax of $214,502 out of his own bequests or whether the tax shall be paid out of the body of the estate.

Two Days' Rain Aids Crops in Three Midwest States

Dubuque, Ia., May 15.—[Special.]—Rain Thursday and Friday broke the drouth in northeastern Iowa, northwestern Illinois, and southwestern Wisconsin, but warm weather is needed to put growing crops on a normal schedule. Corn planting is about 25 per cent completed.

Arrest Two Men, Seize Still Near Metropolis

Metropolis, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—A sheriff's posse last night brought in two men arrested on warrants charging them with operation of a still, six miles east of Unionville. The still was in operation at the time the raid was made and a large quantity of whisky and mash was seized.

"Hursen" Funerals In Your Neighborhood

Whenever you attend a "Hursen" funeral, you realize at once why it is that thousands of families in Chicago and its suburbs have chosen Hursen to "conduct the funeral," in preference to engaging some one else who happens to be located in the neighborhood.

It is always one's desire to give the utmost, in service and elegance, as a final expression of devotion. Small establishments cannot provide the service, the quality, the elegance of materials, the environments of a "funeral-home," the superb array of automobile equipment, as Hursen provides them.

All this remarkable service, and new and unusual elegance, cost you less, far less, than the charges you would have to pay anywhere else, without this Hursen super-elegance and unmatched service. It is this higher quality and low price policy upon which Hursen's, the greatest of all establishments of its kind in America, has been built.

This same Hursen policy applies to every funeral, large or small. You may imagine that your distance away from any one of Hursen's 3 funeral-homes is too great to assure you this service. This is not the case. Whether you live 1 or 20 miles away, this same "Hursen" service and elegance is at your disposal. There is no extra charge for distance.

CALL CONFERENCE ON STEEL, IRON FREIGHT RATES IN ILLINOIS AREA

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—A conference on rates on iron and steel between points in Illinois freight committee territory will be held May 19 in the offices of the interstate commerce commission.

The rates in issue were suspended because of complaints that discrimination against shippers from outside the Chicago district into that district would result from the fact that rates within the district and from Gary, Ind., to the district were not revised in harmony with other rates.

The primary purpose of the conference, which will be before Commissioner J. B. Campbell, will be to determine whether such readjustment of rates may be brought about as will enable the suspension to be vacated without hearing and formal decision.

FITTING SCHOOL TO CHILD CALLED NEW PROBLEM

Adjustment of educational work to fit the needs of the individual pupil has become one of the most important problems of teaching, Henry W. Sumner, principal of the Scott school, declared yesterday in an address before the Pedagogical club at the Morrison hotel.

"Previous to the war it was principally a question of group education," he said. "But now with the lessons of the war in mind, learned in a hard school, when men had to be placed where they would do the most good, we are using our knowledge in guiding the child while young. We use the standard tests to try to learn where the child fits, and what is best to teach him.

"Social misfits can probably never be wholly eradicated, but under the new system their numbers will be materially decreased. Repression of a child's particular bent is just as harmful as expression allowed and sometimes forced which the child's nature revolts against."

JOSEPH O'MEARA, CHICAGOAN FOR 71 YEARS, DIES

Joseph E. O'Meara, insurance broker and for seventy-one years a resident of Chicago, died of heart disease yesterday morning in Alexian Brothers hospital. He was 72 years old.

Mr. O'Meara, who was brought here from Ireland by his parents when a baby, lived at the Gladstone hotel, 62d street and Kenwood avenue. He was a brother of the late Mrs. R. Philip Gormully, widow of the founder of the Gormully & Jeffrey bicycle firm. He was the father of Countess Karszo Siediwski of Warsaw, Poland, and Miss Josephine O'Meara, both of whom survive him. Countess Siediwski is at her home in Warsaw and Miss O'Meara is traveling in Italy.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m. from the chapel at 6443 Sheridan road to St. Ignatius' church. Burial will be at Calvary.

FRENCH VETS ASK LEGION AID TO FIGHT DEBT DEAL

Seek Way to Get Boosts for Meager Pensions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 15.—Calling on their one time brothers in arms, the American Legion, to aid the French war veterans, the Union Nationale Dels Combattants today launched a move to beat the ratification of the Washington debt accord.

In martyred Arras, still nursing its war scars, the French veterans met to voice their grievances, with emphasis on their skimpy war pensions. The reason for this skimpiness is the country's precarious financial condition, rendered all the more precarious, the veterans reasoned, by the necessity of paying the war debts. Hence the payment of war debts should be blocked, the convention agreed.

They decided on a campaign to delay ratification of Ambassador Berenger's accord. They also planned to remind the American Legion of the Legion's attitude on debts when the "Fidac" (Federation International Des Anciers Combattants) met in Rome in 1925, and suggested that French veterans explain their point of view throughout America in lectures.

HUGH BLYTHE, BROKER, IS DEAD IN ATLANTIC CITY

Hugh Blythe, one of the Chicago partners in the firm of Harris, Winthrop & Co., stock and bond dealers, died yesterday afternoon in Atlantic City. He lived in Chicago at 54 East Division street with his mother, Mrs. J. W. Blythe, widow of the late general counsel of the Burlington railway.

Mr. Blythe was unmarried. He was born in Burlington, Ia., Aug. 22, 1878. He was graduated from Harvard university in the class of 1901. He was a member of the Chicago club and of the Saddle and Cycle, Casino, Racquet, South Shore, and Attic clubs here and of the Racquet and Tennis, the University, and the Harvard clubs of New York. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

McErlane's Brother Faces Charge of Toting Pistol

Vincent McErlane, brother of the notorious Frank McErlane, gangster and beer runner, was arraigned before Judge George Holmes in the jury court yesterday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Arrested March 16, McErlane carried a revolver and $900. At the defendant's request the charge was continued until May 29, at which time, it was said, Vincent will challenge the police to prove that he is not empowered to carry a gun as a special policeman.

MRS. OTTO DREIER, NOTED SINGER, IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Christine Nielson Dreier, wife of Otto A. Dreier, died yesterday afternoon in Augustana hospital. She had been in ill health for some time. Until May 1 the Dreiers' residence was 3717 Rokeby street, but at that time they went to live with an old friend, Mrs. Albert J. Ochsner, 2106 Sedgwick street.

Mrs. Dreier was one of the leading American contraltos. She was born in Madison, Wis., of Norwegian parentage, and started singing in church there at the age of 13. She came to Chicago at 19 and studied with Mrs. Sarah Hershey Eddy. She was soloist in the First Presbyterian church for eighteen years.

She studied music in London for a year and sang with great success at the Trocadero at the Paris exposition of 1889. Later she sang at the dedication of the organ in the Auditorium and during the world's fair she sang in oratorios, notably "Elijah," with Nordica.

Latterly Mrs. Dreier sang for a time in the Evanston First Presbyterian church and in the New England church. She was married on June 4, 1890, to Otto A. Dreier. Her husband survives her, as do three children, Mrs. Cecilia Nolting of Freeport and Marion and Albert Emil Dreier of Chicago.

Mrs. E. E. Reininger Dies of Injuries from Fall

Mrs. Edward E. Reininger, 60 years old, wife of the well known Oak Park physician, died yesterday at her home at 334 South Grove avenue, Oak Park, of injuries received three months ago when she fell while descending the elevated station steps at Randolph street and Wabash avenue. Mrs. Reininger was vice president of the Outdoor Art league and a member of the Woman's Musicians' club, the Garden club of Oak Park and the Chicago Woman's club. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in the memorial chapel of the First M. E. church, Oak Park. Interment will be private at Forest Home cemetery. Mrs. Reininger's husband survives her.

Western Electric Plant Is Closed for Albright Rites

The Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company were closed yesterday in respect to the memory of Henry Fleetwood Albright, vice president of the concern, who was buried in the afternoon at Glen Oak cemetery, following services at the First Presbyterian church, Oak Park. Mr. Albright died several days ago in New York. Seventy floral pieces, one from each department of the Hawthorne works, were among the tributes. Twenty baskets of these, at the request of the family, were taken to the children's ward of the county hospital.

Bomb Damages Homewood Roadhouse; Rivals Blamed

The Amalfi Gardens, a roadhouse at 175th street and Western avenue, in Homewood, Ill., was bombed early yesterday. The building is but a short distance from the county highway police station. John Vallerdiba, owner of the roadhouse, estimated the damage at $5,000 and said he believed competitors were responsible.

Removal Sale

Begins Monday, May 17th

The greatest sale of fine furniture and rugs ever held in the city of Chicago marks the moving to our new store that is being erected at Michigan Avenue and Lake Street.

Drastic price reductions have been made, for it is our aim to move into the new store with a complete new stock of goods.

¶ Beautiful furniture for every corner in the home; hand-made and imported productions have all been marked at sacrifice prices.

¶ Rugs of rare Chinese and Oriental weaves, as well as carpet from famous American looms, and curtains and gift articles all are included.

¶ Never before has Chicago seen such a stock of fine things for the home in a removal sale. Everything has been prepared and all is in readiness for the great opening on Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

316,403 AUTOS JAM HORSE AND BUGGY STREETS

Statistics Show Urgent Need of Widening.

> The street plan of Chicago was designed for the horse and buggy and the two-horse wagon.—CHICAGO PLAN COMMISSION.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The urgent need of wider streets and smoother pavements was logically argued in a statement issued yesterday by City Collector Keane, who reported the vehicle licenses issued in 1926 to May 15.

The horse, for which the Chicago Plan commission says the streets were designed, is being eliminated from the thoroughfares. The king which ruled Kentucky yesterday was at his height in Chicago in 1910. Not before nor since have there been so many horses in Chicago. Since that year Chicago's population has increased by about 904,000, or an annual average of 56,500. In the same period its registered automobiles have increased 303,477—a yearly average of 20,231.

Likewise in the same period, the number of horses in Chicago has decreased 54,206—an average yearly loss of 3,613.

Higher Ratio of Autos.

In 1910, when the horse reigned in Chicago, its horse population totaled 76,518. That was an average of one horse for each 28 persons of the 2,185,283 of population. Yesterday the city had 316,403 motor vehicles, or one for each nine persons. So there are three times as many motor vehicles in Chicago today as there were of all sorts of Dobbins and nags in 1910 in proportion to the population.

However, that gives but a faint impression of the amount of local traveling today as compared with 15 years ago, even when it is considered that the auto goes much faster and farther than the horse. The records indicated yesterday that there are eight persons without a motor car to every one who possesses one. These eight travel, too. The Electrical association published an advertisement last week in which it was represented that the electric cars operated in Chicago use the energy of 375,000 horses. The ad carried a picture of 375,000 horses attempting to jam through State street.

How the Figures Stack Up.

But switching back to the trackless vehicles of the street, the collector's records show this comparison between the number of horse-drawn and motor driven vehicles in 1910 and 1926:

	Horse.	Auto.
1926	14,206	316,403
Loss	43,908	Gain 303,477

A comparison of the number of horse-drawn and motor-driven vehicles in the lapse of 15 years is highly illuminating. Such a comparison for 1910, 1925 and the first four and a half months of 1926 is as follows:

Vehicle—	1910.	1925.	1926.
One-horse	40,109	13,692	10,877
Two-horse	17,640	4,199	3,265
Three-horse	331	74	64
Four-horse	34	.....	.....
Motorcycles	1,838	1,630	908
Auto, $10 fee	3,331	283,956	261,602
Auto, $20 fee	6,632	5,993	5,447
Light truck	436	32,015	30,603
Heavy truck	363	16,247	16,264
Auto, demonstrat.	326	1,628	1,579

The figures on motor vehicles show some decided change in fashions. Fifteen years ago there were more motorcycles on the streets than will appear this year. This form of carriage reached the height of its popularity in 1916, when 4,717 motorcycles were registered in Chicago.

High Power Cars Decrease.

Then again there is something interesting about the passenger automobiles with high horse power. If the owners of these have told the city collector the truth there were more autos of 35 horse power in Chicago in 1910 than there were last year or will be this year.

Back in 1910 the vehicle licenses amounted to $562,677. To date this year they total $3,774,886, and it is expected that before Christmas the total will be $4,200,000. Back in 1910 the autoist owned 18 per cent of the vehicles, but paid 29 per cent of the fees. To date this year the horse-drawn vehicles have paid only $58,114 of the $3,774,886 total collections.

INSULL'S SON TO WED NORTH SIDE SOCIETY GIRL

Adelaide Lyman Pierce Is His Fiancee.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingals Pierce, 1337 Astor street, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Adelaide Lyman Pierce, to Samuel Insull Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull of 1100 Lake Shore drive and Libertyville. No date has yet been set for the wedding of the two, who have been friends since childhood.

Miss Pierce made her debut in 1919. She is prominent in the work of the Junior league, of which her older sister, Katharine, Mrs. Robert Newberry McCreary, formerly was president. Her father, now president of the Saline County Coal corporation, was born in Kewanee, Ill., a descendant of a distinguished family of pioneers who came to New England in 1628. His first wife, mother of the girls, was the late Mrs. Louise Lyman Pierce of Kewanee.

After his graduation from Yale university in 1921, and a trip to Europe, young Insull became associated in business with his father, and he is now vice president of the Middle West Utilities company.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull Sr., returned from a six weeks' trip abroad last Wednesday.

Choir Girl Indicted as Embezzler from Employer

Peoria, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—Agnes Hawks, choir girl, and former bookkeeper for a commission firm, and George Collins, former employé of the firm, were indicted today by the Peoria county grand jury in connection with the alleged embezzlement of $15,000. Miss Hawks was indicted for larceny as bailee, while both she and Collins were named in an indictment for conspiracy.

CHICAGO DIVINE ASKED TO HEAD LANE SEMINARY

Cincinnati, O., May 15.—[Special.]—The Rev. George Livingston Robinson, member of the faculty of the McCormick Theological seminary, Chicago, and an authority on archeology, has been invited to take over the learned dency of Lane seminary, it was learned today.

A graduate of Princeton Theological seminary, the Rev. Mr. Robinson is the author of many widely read religious books. He has spent several years in the orient and is the explorer of the Sinai peninsula and the discoverer of the sixth and seventh wells of Beersheba, and the original "high place" at Petra, the capital of Edam.

The Rev. Mr. Robinson is known as a conservative. Several prominent Presbyterian laymen were of the opinion that he would not accept the presidency, as at the McCormick seminary he has 173 students, while at Lane seminary the number is only 40.

Six new public schools, containing aggregately almost 5,000 additional seats, will be opened during the current month, it was announced yesterday by John E. Byrnes, business manager of the board of education, on the eve of his departure for Toronto, Can., where he is to speak upon the Chicago school system on Tuesday, before the 12th annual convention of the National Association of Public School Business Officials.

Two of the new schools are to be opened tomorrow. They are the Farnsworth school, Balmoral and Linder avenues, which is to have a seating capacity of 864; and the Bridge school, Grace street and New England avenue, to contain 672 seats.

Four Open on May 31.

The remaining four schools are to open on Monday, May 31. They are: Lewis, Leamington and LeMoyne avenues, 768 seats; Hale, 62d street and Linder avenue, 768 seats; Scammon, Henderson and Keeler avenues, 768 seats; and the Nightingale, 63d and Rockwell streets.

The seating shortage in the city's schools has been reduced from 70,000 to 20,000 within the last three years, Mr. Byrnes will point out in his address.

"Chicago school children are increasing at the rate of 20,000 a year, and 20 new school buildings each year would really be required to meet this increase," said Mr. Byrnes.

Chicago Meets the Issue.

"However," he added, "we have met the issue squarely, and in three years 60 new school buildings and additions have been planned and placed under construction, providing an additional 57,000 seats. Thirteen additional buildings, providing 10,000 more seats, are to be built at once.

"In addition to this, in 1926 we have acquired eleven new school sites, on which buildings providing 12,000 additional seats will be constructed."

J. Lewis Coath, member of the board of education; Charles E. Gilbert, secretary of the board, and John C. Christensen, school architect, also will speak at the convention.

Protest to Rajah Against Enslaving 50,000 Hindus

CAWNPORE, India, May 15.—Protests against the enslavement of 50,000 persons, the Roana Rajparts in the Hindu state of Jodhpur, are embodied in resolutions just passed by the all Indian conference and sent to the Mararajah of Jodhpur. The regency council of Jodhpur passed a law in 1916 enslaving these people. It is alleged they are forced to give away their daughters or whole families.

INDIAN CHIEFS PRESENT SNAKE DANCES FOR CAPITAL NOTABLES

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—The capitol plaza was transformed today into a picturesque, vivid bit of the far west by five Hopi Indians from the cliffs and pueblos of Arizona.

Before a crowd that included Vice President Dawes, Speaker and Mrs. Longworth, Associate Justices Sanford, Holmes and Sutherland of the Supreme court, senators and congressmen innumerable, and some 5,000 citizens, the Indians, descendants of chieftains of the tribe which holds that it originated from snakes, presented four of their tribal religious dances.

All of the panoply and paraphernalia of the red men were there, the bows and arrows, the moccasins, the feathered, variegated war bonnets, the gaudy Hopi headbands, bear skins which formed smocks, and small bells strung around the body.

CHARITIES WILL SHARE RETURNS OF BIG LEASE

A number of Chicago charities will gain tidy sums as the result of a ninety-nine year lease made yesterday by the Northern Trust company as trustees for Martin A. Ryerson on a piece of property at 316 and 318 West Adams street. William J. Pancoe of Pancoe Bros. arranged the lease for Jacob S. Rosenberg, president of the United Hosiery company, who will erect a fourteen story mercantile building on the site as soon as the present lease expires, next January.

The rental for the term will be $1,913,333.39, or $15,000 to 1937, $18,000 to 1946, and $20,000 for the balance of the term. This money is to be divided among certain charities.

The property measures 50x161 feet, three inches. The building to be erected will cost about $850,000 and will adjoin the twelve story structure to be erected by David Schetnitz at the northwest corner of Franklin and Adams streets. In the present deal, Scott, Bancroft, Martin & MacLeish were attorneys for the Northern Trust company and Joseph Rosenberg was attorney for the lessee.

NEW CABINET IN CHINA REFUSES TO TAKE OFFICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, May 15.—Premier Yen is unable to induce a single member of the regency cabinet to assume office so long as the militarists hound him for money.

The apprehension is growing that the Kuominchun [national people's army], in the face of the disposition to annihilate it, may make a desperate effort to debouch from Nankow pass, thus obtaining food and money in the event of the capture of Peking.

Foreign telegraphs indicate the possibility of a coup d' état by the communist faction, coincidental with the Kuomintang [national people's party] meeting at Canton Monday.

A Mesage from the Grandsons of the Founder

To the Public:

This Double-Anniversary Sale, now in progress, is the most significant event in our history.

It commemorates the principles upon which this institution was founded 61 years ago by our grandfather, Martin L. Straus. It is another demonstration of the giant buying power of this organization, and a renewal of the pledges of 61 years: of lowest prices, liberal credit, efficient service and honest dealing—which have made Hartman's the Largest Retail Furniture Dealers in the World.

BUILDERS DENY COMPROMISE ON CARPENTER WAGE

Stand Pat for Renewal at Old Scale.

Edward M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association, announced last night that he has been authorized by the group of large builders with whom the carpenters make agreements to say that the builders have agreed to stand pat on their offer to renew present wage pact at $1.37½ an hour.

According to a statement issued Friday night, Harry Jensen, president of the Carpenters' District council, announced that the carpenters had asked for a wage rate of $1.50 an hour and expected the builders to make a compromise offer. Jensen said this compromise offer would be discussed at a special meeting called for Wednesday night.

Believes Mistake Made.

Mr. Craig said evidently a mistake had been made somewhere, as the builders have already notified Jensen that they intended to resume last year's agreement only on provision that it embodied the existing $1.37½ an hour rate.

Officials of the Contracting Plasterers' association last night said they expected little or no action from the Plasterers' union in the way of settling the strike of its members until after the organization holds election of officers on June 5.

The employers' representatives asserted there are about forty candidates for a few jobs in the union and that each candidate is reluctant to advocate any peace overtures because such advocacy may hinder their chances for election.

Hold Conference Tomorrow.

Representatives of the Employing Plasterers' association and the Contracting Plasterers' association will confer with general contractors, architects tomorrow afternoon in the meeting room of the Building Construction Employers' association. The conference will deal with the strike situation.

John McLeod, international vice president of the Bricklayers' union, came to Chicago from Washington yesterday to spike a rumor started by employers which inferred that the bricklayers intended to replace striking plasterers with mechanics of that trade who belong to locals of bricklayers.

Mr. McLeod said the report was concocted by certain employers of plasterers for the purpose of creating an ill feeling between the bricklayers and plasterers, who are both in and outside the folds of bricklayers' locals. He declared the report placed the bricklayers in a false light, which is unwarranted.

NAB TWO YOUTHS IN STOLEN AUTO.

Riding in a stolen automobile yesterday at Torrence avenue and 147th street, Clarence Bowen, 452 West 43d street, and Michael Brennock, 463 West 43d place, each 17 years old, were arrested and held on larceny charges.

CHICAGO-DALLAS AIR MAIL'S BUSINESS WAS $8,411 ON FIRST DAY

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—The first day's business on the contract air mail route from Chicago to Dallas amounted to $8,411.14, according to figures received by Second Assistant Postmaster General Glover today.

The amount paid on postage for the various cities follows: Chicago, $1,111.19; Moline, Ill., $581.54; St. Joseph, Mo., $611.08; Kansas City, $1,548.77; Wichita, Kas., $696.01; Oklahoma City, Okla., $1,370.15; Fort Worth, $1,087; Dallas, $1,405.40.

It is not expected that these figures will be maintained on this route. The mail carried on the first trip included many greetings to Postmaster General New from postmasters and others residing along the route, which swelled the postage receipts beyond what may be expected in the future.

BAGS MAN-EATING TIGER WITH 200 HUMAN VICTIMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLAHABAD, India, May 15.—After a career of seven years, during which it killed over 200 human victims, the famous man-eating tiger of Allahabad just has been shot by Capt. Cosbett.

Expeditions regularly were sent out by the police, military and government departments, but they failed to catch the terrifying beast, which killed eight victims recently. The people were so terrified that they shut themselves in their houses after sunset.

The tiger was so bold that it smashed the doors of the thatched huts of the villagers and the question became so important that means to exterminate it were asked in the legislative council.

CONGRESS KEEPS CLOSE TO ROUTE COOLIDGE POINTS

Nearing Close; Executive Measures Fare Well.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Congress will close the session about a month hence after having followed the Coolidge leadership to an extent greater than even the President's supporters expected.

Three outstanding achievements sponsored by the administration during the five months of the session to date have been:

Revision of revenue laws not only to insure a substantial cut in taxes but making what the administration regarded as essential reforms in taxation, including the reduction of high surtaxes and high estate taxes and the repeal of publicity of income tax payments.

Ratification of debt funding agreements with Italy, Belgium, Roumania, Esthonia, Latvia, and Czechoslovakia.

Approval by the senate of the resolution for American participation in the world court with reservations acceptable to the administration.

Put Dents in Appropriations.

Congress also has adhered to the Coolidge economy program in enacting the annual appropriation bills. The congressional leaders have not only frowned upon any expenditures exceeding amounts recommended by the Coolidge bureau but have sought to reduce that bureau's estimate.

While the administration is vitally interested in legislation which is still pending for the remaining weeks of the session, indications at present are that President Coolidge will fare well. These measures include farm legislation, which was before the house last week and on which final action will be taken in the senate before adjournment, and the French debt settlement, upon which both houses will be called to act early in June after ratification has been voted by the French parliament.

Has Used No Vetoes.

President Coolidge has had no occasion to veto any legislation during the present session, administration influence having sidetracked radical measures which it frowned upon.

The administration has fared much better than during the last congress, when the La Follette radical group held the balance of power in both senate and house. Although the 1924 elections gave the Republicans only an uncertain majority in the senate, due to the independent tendencies of several Republicans besides those identified regularly with the La Follette group, the expectation that the administration would meet defeat on many of its most important measures was not realized.

It proved impossible for the Democrats and insurgent Republicans to maintain an alliance such as existed in the last congress. In most cases where a considerable number of Republicans opposed the administration enough conservative Democrats came to the rescue to offset the defections.

Some Recommendations Lag.

President Coolidge was supposed at the beginning of the session to have no chance of securing confirmation of his appointment of Thomas F. Woodley to the interstate commerce commission, but he managed to win in this controversy, although he failed to obtain the confirmation of the appointment of federal Judge Wallace McCamant.

Congress will by no means dispose of all measures favored by the administration before it takes adjournment. The administration stands back of the Lausanne treaty with Turkey, but there seems no immediate prospect of its ratification by the senate. President Coolidge in his annual message urged the desirability of divorcing the shipping board and emergency fleet corporation, but shipping laws revisions, while the subject of hearings, have not been acted upon in either house.

The administration is back of radio legislation in the form in which it has been passed by the house and involved in a controversy over its form as reported to the senate. Just at present it looks as if the final radio bill, if enacted at this session at all, will create an independent commission rather than place authority in the department of commerce as favored by the President.

Railroad Mergers Hang Fire.

The railway labor bill, abolishing the railroad labor board, as passed by the senate last week and as previously passed by the house, is satisfactory to the administration.

An aviation program has been developed along lines favored by the administration. The commercial aviation bill has been passed by both houses.

Congress has passed its first public buildings bill in many sessions and in so doing abandoned the old pork barrel system and adopted the lump sum appropriation method subject to the control of an executive department as favored by the President. Provision for the construction of buildings to house embassies and legations and other foreign agencies of the government has been enacted into law with the administration backing.

President Coolidge has given his approval to a rivers and harbors bill, and it will receive consideration in the house and possibly in the senate before the session closes.

Legislation to strengthen the Volstead act with a view to facilitating the enforcement of the law as it now stands has been sponsored by the administration and will come up for consideration during the closing weeks of the session.

Just when congress will adjourn remains uncertain. The senate has postponed until Nov. 10 the impeachment trial of Federal Judge George W. English of Illinois. Even without that trial on its hands the senate is not likely to be able to adjourn much before June 19. House leaders would like to adjourn about June 1 but they admit there is scant possibility of it. Farm legislation and the French debt settlement will delay senate adjournment. Farm legislation may be out of the way early in June and it seems likely that the French debt bill can be brought to a vote by the middle of June.

Why!

Why Hillman's Pure Foods MARKET

Our Motto: Always Quality Foods at Moderate Prices

WHY do we employ in our Pure Food Market 35 to 40 butchers all the year 'round?

WHY does our market sell more than 175,000 pounds of beef alone in every month of the year?

WHY does our Pure Food Market sell more than 200,000 pounds of smoked meats monthly, the year 'round?

WHY do we employ our own expert country merchants, who exclusively gather fresh eggs for us from the farmers?

WHY do we sell 3,000 to 5,000 dozen eggs every day in the week?

WHY do we employ 80 to 90 people in our bakery—the largest retail bakery in America? $47,519.57 worth of fresh eggs and 78,567 lbs. of fresh creamery butter used in our bakery last year.

WHY do we do the largest retail cheese business in the country? Eight to ten clerks employed to do nothing but sell cheese.

WHY do we employ 20 to 30 people in our delicatessen and salad department, with day and night chefs, all the year 'round? Our salad department is the largest and best in Chicago.

WHY do we sell 100 boiled hams on an average each day and over 1,000,000 sandwiches a year?

WHY have we had for years the largest fish and poultry departments and enjoyed the biggest business in the city of Chicago?

WHY does our coffee—fresh roasted every hour on our premises—enjoy such a tremendous popularity?

WHY do we sell from 25 to 100 crates of oranges every day in the year?

There Are Two Reasons WHY—

1st—The quality is always ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE

2nd—The prices are based on the smallest gross profit of any Retail Pure Food Market in America.

Our enormous quantity buying gives us the opportunity to buy at the lowest market prices. Our merchandise is always fresh because of our great turn over.

Free Vacations By Buying COAL Now!

A trip to the North woods or some lake with all expenses paid—

Several building owners inform us that by storing their coal now they have saved enough by our low schedule of summer fill-up prices compared with what they otherwise pay for coal during the fall or winter, to pay the entire cost of their summer outing.

Our opening celebration schedule of C. O. D. summer fill-up prices, as shown below, will be continued until our recent low price purchases are exhausted. Thereafter we will have to raise our prices because the price of coal at mines has increased materially since the present schedule was made.

If you have not already done so telephone your order promptly—later may be too late.

If you are short of ready cash you can still take advantage of these, the lowest prices of the year by our deferred payment plan.

ENTERPRISE

"There is no honest business," said a noted educator, "in which a man can engage without serving his community. While serving his own interests, the business man cannot avoid serving his community as well, for his business prospers according to the service he gives. This age is rightly called a commercial age, and commerce is an interchange of services."

This is simple truth. The men who have produced oil, lumber, copper, steel, coal, agricultural products and other commodities—make for all that constitutes the material wealth of the nation—yet socialistic leaders loudly proclaim these men are exploiting natural resources and man power. And the inference is anything one wishes to make it that is not good.

Is it not, in fact, a Christian service?

We think so.

HONOR VETS AS NEW HOSPITAL IS DEDICATED

Officials Attend Ceremony at North Chicago.

Appropriate ceremonies marked the dedication yesterday of the new $2,000,000 United States Veterans' hospital for mental diseases at Five Points, North Chicago. Gen. Frank T. Hines, chief of the Veterans' bureau, representatives of the 50,000 American Legionaires of Illinois, the Combat Medal Men's association, and distinguished civilians took part.

The completion of the great institution is the culmination of four years of effort to provide adequate care for the hitherto neglected veterans. The needs for it were explained by Scott W. Lucas, commander of the American Legion, department of Illinois.

No Place for Wounded

"Today we pause for a few hours to dedicate a hospital for men who are still suffering from the ravages and diseases of war," Lucas said. To these torn and suffering souls and the thousands upon thousands in various other hospitals in the United States of America we are indebted for having to pay for the mental and physical sacrifices they made.

"It has been seven years since the signing of the armistice and while that was an act terminating hostilities, it did not bring peace to these unfortunate men. They have not enjoyed a single day of peace, such as you and I know, since they entered the service in '17 and '18. The one great problem in which the legion has interested itself from its inception is proper rehabilitation of all disabled ex-service men."

Urges Passage of Bills.

Lucas urged upon congress passage of three pending bills, despite the economy program of the administration.

"To economize in government hospitas where men today find themselves afflicted with tuberculosis for which the service of '17 and '18 was responsible is a direct blow at our ideals of justice and fairness that a free government of free men owes its soldiers," he said.

PLANS AIR HOP FROM NEW YORK TO BUENOS AIRES

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Bernardo Duggan, champion automobile racer of Argentina, and a civilian pilot on May 22 will start to blaze an air trail from New York to Buenos Aires.

Duggan, young and wealthy, planned and financed the flight, which, he hopes, will lead to the establishment of a regular airplane service between the two capitals. The flyer will have two companions—Capt. Eduardo Olivero, world war flyer, and Ernesto Campanelly, mechanician.

The flight will be made in a specially designed seaplane built to Duggan's order in Italy, with a 450 horsepower French motor. This type of motor previously proved its durability when Depinedo piloted a plane from Italy to Japan. It has a cruising radius of about 750 miles and is expected to be ready for test flights by next Thursday.

The itinerary of the flight calls for several stops along the Atlantic seaboard, although the flight will be pushed through. Complete arrangements have been made by Duggan for refueling and mechanical aid, if necessary, at each stop. If successful, this will be the first direct flight to Buenos Aires from New York.

MOVE THIS WEEK TOWARD OPENING THEATER CLASSES

A group of interested Chicagoans is planning the establishment this week of headquarters for the Chicago Laboratory theater in the Fine Arts building on Michigan avenue, it became known yesterday. Ivan Lazareff, founder of the Maxim Gorky theater in Russia, will conduct the theater. Registration for the preparatory courses is to begin May 20, all plays are to be given in English, and the first performance is planned for October.

Hyde Park Old Timers Talk Over Village Days

Members of the Old Settlers' association of Hyde Park gathered at the Hyde Park hotel last night to discuss before the fair days, when their community was a village. Only those who resided in Hyde Park before 1890 are eligible to membership. Robert McMurdy, who presided, said most of the meeting was given over to reminiscences and stereopticon views of the district as it was years ago. Among the 150 who attended were John E. Cornell and Mrs. William C. Lawson, former Congressman J. Frank Aldrich, and former State Senator Leander D. Condee.

Hijacker Slain and Two Merchants Shot in Fight

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—(AP)—Tony Raia, 37, alleged hijacker, was slain and Thomas Banno, 27, and B. Banno, 38, wealthy produce merchants, probably were fatally wounded today in a revolver fight following Raia's demand upon the brothers for $2,000, under threat of death. Raia was wanted on a charge of slaying Sam Vossallo in 1924. Raia also is alleged to have jumped his bail in Chicago, where he was under investigation in connection with the killing of two men.

CAROL'S LAWYER CALLS SUIT BY ZIZI BLACKMAIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 15.—Six year old Mircea Lambrino stood in tears at his mother's knee in a Paris courtroom today and heard his princely papa's lawyer call his mother, Zizi Lambrino, a scheming adventuress because she wants to establish Mircea's right to bear the name of Hohenzollern, the family name of the boy's father, former Crown Prince Carol of Roumania.

Paul Boncour turned his eloquence, usually employed in thundering the French policy in the league of nations, to attacking Zizi Lambrino, while Prince Carol remained hidden in his new love nest in the suburbs with the redheaded Magma Lupescu.

Zizi wept bitterly when M. Boncour said Mircea was born a year after her marriage to Carol was annulled, and labeled her efforts to give Mircea his father's name and financial support a "fancy piece of blackmail, all the more shameful since she already gets 100,000 francs (about $3,000) a year."

The court will decide on the case Tuesday.

Karl Dane, Screen Star, Is Sued by His Maid Wife

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Emma A. Dane has filed a suit for separate maintenance against Karl Dane, who is one of Hollywood's newest movie finds. She is working as a domestic in the home of Kathleen Clifford, film star, the bill says. It asserts Dane receives $500 a week as a movie actor.

Vote Tuesday on Second High School for Berwyn

A special election on a proposition to authorize a $70,000 bond issue for erection of a second high school in Berwyn, Ill., will be held in the village Tuesday. The present high school has furnished accommodation for 700 pupils from the villages of Cicero, Lyons and Stickney, it is stated.

NEW YORK POLICEMAN KILLS SNAKE BY DROP OFF SUBWAY STATION

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—Patrolman Clarence Weaver was sent today in response to a message from the Washington avenue subway station that some one had left something alive in a burlap bag there.

When Patrolman Weaver arrived the bag was heaving and writhing and thumping on the platform. It looked to Patrolman Weaver as though it was filled with honeydew melons which had been crossed with the Mexican jumping bean. Patrolman Weaver loosened the cord at the sack's neck.

From the mouth of the bag protruded the long and coldly grinning head of an enormous snake. Foot after foot of the body flowed smoothly after the head, and Patrolman Weaver hastily raised the mouth of the bag, which had the effect, as he had hoped, of causing the snake to subside. Then he quickly drew the cord taut, closing the bag. He then lifted the bag and carried it to the platform railing, thirty-five feet above the streets, as the subway there is an elevated road, and dropped it over.

The snake, a python, was perfectly dead when Patrolman Weaver decanted it at the police station. It proved to be twelve feet long and a foot in diameter at the waist.

Ask Freedom for Convict Declared Legally Dead

Madison, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—The Wisconsin Supreme court took under advisement application for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Carl O. Carlson, Kenosha, from the state prison, where he is serving a 20 year term for burglary. The argument that a man who has been sentenced to life imprisonment is legally dead and cannot be tried and sentenced for another crime was presented by T. B. Manning, Milwaukee attorney for Nels Carlson of Chicago, the father.

Notice these North American prices

Waffles and Sausage, 30c

Delicious Honey Waffles, with Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage, or bacon, butter and pure maple sap or honey. (For breakfast only)

Bacon and Eggs, 35c

2 Fox's Snowhite Eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon. You can't get anything finer—at any price.

Roast Beef—big slice, 65c

The many folks who have eaten this item agree it is as fine roast beef as the portions for which they pay from 75 cents to $1.25 elsewhere.

If the North American Restaurant relied entirely upon low prices to attract trade it could never have built the tremendous patronage it now enjoys. Low prices alone will always attract some people. But when it comes to food most folks are more interested in quality than in mere price.

As a matter of fact a big majority of our regular patrons dined only at the most expensive restaurants and hotels before they "discovered" the North American. They don't come here because they want to save money, but because they have found our food is always of the finest quality—cooked just as they like it. Incidentally they are not opposed to making the worth-while savings due to our Common-Sense-Serve-Yourself Plan.

The items mentioned are only a few examples of our amazing food values. And remember that all our food portions are big—usually ample for two people—and the quality the finest obtainable.

Don't fail to inspect the Ajax Six 4-Door Sedan—another Nash success—outstanding leader of the $1000 field.

—the LEADER of —the great NASH line

The Nash-Ajax Price Range on Sixteen Different Models Extends from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. Factory

—a car of rare QUALITY and ultra PERFORMANCE at the LOWEST PRICE ever put on a Nash 4-Door Sedan

Never has Nash ability to unite QUALITY and VALUE at a low price been more strikingly demonstrated than in this Special Six 4-DOOR Sedan.

Despite the expensive calibre of its construction it is offered at the LOWEST PRICE ever placed upon a Nash 4-Door enclosed model.

And beyond all its superb attractions in the way of superlative beauty in body design, of complete appointments, and of choice fittings, it has the final and compelling attraction of brilliantly fine PERFORMANCE.

Nash methods of manufacture in the building of this model are scientific to the extreme.

Particularly is Nash practice in balancing the crankshaft worthy of especial attention for the reason that it is the most accurate and advanced method known.

Wonderful machines of such sensitiveness that they register the pressure of a human breath blown upon them are used by Nash to secure the most positive precision in crankshaft balance.

Piston pin bearings are sized with infinite precision by a diamond boring process.

Rear-axle gears are cut in Nash shops on the very finest and most accurate machines known to the industry.

The motor is entirely Nash-CASED against entrance of even the most minute particles of flying dust or other foreign substances.

Even the flywheel and clutch are completely enclosed in a dust-proof, felt-packed bell housing.

Three highly refined purging devices—an OIL-PURIFIER, GAS FILTER, and an AIR-CLEANER—contribute importantly to the long life and continuously efficient functioning of the motor by rigidly purifying all oil, gasoline, and air.

And the wonderfully simple but powerful 4-wheel brake system is of exclusive Nash design.

Perfectly equalized left to right, and front to rear, this system has the fewest points requiring lubrication of any mechanical system ever devised.

It is marvelously smooth and positive in action and is absolutely impervious to climatic changes.

All this week we are staging a special exhibition of the Special Six 4-Door Sedan—and arranging special DEMONSTRATIONS.

Don't miss this opportunity of viewing personally the market's greatest 4-door enclosed car value.

Drop in TODAY—or phone us when you'd like a Special Six 4-DOOR Sedan at your office or house so you can actually DRIVE IT YOURSELF.

500,000 TO JAM MUNDELEIN FOR EUCHARIST FINALE

Forms Plans to Handle Immense Throng.

On the last day of the Eucharistic congress next month, 300,000 persons, said to be the largest number ever transported in a single day by any one railroad, will be carried by the North Shore electric line from Chicago to Mundelein. Another 100,000 will be accommodated by two steam railroads.

A police force of 2,500 will handle the half million or more people expected to travel by rail or automobile, guard railroad crossings and patrol the grounds of the seminary of St. Mary of the Lake, the scene of the closing procession.

National Guard Volunteers.

Motorcycle policemen and several hundred employés of the Cook county forest preserve will supplement the police at Mundelein by guarding traffic at nearby crossroads.

Special guards are being engaged by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Chicago and North Western railways, and a company from the Illinois National guard has volunteered to assist.

One Road for Pedestrians.

Highways leading to Mundelein are being put in perfect condition for automobiles. One highway, the Mechanics Grove road, will be closed to automobiles and be for the use of those who are to walk to the scene of the ceremonies. This road for foot pilgrims leads from Lake Bluff to Mundelein, a distance of eight miles.

Close Novena Tomorrow.

At the national shrine of the Little Flower, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue, the Rev. A. H. Dolan, national director, will speak tomorrow at seven services, which will close the novena. Father Dolan will give a message from Pope Pius XI. and bestow the papal blessing by the pope's authorization, which Father Dolan received on a recent trip to Rome. Relics of the Little Flower will be carried in a solemn procession and every one present will receive a rose which has been blessed by contact with the relics. The novena ceremonies began May 8.

LOOT LOOP DISPLAY WINDOW.

Thieves yesterday morning smashed a display window of the Bedell company, 100 South State street, and escaped with three dresses, valued at about $200.

INDICT DOCTOR, CHIROPRACTOR IN BABY FARM QUIZ

Peoria, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—Dr. Harry H. Whitten, a physician, and Dr. Bessie Atherton, a chiropractor, were indicted by the Peoria county grand jury today for the alleged operation of an abortion home. Three indictments for abortion were returned against the two doctors, who are prominent here.

The doctors were connected with the "baby farm" investigation here when Mrs. Alice Marie Cramer, 41, held at Pekin, admitted to State's Attorney Harry Pratt that she adopted the first two babies, which died recently. The first baby was given to her by Dr. Whitten, she said.

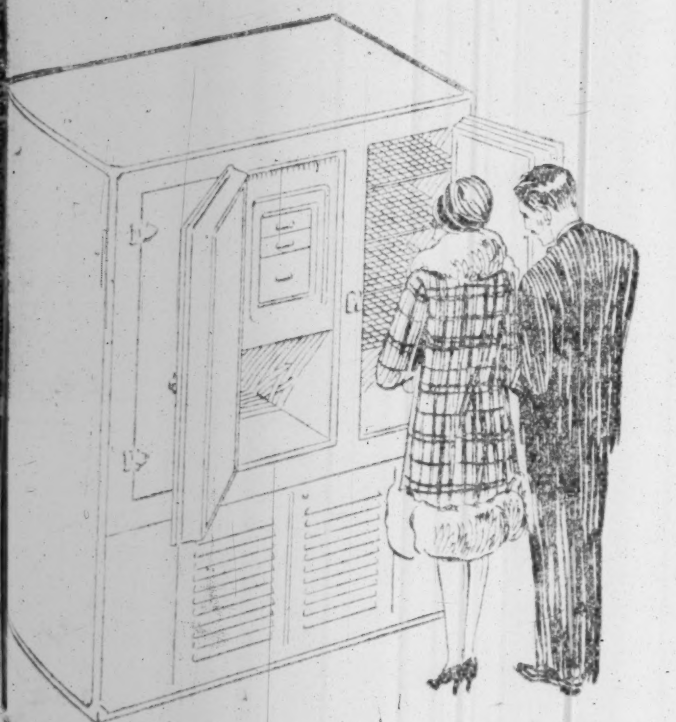
This modern "ice man" calls once—with Frigidaire—and the ice stays always



There is a complete range of metal cabinet Frigidaires, sized to fit every home from the smallest apartment to the largest residence. Their smooth steel sides are finished with lustrous white Duco, long-wearing, and very easy to keep clean. Bright metal trim adds to this beauty. Five of them are lined with seamless porcelain enamel. They are the finest electric refrigerators built—yet they are priced as low as $245, plus a small charge for freight and installation.

FRIGIDAIRE comes to your home just once. It is permanent refrigeration—automatic, dependable, economical electric refrigeration.

Frigidaire will bring with it a new and delightful convenience. It will keep all foods colder, better, longer. It will enable you to buy provisions to last for many days, without fear of spoilage or waste. It will provide you with an ample and constant supply of sparking ice cubes, frozen from your own drinking water, conveniently sized, always ready for use. Or you can use the Frigidaire freezing trays to make many new and delicious desserts.

We invite you to come in and see Frigidaire. You will be delighted with the beauty of the new metal cabinet models which are finished in lustrous white Duco and lined with spotless porcelain enamel. Or we'll gladly show you the Frigidaire mechanical unit with which your present ice-box can be converted into an electric refrigerator.

See Frigidaire in actual operation. Learn how low it is in price and how easily it may be bought on the GMAC deferred payment plan. Come in tomorrow—or mail the coupon for complete information.

Frigidaire is a product of General Motors—made and guaranteed by Delco-Light Company, Dayton, Ohio, the world's largest builder of electric refrigerators. There are more than 150,000 Frigidaires now in use.

Your present ice-box can be converted into a Frigidaire electric refrigerator by installing the Frigidaire "frost coil" in the ice compartment, and the compressor in the basement or other convenient location. Installation is very easy. Frigidaire equipment for this purpose is priced as low as $190, plus freight and installation.

FAMED TOKEN OF KNIGHTHOOD WILL VISIT OAK PARK

Templars to Welcome the Traveling Beauseant.

HARRY J. GARDINER.

Recalling the days when the Knights Templar of France marched behind their beauseant on their crusades into the Holy Land, the Knights Templar of the middle west will gather in Chicago late this month to welcome the International Traveling Beauseant which is being brought to Siloam commandery No. 59 of Oak Park by a guard of honor from Bethlehem commandery of Seattle, Wash.

The present day beauseant, which is a replica of the banner carried by the ancient Crusaders, and which has seen a President of the United States die under its colors, will reach Oak Park Friday afternoon, May 28, where it will be received with elaborate ceremonies. The official presentation will take place that evening at Guyon's Paradise before more than 10,000 of the leading Knights Templar of the country.

Travels 8,000 Miles.

The banner started on its world tour in 1921 from Cyrene preceptory, No. 29, K. T., of Toronto, Ont., and since then has traveled more than 8,000 miles. On Feb. 16, 1923, it had reached Marion commandery, No. 36, of Marion, O., the commandery of which Sir Knight Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, was a member. On July 25 an honor guard of Ohio knights left for Hollywood, Cal., where, on Aug. 2, President Harding was to have made the official presentation to Hollywood commandery, No. 56.

President Harding was on his way to Hollywood for the ceremonies when he was taken ill in San Francisco, and it was necessary for his secretary, Sir Knight George Christian, to make the presentation, delivering the address that the President had prepared for the occasion. It was the last public utterance of the President, for he died the next day.

Sacred to Knighthood.

The International Traveling Beauseant is a banner of silk artistically and correctly arranged to represent the battle flag of the ancient Templars and is on its journey around the world to create a Christian band of knighthood among Knights Templar. Under the terms in the official register traveling with the banner it can be received only once in a state or province. Illinois will be the tenth stop on its world tour, the other nine being Ontario, Canada, New York, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, Ohio, California, Oregon, British Columbia, and Washington.

The beauseant is of two colors, black and white, black signifying dark and terrible to the infidel and white signifying fair and favorable to the Christian. On the banner are inscribed the words:

"Non Nobis Domine Non Nobis, Sed Nomini Tuo Da Gloriam."

Translated, this means, "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name give glory."

Plans for Reception.

On the upper half of the beauseant are several significant emblems of Templarism, a red St. Andrew's cross bearing on its diagonal arms a "Cross Fleury" and the Star of Bethlehem superimposed upon a white maltese cross whose upper branch bears the red patriarchal cross and then a visored helmet above the crossed Templar swords. On the lower half of the beauseant appears a red passion cross typifying faith.

Siloam commandery, of which Eminent Sir Harry J. Gardiner is commander, is making elaborate plans for the welcome and presentation of the beauseant. The honor guard from Bethlehem commandery of Seattle consists of 40 Sir Knights, but it is expected that 200 of the western fraters will make the trip. The presentation of the beauseant will be a spectacle never before witnessed in religious pageantry.

Ex-Army Chief Accepts Job as Greek Premier

ATHENS, Greece, May 15.—(AP)—The newspaper Eleftheron Vima states that Gen. Paraskevapoutos, who was commander in chief of the Greek army under former Premier Venizelos, has telegraphed his acceptance of the premiership. He will arrive shortly from Paris.

CITY SUICIDE RATE RUNS HIGHER THAN THAT OF COUNTRY

Columbus, O., May 15.—(AP)—Suicides are less frequent in the country than in the city, and fewer among primitive peoples than among the more civilized, Miss Ruth Shonle of the University of Chicago told the Middle Western Anthropological society here today.

Recent statistics, she said, showed in cities of more than 100,000 population that there was a maximum of 22.6 suicides per 100,000 population and a minimum of 12.3. In cities of less than 10,000 the maximum rate did not exceed 14.7, and the lowest figure was 8.6 for every 100,000 persons.

The following causes were attributed by her to 391 suicides in Chicago in the autumn of 1923: Extreme poverty, arrest, change of location, as removal from the country to the city; pain and illness, intoxication, insanity, domestic difficulties, lovers' quarrels and deaths of loved ones.

Wright Divorce Trial Will Open Thursday; Bar Public

Madison, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—The public will be barred from the courtroom during the trial of the Frank Lloyd Wright divorce suit, which opens here next Thursday, Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann announced today.

The order was made at the request of attorneys for Wright, internationally known Chicago architect, and his wife, Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, a sculptress.

Wright is seeking a divorce on grounds of desertion, and Mrs. Wright is seeking separate maintenance, alleging marital misconduct.

SHOOTS HIMSELF; MAY DIE.

Joseph Balke, 63 years old, shot himself in the right temple yesterday in his home at 1905 Howe street, while brooding over an illness. He is a machinist. Little hope was held out for his recovery at Alexian Brothers' hospital.

COOLIDGE'S CAMP IN ADIRONDACKS THING OF BEAUTY

Scene of Gay Parties in Pre-Volstead Days.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—White Pines camp, in the Adirondacks, where President and Mrs. Coolidge will spend the summer months, is a small town in itself. It was built more than fifteen years ago by the romantic Archibald S. White, banker and salt king, for his wife, who couldn't live in "inartistic Cincinnati."

In the old days before the war the 35 acres of peninsula which juts into Lake Osgood, one of the St. Regis chain, opposite Paul Smith's, rang with the jolly laughter of Archie White and his friends, and with the popping of champagne on the hunt. Time was when there were two bars in the camp, one of them being off the main dining room.

Had Beautiful Interior.

Those who frequented White Pines when Archie White reigned as host called it "The Log Cabin camp with the Ritz interior." While the dozen or more buildings have all the outward appearances of being hewn from Adirondack timbers, the interiors were appointed by an interior decorator who was more concerned with metropolitan comfort than the view of the wilds every window commanded.

Mrs. White, the "queen" of Archie White's camp, was one time the Olive Celeste Moore, prima donna of the "Bostonians," which toured the land from stem to stern. Being a contralto and temperamental, she hired Kubelik's accompanist for $8,000 a year for two hours' work daily.

Made Two Fortunes.

Archie White hailed from Newark, O. A poor boy, he made his mark and headed the consolidation of salt interests under the title of the National Salt company. Later he made another fortune by selling the Columbia Gas and Electric company to A. B. Leach & Co. for $3,000,000.

He was best known as head of White & Co., dealers in railway and standard bonds. He died about a year ago, after he was divorced and lost his fortune.

His wife sold White Pines to I. R. Kirkwood, owner of the Kansas City Star, about four years ago. Mr. Kirkwood gave it to his wife, Laura, who died recently.

The President's Cabin.

The President's cabin consists of a large living room with an inclosed sun porch. Hot water heat will insure comfort in cold weather. In this building the President will probably do his summer work. There are two suites of rooms in this building.

Adjoining is the owner's cabin. In it are two suites. One consists of a sitting room, dressing room, bedroom, bath and maid's room with bath, and sewing room. The other has a sitting room, bedroom and bath.

On the ridge of the peninsula were a number of two family guest cabins. Two had two rooms and bath each, one had a sitting room, two bedrooms and baths, and another, far from the rest, had a sitting room, bedroom and bath. This last was known as the "grouch house," and was reserved for authors or honeymooners who lived quiet.

Flower and Truck Gardens.

There is a flower garden and an unusual rock garden which covers two acres. Two modern greenhouses are on this land. A large truck garden helps to supply the camp table. A landscape architect laid out the more formal gardens near the owner's cabin. An English tennis court is embellished by a tennis observation and tea houses.

An unusual feature of the camp is an artificial ice plant. Most of the other camps on the lake cut ice from the lake in winter and store it away.

The lake bounds three sides of the camp. The New York state forest preserve extends along the fourth boundary. The camp is a mile and a half from the main highway between New York and Montreal. The former is 370 miles away and the latter seventy miles.

NEW HIGHLAND THEATER OPENED ON SOUTH SIDE

Ascher Brothers opened the sixteenth of their movie houses yesterday, the new Highland theater, at Seventy-ninth street and Ashland avenue. Its seating capacity is 2,500 and it was built at an approximate cost of $1,000,000.

Special festivities marked the opening. Loop stars, including Joe Laurie, Walker Whiteside, Margaret Lawrence, Wallace Eddington, and Raymond Hitchcock, all appeared on the stage. Orville Rennie, tenor, recently with "The Student Prince," also was on the program.

The new theater was designed by Henry L. Newhouse.

MOTHER FIGHTS BANDIT AS HE MENACES CHILD

Ignoring his drawn revolver, Mrs. Rose Goldstein grappled with a bandit in her bedroom yesterday when she thought he was about to shoot her son, Elmer, 9 years old, while his pal searched for her jewelry.

After a short struggle the bandit twisted free and ran to a waiting automobile. Meanwhile his partner picked up three diamond rings and a bracelet valued at $10,000 and joined him. They escaped.

The two men gained admission to the Goldstein home, 3820 West Adams street, by posing as real estate salesmen. They then forced Mrs. Goldstein into the bedroom where the boy, frightened at the sight of the revolvers, started to run toward the door. The struggle ensued.

Fillmore police declared the men may have been the same who obtained $1,500 worth of jewelry from Mrs. S. Optner at 1438 Pratt boulevard, Thursday.

P. E. Church Votes $900,000 to Start Tokio Hospital

Racine, Wis., May 15.—(AP)—The national council of the Protestant Episcopal church in its closing session today voted to expend $900,000 of money, already subscribed, for the construction of the first units of the new St. Luke's hospital at Tokio, Japan.

Lithuanian Consulate in N. Y. Guarded from Reds

New York, N. Y., May 15.—[Special.]—Ten mounted policemen, thirty other uniformed policemen, and firemen armed with hose under the command of two sergeants and a captain guarded the Lithuanian consulate, 38 row, today, prepared to ward of break up a scheduled demonstra of Lithuanian communists. Acco to Julius J. Bielskis, the consul, communistic compatriots were to march on the consulate in pr against the continued impriso in Lithuania of ninety-two com ists sentenced in the 1917 uprising.

IN BRILLIANCE of performance, in quality of construction, and in mechanical excellence—all of the new Paige cars are the same. But for those who want the very utmost in motor car luxury—for those who will accept no compromise whatever with the ultimate in beauty and comfort, we present this de luxe 7-passenger sedan.

It should be said, in passing, that it is simply impossible even to approach the sheer value of this motor car in any other selling within several hundred dollars of its price. And yet price is not the major feature of this splendid car.

Its ultra-modern, highly perfected and wonderfully simplified engine delivers an abundance of silent power—and all of the speed any occasion will ever demand. Its sturdy chassis will wear and wear and wear—outlasting while it outperforms many a costlier car. The body is as comfortable as it is beautiful. Seven passengers are accommodated with ease. The upholstery is of the finest, and the finish is in two harmonizing tones of enduring lacquer.

We want you to see and to drive this remarkable car at your convenience. It will cost you nothing—except many regrets should you buy without accepting our invitation. Call or phone—any time.

S., BRITAIN ACT O RESTORE GOLD BASIS IN EUROPE

ast Scheme to Rebuild Finances Revealed.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

pyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ONDON, May 15.—The Anglo- erican financial ultimatum to the ench government, exclusively told THE TRIBUNE yesterday, is only of a great scheme for the finan- rehabilitation of Europe, THE UNE learns today. This scheme of nstruction was worked out by Ben- n Strong, governor of the Federal erve bank of New York; Montagu rman, governor of the Bank of Eng- d and Seymour Parker Gilbert, nt general of the reparations com- sion, with assistance of officials of treasuries of Washington and Lon- . It was planned to begin its op- ion immediately. This, however, s delayed by the British strike. A ding financier told THE TRIBUNE s morning the strike might delay financial recovery of Europe for months or a year.

Started at Geneva.

order to tell the story consecutive- it is necessary to go back to the ernational economic conference at neva, which began on April 28, and ch passed unnoticed in England, at st, on account of the imminent ike. This conference was dominat- from the outside by Mr. Strong and . Norman, who sponsored a resolu- n recommending that the govern- nts urge the various state banks to rdinate the European finances.

This recommendation was based on formula prepared at the Genoa con- ence in 1922, which definitely al- ted to the Bank of England the dership in calling together the in- national bankers for a conference en the time was opportune. Mr. rman and Mr. Strong had prepared meeting of the representatives of state banks in London on May 4, t the plan was shattered by the ike.

But in the meantime, representing itish and American finance, they ok the first step by an ultimatum to ance demanding a reform in the nking system and freeing the Bank France from political control. The an provides for consolidation of ac- n of various state banks, with a rmanent executive committee in ndon and periodical assemblies to scuss common policy. Before this n be accomplished the Bank of ance must be freed and one of the st steps must be universal accept- ce of a gold standard.

This point explains the recent fall the Italian exchange. Finance Min- ter Volpi asked Mr. Norman and r. Strong to cooperate with the stabil- ation of the lira, but he was told at until Italy accepts a gold stand- d, no credits are possible.

Another point in the general plan the consolidation of the European terallied obligations and also debts America by the issue of a great in- national loan, in which all coun- es will participate.

PARIS, May 15.—Finance Minister oul Peret said tonight that he is eking the help of Wall street to tide er the present crisis. He warns the erican bankers that the Washing- n debt accord risks being beaten in e French parliament if the franc ils to rise on the international ex- ange. The finance minister will go London tomorrow in the hope of ncluding the conversations on ance's debt to Great Britain. An rly settlement is expected on the sis of the Washington accord.

The franc fell to a new low mark of 35 to the dollar today.

KILLS SELF ON FAMILY GRAVE.

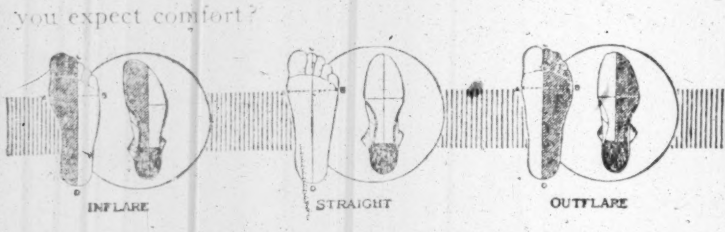
Gypsy Mourners Bear Steve John to Cemetery

Nine gypsy mourners accompanied the body of Steve John, king of the gypsies, from the Greek Orthodox church, 1101 South Peoria street, to Waldheim cemetery yesterday. The body was placed in a temporary vault. Another Steve John, king of a gypsy tribe, also lies in a temporary vault at the cemetery. The two kings will probably receive final interment in expensive mausoleums the last of August.

Man Has Three Feet

Strange to say until The American Posture League announced the result of their world wide research it was not generally known, even among good shoe men, that there actually are three distinct types of normal feet, instead of only one (as generally had been taken for granted), Inflare, Straight and Outflare.

Trupedic shoes are the only shoes in the world made on the Three type principle conforming to the Three types of feet. If you wear a shoe of different type than your foot how can you expect comfort?



These wonderful Shoes, distinctive in appearance, are built to give relief to weak and painful feet. The specially constructed Arch Combination Last and cupped heel seat, combined with other exclusive Trupedic features will make the comfort of your feet a certainty.

Do not be discouraged by previous experience. Trupedic Shoes are different from any shoes you ever tried.

108TH ENGINEERS DEDICATE CLUB FOR VETERANS

Col. H. A. Allen Talks About War Record.

Veterans of the 108th Engineers, 33rd division, A. E. F., formally dedicated their new clubhouse at 1710 Michigan avenue yesterday afternoon with outdoor flag raising exercises and addresses.

The presentation speech in connection with the flag, donated by the Illinois Veteran, an ex-service man's publication, was made by Brig. Gen. Patrick J. H. Farrell. Others speakers were Col. Henry A. Allen, who commanded the 108th Engineers in France; Capt. Robert A. Laird; U. S. District Engineers officer; Capt. Frank R. Myers, chaplain, 131st infantry, and Andrew R. Sherriff.

Military and patriotic organizations represented at the services included the American Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled Veterans of America; World War Veterans, Grand Army of the Republic, Army of the Republic; Girl and Boy Scouts; 131st and 132nd infantry, Daughters of Union Veterans, members of the present 108th Engineers, I. N. G., and the Girls' military organization of Harrison high school.

Music was furnished by the Lindblom High school band and Sergt. Billy Williams of the 311th Engineers, who sang "Our Loyal Countrymen," dedicated to the veterans of all wars.

Detachments of soldiers from Fort Sheridan and marines from the Great Lakes naval training station will fire salutes at the unveiling of the Second division memorial in the forest preserve on June 5.

The monument, to stand at Rand and Ballard roads, will be dedicated during the annual reunion of the Second Division association. Col. Hanford MacNider, president of the organization and assistant secretary of war, will make the principal speech. President Anton J. Cermak of the county board will deliver an address of welcome.

All the major generals who commanded the division in France during the world war will attend the reunion.

HIP SPEECHES ORDER OF DAY IN ITALY NOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 15.—The hip speech is the order of the day with the representatives of the minorities in the Italian parliament now.

Deputy Bezedniak, representing the Slovene minorities, and Deputy Tinsel, spokesman for the Germans of South Tyrol, both carried several copies of their speeches in their hip pockets when they arrived in parliament yesterday.

Deputy Tinsel several times had his speech torn from his hands. He had ten copies in all and finally got to the end of his address after many interruptions. He said Italy was returning to ideas of the middle ages laying special emphasis on religious matters.

Deputy Bezedniak asserted the Slovene instructors were forced under pain of losing their livelihood to declare themselves in sympathy with the Fascist policies, which deny minority rights to their own people.

Steinway or Lyon & Healy

—certainly one or the other

IF you have moved into a new home, the choice of a grand piano is undoubtedly receiving your serious thought. Certainly you want a graceful, new grand piano for your new home in place of your old instrument. Without a grand your home would not be complete.

But which piano shall it be? There are so many to select from. The size of your home, terms of payment, your income—these are matters to consider also.

That your choice should be either the Steinway or the Lyon & Healy is the recommendation of a great music house which has enjoyed the confidence of the music-loving public of Chicago for more than sixty-one years.

Steinway comes first, of course. With its marvelous singing tone and its outstanding durability this famous instrument stands unrivaled. If you are not ready, however, to purchase a Steinway, your choice should certainly be a Lyon & Healy. It too, bears a great name, and in its field stands as supreme as does the Steinway.

Both the Steinway and the Lyon & Healy are obtainable upon remarkably low terms—everything has been done to make ownership as convenient as possible. Your present piano possesses an important capital value in exchange toward a new instrument.

For the Girl Graduate

With school behind her and new vistas of life beckoning, your interest in your daughter may be expressed substantially by such a gift as a grand piano.

MODERN ITALIAN ART POPULAR IN EXHIBITION HERE

Paintings, Tapestries and Glass Displayed.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The final exhibition of the year opened yesterday afternoon at the Arts club and bids fair to be as popular as the Lavery exhibit that preceded it. The present exhibition is of modern Italian art and includes the handicrafts of glass making and tapestries as well as the arts of painting and sculpture.

The first room of paintings gives one all the effect of a squarely planted blow between the eyes. It is staggering and almost offensively aggressive. The pictures are huge affairs, with sturdy women or men, boldly thrust into the midst of homely occupations and carrying out their tasks in ugly good faith. The coloring is bald, bold, direct. There are no shadows or subtleties. Nothing is left to the imagination. There is no need of an interpreter for these pictures.

From the Bold to the Lovely.

Most of them are by Antonio Dongni and some of the titles are "Washerwomen," "The Fortune Teller," "The Table Is Set," and "The Stairway." Amedeo Modigliani, with a feeling for the Italian primitives, gives us in this room "Young Woman" and "Portrait."

There are, in the further gallery, a great many lovely paintings. For example, "Children with Fruit," by Armando Spadini, and "The Kiss," by the same artist. Then there is a fine portrait of Whistler by Giovanni Boldini and scattered about are a number of lovely, lively, debonair portraits (under fascinating titles) by Antonio Mancini.

The dynamic importunities of the Futurist and Vorticist and Cubist schools have not been entirely neglected. In the hall are hung a score of vivid and petulant problems, with which to tease the brain of a nervous visitor. "Train at Dawn," by Fortunato Depero, is a gallant attempt at including the song of the lark at dawn with the whistle of a chubby freight engine, late at its crossing. An early bird is seen devouring a well developed worm with relish, in a far corner.

Puzzle for Ordinary Mortals.

The "Portrait of the Artist," by Enrico Prampolini, gives one the impression that he is subject either to fits or cramps and quite possibly both. It is a tangle of colors and planes from which, with modest pride, only a recognizable brow and nose project. "Idea," by Giacoma Balla, is a distinct Futurist masterpiece. A commonplace mind will never grasp its full meaning.

The sculpture is almost the best feature of the exhibition. There are several groups in marble that are rarely beautiful. Take the utterly adorable "Kiss," by Antonio Maraini, for instance, or the exquisite little girl, "Antonella," by Arturo Dazzi. Then there is the laughing face of a baby, "The Artist's Daughter," by Alberto Gerardi, and the sweet, sweet face of the "Virgin," by Adolfo Wildt. Wildt, by the way, shows also a splendid portrait bust of Mussolini.

Pick Queen for Blossom Festival at Chicago Heights

Miss Francelia Wilkening, surrounded by fifty girls costumed as flowers, will reign as queen of the Festival of the Thorn Blossoms, a spring celebration, to be held in Chicago Heights next Thursday. The fête will take place on the high school campus.

FRIENDLY WAG SAVES PET AIREDALE FROM SENTENCE TO DEATH

Omaha, Neb., May 15.—(AP)—Roscoe, pet Airedale dog belonging to C. I. Baker here, showed rare legal perspicuity in police court here today and won a reprieve from what seemed a certain death sentence.

Roscoe was up before Police Judge Noble for "viciousness," as he is said to have bitten several children. Stepping from the bench, Judge Noble scrutinized the animal. To the surprise of all, the dog offered a friendly paw; wagged his tail and seemed so mannerly that he was sent to the Humane society's shelter for observation.

Baker declares the dog was tormented by children.

Family to Get Bulk of $500,000 Strauss Estate

Milton L. Strauss, former president of the Chicago Tailoring company, who fell to his death May 7 from his seventh floor apartment in the Hotel Windermere East, left a $500,000 estate, according to the will filed yesterday before Assistant Probate Judge Frederick W. Elliott. Most of the estate is divided between the widow, Mrs. Minnie L. Strauss of the Hotel Windermere East, a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy S. Rubel, 1115 Hyde Park boulevard, and a son, Jack Strauss. Mr. Strauss' secretary, Robert O'Brien, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Rose Dreyfuss, get $5,000 each.

Man Hit with Chunk of Coal in Fight May Die

Samuel Savero, 62 years old, 935 Townsend street, suffered what may prove fatal injuries yesterday when he was struck on the head by a chunk of coal during an argument with a fellow worker in the Illinois Central railroad shops at East 22d street. Taken to the Michael Reese hospital, Savero was not expected to live. Vito Freva, 36 years old, 2252 Taylor street, who hit Savero, it was said, during a quarrel over which should turn the lights off in the shop, was arrested.

375,000 TROOPS READY TO CARVE DUCE'S EMPIRE

Latindom Is Fired with Faith in Triumph.

This is the second of a series of three articles dealing with Premier Mussolini's ambitions and his foreign policy. The third article will be printed next Sunday.

BY "DIPLOMATICUS."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LUGANO, Switzerland, May 15.—A colonial empire is the hope of Italy and the Fascist party.

In outlining his foreign policy the duce realizes that no additions of territory on the continent of Europe could bring him anything but trouble. Expansion to the north would be an unproductive gain, to be undertaken only in the event Austria and Germany insist on their plans of union. Italy has sufficient harbors and sufficient industrial centers well protected by natural frontiers.

Expansion to the west has been talked of by some of the more radical Fascists, who still speak of Nice and the Riviera as Italian. But Mussolini would rather have a friendly France as an ally than a France in arms against her.

Therefore Italy's expansion turns naturally to the near east and Africa. Italy's aims and possible outlets in these directions have been discussed in a previous article.

225,000 at Strategic Points.

There remains a consideration of the means by which Mussolini can hope to carry out his foreign policy. First in importance I would place the army and militia. The regular forces of Italy number 225,000 men, recently reorganized on a basis which Mussolini described as elastic and admitting rapid expansion. In supporting the army reform bill before the senate, Mussolini told the upper house that Italy's financial problems alone limited the size of her army, and that he wished the nation were in a position to support more trained troops. These 225,000 men are stationed at points where they can best serve in case of attack. Ten divisions are used to garrison the territories won by Italy from Austria. The Dodecanese islands, which form an ideal military and naval base for an Anatolian expedition, have large quotas of troops.

The militia, for which no accurate figures are available, is variously estimated. I believe, after careful consideration of the various reports, that they number at present about 150,000 men under arms; some reports place their number as high as 250,000 men. These troops are the Fascist body guard and are most numerous around the large cities, especially Rome, Milan and Turin. Their original purpose was to protect the government and combat communism. They are available and well trained for offensive warfare, however.

Pin Hope to Planes.

The navy is entering a new period of construction and organization. Recently the Italian press and the official army and navy journal discussed at length an interview granted the Rome correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE by Admiral Sorani, detailing the immediate plans of Italy and discussing the types of vessels best suited to warfare in the Mediterranean. Beyond pointing out that Italy's naval construction plans foresee a preponderance of light craft, especially submarines and other commerce destroyers, no further discussion of the navy is necessary.

Mussolini has several times declared Italy must place her hope in the air force. This body of men, who did not accomplish what the British or French did during the world war, has been completely reorganized, and today is one of the finest offensive-defensive units in the armed forces of any European nation. The planes at its disposal are modern and well equipped.

Instill Spirit of Victory.

With this reorganization a continuous propaganda campaign has been carried on among the officers and men to convince them that they are the best air troops in the world. "Only the Latins have the spirit for fighting in the air. Their dash and temperament fits them for this service, and above all the Italians. In the first rush our air force would be victorious over any foe."

This increasing propaganda is having a remarkable effect. The officers of the air force are smarter and more alert than those of any other group. One sees little of them in the tea rooms and dance halls of Rome, Milan, Florence, or Venice. But around the various flying bases they are active all day long in the air, their proper element. They are not subordinate to either the army or navy, but have their own high command, responsible directly to Mussolini as minister for national defense.

Pour Balm on Old Wounds.

Back of these arms stands Fascist diplomacy—a new phenomenon in Europe. There is something bizarre in the outspokenness of the Fascists.

Another part of the Fascist diplomacy is evidently the healing of old wounds between Italy and nations which can be useful to her. Of this nature was the new interpretation of the treaty of friendship with Jugo-Slavia, which now is referred to as an entente between the two powers and officially considered as the framework around which to group the Balkan powers in a Balkan Mediterranean league. Of the same nature was the recent conversation between Mussolini and the Greek foreign minister, Rufos, during which Mussolini found a formula for settling the immediate differences between Greece and Jugo-Slavia and at the same time wiped out the bad impression left in Greece by the Corfu incident.

Intrigue in Latin Lands.

Coupled with this active and open diplomacy is the intrigue carried on within the Catholic countries united in the Vatican-Italian league bloc. It was through one of these countries, Brazil, that Mussolini dealt his heaviest blow at the league, and it is through such agencies that Mussolini is confident he will make the league an impotent, lifeless, useless body and drive Europe once more into offensive-defensive alliances.

Back of national diplomacy is party diplomacy, through which the Fascist movement is encouraged in France, Hungary, Germany, and Roumania. Fascist Italy is willing to make treaties with non-Fascist countries, but would prefer to have alliances with Fascist governments. One does not have to search long for examples of this diplomacy. The open letter to M. Valois in Roma Fascista recently, reprinted and circulated at the celebrations of the seventh anniversary of Fascism's birth, offers conclusive evidence of its nature.

UNI-SPAR VARNISH
all purpose

Along the banks of the ancient Yangtze River—in far-off China—grows the tung tree. For hundreds of years the Chinese craftsmen have been using the oil pressed from the fruit of this tree as the basis of Chinese lacquers.

This is the secret of Uni-Spar Varnish. It contains this same China Wood Oil which has made Chinese lacquers so famous for their wonderful lustre and remarkable resistance to wear and moisture.

Use Uni-Spar on your floors and interior woodwork—it stands rough usage—is easy to keep clean, as it can be washed with soap and water without injury.

Uni-Spar gives equal satisfaction for all exterior work—window sills, door fronts, automobiles, boats and canoes.

Oakland Six, Companion to the Pontiac Six—$1025 to $1295. All prices at factory.

Easy to pay on the General Motors Time Payment Plan.

With all its heroic achievements, automotive history does not record a success like that of the Pontiac Six.

In metropolis and village alike, it has generated enthusiasm that has grown to tremendous proportions. Already it has won more buyers than any other new car in so short a time.

This is a condition of vital significance to the entire automobile buying public. For it concretely expresses the national opinion of an entirely new development in automobile design—that of a low priced Six which not only meets the most exacting demands for beauty, bigness, comfort, brilliant performance, and economy of operation, but also possesses the stamina to survive the unrelenting punishment of long, hard use!

In the hands of thousands of owners, the Pontiac Six has already established its reputation as a car of extraordinary durability. Passing from person to person, this reputation has become common property and has acted as the stimulant to a greater and greater demand.

If the Pontiac Six were taken apart before your eyes and compared, unit for unit, with cars of comparable price, you would instantly understand the "why" of Pontiac stamina.

You would see quality expressed as it never before has been in any low-priced six—not alone in superior materials and precise workmanship, but in vital units of extra size, strength, and durability.

You would see a 46 lb. crankshaft, balanced both statically and dynamically and supported by oversize interchangeable bronze-backed bearings of the finest type.

You would see cylinders that are honed to a mirror-like finish; and pistons of semi-steel.

You would see rugged I-beam section connecting rods; valves of special alloy steel with greatest heat resistance; transmission and rear axle gears of extra weight, width and wearing qualities; a sturdy frame designed to resist bending and weaving; a Fisher Body of selected hardwood and steel, finished in lustrous lasting Duco;—and countless other examples of the advanced engineering that is responsible for Pontiac Six stamina.

And all this would make only more impressive the fact that for three years prior to its announcement, the Pontiac Six was subjected to pitiless testing on the General Motors Proving Ground and thus brought to its present maturity of design.

Such an exhibit would tell you more vividly than any words could, the attitude with which General Motors undertook its entry into the field of low-priced sixes.

It would enable you to understand why Pontiac Six has established a production record, unequalled by any new make of car in the first four months of its existence.

It would show you that neither time, money nor the vast resources and facilities of the corporation have been spared in making the Pontiac Six a car of commanding appeal and irresistible value.

It would explain why so many thousands of owners have been won to the Pontiac Six banner—and why the enthusiasm of those owners is growing day by day.

BRITISH MINERS DELAY ACTION ON PLAN FOR PEACE

May Keep Pits Closed for Two Weeks More.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribu

LONDON, May 15. — The British miners' delegate conference adjourned today until Thursday in order to permit the miners' executives to examine the proposals by the government which were submitted last night. It seems certain the stoppage in the coal mines will last at least two weeks longer.

The miners' delegates who examined the government's proposals, decided there is much need of a close study of the matter and ordered their executives to confer with the government on the difficult points.

Miners Not Well Pleased.

The delegates are returning to their districts, none too pleased with the turn of events, according to comments heard this afternoon at the headquarters in Russell Square.

A. J. Cook, the miners' secretary, reiterated to THE TRIBUNE correspondent his opinion that peace will not be secured before the men who risk their lives underground are assured a decent living wage.

The government offered to provide a new $15,000,000 subsidy to keep up wages to the old scale, pending a reorganization of the coal industries in accordance with the plans of the royal coal commission.

Conditions in London Normal.

Conditions today in London are normal after the strike. All busses, trams, and tubes are running, with their old crews, as if nothing had happened. Only the newspapers still show signs of the strike, struggling out with four page editions prepared by nonunion labor.

The newspaper proprietors and unions still are discussing a new agreement and do not expect a conclusion before Monday. The chief obstacle to a settlement seems to be the insistance of the circulation agencies on an open shop, to which the unions refuse to agree and which is also opposed by a majority of the newspaper proprietors.

Railways Resuming Service.

The steam railways are swiftly resuming, but it will be some days before service is normal.

Under the influence of the government most newspapers today publish editorial appeals for conciliation and abstention from attacks on the trade unions.

Nicaragua Sends 3,000 Men to Quell 1,200 Rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 15.—(AP)—Gen. Jose Solorzano Diaz has left for the Atlantic coast with a large detachment of troops to engage the Liberal revolutionists who recently captured Bluefields and El Bluff. The government has dispatched 3,000 troops to oppose the forces of the revolutionists, which are believed to number about 1,200.

A Real Opportunity

One of our clients, unusually successful, is in need of two high-grade salesmen. The men we are looking for are between the ages of 25 and 45, anxious to make a connection where there is real opportunity for advancement. Experience in this particular line is not absolutely essential, though we want men with at least two years' selling experience. If you believe that you can qualify, write fully, giving age, education, business experience and telephone number. Your letter will be treated in absolute confidence. Interview will be arranged during the week.

"BIG TIM" AFTER POLICEMAN WHO PINCHED MISSUS

"Big Tim" Murphy, who appeared in the Speeders' court yesterday in behalf of his wife, Florence, who was arrested Friday night for violating the traffic regulations, threatened in a loud voice to "get the policeman's number who arrested Mrs. Murphy."

Lieut. Thomas Duffy of the traffic division, overhearing "Big Tim's" threat, casually reminded him that "it wasn't so long ago that he himself lost his number." Whereupon the labor leader left the courtroom in a huff.

Mrs. Murphy indignantly explained to Judge William E. Helander that she did not "sass" Policeman J. J. Mahoney who took her to the station for "talking back." Her car was half way across the intersection at Madison and Dearborn streets when the red light flashed, she declared.

"I was courteous but she did a lot of talking about being 'Big Tim's' wife so I arrested her," Policeman Mahoney said. Judge Helander continued the hearing until May 29.

U. S. COAST GUARD CALLS FOR BIDS ON 35 NEW RUM CHASERS

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—As a part of its program to augment its rum fleet, the United States coast guard has called for bids for the construction of from 32 to 35 patrol boats. The boats will be of the steel hull type, 125 feet in length and fitted with twin screw Diesel engines with a shaft horsepower of three hundred. Admiral Billard anticipates that the contract should cost the government around $2,000,000.

Portland, Me., Shaken by Slight Earthquake

Portland, Me., May 15.—(AP)—A slight earthquake was felt in this city and vicinity at 6 o'clock this morning. The tremors lasted five seconds. No damage was reported.

BIG EXPOSITION OF ENGLEWOOD ON TOMORROW

One-tenth of Chicago's population is expected to attend the Greater Englewood exposition and circus, which opens tomorrow evening. The celebration will continue seven days.

Two circus tents, the larger one 300 by 150 feet, have been set up at 63rd and Halsted streets, to house the exhibits which will include automobiles, clothing and other wares. The Englewood Business Men's association, sponsors of the show, will give prizes for the most attractive booths.

In connection with the exposition, the merchants will put on a baby contest, with 2,500 entries, and a girls' popularity contest. The winner of the latter will be crowned queen of Englewood and given a trip to Hollywood. Parades with 100 floats will be held at 1 p. m. Monday and 9 a. m. Tuesday.

The occasion of the show is to celebrate the rapid growth of the Englewood district which fifty years ago was a marsh where hunters shot wild geese.

WANTS DRESSED MEATS LEVY PUT IN HAUGEN BILL

Would Block the Packers' Profits, Texan Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Amendment of the Haugen corn belt farm relief bill, extending the equalization fee provision to include packing house stocks of dressed meats as subject to the levy to be imposed on live cattle in emergencies, will be proposed by Representative Jones [Dem., Tex.] when consideration of the bill is resumed in the house on Tuesday.

The amendment, designed to block a $50,000,000 profit grab by packers, which Mr. Jones anticipates under the Haugen bill in its present form, would require the assessment of a fee on refrigerated meats in storage.

Sees Profit to Packers.

Without such a provision, according to Mr. Jones, who estimates that stocks of dressed meats valued at about $150,000,000 are maintained in the Chicago, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo., and Fort Worth packing houses, packers might decline to buy live cattle for slaughter for some time during an operating period, drawing upon their unassessed stocks.

Representative Haugen [Rep., Ia.], chairman of the house agriculture committee and father of the pending bill, insisted today that the backers of the bill have made their last concession, and indicated that perhaps some of the amendments which they agreed upon among themselves may not be offered.

Haugen Sees Victory.

Friday's debate, which he believes won his bill several votes, changed the situation, according to Mr. Haugen, and his group are now determined to pass the bill in only slightly amended form, and failing in that, to combine to kill any substitutes which may be offered—the Tincher or Aswell bills among them.

$50,000 BONDS SET FOR MAIL BOMB SUSPECT

United States Commissioner Henry C. Beitler yesterday set the bonds of John T. Peterson, Melrose Park inventor and blow torch manufacturer, at $50,000 pending his arraignment on charges of sending an infernal machine through the mails.

Peterson was arrested by city detectives and postal inspectors Friday night following the receipt of a TNT bomb by A. C. Flothow at the plant of the Everhot Manufacturing company, in Maywood, of which Peterson formerly was president.

Peterson admitted there was a bitter trade war between his company and the Everhot concern, but he said he had no knowledge of the alleged bomb plot. Government officials say they have proof Peterson sent the package.

Joseph Kumsky, 3734 Castello avenue, an official of the Truck Owners' association, was held on a malicious mischief charge yesterday, and a similar warrant was obtained against Dan Lucy, both being accused in the bombing of two trucks belonging to H. C. Guillama, who defied the association.

$2,000,000 NEW LIGHTS TO CHASE LAST DARK SPOTS

City Illumination Plan to Be Finished This Year.

Installation of 200 miles of new street lamps, to be financed by the $2,000,000 bond issue approved at the April primary, will make Chicago one of the best lighted cities in America before the end of 1926.

John T. Miller, commissioner of gas and electricity, made this statement yesterday coincident with the completion of plans for the purchase and distribution of the lighting equipment. Work of installation, he announced, will begin about July 1.

"When the new lights are in, there will be practically no dark spots in any ward," said Mr. Miller.

Expects Saving on Program.

Approval of the bond issue this spring was especially opportune, the commissioner explained, in that prices for material are at a low ebb and competition between contractors is keen. Barring a change of conditions in the next few weeks, Mr. Miller believes $250,000 will remain after the original improvement program is carried out.

The surplus will be used in increasing the number and intensity of lamps along heavily travelled boulevards and driveways. This work will not be started, however, until the 5,872 lights needed on streets in the wards are installed.

Of this number, the west side will receive 2,439, the south side 2,318, and the north side 1,115. Included also will be special lights on Michigan avenue from Garfield boulevard to 63d street and Stony Island avenue from 69th place to 79th street.

The allotment by wards is as follows: 5th, 170; 7th, 105; 8th, 121; 9th, 549; 10th, 387; 12th, 1,406; 13th, 221; 15th, 885; 17th, 168; 8th, 374; 19th, 371; 37th, 43; 39th, 382; 41st, 425, and 50th, 265.

Driveway Illumination Plans.

The driveways to be illuminated if the expected $250,000 surplus is left are:

1. Broadway-Devon avenue to Lawrence avenue.
2. Devon avenue-Sheridan road to Western avenue.
3. Indianapolis boulevard-Ewing avenue to the state line: Ewing avenue to South Chicago avenue.
4. South Chicago avenue-92nd street to Marquette boulevard.
5. Cottage Grove avenue-Oakwood boulevard to 115th street.

The proposed lighting program will provide illumination for about 10 square miles or 200 lineal miles of streets, with 20 additional lineal miles if the surplus is available. Much of this territory is now "illuminated" by gasoline lamps, each of which give about 30 candle power and costs an average of $60 a year.

The lamps to be installed will emit 250 to 400 candle power at the same maintenance and operating cost. In other words, twenty times as much light will be provided without an increase in expense after the original installation.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED FOR BLOSSOM WEEK IN BERRIEN COUNTY

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—Everything is all set for two of the biggest days in the history of Blossom week celebrations, next Monday and Tuesday. Thousands of visitors are expected to pass through Berrien county Sunday, traversing the blossoming country for 400 miles surrounding.

Benton Harbor and St. Joseph will declare a holiday next Tuesday, the day of the big parade of blossom-decorated floats. The parade starts in Benton Harbor at Filstrup Field high school stadium. Two thousand school children, dressed in blossom costumes, will participate.

MOSUL OIL FIGHT ENDS TODAY WITH PACT SIGNATURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 15.—The Mosul agreement is ready for signature and the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, is proceeding to Angora to sign the convention tomorrow. The accord ends a six year controversy, and while Great Britain wins an important victory, through keeping the rich oil fields for its puppet, Iraq, Turkey gets certain economic concessions and "a tripartite mutual security guarantee," which the British and Bagdad government will sign with the Angora government.

CAPT. CALLAGHAN SUCCEEDS PORTER IN U. S. OFFICE

Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan yesterday succeeded Capt. Thomas I. Porter as head of the Chicago division of the United States secret service, the latter having relinquished his post after 41 years in the government service.

Capt. Porter resigned a year ago, but was persuaded to remain on the job until an accumulation of government business could be disposed of.

Capt. Callaghan has been attached to the Chicago office since Feb. 1, familiarizing himself with the routine of the local department.

SEIZE TWO IN ROBBERY.

John [Red] O'Keefe, 1331 North Menard avenue, and Joseph McGrath, 2832 West Monroe street, were arrested in the act of burglarizing a drug store at 2948 West Van Buren street yesterday. Ordered to surrender, the two tried to escape by a back window, but halted when police fired two shots at them.

EX-WIFE SUES LOTT FOR LOOK AT HOTEL BOOKS

Declaring that she was barred from access to the books of the Parkway, Webster and Belden-Stratford hotels, in which she owns 11,400 shares of stock, Mrs. Cora Lott Meyer yesterday filed suit for a mandamus against her former hubsand, Charles H. Lott, president of the Lott Hotels, Inc., which controls the three hotels.

Mrs. Meyer asked that the courts force Lott to open the books to her. All she wishes to do is secure an honest and economical administration of the hotels, and she has no desire to make public any result of her investigation of the books, she declared.

Lott, through his attorney, Charles E. Erbstein, replied that the books would be open to Mrs. Meyer as soon as an audit, now being conducted, was finished.

Serbian Cabinet, Charged with Corruption, Resigns

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 15.—(AP)—The cabinet headed by Premier Ouzonovitch, which was reconstructed on April 30, after a series of changes among the various ministries, has resigned. The cabinet was defeated on the question of organizing a parliamentary committee to investigate alleged corruption in the government. The king asked the ministers to remain in charge until the situation could be considered in all aspects.

We Announce an Advanced Idea in Service

Hupmobile Service Clubs

To give the most complete service—a service that is more comprehensive than has ever been offered by any organization is the foundation of the Hupmobile Service Clubs.

Now the Gambill Motor Co., the originator of this successful plan, and its associate Chicago territory dealers, offer in co-operation with the Hupp Motor Car Corporation of Detroit, a great step toward eliminating trouble, inconvenience and unnecessary repair costs.

By this close FREE monthly inspection, every possible cause of trouble is eliminated before it actually occurs.

See Service Feature Number 3 for Quick Roadside Emergency Service

To sell the best automobile in its price class alone is not enough. To render a service that will insure the greatest possible measure of contentment is the purpose of this Club Plan.

A service so complete that every owner will be enthusiastic in his praise of Hupmobile and the service of this organization.

Read again the 10 exclusive service features offered to club members. Free monthly inspection, quick adjustment and emergency service is alone worth many dollars to Hupmobile owners.

The numerous other features offered in this complete service will give you even greater motor car satisfaction and economy than you have ever experienced.

10 Exclusive Features offered only to members of this club

1 Free Inspection:

Your car will be given one complete inspection each month, including thorough examination of general condition of the motor, transmission, rear axle, steering gear, and wheel bearings.

2 Quick Adjustment:

Your car will receive once a month and free of charge, carburetor adjustment, adjustment of ignition points, tightening spark plugs, and adjusting fan belt.

3 Emergency Service:

For emergency service any place in Chicago—or within five miles of your town—a flat tire, or any minor mechanical trouble—a quick service man will rush to your assistance and make any repairs and adjustments that can be made in fifteen minutes at a flat charge of only one dollar.

4 Free Towing:

In case of accident or damage to your car it will be towed from anywhere in the city or from within five miles of your town to your service station free of charge. Or if a derrick is required, a flat charge of $2.50.

5 Special Prices on Monthly Greasing and Oiling:

Your car will receive a monthly greasing and oiling to keep it in perfect lubricated condition, which adds life and satisfaction, at very special prices.

6 Special Tire and Tube Prices:

You will receive special prices on tires and tubes.

7 Special Prices on Oil, Grease and Accessories:

You will receive special prices on oil, grease, and accessories. When we change the oil in your motor, a memo seal will be placed on your speedometer showing mileage and date oil was changed.

8 Special Insurance Service:

You will have the service of a special department handling insurance for Club members.

9 Monthly Service Bulletin:

You will receive every month the Club member's Service Bulletin, containing many interesting and valuable suggestions on the care and operation of your Hupmobile.

10 TwoMonthsGreasing and Oiling Free:

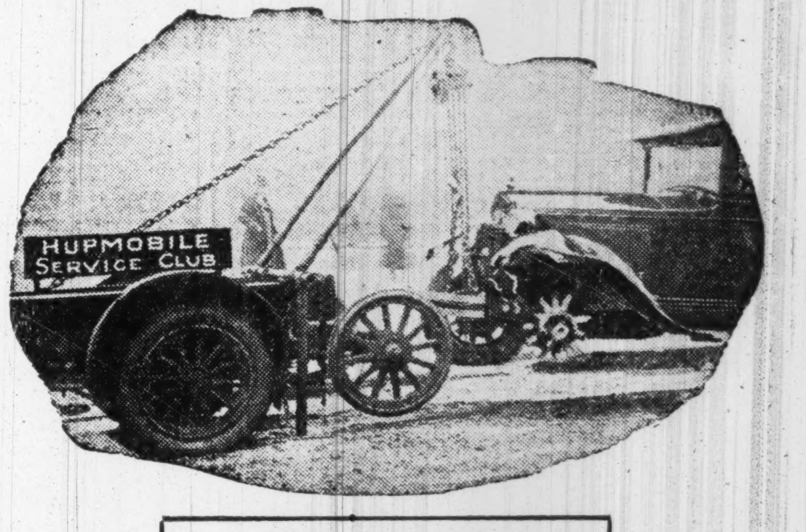
To Club members in good standing who have brought their car in every month for ten months for greasing and oiling, we will furnish two months' greasing and oiling free of charge.

Hundreds of motor car owners consider this new plan of service so important to satisfaction that it has been one of the major determining factors in the choice of a Hupmobile Eight or Hupmobile Six.

Although this new order of Service has only been in operation for a few weeks, more than fourteen hundred owners have already joined this club and are enthusiastic in their praise of this extensive service. This announcement of Hupmobile Club Service to all Hupmobile owners in Chicago territory will result in thousands of new members and the completion of this great new idea.



See Service Feature Number 4 for Towing Service

Hupmobile Club Service is offered to every Hupmobile owner in Chicago territory. To join, it is only necessary to fill in the application blank and return it to us. A membership card in leather case will be promptly returned. Remember there are no dues or assessments. The only requirement is that you bring your car to your authorized Hupmobile dealer once each month for FREE inspection and have it completely oiled and greased by Hupmobile experts at special club prices.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—[Special.]—Freighted down with the pride and the bank roll of the community that he represents, Bubbling Over, a busy brown colt of the Blue Grass country over near Lexington, stepped out in front of the Kentucky Derby field when the barrier went snap along about five this afternoon and ran so fast that he didn't have company between the start of the race and the finish. He just picked up his legs and ran and ran, and when he came breasting along past the grandstand in the hike for the judges' tower, hurling himself through the gusty cheers of a mad, mad multitude he was five lengths in front of his roommate, a colt named Bagenbaggage.

Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage live in the same green barn on Col. E. R. Bradley's place.

The Owner's Identity.

Col. Bradley is the man who runs the games of chance in the casino down among the cocoanut trees at Palm Beach, but you mustn't think that the man whose horses ran first and second and left Pompey, the eastern horse, just nowhere at all in this Kentucky Derby is anything like the coarse characters who run the crap tables in such communities as Cicero, Ill. He doesn't go around rattling a pair of dappled agates in his hand and offering to fade you for any part of five dollars.

This Col. Bradley is one of those whom people call "Kuhnel," and you have to wear a dress suit to get into his Palm Beach place at all.

Some people have found it necessary to wear a barrel going out, but the colonel can't be responsible for what his clients do off the premises.

Anyway, the colonel seems to be quite a man and a pillar of the community down here, where children sing the odds instead of the multiplication tables and grandmothers when they come to visit bring hot tips from the horse barn instead of lollypops.

Walker Presents Gold Cup.

And after his two colts had finished one-two in a $50,000 race, he mounted the green stairs to the quarterdeck of the judges' stand with less show of agitation than you might give if you had won a $50 bet and accepted the gold cup from Jimmy Walker, the sporty little mayor of New York.

Jimmy spoke quite a piece, standing there with Col. Matt Winn, the boss man of the racehorse business in Kentucky, Col. Bradley and some others.

Jimmy wagged his head and sawed the air with gestures of his left hand for most of the ten minutes, and inasmuch as nobody in the pressing mob down below on the track could hear a word he was saying, it could only be surmised that he was hailing the day when sportsmen could fill their gold cups with something worthy of the metal and the sentiment.

Two Wild Minutes.

About 75,000 persons, at least half of whom had endured the wear and tear of traveling long distances, were massed against the rails or standing in the pavilions during those two wild minutes which constitute all the time that really matters on the year's calendar in Kentucky. They had been tipped and touted and warned that this Bubbling Over was one of the runningest bundles of merchandise ever wrapped up in a horsehide suit. But that only made it the more confusing, for they had been told that Pompey, the eastern horse that rivaled Bubbling Over in the sophomore year, would kick a lot of Kentucky loam into Bubbling Over's blinkers from start to finish.

They had been cautioned also against placing too much reliance on the reputations or the trials of the favorites and reminded of the tendency of outsiders to scamper away from the pack in the first few jumps of the Derby, never to be overtaken.

Very Confusing Situation.

So, all in all, the people faced a very confusing situation and they distributed their money and their ardor over quite a range of names. They liked Display because he had won the Preakness last week and Blondin because he showed that he was stuffed with courage when he came from the

35,000 Derby Fans Phone Tribune for Race Results

More than 35,000 telephone calls requesting information on the Kentucky Derby were answered by TRIBUNE operators yesterday. The ninety TRIBUNE trunk lines were all but swamped by the calls of the fans. Anna Garrow, chief operator, reported that the fans started calling early yesterday afternoon and the flood continued several hours after the race had been run.

Bubbling Over Derby Winner by 5 Lengths

1925 between himself, Pompey, and Canter.

So far as numbers were concerned, the advantage in advance had been all with the east. They comprised seven of the thirteen horses sent after the honors, and their pretentions, except for Bubbling Over, were much more ambitious. And Bubbling Over, who many critics said would stop at the longer distance against formidable opposition, simply made a show of the highest class field in recent years. It was something for Kentucky to exult over, and Kentucky made the most of the opportunity.

Pompey Never Had Chance.

This writer said turfmen were divided into two camps over Bubbling Over, those who said he would stop and those who maintained his dazzling speed would break the hearts of all those who tried to follow him. Bubbling Over proved the latter theory correct. It was Pompey who stopped.

Could Pompey have won this Derby under different tactics, if he had avoided the early pace with Bubbling Over? He could not. Trainer Karrick knew it would be dangerous for Pompey to stay too far out of it and depend on a stretch run, for if Bubbling Over did not tire, there would be too much ground to be made up.

Accordingly Jockey Laverne Fator was instructed to stay with Bubbling Over, even to take the lead if the pace was slow. He followed his instructions. Pompey did what was asked of him as long as he could. When his endurance failed, the most formidable competitor had fallen by the wayside.

Called to the Post.

As the bugle sounded calling the field to the post, the crowd came acheer. Soon thereafter the lead pony came through the gate leading from the paddock to the track with his rider holding the bridle of Display, which has a reputation of being a surly actor. In order followed Light Carbine, Rockman, Baggenbaggage, Blondin, Champ de Mars, Espino, Recollection, Cantor, Bubbling Over, Rhinock, and Roycrofter.

There was the usual prancing and pirouetting as these turf aristocrats paraded to the first turn and then back before the entire length of the stands to the starting point a quarter mile down the track. Singularly enough, Bubbling Over and Pompey, carrying the bulk of the public money, the former that of Kentucky and the populace in general, and the latter that of the big eastern plungers, were the best acting of the lot. Pompey, in particular, justified his reputation for intelligence and even temper.

Cantor and Display Behave.

There was only a short delay at the post with the reputed kicker Cantor failing to live up to his reputation, and Display showing his less than usual.

At the barrier rise, Johnson quickly took Bubbling Over to the front from an outside position Fator hustled his mount to keep up and as they passed the stand after racing one-quarter of a mile, Bradley's colt was leading by a length with Pompey half a length ahead of Rockman. Canter was fourth in close attendance. Baggenbaggage was seventh and Rhinock eighth.

Around the first turn, Rockman temporarily assumed second place but Fator was hustling Pompey and in this order the leading trio traversed the back stretch. At the far turn, Fator attempted to move up and cut down the length margin Bubbling Over was enjoying. Pompey gained slightly and at once the cry arose, "There goes Pompey!" but Johnson just gave the leader a little more rein and the vantage was regained. For perhaps a hundred yards this duel continued, then Pompey faltered and as far as victory was concerned he was through.

Baggenbaggage Comes On.

Coming into the stretch Bubbling Over was three lengths in the lead while Pompey had given way first to Rockman, and then to Canter. Meantime Baggenbaggage, lightly regarded by all except his stable since the Preakness, was coming up fast, and by the time the eighth pole was reached had passed all the others. Jockey Blind, apparently sure of his mount, had not tried to weave through any openings but went safely on the outside.

Thereafter it was only a parade by the Bradley pair. Rhinock, which had been eighth most of the way, came fast but failed by a nose for third position. Pompey, tired and perhaps heartbroken, was a rather distant fifth. Espino, Light Carbine, Canter, Blondin, Display, Recollection, Champ de Mars, and Roycrofter finished as named.

In hotel lobbies tonight, Bubbling Over is called a great colt. Owner Bradley thinks him the greatest he ever owned or bred. He is present 3 year old champion. This honor he will risk in important eastern stake engagements. Few think he will lose it if he maintains his Derby form.

Cohen, Waco Shortstop, Leaves to Join Giants

Waco, Tex., May 15.—(AP)—Andy Cohen, shortstop with the Waco club of the Texas league, leaves tomorrow for Cincinnati to join the New York Giants. The Giants today exercised an option they held on Cohen. The deal involves $20,000 cash and New York is to turn over to the Waco club Shortstop Novaka, at present with the Norfolk South Atlantic club, the local management said.

BRADLEY, THE STOIC, ENJOYS ONE BIG THRILL

Famous Poker Face Gone for Second.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—[Special.]—Edward R. Bradley lost his poker face for a few brief seconds here this afternoon, his lips quivered, a smile danced out of eyes that are usually cold and piercing, and if Kentucky neighbors had not captured him he might have jumped up and down in unrestrained glee.

This victory of Bubbling Over in the fifty-second Derby did not surprise the man in whose Palm Beach palace of fortune many times more money than today's race was worth often changes hands on a single roll of the roulette wheel.

But it did thrill him, thrilled him more, he said, than Behave Yourself's Derby triumph in 1921.

What Victory Means.

What did this Derby mean to Bradley, except more prestige for his own breeding stock, out of which came today's Derby winner?

He won the biggest bet of his life, his friends say, an amount which reaches well into six figures and which may total $250,000 when he collects the last of his wagers.

Bradley's show of emotion came when Jockey Johnson, after making the pace with Bubbling Over under restraint for the first mile, set the big chestnut down and drew away from Pompey after the eastern champion had raced at his flank from the beginning. When a burst of speed came, Bradley knew the Derby was at his mercy, and from then until it came time to make his way to the stand to receive the Derby trophy he was not Bradley the gambler, nor Bradley the courteous but cold blooded, but Bradley the schoolboy with a new toy.

Recovers His Poker Face.

Once his trip to the stand was underway his poker face came back. He kept it throughout the presentation ceremonies and held it when the band struck up "My Old Kentucky Home" and he bowed to the cheers of the thousands.

To Albert Johnson, the slight young man of 25 summers from Idaho, who did everything he was told, and who later declared Bubbling Over was one of the greatest horses he had ever ridden, Bradley said he was going to make a valuable gift in the shape of money. Some said it was to be $10,000. Others said it was $20,000, but whatever might have been the amount it was not made public.

The little jockey could scarce control his emotions as the after-race ceremonies were going on. Finally he plucked at Owner Bradley's sleeve. "Thank you, Mr. Bradley," he said, "for letting me work for you and for letting me ride Bubbling Over."

A few simple instructions were all that Trainer Dick Thompson gave Johnson as saddling time neared. And this youth, who won many of the principal stakes of America as Exterminator's jockey, carried them out strictly to the letter. It was the second Derby in which Johnson had ridden, and his first mount, like today's, brought victory when he piloted Morvich home first in 1922.

Bubbler Runs Own Race.

"Bubbling Over didn't need much handling today," Johnson said. "He went to the lead at the first asking, and there never was a time, even during the challenge of Pompey down the back stretch, when he wanted to weaken. At the end of the mile I gave him his head, then urged him for an instant, and when he shot on ahead into a long lead the battle was won.

Is Bubbling Over as great as Exterminator? Johnson was asked.

But Albert will compare no other horse with "Old Bones."

Col. Bradley was too busy receiving the congratulations of his neighbors tonight to think of the future plans for Bubbling Over. He doesn't intend to dodge any racing issues this year, however.

Winning Jockey Learned to Ride on Father's Farm

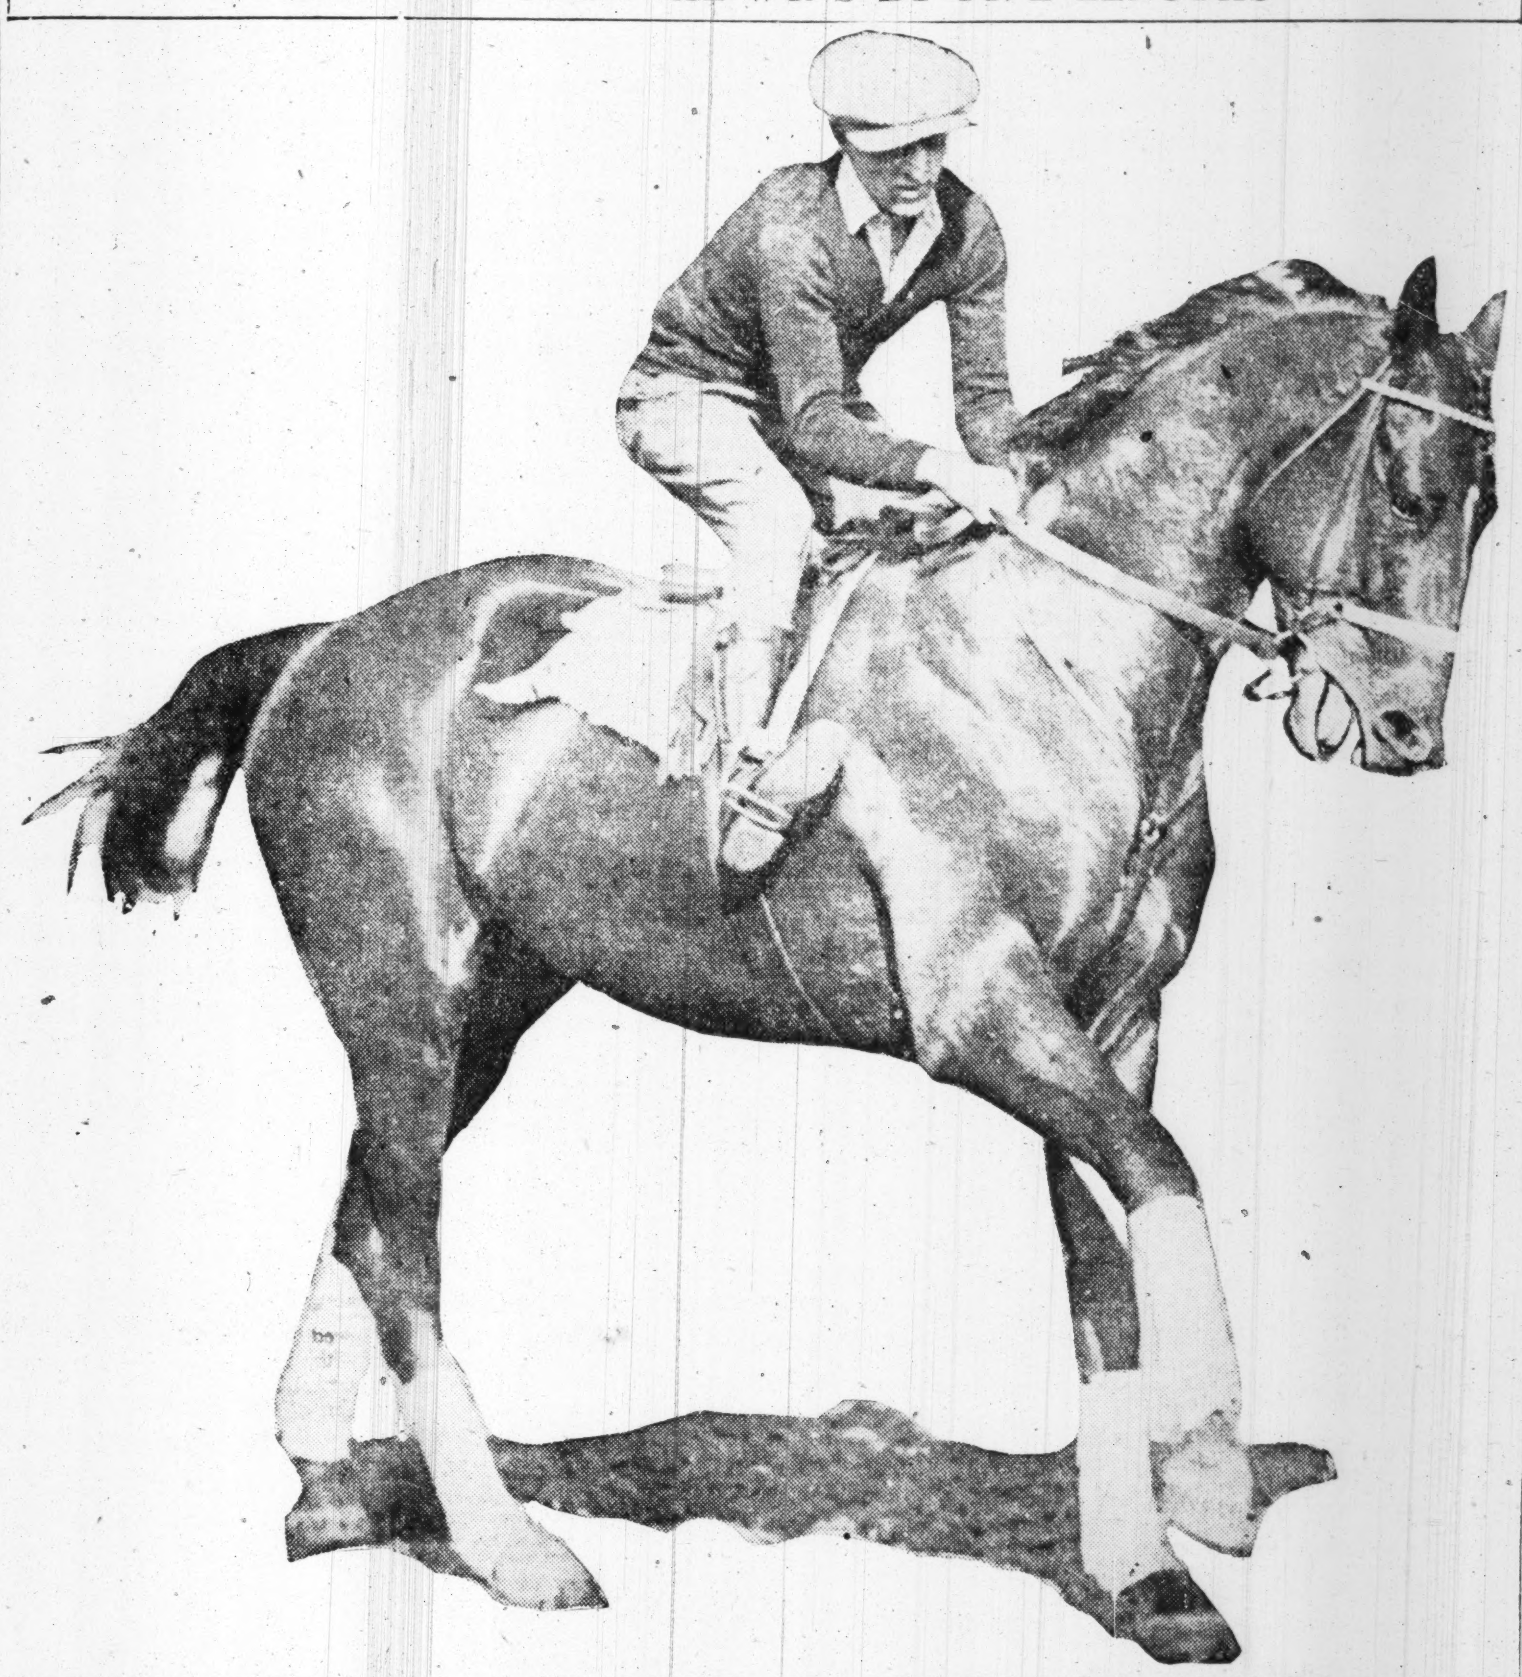
Spokane, Wash., May 15.—(AP)—Albert Johnson, who, on Bubbling Over, won today's Kentucky Derby, was born on a farm near this city, where his family still reside. He started his racing career on the track of the Interstates fair grounds here, where his sister, Helen, annually rides in the relay races.

Johnson was up on another winner in the same classic in 1922, when he piloted Morvich to take a $50,000 purse.

The same season he won both divisions of the Pimlico futurity at Baltimore with an $80,000 purse.

Johnson is 25 years old. He rode first on big tracks at Tia Juana, Mexico, in 1915 and the following season was within two mounts of the nation's leading jockey.

BUBBLING OVER—HE WINS BY FIVE LENGTHS



Bubbling Over, E. R. Bradley's great three year old, took the lead from the start in the Kentucky Derby and held it all the way to win in 2:03 4-5. He came within two-fifths of a second of the Derby record for the distance, a mile and a quarter, set back in 1914 by Old Rosebud. Bubbling Over won by five lengths over his stablemate, Bagenbaggage. This photo of the winner was taken several days ago at Churchill Downs during a trial run.

U. S. Golfers Lose in First English Play

BY DON SKENE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SANDWICH, England, May 15.—[Special.]—The invading American amateur golf forces lost the first battle in their campaign for the British golf titles today in the competition for St. George's gold vase in the thirty-six hole medal play tournament over the wind swept sand dunes of the Sandwich course, where Walter Hagen won his first open championship.

Maj. Charles Hezlet, the British amateur star, retained the famous trophy for his country with a score of 158. The major's brilliant 77 in the afternoon alone defeated the best efforts of the Americans, the eight big guns of the Walker cup team.

Weather Hinders Play.

Until Maj. Hezlet turned in his card late in the afternoon, George von Elm, the San Francisco marvel, was tied for first place with Robert Harris, captain of the British Walker cup team, with a score of 161.

The morning rounds were played against a roaring gale from the channel which threatened to blow the balls off the greens. The Americans' scores all were high because of the difficult conditions, but our Walkerites' showing was considered most creditable by the British experts.

The Americans declared they enjoyed the experience gained today in typical British sea front golfing weather. Next to Von Elm, Francis Ouimet was the best American bet, with a strong chance to win until he blew up at the eleventh hole in the afternoon round, ending with a total score of 164.

The team captain, Robert A. Gardner, took 166, finishing third among the Americans and a single stroke behind Bobby Jones, who drew the biggest gallery today.

Play Disappoints Gardner.

The other four American Walker team members finished as follows: Roland McKenzie, 168; Jess Sweetser, 171; Jesse Guilford, 173; Watts Gunn, 175.

Capt. Gardner, in a conversation with THE TRIBUNE correspondent, said, "I am not exactly satisfied with the team's showing today, despite the weather, but I think our first day's important play in Great Britain has been most useful and stimulating practice."

The standing of the Walker players today is as follows:

George von Elm tied for second, Francis Ouimet tied for fifth; Bob Gardner tied for seventh, Bobby Jones tied for tenth, Roland McKenzie for eleventh, Jess Sweetser for sixteenth, Jesse Guilford for seventeenth, and Watts Gunn for twenty-seventh place among the sixty entrants.

Paddock Runs 100 in :09 5-10; Barnes Vaults 13 Ft. 8 In.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—[Special.]—Sprinting in the Southern California A. A. U. meet at Coliseum track this afternoon, Charley Paddock of Los Angeles A. C. set a world record time of :09 5-10 in the 100 yard dash. Three watches caught the Pasadena flash at that time, and the fourth watch at :09 6-10. Charley Borah, sensational freshman from the University of Southern California, finished an eye wink behind Paddock. Timers said he was about four inches behind. Borah got off to a faster start than Paddock and at ninety yards led the "fastest human" by a foot.

CHARLES PADDOCK.

There was no wind in the Coliseum, and officials of the meet will ask a world record for Paddock.

Bejay of Los Angeles A. C. set a new Southern California record for the six mile run of 32:14 2-10. Carter of Los Angeles A. C. ran the mile in 4:23.

Barnes Soars to Record.

Palo Alto, Cal., May 15.—(AP)—Lee Barnes, pole vaulter of the University of Southern California, established a new national intercollegiate record at the Pacific coast conference track meet this afternoon at 13 feet 8 inches. Several tries at 14 feet failed.

H.R. Hardwick Gets Chicago Hockey Club

Montreal, Que., May 15.—[Special.]—The National Hockey league awarded the Chicago franchise to H. R. (Tack) Hardwick of Boston, and the Detroit franchise to Townsend.

After the decision was announced P. T. Harmon of Chicago, Hardwick's rival, declared: "We're going back to Chicago tonight, and we're going to play hockey." Asked about the proposed new league, he replied, "That's another day's work," and declined to say anything more.

P. F. Bierer of Detroit, the rival to Townsend, took his setback philosophically. He said he was going on to Vancouver, B. C., tonight, and had no doubt whatever of finding use for his Victoria team. He already had a telegram offering him some use for it, he said.

Harmon Next Year—Perhaps.

The governors of the league decided that if conditions warranted next year they would accept another Chicago club and would give Paddy Harmon first chance, but stipulated that clubs admitted must have rinks far enough advanced at the time of the annual meeting in September to permit of play starting Nov. 10. The New York Rangers were officially admitted.

The league will consist of ten clubs, and it is expected that at the annual meeting it will be divided into two sections of five clubs each, which will play both sectional and intersectional games, giving each team 22 home games and playing the Stanley cup series as intersectional games.

Dodges Back Detroit Club.

It is said that the new Detroit team is sponsored by Wesson Seyburn, a director of the Dodge Brothers' estate. He was represented here by Clarence Spence.

From now on the admission of new clubs will be by a straight majority vote instead of by a unanimous vote, as in the past. The vote in favor of the change of the constitution was six to two, New York Americans and Canadians being the dissenting voices. It is likely it would have been unanimous had some certain majority been set. The clubs voting against felt it should have been a two-thirds or three-quarters majority vote in order to protect the Canadian clubs.

HACK WILSON HITS THREE AND THAT'S ENOUGH

Kaufmann Peevish Only Once.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

[P. & A. Photo.]

The Cubs are tearing things up again. Hack Wilson is back in the game and yesterday afternoon he made three hits, drove in three runs, and knocked an opposing pitcher off the slab, and the Cubs grabbed the first game of the series from the forlorn Phillies, 6 to 3.

When Hack's in the game there's a kick in it for every one who looks on. One can get a thrill just watching him fan. He does his stuff with a great flourish. But he didn't fan yesterday. He socked the ball every time he went up. Three of them went safe and one was caught by an outfielder.

With Hack hitting and Tony Kaufmann hurling in form, the Cubs simply breezed along. For six innings Tony was calm and dispassionate and had the poor Phils at his mercy. He became a bit riled in the seventh and they got a run, and then in the eighth Tony started to flare up, but Sparky Adams and Jim Cooney and Charley Grimm and Howard Freigau got around him and talked about pleasant things such as rhubarb pie and strawberries and cream, and Tony regained his composure and went on pitching.

Cubs Punish Three Pitchers.

He held the Phils to seven hits. Five of them were made in the seventh and eighth. At all other times they were helpless. The Phils are likely to wreck a ball game any time, even if they aren't supposed to be going anywhere and are composed mostly of fellows who weren't wanted by other clubs. Sometimes those fellows get mad or something.

Wayland Dean, one of those travelers who was shipped from the Giants' stable, was on the rubber. He was in distress from the start, but stayed there and suffered until the seventh, when our Hack slammed one past his right ear. It was the fifth blow in that round and only one man was out, so Dean was waved to the clubhouse and Willoughby came to the rescue and got the side out, after which he gave way to a pinch hitter and Baecht finished.

There were three swats off Dean in the first inning, hits by Adams, Munson, and Wilson. Only one run resulted because a double play stopped the fuss. There were a couple of damaging blows struck in the third. Adams doubled, Heathcote sacrificed, Munson walked, and Wilson singled. One run was sent home and a moment later another runner was cut down at the plate, which ended that fracas.

Phils Break Loose.

Those two runs looked pretty big when six innings had been finished and the Phils hadn't scored, but in the seventh Harper led off with a blow against the wall in right center for three sacks and came home a moment later on a wild pitch. Nothing more occurred in that round, but it left the Cubs with only a one run margin, so in their half of the seventh they ran amuck and wrecked the game.

Hartnett started with a double and Kaufmann singled, Hartnett stopping at third. Adams then poled safely to left, sending Gabby home, and when Harper kicked the ball in left field, Kaufmann legged it on to third and Sparky made second. Heathcote walked, filling the bases, and Munson, with the call three and two, drove one to right for two sacks, scoring Kaufmann and Sparky while Heathcote stopped at third.

Wilson Brings 'Em Home.

Right there Wilson slammed a liner past Dean's ear. The ball hit the bag at the second corner and fell dead twenty feet behind it. Heathcote scored, but Munson was nailed at the plate. Willoughby came out and rescued Dean and stopped the riot, but sufficient damage had been done.

Wrightstone started the eighth as pinch hitter and walked. Pierce ran for him. Cy Williams hit for Willoughby and flied out. Sand forced Pierce at second, and then Mokan, Leach, and Harper all singled in succession, sending in two runs, but Tony regained his composure and stuff and made Bentley fly out. In the ninth Tony set 'em down three in a row.

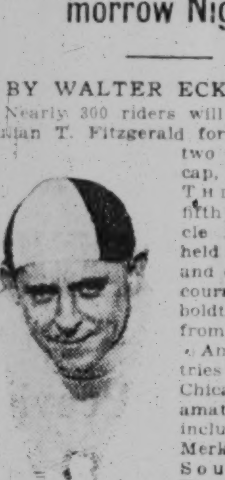
ENTRIES CROWD 300 MARK FOR BICYCLE DERBY

Nominations Close Tomorrow Night.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Nearly 300 riders will face Starter Julian T. Fitzgerald for the twenty-two mile handicap, feature of THE TRIBUNE'S fifth annual bicycle Derby to be held over the two and one-fifth mile course at Humboldt park a week from today.



JULES ARENS.

Among the entries are some of Chicago's leading amateurs. These include Edward Merkner of the South Chicago Wheelmen, who won the handicap last year and also annexed first time prize. Merkner also won the four and two-fifth miles race for class A riders. His superb riding gave his club the team trophy which goes to the organization whose riders score the most points. Merkner will be supported by other excellent riders and officials of the club are hopeful of again winning team honors.

Arens to Compete.

Jules Arens of the Belgian American C. C., another of Chicago's best, will ride under his club's colors and should be a factor in the major races. Jules was second to Merkner in the 22 mile handicap last year and won third time prize. Arens also finished second in the Class A race.

The Antlers Sportsmen's club has nominated some excellent riders, including the Wesolowski brothers, while other clubs have contestants in the various races who should show vast improvement over their riding of a year ago.

Winners of the first twelve places in the 22 mile handicap will receive merchandise certificates. The victor will be rewarded with a fifty dollar certificate and these will be graded down so that the twelfth finisher gets a five dollar note. There will be eight time prizes, the first of which is a fifty dollar certificate and the eighth ten dollars.

In the scratch events, winners of the class A, B, and C races will be given $25 certificates; second, $20; third, $15; fourth, $10, and fifth, $5. In the girls', novice, and boys' races the winners will receive $20 certificates, while the victors of the other places will be rewarded the same as in other events.

Twelve Places Count in Handicap.

Twelve places will count in the handicap on a basis of 12 points for first, 11 for second, and so on, until twelfth position will be rewarded with 1 point. In the scratch races five places will count on a basis of 5, 4, 3, 2, and 1 for first, second, third, fourth, and fifth, respectively.

Through the courtesy of Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the west parks board, and the commissioners, the park has been made available for the Derby. Capt. William Stocker of the west parks police and Lieut. Roger Shanahan have promised the customary excellent police protection for riders and spectators, while other officials of the parks also are coöperating to make the event a success.

As a few clubs and many individuals have not sent in their entries, these should bear in mind that nominations close at midnight tomorrow. These lists must be turned over to the board of control and in turn to the handicap committee. Allowances then will be granted for the 22 mile handicap and the complete list of entries, together with the handicaps, will be printed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

All riders must be registered with the Amateur Bicycle League of America. This can be done by communicating with Julian T. Fitzgerald, 2846 West North avenue, telephone Humboldt 0121.

ST. RITA DEFEATS CALUMET IN 11 INNING K. C. GAME

With the bases full, one out, and his team a run behind in the last half of the eleventh inning, Pitcher Lynch of St. Rita drove in the runs that beat Calumet in a battle for first place in the south division of the Knights of Columbus baseball league. The final count was 4 to 3. Other scores:

Gold Coast and Back o' Yards Mingle in Derby Day Crowds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., May 15.—[Special.]—The special trains bringing the Chicago Athletic association and Edgewater Beach hotel parties arrived shortly before noon and the Chicago delegation to the fifty-second Derby was complete.

Official crowd guessers placed the visitors from Chicago at 12,000, but the number in line at the pari-mutuel wagering machines, and the hundreds of others elbowing and pushing their way through the throngs, gave the show a decidedly Chicago complexion.

From the Wisconsin edge of the Gold coast to Beverly Hills out south and from the Municipal Pier on west through Cicero, Forest Park, Riverside, and Hinsdale, the gay Chicagoans came, putting on a promenade and style show which caused the Kentuckians to marvel.

Switch to Bradley Entry.

William A. P. Pullman, grandson of William A. Pinkerton, the pioneer detective, was on the scene early. Alden Swift came, a little later and Paul Gardner and James Hutchins were close in his wake.

John Hertz, C. A. McCullough and Stuyvesant Peabody were in a clubhouse box. After talking Pompey and Champ de Mars for days they switched to the Bradley entry just at post time.

President Lucius Teter of the C. A. A. arrived at the head of the party of 300 on the Cherry Circle special. The C. A. A. members were wearing special badges and occupied a section of grand stand boxes not far from the finish line. They prepared for any kind of weather, their late arrival making it possible for most of them to secure slickers and umbrellas before they reached the Downs. But they discarded the wet weather garb when the skies began to clear.

Ald. John [Bathhouse] Coughlin of Chicago waited until after the third race was run to wend his way across the infield from the row of stables along the back stretch to his box in the club house. His purple vest and cerise tie fairly glistened in the sunlight. He wore his familiar swallow-tail coat and carried a walking stick. He backed Pompey.

Some of the Notables.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Netcher, Vincent Bendix, Edison Dick, Charles Bidwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mitchell were among the other early arrivals.

There are 2,000 boxes at Churchill Downs, more than at all the other race tracks in America, and Chicagoans were occupying considerably more than half of them, it seemed.

And what a terrific struggle these Chicagoans were making against the "iron men" betting machines. There was a sprinkling of Chicago owned nags in the six races on the Derby card, and whether they were a 100 to 1, or 4 to 5, they had the backing of the Chicago hunters.

George Ade, who admits he witnessed the great match race between Mollie McCarthy and Ten Broeck on July 4, 1878, was trying to pick the winners. His choice in the Derby was his own private information, he declared.

Sinclair a Bit Wistful.

Harry F. Sinclair, a bit sad because his numerous candidates for the Derby failed to live up to expectations and were missing from the post, was on the club house lawn talking horses and Derby with other New Yorkers including Walter J. Salmon, William Zeigler, A. C. Bostwick, Al Jolson and Mayor Jimmy Walker. Few of these New Yorkers were willing to give the west a chance. George Brennan was aligned with the west and could not see another Derby colt but Bubbling Over. He talked politics between races with Tom Taggart of Indiana and "Fingy" Connors of Buffalo.

Among other nationally known visitors who were visiting back and forth in the club house boxes were James G. Brady, New York; Marshall Field of New York and Chicago; Edward S. Butler of St. Louis; H. H. Cotton, Los Angeles; Joseph Rhinock, New York; J. Leonard Replogle of New York, and Frank Navin of Detroit.

Gov. Austin Peay of Tennessee and friends had a lively party in one of the boxes. The governor remarked to friends that he hasn't missed a Derby for many years.

In the Wake of the News

WHAT A DERBY CROWD EATS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—[Special.]—What will a Derby crowd eat and drink? That is the problem which annually confronts the management of the Kentucky Jockey club. There are certain hardy annuals like hot dogs and various other brands of sandwiches which can be estimated with fair accuracy. The question of soft drinks is more difficult because so much depends on the height of the thermometer.

The concessions at Churchill Downs are operated by the management. At first they were conducted at a loss because the club is seeking to build up racing and it wished to control prices and to prevent exorbitant charges. For instance, cigars and cigarets are sold at the exact price at which they may be obtained downtown. At the lunch counters, most generously patronized, sandwiches are 15 and 20 cents, pie 15 cents, coffee 10 cents, and a half pint of milk 10 cents. Soft drinks are similarly reasonable.

On Derby day a Derby breakfast is served in the clubhouse for $3. In reality it is a chicken dinner. Reservations fill the dining room capacity long in advance. Strangely enough, the clubhouse commissary shares a loss.

But to return to the question of what a Derby crowd eats and drinks, here are the figures for last year:

1,010 half spring chickens
250 lbs. tenderloin steaks
1,220 lbs. beef
80 lbs. roast beef
80 lbs. roast veal
200 lbs. pork tenderloin
200 lbs. calves liver
100 lbs. hog jowl
210 lbs. baked hams
20 lbs. bacon
15 gal. beef stew
30 gal. soup
1,350 lbs. potatoes
40 lbs. baked beans
12 lbs. rice
50 lbs. onions
216 cans spring peas
30 bunches parsley
11,366 half pints milk
55 gal. milk
47 gal. cream
28 gal. buttermilk
25 gal. ice tea
4,000 bottles grape lemon
36,000 bottles coca cola
10,500 bottles pop
1,250 gal. orangeade
1,666 beef sandwiches
14,402 hot dogs
8,600 ham sandwiches
1,430 club sandwiches
2,280 cuts pie
3,500 cakes
473 gal. ice cream
18,927 bricks ice cream
3,800 lbs. bread
3,000 rolls
2,000 lbs. sugar
10 gal. mayonnaise
50 boxes chewing gum
1,000 lemons

Bradley Nomenclature.

Turf followers no doubt have noticed that the names of all horses belonging to E. R. Bradley, owner of Bubbling Over, begin with the letter B. Nominated in the Derby this year were Bubbling Over, Barcolo, Blockhead, Banco Suivi, Bird Behave, Bagenbaggage, Boot to Boot, and Blue Pencil. It was Behave Yourself and Black Servant which ran one-two in the 1921 Derby.

When we asked Col. Bradley the reason he replied, "Just a sort of identifying mark."

So far as we recall President is the only Bradley horse not beginning with B. This one was purchased. The sire was McKinley, which accounts for the name.

THIS WAKE IS CONDUCTED BY HARVEY T. WOODRUFF. HELP! HELP!

Mutuel Betting.

Pari-mutuel betting, which prevails at Churchill Downs, is in reality a sweepstakes or pool. All money wagered on the different horses in a race is placed in one pot. Five per cent is then deducted as the share of the association for operating expense of the track. The pool then is prorated among those who wagered on the winner according to the size of their bets. There are separate pools for first, second, and third horses.

Speed and Accuracy.

The speed and accuracy with which bets are handled and the odds calculated are the marvel of all those, even bankers, privileged to step behind the scenes and observe the working of the mutuel system.

Money on a race is handled four times. First it goes from the bettor to the ticket seller. It is then turned over to the cashiers. From the cashiers it goes to the payers, and again from the payers to the winning bettors. The day we studied it there was an $800,000 "handle." With all the counting and change making, four times $800,000, or $3,200,000, with practically all the action in less than two hours of the four-hour afternoon, the "mistake slips" were only $140.

Do You Remember 'Way Back When:

Tallyhos, surreys, phaetons, barouches, and other vehicles with clinking harness and stylishly groomed horses were Derby conveyances?

KENTUCKY GOES WILD AS BRADLEY COLT WINS DERBY

It's Their Day to Cheer, and They Do.

rear in a rush with Display last Saturday and barely failed to win.

Anyway, after a year of waiting and a day of well mannered jostling on the lawns and stairs, the crowd came to attention late in the afternoon as the horses were led out one by one, through the tunnel that runs between the paddock and the track. They were paraded slowly past the entire attendance and then gathered in a bunch, thirteen horses in all, back by the last turn.

The mob in the infield inched down to the rails and the Louisville horse coppers, who ran their black horses along the rail, trampling the people back, might as well have ordered them to vote the straight Republican ticket. Finally the horse guards gave it up. Except for the excited jabbering that always precedes the big moment in these sport occasions, there was no sound now.

Suddenly, the Break.

They were standing on chairs down on the lawn and some of the men hoisted girls on their shoulders so they could look down the track toward the start. The horses cake walked and wheeled for a minute or so and then, before any one expected it from such a restless pack, the break came.

Bubbling Over began to run, and Roycrofter, which was somewhere in the middle of the lineup, crossed 'way over to the outside, in back of the field, to find room to shake his legs. As they rolled past the judges' stand, Bubbling Over was legging along a length the better of Pompey, and they were stationed about that way as they took the first turn, where the tricky perspective made it impossible to see anything beyond the certainty that the horse out in front was Bubbling Over.

Roar Grows Wilder.

The roar that rolled across the green meadow between the stands and the far side of the track grew deeper and wilder as the steeds turned for home. There was still a chance for one of those others, such as Display, or Espino, or Blondin, in that dash up to the finish, although Pompey had tried and failed.

But Bubbling Over just ran and ran, and the crowd broke through the fence on to the track in a rush to be in at the ceremonies as the horses went by the wire.

They led Bubbling Over back to the stand, and, with Jockey Albert Johnson still in the saddle, a huge shawl of roses was draped about the shoulders of the Blue Grass horse. Then they handed Johnson an armful of roses and the movie cameras rushed up to advanced positions to take the finale of a two minute thrill that had been a whole year coming.

An Untidy Place Now.

Churchill Downs was a very untidy place at sundown. The last of the crowd was straggling away, the acres of automobiles parked for the races had crawled back toward town. A few patient gamblers were still waiting in dwindling lines at the pay-off windows to collect their eating dollars. And the hired help began the herculean job of cleaning up the litter. The ground was white with frayed form sheets, tipsters' placards, and betting slips on hot things that went wrong.

Lights began to blink over among the horse barns. A flivver tractor came out of the garage and, with its single headlight boring through the gloom like the eye of a grunting monster, ran around and around the track dragging a harrow to break up the loam where the crowd had trampled it hard.

The Kentucky Derby of 1926 was all over except some festivities back in Louisville, and the deflation of a town that had been painfully distended by thousands of visitors from afar was sharp and swift.

LINDBLOM WINS CITY PREP TEAM FENCING TITLE

Lindblom High school yesterday won the team championship in the city High school league's fencing meet at Crane High gymnasium. The winning team amassed 142 points. Hyde Park took second with 136, and Senn third with 133. The other points were divided as follows: Lane, 125; Austin, 101; Lake View, 97; Waller, 97; Crane, 94; Harrison, 33.

Friedman of Senn and Quinn of Hyde Park were the outstanding performers, neither losing a point. Both qualified for the finals of the individual championship meet to be held next Saturday in conjunction with the league's gymnastic meet at Englewood High school. Other qualifiers for the finals were: Steer, Hyde Park; Staunch, Lake View; Sozat, Lindblom; Paddock, Hyde Park; Weaver, Lindblom; Jackson, Crane.

BUBBLING OVER raced into the lead at once and, setting a great pace under restraint, showed the way until in the stretch, where his rider permitted him to sprint away from the others and win away-off by himself. BAGENBAGGAGE began slowly, but, making up ground, gamely, passed the others and finished a fast going second. ROCK MAN raced prominently from the start, but was tiring and just lasted to save third place. RHINOCK came with a surprising rush near the end. POMPEY was done after racing well for three-quarters and had no mishaps. ESPINO raced well. CANTER was close up for most of the way, but quit in the stretch.

Scratched—Boot to Boot, 126; Take a Chance, 126; Bolton, 126; Rasuli, 126.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune.

The Question.

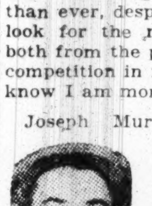
Are you as interested in baseball this year as you have been in the past?

Where Asked.

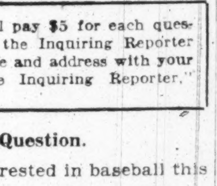
Chicago avenue and Western.

The Answers.

Louis Roncoli, 2429 West Chicago avenue, business man—A semipro pitcher in days gone by, I always have been a close follower of baseball. This year's race in both leagues has got away to good starts. Games are drawing better than ever, despite poor weather and I look for the most successful season both from the point of attendance and competition in major league history. I know I am more interested than ever.

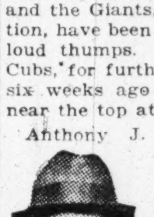


Joseph Murphy, Sherman hotel, salesman—The fight of the two Chicago clubs is my main interest. I am especially concerned in the struggle of the Cubs. They were given little consideration by the "experts" before the season opened, but they are proving one of the big surprises of the early season race.



John G. Bassi, 734 N. Western avenue, undertaker—The deadened ball tends to make baseball more interesting this season. It is resulting in closer games and close competition always adds spice to sport. I've heard more baseball talk in my neighborhood this spring than in several years and I consequently have been paying more attention to the game.

Harry H. Belcastro, 2511 West Chicago avenue, student—I am more interested in baseball this year than ever before because of the queer twists already given the dope. Brooklyn, a team that was lambasted from pillar to post on the training trip, is leading the National league and the Giants, favorites for the position, have been hitting the bumps with loud thumps. Take the case of the Cubs, for further evidence. Few fans six weeks ago thought they'd be up near the top at this stage of the race.



Anthony J. Pedote, 2439 Huron street, superintendent—I haven't seen as many games this season as I usually have, but I follow the progress of the major league clubs closely in the newspapers. I am delighted with the fine showing of the Cubs. I think they'll be up near the top at the finish.

HELEN DAWSON WINS COLLEGE TENNIS TITLE

Decatur, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Miss Helen Dawson of Shurtleff college, Alton, won the singles championship, and Misses Catherine Engelder and Helen Hayes of Millikin university, Decatur, won the doubles championship in the Illinois intercollegiate athletic conference women's tennis tournament held at Millikin Friday and Saturday. Doubles and singles entries from eleven I. I. A. C. schools played in the tournament.

Miss Dawson won, 6—4 and 6—1, from Marion Dill of Wheaton in the championship match. The Millikin doubles team won, 6—1, 4—6, 6—3, from Wilamena Avling and Gertrude Eckvall of Wheaton in the championship match.

Lacoste and Cochet Beat Danish Tennis Champions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, May 15.—[Special.]—In the first day's events of the Davis cup tournaments yesterday Cochet and Lacoste, Frenchmen, defeated the Danish champions, Ulrich and Axel Petersen. Cochet defeated Ulrich 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2. Lacoste defeated Axel Petersen, 6—4, 7—5, 6—1.

Lane Tech Bows to Culver Team, 12 to 4

Culver, Ind., May 15.—[Special.]—The Culver Military academy baseball team downed Lane Tech of Chicago this afternoon, 12 to 4. The cadets got off to a 4 run lead in the first inning, Pitcher Breckenridge cleaning the bases with a three bagger and scoring a moment later.

The war-horse of rackets . . . the Spalding "BF"

A REALLY FINE bat helps a man's tennis so immeasurably that every player owes it to himself to own one. The Autograph BF model is a rugged racket built for smashing play. Extra strength is added by the patented laminated throat—a distinctive Spalding feature. And like all Autographs, the BF can be restrung season after season. Fine rackets are cheapest in the long run. Come in and shake hands with all the Autograph models—among them is your ideal racket.

Kuck Advances Javelin Record to 214 Feet 2 In.

Pittsburg, Kas., May 15.—(AP)—John Kuck, Emporia Teachers' college weight heaver, today smashed the American Intercollegiate record for the javelin throw when he sent the spear 214 feet 2 1-3 inches in the Kansas conference track meet here. The previous record was 212 feet 5 inches, set in 1925 by Jonni Myyra, Los Angeles. Kuck's feat also broke the former meet record of 199 feet 4 inches, made by him last year.

2 CHICAGO HIGHS LOSE ON TRACK TO MOOSEHEART

Mooseheart, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Mooseheart High today defeated St. Rita and Lakeview, both of Chicago, in a triangular track meet. Mooseheart made 94 points, St. Rita, 22, and Lakeview, 10. Bert Francisco, Mooseheart individual star, jumped 21 feet 9 inches. Senn High of Chicago will meet Mooseheart next Saturday.

Bubbling Over Wins Derby—First Pictures of Kentucky's Classic Race

GALLOPING TO VICTORY IN THE KENTUCKY DERBY. Bubbling Over, the big brown colt owned by Col. E. R. Bradley, with A. Johnson up, wins the classic of Churchill Downs by five lengths. The picture was taken as he came down the stretch. Had he been pushed he might have broken the track record. As it was he ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 4-5.

WINNER ONE, TWO. E. R. Bradley, proud owner of Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage first and second in Derby.

BABE RUTH.

New York, May 15.—[Special.]—The White Sox now stand ready to testify that George Herman Ruth has done a comeback. They saw for themselves today when the mighty "Babe" crashed his twelfth homer of the infant season, not to mention a pair of singles, and took a leading part in a decisive Yankee victory before about 35,000 fans. The score was 10 to 1 and it was every bit as bad as that, so far as the Chicagoans were concerned.

The Babe was by no means alone in his glory. He was merely the potent part of a lot of action that consisted of sixteen resounding whacks off the delivery of old Red Faber and young Tommy Thomas. The fiercest part of this action centered around Faber, who started, but who wilted under a withering fire before the third inning was completed. Seven of the Yank tallies were charged against him, but the seven didn't include Ruth's homer. That happened with a man on in the eighth.

Sox Held to Three Hits.

With Yank hits raining all over the huge lot the Sox were forced to suffer on three safe blows. This was all they could do to the flinging of Herb Pennock, the ancient southpaw. Two of these hits came in the first inning for a run and Hunnefield wasted the other in the sixth. The only other Chicagoan to see life at first base was Scott, who survived on an error, which was the sole slip in the Yanks' otherwise brilliant support.

The Yanks inaugurated their ball busting specialty after one man had been retired in the first round. The initial contribution was a single by Combs; Gehrig, the former high schooler, immediately hopped on one of Faber's twisters and straightened it out for a triple to right center, Combs scoring. Ruth took three healthy swings and missed but Meusel came through with a single that permitted Gehrig to ramble home with the second run of the chapter.

Faber Takes to Cover.

The second inning bombardment by the Yanks was magnificent for those whose sentiments leaned in that direction. Koenig lighted the fuse with a single to center. Combs prodded him to third with another single. Gehrig, Ruth, and Meusel kept it up with more singles. After the fifth hit in a row and with three runs across Faber went his disconsolate way. Thomas managed to end the agony after a fly by Lazzeri and single by Gazella had scored two more, making it five for the round.

Although he was skating around on thin ice Thomas was able to keep the Yank maulers subdued in the fourth and fifth but they cut loose in the sixth and collected one tally. Gehrig's single, Ruth's single, and Meusel's fly did it. Then things moved along quietly and easy until Ruth pulled his homer into the right field seats with Combs on first base as the result of a safe bunt in the eighth.

PIRATES TRIM ROBINS' WINGS BY 2 TO 0 COUNT

Buccos Get Only 3 Hits, but Make 'Em Good.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 15.—[Special.]—The Pirates triumphed over the Robins here today, 2-0, in a pitchers' battle between McGraw and Morrison. Three double plays snuffed out the chances of the visitors. McGraw allowed only three hits. Wright tripled in the fifth and scored on McInnis' sacrifice fly. Cuyler poled a homer over the left field wall in the seventh inning for the final run. Morrison was effective in the pinches. Score:

If your wife drives a car

In the selection of a car a woman is invariably far more critical than a man; she may know little of what is under the hood, but she is concerned over everything else. She is responsive to beauty of line, finish and color, she knows whether upholstering materials are all that they should be, whether the appointments of a car are adequate and correct and the interior really comfortable. And most important of all, she demands a car that is easily handled, that she can drive without strain . . . The mutual approval of husband and wife is responsible for hundreds of initial and repeat ELCAR 8-in-Line sales.

MAROON JUMPER LEAPS 6 FEET 6; OHIO WINS MEET

Guthrie Runs High Hurdles in :14.8.

Columbus, O., May 15.—[Special.]—Ohio State's track team pulled a surprise today, winning the annual quadrangular meet from Wisconsin, Chicago, and Northwestern.

Ohio piled up 64 5-6 points. Wisconsin, heavy favorite, finished second with 63 5-6. Northwestern scored 44 1-3 points and Chicago 13.

Five meet records were broken and one tied. Burg of Chicago tied the Western conference record when he high jumped 6 feet 6 inches. It is the best height made by a jumper in the United States this year. Anson of Ohio jumped 6 feet 5 inches for second place.

Guthrie Makes Fast Time.

Guthrie of Ohio turned in one of the feature performances of the meet when he ran the 120 yard high hurdles in :14.8 in the face of a stiff wind.

Kreuz of Wisconsin broke the meet javelin record with a toss of 187 feet 8 inches. Other records broken were the pole vault by McGinnis of Wisconsin, 880 yard run by Martin of Northwestern and 440 yard dash by Kennedy of Wisconsin. Irwin of Ohio tied the meet record of :10 for the 100 yard dash.

Guthrie, Ohio captain, was high point man with 12 points, scored in the high and low hurdles and the broad jump. Greenberg and Martin of Northwestern tied for second with 10 points each, and Irwin took third with nine.

Stars in High Jump.

The high jump event brought three of the best jumpers in the country against each other with Burg of Chicago, Anson of Ohio, and McGinnis of Wisconsin contesting.

Ohio won first place in the meet by piling up points in the dash and hurdle events, while Northwestern and Chicago showed best in the distance runs and weight events.

A crowd of 1,200 saw the Buckeyes take first place for the first time since the meet was inaugurated in 1924. Summaries:

Senn Wins State Track Title; Two National Records Broken

Champaign, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Senn High school of Chicago won the state track championship this morning in the thirty-second University of Illinois interscholastic meet, after a thrilling finish with Tilden, also of Chicago. Senn won with 17½ points, just half a point more than Tilden. The result was not decided until the relay was run.

Held under a new system, by which the best athletes in thirteen district meets qualified, the meet was the highest class in the long years of its history. Two national interscholastic records were equaled and three new state meet records were established. The achievements of the preps were all the more comemndable because of the cold air.

Rodgers Clips Hurdle Records.

Senn's victorious team was headed by Rodgers, who won both the high and low hurdles, tieing the national record in the 220 low hurdles of :24 2-5, and establishing a new state interscholastic record of :15 4-5 in the high hurdles. The former record of :16 was made by Riddle of Oak Park in 1912.

Ramsey of Senn placed second in the quarter mile to Beckmeyer of Carlisle, who won the event in :51 1-5, bettering the record of :51 3-5 made by Orlovich of Joliet last year. Alexander of Senn finished fifth in the high hurdles. The Senn relay team tied for third.

The battle in the high jump between Miller of Elmwood and Wiggins of Eldorado was the feature of the meet. They tied at 6 feet 3⅝ inches, which equals the national interscholastic record made by Oler of Pawling school, New York, in 1921.

Patterson Wins Dashes.

Patterson was Tilden's star performer. He flashed to victory in the century and 220 yard dashes. Patterson also was the anchor man on the winning Tilden realy team which won its section in faster time than Urbana won its division. Tilden's relay team was composed of Kiss, Davis, Garrison, and Patterson.

Roche of De Kalb won the mile run after an exciting finish with Shroeder, of Galesburg, and Parker, of Rockford, in time that was close of the meet record. The dashes were closely contested. No time was announced in the century as through an error the runners ran only ninety yards.

Summaries:

50 YARD DASH—Won by Fitske, La Salle-Peru; Williams, Bellflower, second; Singer, Evanston, third; Kiss, Tilden, fourth; McMillan, Neponset, fifth. Time, :05 4-5.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Rogers, Senn; Gage, La Grange, second; Johnson, Rock Falls, third; Baldwin, Pana, fourth; Alexander, Senn, fifth. Time, :15 4-5 [new interscholastic record].

100 YARD DASH—Won by Patterson, Tilden; Morocco, Christopher, second; Hampton, Macomb, third; Taylor, Virginia, fourth; Beaucamp, Ridge Farm, fifth. No time allowed because of wrong measurement of distance.

220 YARD DASH—Won by Patterson, Tilden; Hundley, Urbana, second; Hampton, Macomb, third; Fruhnke, Proviso, fourth; Leffler, Mattoon, fifth. Time, :22 1-10.

440 YARD DASH—Won by Beckmeyer, Carlyle; Ramsey, Senn, second; Sherman, Knoxville, third; Helwig, Waukegan, fourth; Kelly, Hyde Park, fifth. Time, :51 1-5 [new interscholastic record].

30 DRIVERS RACE ON CROWN POINT SPEEDWAY CARD

Sonny Talamont Enters New Car.

Close finishes and new records are expected in the sprint auto races at Crown Point today. Among the outstanding drivers are Sonny Talamont of Chicago Heights, Leslie Allen and D. D. Morris of Chicago; Wilbur Shaw, Dutch Baumann, and Howard Wilcox of Indianapolis, and Bennie Schoaf of Springfield.

Talamont has a brand new car, and it is reported to be the fastest seen on a western track. Allen's car is a smaller model of the 300 inch M. D. S. special which he raced last season. The Indianapolis drivers have cars put out by speedway builders—cars which are outlawed by the reduction in engine size but which still come under the 215 cubic inch limit set by the dirt tracks.

Five races are on the program. They range in distance from 2½ to 20 miles. The first race will start at 2 oclock, standard time.

Sixteen of the thirty cars entered will qualify for the main races, according to time made in half mile time trials. The others will compete in a consolation race. Of the thirty entered, twenty are from Chicago. Five are from Indianapolis, the others coming from Detroit, Terre Haute, South Bend, and Springfield.

Franklin Skating and A. C. to Hold Bike Derby June 13

The Franklin Skating and A. C. will hold its annual bicycle derby in Humboldt park on June 13. The event will be featured by a 22 mile handicap in addition to nine other races. Entries close on June 5 with the Franklin Skating and A. C., 1655 N. Troy street.

Cuhel Grazes World Mark as Illinois Beats Iowa, 75½ to 59½

Champaign, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—University of Illinois track athletes defeated Iowa by score of 75½ to 59½ in a well contested dual meet today. Cuhel of Iowa came within a fifth of a second of the world's record in the 220 yard low hurdles. New Illinois records were established by Werner in the high hurdles, Hale in the 220 yard dash and Lyon in the shot put.

Lyon's defeat of Dauber, Hawkeye captain and indoor conference champion, with a heave of 47 feet 2½ inches, was one of the surprises of the meet. Shock won the quarter mile from Swenson of Iowa in a thrilling finish. Coach Harry Gill's Illini won ten first places in all. Summaries:

100 YARD DASH—Won by Hale, Illinois; Roberts, Iowa, second; Everingham, Iowa, third. Time, :09 9-10.

DE MAR VICTOR IN MARATHON BY MORE THAN MILE

Michelson Second in Baltimore Race.

Baltimore, Md., May 15.—(AP)—Running one of the most brilliant races of his long career, Clarence H. De Mar, veteran New Englander, captured the national marathon championship of the Amateur Athletic union today over the winding hill and dale course from Laurel to Baltimore.

Wearing the colors of the Melrose [Mass.] post of the American Legion, the 38 year old typesetter spreadeagled in a field of 54 starters. Smiling and almost as fresh as at the start, he broke the tape at the finish fully a mile and a quarter in front of his nearest rival, Albert [Whitey] Michaelson of East Port Chester, Conn., with Bill Agee, 20 year old Baltimore youngster, in third place, approximately another mile to the rear.

De Mar Romps Away.

It was a close battle for the first fifteen miles of the hilly grind between Michelson, victor in the 1923 and 1925 Baltimore marathons, and De Mar, with Agee a fairly close third, but after that point De Mar set out at a gait that quickly left all rivals far behind.

De Mar's time of 2:45:05 4-5 was nearly four minutes behind the course record, set in 1924 by Frank Zuna of Newark, N. J., although a remeasurement had shortened it by 1,274 feet to make it the exact Marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards.

Harvey Frick, Millrose A. A., New York, was fourth. Frank Zuna, unattached, of Newark, N. J., finished fifth, and William Kennedy of the Cygnet A. C., East Port Chester, Conn., placed sixth.

Cygnet A. C. Team Wins.

Albert Petruska of the University of Maryland was seventh and S. D. Richman, Millrose A. A., New York; Patrick Gillespi, Shanahan Catholic club, Philadelphia, and Emil J. Hergenroeder, Baltimore, unattached, strung behind him in order.

The South Atlantic A. A. U. team trophy was won by the Cygnet A. C. of East Port Chester, Conn., with 20 points. The Cygnet's finishing team was composed of Michelson, Kennedy, and John Rosi. Rosi finished twelfth.

Albin Stenroos of Finland and Frank Wendling, Olympic runner of Buffalo, withdrew before the start today. Stenroos became entangled in entry regulations.

Naperville Nine Wins, 6 to 5; Dims Monmouth Hopes

Naperville, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Northwestern college put Monmouth college out of the Little Nineteen conference running by winning, 6 to 5, here today. Northwestern has won five and lost one game. Monmouth made ten hits off Walter, while the Cardinals collected fourteen off Hamilton and McBride, Monmouth twirlers.

LOCKE BETTERS 220 YARD MARK IN EXHIBITION

Lincoln, Neb., May 15.—(AP)—Roland Locke, University of Nebraska sprinter, again bteered Charles Paddock's world record in the 220 yard dash by running the distance in 20 7-10 seconds in an exhibition race at the Nebraska State college track meet here this afternoon. Locke was paced by Wyatt and Dailey of the Cornhusker track squad. Locke ran the 220 yards in 20 5-16 seconds at the Missouri-Nebraska dual meet here recently, faster by 3-10 of a second than the world's record of 20 8-10 seconds held by Paddock.

Do you know why BUICK 4-wheel brakes are mechanical

Buick 4-wheel brakes are built on the same sound mechanical principle as the two-wheel brakes you always have used.

The brake on the outside front wheel releases when turning a corner. The outside front wheel needs to turn in a larger circle to avoid skidding and Buick brakes let it turn.

And the operating parts of Buick brakes are steel—drop forgings—the most durable construction known to engineers.

For safety's sake, and for easier driving, pick Buick and Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes.

JOHNSOS' HOMER ENABLES PURPLE TO BEAT PURDUE

3,000 See Northwestern Win, 8 to 4.

Northwestern university yesterday defeated Purdue, 8 to 4. It was a close game until the seventh, when Luke Johnsos, Purple sophomore shortstop ace, came up in a pinch and for the third time this season rapped out a home run that settled matters decisively. This time there were three men on bases, the score was knotted at three all, and two were out.

Three thousand fans turned out for the contest, demonstrating that they want baseball at Northwestern. Score:

Purdue ....100 001 110—4 10 5
Northwestern ....002 000 51*—8 8 0

OHIO STATE, 10; INDIANA, 6

Bloomington, Ind., May 15.—[Special.]—Ohio State won from Indiana, 10 to 6, in a western conference baseball game here today. Although the Hoosier team touched up Blanchard, Buckeye twirler, for 14 hits, the latter was steady in tight places and retired the locals several times when the bases were full. Score:

MICHIGAN BEATS ILLINOIS

Champaign, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Michigan today defeated Illinois, 9 to 4, before a crowd of 10,000. The Illini got off to a bad start in the first inning, three errors, combined with singles by Lange and Edgar, gave the Wolverines a lead of five runs. Ludlam supplanted Stewart in the first and pitched well except for the fifth when he hit two batsmen in a row.

Miller, who pitched consistently up to the ninth, wavered as the Illini staged a rally and was yanked. Hits by Gunlach and Kinderman resulted in two runs before the Wolverines steadied. Score:

BADGERS, 4; GOPHERS, 3

Madison, Wis., May 15.—[Special.]—Minnesota took a second licking this week at the hands of Wisconsin nine when the Badgers beat out the Gophers, 4 to 3. Tangin's hot drive to third drove home two runs in the eighth to help Stoll win his fourth conference game. The Badgers will meet Illinois at Champaign Monday.

Rain Halts Davis Cup Play Between French and Danes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, May 15.—[Special.]—In the Davis cup doubles today between the Frenchmen, Brugon and Cochet, and the Danes, Henrichsen and Ulrich, the Danes took the first set, 6—4, lost the second, 6—3, and led in the third, 5—4, when rain stopped the game, which will be continued tomorrow.

Crane Wins Easily Over Northwestern Tennis Men

The Crane Junior college tennis team easily defeated Northwestern college at Naperville yesterday, four matches to one. It was Crane's seventh straight victory. Capt. Masek led the Crane attack with a straight set victory over Reucher of Northwestern, 6—1, 6—2.

THE SPORTING GOODS by WESTBROOK PEGLER

SIZE THEM UP.

DAME RUMOR, a gabby old doll who goes around whispering knick-knacks of intelligence, has been quoted as saying that Jack Dempsey will fight Gene Tunney and, possibly, Harry Wills this season.

It is a good idea to dilute anything that Mrs. Rumor says with a liberal ingredient of doubt and in this case we should say that she is only fifty per cent correct, which is not bad for her. That is, Jack Dempsey will fight Gene Tunney this summer, but we don't think he will fight any one as swarthy as Harry Wills.

GENE TUNNEY.

However, in order to get at a comparison, let us fret up some interest in the idea that he might fight both of them.

Let's take up Harry Wills first, because he has been whining like a whistling buoy for several years. Harry Wills couldn't stop Bartley Madden in ten rounds, whereas Jack Dempsey would have been arrested for raising a hand to him at all. Harry Wills landed just one punch on Luis Angel Firpo in twelve rounds after Dempsey had knock him almost crazy in two rounds and Charley Weinert had given him a supplementary slugging.

Harry Wills drew the color line, refusing a well rounded parcel of change for a fight with George Godfrey, a party with a complexion considerably darker than his own, who was just a pretty good sparring partner for Dempsey and who couldn't even whip Martin Burke.

Now let us take up the claims of Gene Tunney.

Tunney knocked out Tommy Gibbons, the only man among the five discreetly selected members of the profession to mingle with Dempsey since he won the championship who managed to keep his chin out of the way for the entire duration of a regular championship bout. Gibbons was somewhat elderly when Tunney took him, and still Gene needed no fewer than forty full arm swings at his head to abolish him. Nevertheless, Gene stopped him.

Gene Tunney knocked out Bartley Madden. It is true that Gene and Bartley are neighbors and would frequent the same speak-easies on the lower west side of New York if Tunney frequented speak-easies at all. Therefore, there were reports that a neighborly spirit induced Bartley to give Gene a free throw at his chin. Still, Gene did knock him out, than which Dempsey himself could not have been asked to do more.

But with five fights with Harry Greb, Gene Tunney never even slapped him down so far as our recollection records, whereas Dempsey certainly would have been up for one of the degrees of homicide if he had ever fought H. Greb.

Gene Tunney stopped Georges Carpentier. But considering all that had happened to Carpentier by that time and considering that it took Tunney 14 rounds to get through with his work, what if he did knock out Georges Carpentier?

Then, a few months ago, Gene Tunney dropped into Cleveland to touch up a local hard guy named Johnny Risko and was dumped on his trousers early in the evening, after which he had to give Risko all he had in order to win the decision.

Now you may be one of the many self-controlled citizens who never have been carried away by a feeling of adulation for Jack Dempsey and you may point out that the list of Miske, Brennan, Carpentier, Gibbons, and Luis Angel Firpo is no stupendous record for a champion who has been champion ever since the summer of 1919.

And you would be correct, for Miske was an invalid, Brennan liked his ale, Carpentier was a good looking fellow with a war record, but no physical match for Dempsey, Gibbons was a setup who just did not happen to upset, and Luis Angel Firpo was a lummox.

But, with the single exception of Harry Wills, these five constituted the entire squad of heavyweight nominees in that time, and there is nothing in the record of Harry Wills to indicate that he would have done any better than any of the others.

So, supposing that Dempsey had fought and flattened Wills two or three years ago, there would still be a disposition to say that Dempsey was only a lucky palooka who happened to be the best of a terrible generation of heavyweights.

But, there is this in Dempsey's record:

He has left them twitching, all but Gibbons.

Does Wills leave them twitching?

Does Tunney?

How would Dempsey go with Wills or Tunney?

How many is a couple of times two?

Racket Prices Drop!

Remember your economics?

Volume up—costs down—prices down.

That's happened with Spalding tennis rackets. The ever-growing appreciation of Spalding's great superiority, plus a national advertising campaign, so increased volume that we can share the benefits with the tennis world!

The famous Autographs, for instance, have been $15 and $16 for six years. Now they are $13.50, strung with finest lamb's gut, and $12.50 strung with Permatite. WIN AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—(AP)—In a soccer game featured by remarkable passing on the part of the victors, the Hakoah Soccer club of Vienna defeated a picked team of St. Louis professionals, 4 goals to 2, today. The entire invading team was always in the proper formation for passing and at the same time kept its opponents baffled in the vicinity of the St. Louis goal.

LAWRENCE TRACK TEAM DEFEATS BELOIT, 75 TO 56

Beloit, Wis., May 15.—[Special.]—The Lawrence college track team took a close meet from Beloit here this afternoon, 75 to 56. The inability of Beloit's hurdlers to score points and the absence of Capt. Paul Nesbitt from the team gave Lawrence the edge. The Hyde twins of Lawrence were the most consistent performers, winning handily in their events. Although the times were not exceptional, the closeness of the score throughout the meet brought many thrills.

Boston U.'s New Prexy Warns of Sports Rubbish

Boston, Mass., May 15.—(AP)—Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., was inaugurated fourth president of Boston university today.

On the question of overemphasis of sport, Dr. Marsh warned of "well meaning and enthusiastic but misguided alumni and other friends who, forgetful of the port to which their ship, Alma Mater, is headed, dump in its path such rubbish as the pagan worship of physical efficiency; the idolization of men who may be inferior in every respect but brute force; the ambition to secure victory at any cost; high salaried, super-organized, unreasonably specialized coaching systems, a reckless waste of money for football while the academic system starves; overparticipation in sports by the few, and total neglect by the many, and a confusion in the minds of youth as to why they go to college at all."

CHICAGO PREPS SWEEP STATE TENNIS TOURNEY

Urbana, Ill., May 15.—[Special.]—Chicago schools made a clean sweep of the tennis singles and doubles at the University of Illinois interscholastic meet here today. Rexinger of Hyde Park won the singles title from his teammate, Budd. The doubles title was taken by Hyman and Callahan of Hyde Park from Fletcher and Booth of Parker. Summaries:

SINGLES—Rexinger, Hyde Park, beat Budd, Hyde Park, for championship, 7—5, 7—5. Fletcher, Parker, won third place on flip from Hyman, Hyde Park.

DOUBLES—Hyman and Callahan, Hyde Park, won from Fletcher and Booth, Parker.

Brown of Champaign, won the golf championship of the interscholastic meet with a low score of 338 for 72 holes. Other low scores were:

Cooley, Kankakee, 341; Lyons, Pontiac, 343; Palletti, New Trier, 346; Crowe, Austin, 349; Fitch, Waukegan, 349.

The prep golfers scored two hole in one in the meet. Schile of East St. Louis, made a singleton on the short eighth, while Hedekin of Englewood made his on the fifth. The eighth is 140 yards and the fifth 133 yards.

Ohio Beats Chicago in Tennis Match, 5 to 2

Columbus, O., May 15.—[Special.]—Ohio State tennis team today defeated Chicago, 5 to 2. It was the third Big Ten victory for the Buckeyes. Shapinsky won the only singles match for Chicago, beating Bulen of Ohio, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4. The only other match won by Chicago was in the doubles. Pudlow and Hall won from Tracy and Bohmer.

SLIPPER TRIES TO SPAN RIVER WITH BRASSIE; BEATEN

Glen View Bridge Hole Fools Briton.

BY MORROW KRUM.

Slipper Breeze, who is more politely known in Britain as James Alexander Walcott Breeze, the golfer, lost a bit of his temper yesterday. Permitting one's feelings to become known on a golf course is not done by good golfers, and last night Slipper was rather humble in his conversation.

It happened at the Glen View club. The actual scene of Slipper's demonstration was on the fairway of the thirteenth hole, called "The Bridge" by members of the club. Slipper knows nothing of bridges and he tried to span the north branch of the Chicago river with a brassie shot. Any one who ever has played the hole will tell you that it was poor judgment.

Hutchison His Opponent.

Slipper was playing with Jock Hutchison, one of Chicago's greatest golfers, a man who has won the British open and who is Glen View's professional. Slipper had a rather informal acquaintance with Jock in the old country. In fact, Jock had trimmed him once or twice at St. Andrews and Slipper was anxious for revenge.

They were even up and also even with par until they got to the thirteenth tee yesterday, and Slipper may have been out of sorts at not having a lead on the Scot. Jock was happy in his manner and both drove well off the tee, 260 yards down the middle.

Now the thirteenth at Glen View is a par 5 hole and difficult. It measures 533 yards, and the river winds across the fairway just in front of the green. A good golfer will usually get his par on the hole if he uses his head.

Slipper Tries Bold Shot.

As related before, both were well off the tee and Jock was away. He took an iron and hoisted a neat shot that stopped the ball just short of the river. The ball rested nicely for the pitch over the stream.

Then Slipper made his mistake. The green lay about 265 yards from his ball. The river was about 200 yards down the fairway. But there was a bit of an optical illusion about it, Slipper said afterward. It didn't look so far.

"You may play safe if you want," said Slipper to Jock. "But I'm the bold golfer. The way for me to win this hole is to clear that creek on this second shot. I'll take my brassie. Watch this ball sail." Jock snickered a bit, but said nothing.

Slipper took his brassie. He wound his 6 feet 2 inches of stature into a terrific slam and the pellet sailed away. It rose like an airplane, soared, and started to descend.

Ball Lands in the Water.

The ball dropped ker-plunk in the middle of the stream. The splash came to Breeze's ears. Slipper gave vent to a roar that distracted golfers away over on the fourth hole. He exploded.

"DAMN!" he shouted.

Slipper took 6 on the hole, while Jock jumped the creek with a neat spade mashie shot and holed a long putt for a 4. And Jock won the match, 4 and 3.

"The thirteenth is a difficult hole, perhaps the most difficult on the course," said Jock. "Boldness is all right at times, but discretion sometimes wins golf matches."

Slipper refused to be quoted last night.

Next Sunday morning—if you've a mind for fairy tales—you may read how Slipper plays the Calumet course, where the qualifying round for the national open tournament will be held.

GOLFERS IN CLOSE COMPETITION ON LOCAL COURSES

THERE was a blind bogey and a ball sweepstakes event to interest the members of Westmoreland yesterday. A tie resulted in the bogey, with J. L. Mau, 92—8—84, and F. J. Harbaugh, 87—3—84, holding the honors. N. J. Bennett, 108—25—83; J. Medlock, 90—5—85, and E. S. Marlow, 83—plus 2—85, tied for second. Mr. Marlow won the ball sweepstakes with his handicap of 11, which gave him a net score of 72. E. M. Fry, 100—20—80, was second in that event. The regular club events at Westmoreland begin Memorial day, according to the schedule made known yesterday by Al Lesperance, the professional. More than 100 members played the course yesterday.

PARK RIDGE.

About seventy-five class A members contested for the Robin trophy. The competition was medal play with full handicap to make the net scores look better, and the finish in class A was as follows: Dr. O. A. Young, 74; H. A. Kipfer, 75; W. Von Buelow, 75; James B. Davis, 75; W. W. Springer, 77; Carl Fowler, 77; Dr. W. M. Young, 79, and B. F. Hall, 79. The class B players competed for the Martin trophy and finished as follows: J. J. Fisher, 67; E. T. Hatfield, 71; C. A. Brooks, 73; J. E. Greenslade, 73; Don Petrie, 73; P. A. Wendell, 73; A. D. Burke, 74; W. N. Lane, 75; L. H. Kreiger, 75; W. J. Gumpz, 76; W. H. Trimm, 76; S. H. Treman, 78; E. T. Kimball, 78; George L. Turnbull, 79; W. T. Sheffield, 80, and A. F. Olson, 81. In the match play against par J. J. Fisher was the victor, coming in only 1 down.

MID-CITY.

The popular form of competition was a lottery tournament and Ted Schlacke, who had an 84, won the contest. G. A. Pierce was second with an 85; J. A. Lindsay, 86, was third, and J. Oliver, 87, was fourth. More than 300 played the course, according to Theodore J. Moreau.

KNOLLWOOD.

More than 200 members, practically the entire membership that did not go to the Kentucky Derby, enjoyed the fairways, the greens, and the sunshine at Knollwood in Lake Forest. Jock Pirie, who is the superintendent of golf, said last night that every member found the course in more than satisfactory shape.

MARQUETTE.

The new public golf course in Marquette park will be opened with fitting ceremonies next Saturday. One more week of work will put the course in excellent shape and its sponsors believe it will be the most attractive public golf course in the Chicago district.

BUTTERFIELD.

In the spring handicap match play tourney Frank Stretch defeated M. Kennedy, 1 up; A. Birmingham defaulted to F. Goss; H. Meiners defeated J. Griffen, 4 and 3; P. J. O'Brien defeated K. Healy, 3 and 2, and M. Monahan defeated J. W. Reedy, 4 and 3. O'Brien took the ball sweepstakes, 92—21—71, while R. Fisher won second prize, turning in 89—17—72.

LA GRANGE.

There was medal handicap play at the La Grange. The winners in the first three classes follow: Class A, R. H. Koeppe, 84—10—74; class B, H. Mavor, 85—13—72; class C, E. B. Southworth, 94—27—77. Eddie Garre, the professional, said that the course was in mid-summer condition and many members echoed his statements.

THE competitive schedule for the Indian Hill club will open on Memorial day. Many of the members played the course yesterday. Among them with Miss Dorothy Klotz, woman's city champion, who is getting in trim for the annual invitation tournament at the Buffalo Country club and the woman's three day stroke championship at Midlothian. Joe McMorran is on the job at Indian Hill again and he said yesterday that the course is in fine shape.

CATHOLIC PREP.

The first eighteen holes of the 36 hole Catholic Prep school golf tournament was played at the Oak Hills course. At the end of the first round Mount Carmel's golfers led with a total of 347 strokes. The scores follow: Mount Carmel—Ruddy, 79; Stafford, 84; Jacobson, 88; King, 96; total, 347. De La Salle—Clifford Berry, 80; Charles Berry, 87; Hopkins, 89; F. Berry, 96; total, 352. St. Rita—McInerney, 77; Mulloney, 89; Felhery, 90; Lynch, 96; total, 352. Loyola—Bradburn, 92; Corrigan, 94; O'Hanley, 96; D'Espesota, 102; total, 384. St. Philips—Burke, 86; Cronin, 87; Foul, 105; Downs, 107; total, 385. St. Ignatius—H. Savage, 89; Murphy, 90; E. Savage, 105; Tully, 104; total, 388.

HAMILTON.

The Hamilton Club Golf association will hold its first 1926 tournament on May 25 at the Calumet Country club grounds. The association is composed of 150 members and each monthly tournament brings most of them out to play. Fred Hill, who is a member of Skokie, is president of the Hamilton Club Golf association.

BROOKWOOD.

The low net prize winner was R. W. Richardson, 84—13—71, and he also won the ball sweepstakes competition. A. E. Miller, 98—25—73, was second in the medal handicap play.

EXMOOR.

Members engaged in a handicap medal play event and H. W. Murray, who had a net of 72, won the first place. H. W. Parker, with a net card of 73, won second prize, and W. G. Smith, J. P. Fitzgerald, and L. L. Cooke, all of whom had net scores of 75, were tied for third.

NORTH SHORE.

There was no official golf competition, but many members played the course. After their games all were handed the first issue of Shot Putts, a new club magazine which is published every week to keep all members informed of club activities. Ralph Boozer conducts the Sports and Pastimes column; Frank A. Borchers writes the weekly yarn of the entertainment committee; Mrs. F. Snow edits a column on women's golf. Mrs. H. H. Kuhl does a like job on women's cards and Hugh Kuhl is the editor in chief.

MIDLOTHIAN.

There was no competition play but the members were playing the course with avidity to prepare themselves for the Derby that will be staged next Saturday and Sunday at the famous old south side club. The Midlothian two day Derby is one of the most interesting of local invitation tournaments. Jack Patterson, the club professional, reports the course in excellent condition for the tournament.

IDLEWILD.

More than 200 members assembled at the clubhouse to play golf, bridge, casino, and to listen to the radio for the broadcasting of the Kentucky Derby. There was a blind bogey contest on the golf course and Herbert Samuels, 81—5—76, won the prize.

EDGEWOOD VALLEY.

H. L. Cary won the blind bogey contest. Harry Rautenbush shot an 83 to win the prize for low gross for the day. J. W. Linden led the field of qualifiers for the membership committee's trophy. A novel contest, called the "Birdie and Eagle" competition, was won by R. F. Davis, who had a total of 4 points.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

Exactly 605 players fought against Old Man Par around the first three courses. There was a ball sweepstakes contest on No. 1 course and the low net prize was taken by H. P. Ramey, 88—14—74. H. L. Roelke, 82—7—75, was second, and R. C. Ackley, 85—10—75, was third. On No. 3 course there was an 18 hole medal play with the full handicap to apply, and H. H. Newman, 90—18—72, was the low net man. H. C. Alger, 92—19—73, was second. There was a dinner and dance in the clubhouse last night and the 1926 season was officially declared "on."

GLEN VIEW.

More than 100 members made the eighteen hole pilgrimage over the course in a match play against par contest. A. B. Young won, coming home only 2 down to par.

SKOKIE, the course that gained international fame by delivering the national open crown to little Gene Sarazen, was the rendezvous of many foursomes of golfers yesterday. Phil Gaudin, the professional, was busy walking around the course and directing the various greenkeepers and assistants in their work, and Alec Law was busy all day in the shop. The club's schedule will open on the Memorial day week-end.

CHICAGO GOLF.

More than 100 faithful members played the course for a Saturday cup, the first event on the club's 1926 schedule. Jarvis Hunt Jr. had the best net score of the day, turning in an 86—14—72. W. D. Bangs, 85—11—74, and Walter J. Seron, 95—21—74, were second and third.

HINSDALE.

There was no competitive play, but about 150 members played the course and found it in good condition.

BOB O' LINK.

Although there was no official club competition more than 100 members found time to play the course. The club's official competitive season will open on the last week of this month.

EVANSTON.

H. S. Camp won the class A handicap medal play. H. M. Ballard won in class B, E. W. Lloyd in class C, and C. W. Stuart in class D. About 150 members and their guests played.

THE blind bogey sweepstakes which furnished pre-schedule competition at Beverly Country club yesterday ended in a three cornered tie. Results were as follows: R. B. Stiles, 86—7—79; P. J. Hill, 88—9—79; W. J. Jackson, 91—12—79.

GLEN OAK.

The first monthly medal competition was held and the best net score of the day was made by H. K. Nicoll, who had an 81—7—74, giving him first prize in class A. Second in that flight was John Morell, 81—6—75. Other class winners were: Class B—M. Scanlon, 88—10—78; E. C. McKinney, 93—15—78. Class C—T. J. Morris, 102—21—81; L. J. Pehkan, 103—21—82. Class D—J. J. Roubik, 104—30—74. Two men were tied for first place in the blind bogey contest with net scores of 78. They were M. Scanlon and C. G. Miller. Three were tied for second prize in the same contest. They were Dan Devaney, J. R. Allen, and N. C. Gunderson.

CALUMET.

There was a ball sweepstakes competition for all classes of golfers. George Lindsey, 79—10—69, winning the class A contest. T. V. Aanon, 87—16—71, won in class B, and W. C. Sari, 91—21—70, won in class C. The same men led the field in the qualifying round for the president's cup, and Lee Thiltges, several times champion of the club, had the best low gross score of the day, 76.

GLEN FLORA.

There will be no club competition until Memorial day, when the official opening for 1926 will be staged. The course is in good condition, the members said yesterday.

HAWKEYE TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS PURPLE, 4 TO 3

Iowa City, Ia., May 15.—[Special.]—Iowa's tennis team won over Northwestern here this afternoon, 4 to 3, the Hawks taking three of the five singles matches and splitting the two doubles with the Purple.

Sherrill of Northwestern starred, winning his singles match from McCloskey in straight sets and using his terrific drives and serves to win the first doubles match. Lutz of Iowa was not up to form, being unable to control his serves. Summary:

SINGLES—Lutz of Iowa defeated Phillips of Northwestern, 4—6, 7—5, 6—3; Sherrill of Northwestern defeated McCloskey of Iowa, 6—3, 6—2; Collins of Northwestern defeated Chaffee of Iowa, 6—0, 6—4; Swartz of Iowa defeated Howard of Northwestern, 6—2, 6—4; Netolicky of Iowa defeated Goltra of Northwestern, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4.

DOUBLES—Phillips-Sherill of Northwestern defeated Lutz-Swartz of Iowa, 9—7, 5—7, 6—3; Chaffee-Netolicky of Iowa defeated Collins-Howard of Northwestern, 9—7, 8—6.

Michigan Tennis Team Trims Minnesota, 4 to 2

Minneapolis, Minn., May 15.—(AP)—The well balanced Michigan tennis team, led by Capt. Krickbaum, defeated the inexperienced Minnesota squad, 4 to 2.

16 MORE GREAT FACTORIES YIELD TO THE STRAIGHT EIGHT PRINCIPLE

¶ The prediction comes true. Sixteen more great engineering groups, sixteen more great motor car plants yield to the Straight Eight principle. It's not a gesture, not a fad, it's a complete surrender. For the handwriting is on the wall, or rather it is on the hills and on the highways, and engineers everywhere perceive it—the Straight Eight is the most perfect motor the automobile industry has produced to date. ¶ So now a total of 27* of the world's famous factories here and abroad are building Straight Eights. And in this list are names to conjure with, eminent names like Lancia, Sunbeam, Packard, Isotta-Fraschini, Locomobile, Panhard-Levassor, Jordan, Hupmobile, Bugatti and so on. Europe pioneered the Straight Eight, and it's the type her factories build and her engineers endorse. ¶ Flexible, able, efficient, the Straight Eight is as simple as the "Straight" Six. Due to the steady flow of its kinetic energy, the Eight's operation is 25% smoother than the Six in the exercise and application of its power. In point of weight and fuel consumption per horsepower, the Straight Eight easily shows the same economy as the Six, and it has the Six's accessibility. So, it's the "Straight" Six owner who makes our best Straight Eight salesman — he sells himself an Eight.

DIANA

is the first Light Straight Eight. It brings you all the advantages of the Straight Eight Motor plus Simplified Control, the Easiest Steering in America, Safety Vision and the Composite-Steel Body.

There are now 15 different Straight Eight factories in the United States and 12 in Europe.

WOODS and waters of the alluring north are hours nearer for the Chicago sportsman-motorist this season, thanks to the continuous highway improvement waged by northern Illinois and all Wisconsin during the fall and early spring. Here is a picture of the popular trails for followers of Izaak Walton, who like to couple delightful roads and spring landscapes with their rod and reel.

The map shows an excellent circle trip for the leisurely tourist with the Eagle river, Brule, and Pestigo waters as the first stops; Superior waters as a climax and northwest Wisconsin and the central state grounds as a finish for the trip. Both Wisconsin highways 15 and 55 are reported good and state maintenance has brought the northern gravel and ore roads to topnotch condition for the early season caravans. All of the roads shown are improved.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

IT required more than nine years for the General Motors corporation to build its first million cars, but only 12 months to build and sell the second million, according to announcement made yesterday. In the year ending May 8, the corporation produced and marketed 1,002,285 vehicles and disposed of its five millionth car.

Edward S. Jordan, president of the motor company bearing his name and a recognized spokesman for the industry, told his Chicago organization yesterday that while automobile business through 1926 will be good, competition will be unusually keen. He has found an unusually healthy condition in both motor and general business in his annual swing through the United States.

With the completion of the two additional sales and services branches now under construction, Henry R. Levy, president of the Studebaker Sales corporation, announced yesterday that his organization will have provided metropolitan Chicago with the most complete and unified motor service equipment of any city in the world. One of the new buildings is under construction at 3822 Lawrence avenue, in Albany Park. The second is going up at 7730 Stony Island avenue. Seven sales and service units are operated by the Studebaker sales concern in Chicago now.

Another new station for the servicing of Cadillac cars has been opened at 5020 Harper avenue for the benefit of Hyde Park, Woodlawn, South Shore, and neighboring owners.

One of the most interesting automobile tests so far developed is under way at the Community Motors branch, 5139 Broadway, where a new Pontiac six coach, with wheels jacked up, is being operated at an estimated speed of 20 miles an hour in a thirty day endurance run.

Edward Ver Linden, president of Peerless, has announced the appointment of Albert F. Misch as service engineer for the company.

Historic Road.

Virginia's 500 mile motor thoroughfare has been designated by the Virginia legislature as "The Virginia Historic Highway." The route runs from Washington, D. C., through the Shenandoah valley to Roanoke, to Charlottesville and Richmond or via Lynchburg and Richmond, and from the capital to the seaboard by two routes, and also via Fredericksburg and Alexandria to Washington.

OLD PLUGS.

An old spark plug may be the cause of a lot of serious engine trouble. If the porcelain cracks it may fall into the cylinder and eventually get under a valve seat. If a bit of wire falls off the plug the cylinder wall may be badly scratched.

Serve You Better
We Are Tire Specialists

Our experience and equipment help you get the most mileage, comfort and safety from tires.

Gum-Dipping—the only known method of insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber—gives the strongest construction possible. And the special Steam-Welding process makes Firestone tubes both leak-proof and long-wearing—further increasing the life of the tire.

The proof is demonstrated by the biggest taxicab and bus fleets—by race champions and in everyday service of hundreds of thousands of motorists.

Let us see that your tires are properly mounted, inflated and cared for.

We repair your tires, when necessary, by the new and better Firestone method.

Equip your car with these famous Gum-Dipped Tires and Steam-Welded Tubes.

We Also Sell and Service Oldfield Tires and Tubes

These well-known tires are built in the economical Firestone factories and carry the standard guarantee.

We offer them at these low prices.

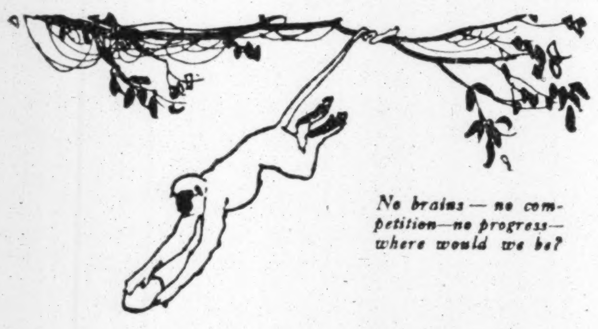
Brains Buys a Motor Car

By EDWARD S. JORDAN

IF everybody had brains think how hard it would be for some of us to get along.

If nobody had any brains we would all be swinging by our tails from trees.



No brains — no competition — no progress — where would we be?

THE first glib salesman who sold Mr. and Mrs. Adam the apple had a great line of talk.

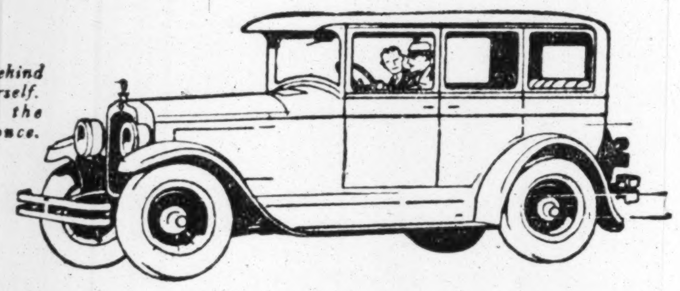
But there was no lasting value in what he offered.

They had to move to another real estate allotment.

A man with brains, when he buys a motor car today, pays little attention to salesmen.

He does three things.

1. Drives it.



You must get behind the wheel yourself. Just drive the Line Eight once.

2. Asks the owners about it.

3. Checks up on its second hand valuation.

In other words, he finds out what the car is likely to bring in the second hand market one year from now.

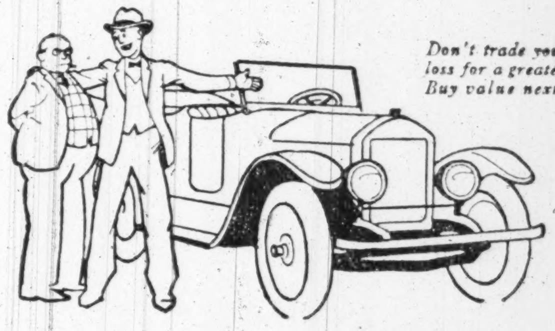
That is just common sense.

But how few people exhibit it.

The average individual takes his old car up and down the row trying to find the dealer who will offer him the most for it.

He does not care much whether that dealer is in business one year from now or not.

He thinks he is getting a bargain because some dealer happens to offer him a long price for his old car.



Don't trade your old loss for a greater loss. Buy value next time.

If that kind of a brain dominated the world we surely would be swinging from trees.

Take the Dodge motor car, for example—not wishing to talk about ourselves.

It has second hand value.

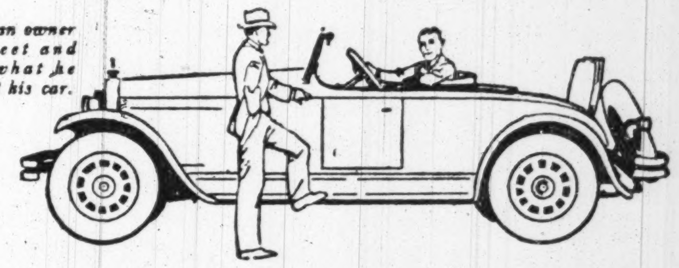
You know perfectly well if you buy a Dodge in that price class that you are going to have service and value at the end of a year.

Now when you step up to the Jordan and analyze its value you will find it will meet the requirements of the man with brains.

I just told you what they are.

1. Drive it. You will find it is the smoothest motor that you ever handled. That is motor performance—quality and mechanical efficiency.

2. Ask Jordan owners about it and they will tell you it is the best car Jordan ever built.



Stop a Jordan owner on the street and ask him what he thinks about his car.

3. You will discover that with the Line Eight motor and all-steel, all-vision body, with many manufacturers leaning toward those ideas for future production—it will have the highest second hand valuation when you bring it to the resale market in years to come.

Rush for New and Scorn for Used Cars Is Problem

Motor Industry Labors Under Double Burden.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—If the first four months of 1925 can be considered a criterion, spring and summer automobile trade is sure to prove the year to be equal to, if not ahead of, any year in the automobile industry's history.

Although leading manufacturers have been maintaining a steady output at nearly factory capacity, the actual ready supplies available have continued small. This indicates that the demand is just about on a par with the supply. Production schedules during the early months of the year were large and in several instances it became necessary for them to be revised upward. This led prospective purchasers to the belief that they could walk into their favorite dealer's warehouse and drive a new car out. Consequently there were many thousand surprise parties staged and anxious buyers found themselves enrolled on the waiting list.

With the placing by dealers of every 100 new cars, 75 used cars are taken over. This used car problem, instead of being gradually solved, is becoming more complicated. The open or so-called touring car is causing dealers more anxiety than ever before, for the trend of buyers in the used car market is toward closed vehicles. To the motorist whose choice is an open car the market was never better, both in the matter of quality and price. However, what the dealers are losing on open models that have been taken in exchange for new cars they are retrieving on closed car sales, thereby keeping their financial transactions on an even keel.

Special attention is being given by dealers to farmers in the central and southwest where still 40 per cent of the farmers do not own automobiles. Economic conditions is given as the reason for this, but with the steady improvement in agricultural conditions for the last year or more has warranted an active campaign in this especial field.

Truck and bus manufacturers are continuing on practically capacity output. Here again the farmer is being given extra attention, and truck makers are being rewarded with increased orders for small and medium sized vehicles. Indications are that 1926 will set a new record for the manufacture and sale of trucks.

A factor which is considered extremely favorable to continued rapid sales and production in the motor industry is the export trade. Exports in 1925 numbered approximately 500,000 units, and this record, based on exports to date, will undoubtedly be broken during 1926.

Canadian orders are coming to Detroit plants in extra large numbers, the result of the new tariff schedules adopted by Canada which not only opened the gateways for American built cars, but dealt a knockout blow to Canadian automobile plants. Belief in automobile and financial circles is that within six months there will not be one automobile manufactured in Canada. American concerns with plants across the border have even now closed their Canadian plants, and are filling orders and shipping cars across the river by the hundreds. Foreign trade at one time was largely a side line, but is now an outstanding feature of the automobile industry, and absorbs 12 per cent of the total American production.

Detroit automobile plants have in past years turned out many "last word," exclusive made to order cars, but the prize cars of them all were sent to Chicago this week. There were three of them, and they were delivered to private owners—wealthy Chicagoans.

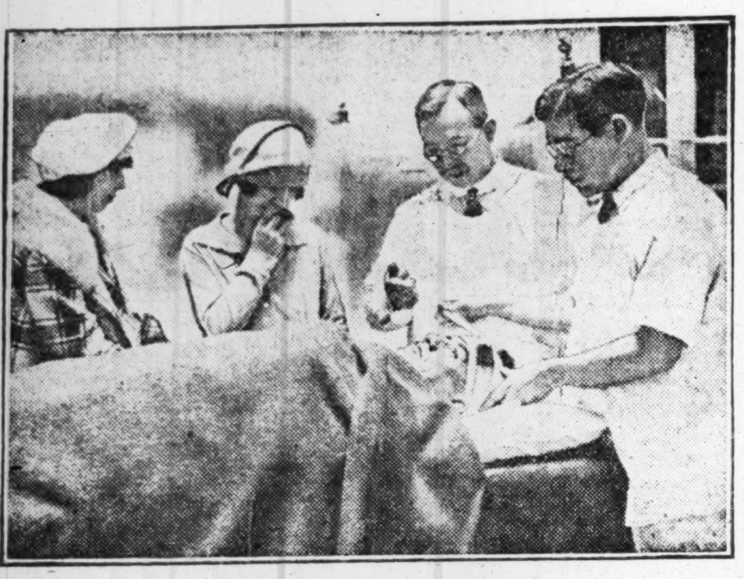
There is no list price, but the cars, which were built with Dietrich bodies in a Detroit plant, cost from $15,000 to $18,000 each, and are capable of 90 miles an hour road work. The engines are of the 80 horsepower Belgian Minervas, the chassis coming from Belgian. The wheel base is 149 inches.

A score of bus representatives met in Detroit this week in an effort to have adopted by the various states uniform laws for the regulation of bus operation. At present each state has its own regulations for the building of busses, which prevents building of bus bodies on a quantity scale, thereby increasing the cost of transportation.

If the present laws were literally enforced it would be impossible for 90 per cent of the busses to cross the boundary line of their home states.

At the conference a model uniform set of regulations governing motor busses was approved.

HARD LESSON FOR SPEEDERS



Reckless drivers who come before Judge Louis P. Russill in Los Angeles will think twice before they " step on it " again. Here is one lesson in the course prescribed for two woman drivers who were sentenced to act as stretcher bearers, watch the police surgeons render first aid to traffic victims, and, in the event of death, to attend the funerals of the victims.

84,000 Miles of Paved Streets for City Traffic

A CENSUS of city paving, begun Jan. 1, last, and just completed by the American City Magazine, shows a total of 839,000,900 square yards of paved streets in the 1,009 leading cities of the United States. This yardage is equivalent to 84,000 miles of roadway 18 feet wide —enough to span the country from coast to coast twenty-eight times and accommodate two continuous lines of motor traffic moving in opposite directions and each containing 44,520,000 vehicles.

The mileage of the paved streets as shown by the census is equal to one-third the total steam and electric railroad mileage of the country and 57 per cent of the total mileage in the federal aid highway system. It is 27,000 miles more than the mileage of the latter system thus far improved with federal aid funds and is equal to one thirty-fifth of the total road mileage of the United States.

Results of the census, therefore, indicate that street paving in the cities is more than keeping pace with the improvement of the rural highways, a fact not generally appreciated.

Chicago in the period 1920 to 1926 showed a gain in paved streets of only 689,670 square yards, but in the same period that city raised the standard of paving much higher by increasing its sheet asphalt pavements 3,996,000 square yards, with corresponding decreases in less desirable types. While in 1920 the asphaltic pavements composed 50.1 per cent of the total, the proportion had increased in 1926 to 53.6 per cent. Chicago's total paved streets in 1920 were 38,430,330 square yards in area, while in 1926 the total was 39,120,000 square yards.

BIGGEST CROP.

The 1925 crop of automobile tourists who visited California is estimated at 151,317 by W. H. Marsh, chief of the state motor vehicle department.

City Cars.

Cars that are used in cities or heavy traffic where there is much shifting of gears should have the clutch thrust greased often. Where the grease cup is on the floor boards, the flexible tube that carries the grease to the bearings should be examined.

Pistons in a new engine run at a high rate of speed and the wearing process is so rapid that the parts become overheated, which in turn makes them wear still more rapidly, thereby generating still more heat. To prevent this excessive wear, oil should be changed frequently.

How to Climb.

Whether to "rush" a hill or to take it easy may be quickly settled in the driver's mind when he recalls that giving the engine the advantage of speed is equivalent, so far as power output is concerned, to shifting to a lower gear. It is always better to "rush" a hill. More power and genuine economy are obtained.

Chrysler Quality and Value in a New Low-Priced Six

In this third great Chrysler Six, first presented only a week ago, are the same quality and value that have won such public acclaim in each of the other Chrysler Sixes.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour; unprecedented acceleration; gas economy of 22 miles per gallon; the striking beauty of Chrysler dynamic symmetry; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil-filter and air-cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; road levelizers front and rear; roomy, luxurious bodies.

The lower price of the "60"—the lowest price at which a Chrysler Six has ever been sold—is merely a difference of size, of speed capacity, of special performance.

Changed in No Way—Except Lower Prices

With a production of over 800 cars per day, all of the best for which the name Chrysler stands is now offered you in the Chrysler "70" at sensationally new lower prices which make it the outstanding motor car value of all time.

In the accomplishment of these new lower prices there is absolutely no change in the performance, quality, comfort, style, equipment, design, materials or workmanship in body or chassis, which have won such universal preference and admiration among more than 110,000 owners.

Among these thousands and thousands of enthusiastic owners, the Chrysler "70" has an unrivalled record for durability, long life, performance and comfort.

At the new sensationally lower prices these features of supremacy are made even more outstanding—the results of inherent fineness of Chrysler quality of design, materials and craftsmanship.

You will find us eager to demonstrate to you the extraordinary Chrysler qualities which make the Chrysler "70" and the Chrysler "60" at these new low prices the most sensational values in all motor car history.

Fast Cars Flock to Speed Trials for Auto Classic

Thirty-seven Speedsters Out to Win Big Annual.

WITH 37 cars listed, five of them from foreign shores, entries for the fourteenth international 500 mile race to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Monday, May 31, for a purse approximating $100,000, closed yesterday.

It is the largest group of cars nominated to face the starter in the great gasoline classic in recent years, and it was announced at the speedway office that several other proposed entrants were eligible if the entries were in any postoffice bearing a government time stamp before the closing hour.

Cars of only 91½ cubic inches piston displacement, a reduction from the 122 inch class that has been raced for the last three years, will be the innovation at Indianapolis this year, but engineers and drivers alike declare that from experiments already made with the watch fob size motors there will be no reduction in speed. The 500 mile record for the Indianapolis track, is 101.13 miles an hour, made last year by the winner, Pete De Paolo, nephew of Ralph De Palma, who has entered two different make cars this year in an attempt to corral the greatest victory in automobile racing again this year.

Three French cars with two English cars have been entered and the three cars to wear the Tri-Color of France are now on the high seas. It was definitely said at the speedway office that the Paris office of the local speedway was sure one more French car would be entered.

Fans of long standing will find favorites in Ralph De Palma, Ralph Mulford, Earl Cooper, Cliff Durant, and Dave Lewis, a quintet of old timers, who will be pitted against the newer generation of hurry stars, including Pete De Paolo, the champion; Bob McDonogh, hand trained pupil of the great Tommy Milton, only two time winner of the Indianapolis event; Bennett Hill, Harlan Fengler, and Pete Kreis.

Only 33 cars are permitted to face the barrier for the long run over the two and one-half mile brick and concrete Indianapolis track, the cars to start being decided the week before the race with speed trials, the fastest cars taking the leading positions.

W. Douglas Hawkes, an Englishman, is the only foreign driver entered who has already driven at Indianapolis, but in the three car French team the drivers of which have not yet been named, there are bound to be names familiar to American speed fans and drivers familiar with the Indianapolis bricks.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to the Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune. For today's question William Orr, 634 Cornelia avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

What is the most undesirable type of automobile driver on Chicago streets?

Where Asked.

Grant park parking grounds.

The Answers.

H. M. Cook, Seville, O., insurance agent—The driver who always tries to cheat a little on the traffic lights is the worst type, and who runs across the sidewalk lines in the loop even when he sees that the lights are going to change against him and that he will be stopped.

R. May, 619 Ann street, Blue Island, shipping clerk—One of the worst is the fellow who mopes along in the middle of crowded boulevards at 10 or 15 miles an hour when he could just as easily keep close to the curb and allow traffic to proceed at a proper pace. He is one of the worst dangers in Chicago.

A. W. Young, 25 East Jackson, physician—The city driver who uses his bright lights and blinds every one on the boulevard and who usually couples this offense with cutting in and out of the traffic lines is the least desirable. Chicago could get along very well without the aid of any such morons.

C. W. Murphy, 3263 East 136th street, salesman—I dislike the drivers who hog the middle of the road when they want to drive slow and who always park their cars across the sidewalks leading into apartment houses. This type of driver can always be depended on, too, to be far over to the right when he wants to make a left turn.

Menus Johnson, 2314 East 75th street, distributor—The fellow who pushes his car around traffic on the crowded boulevards and dodges in and out, cutting off the drivers who have decency enough to keep in their own line and proceed with traffic. There are many kinds of undesirables on Chicago streets, and this type is the worst.

Watch the Gas.

Running the car when the supply of gasoline is low will gather all the sediment into the sump, or low part of the tank. The last of the gasoline will suck the dirt into the gasoline line and screens, stopping them so that the new supply will not feed properly. Running out of gas is hard, too, on the battery, as the starter is usually used for a considerable time before it is discovered that it is lack of gasoline that prevents starting.

Science Called In to Improve Automobile Fuel

INCREASED efficiency and economy in automobile operation are forecast by government experts as the result of recent motor fuel studies by T. S. Sligh of the United States bureau of standards.

A standard specification for motor fuels and a simple method for testing whether or not the fuel is up to grade will be demonstrated by Sligh to representatives of the Society of Automotive Engineers at French Lick Springs, Ind., the first week in June.

The test developed by Sligh will enable carburetor and motor engineers to utilize an identical quality of gas in their experimental work. With the same standard of 100 per cent to "shoot at," instead of different standards resulting from the use of varying qualities of gas, the efforts of the engineers to perfect their mechanisms so as to obtain the maximum service from a minimum of fuel is expected to produce a much more uniform and dependable development in carburetor and motor engineering.

The "standard" gas which Sligh's experiments gives best general results will fire on a three-to-one air mixture at a temperature of freezing and will produce, under those conditions, an efficiency of about 18 per cent.

With a fifteen-to-one air mixture, generally accepted as the best carburetion, this gas will completely vaporize at a temperature of 150 degrees. Maximum performance is reached at that mixture and temperature.

Sligh's demonstration at French Lick Springs will be in connection with studies of engine and carburetor performance at the annual Memorial day races on the Indianapolis Speedway May 31. After witnessing the races, the engineers will adjourn to French Lick for their semi-annual conclave and undertake to analyze in detail just why one car was faster than another, why one made more speed and distance on less gas, or vice versa, if it happens that way. No factor is expected to play a greater part in the results than carburetor and fuel efficiency.

The simplicity of the Sligh test will make it possible for refinery supervisors, by an easy graduation of oils under refinement, to produce without elaborate manipulation and increased expense a "standard" gasoline meeting the specifications and give the public a more efficient, uniform, dependable gas without increase in price.

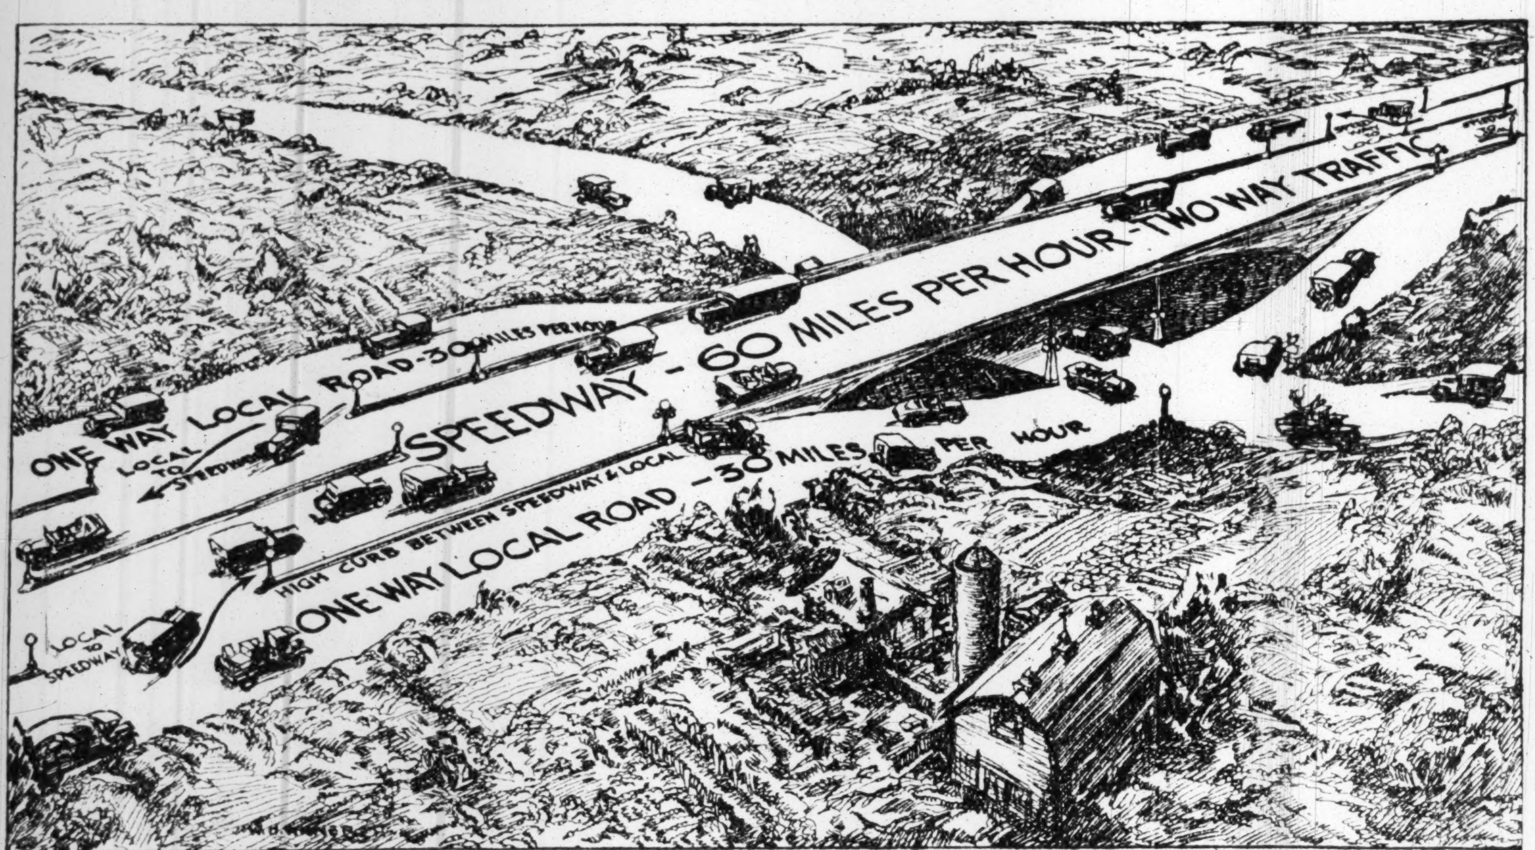
CHICAGO TRIBUNE HIGHWAY PLAN



SPEEDWAY - 60 MILES PER HOUR - TWO WAY TRAFFIC
ONE WAY LOCAL ROAD - 30 MILES PER HOUR
ONE WAY LOCAL ROAD - 30 MILES PER HOUR
HIGH CURB BETWEEN SPEEDWAY & LOCAL LOCAL TO SPEEDWAY

Here is a practical vision of highway improvement in the future, designed to meet the demands of a 40,000,000-motor-car United States. The plan features a four-lane center speedway for express and through motor traffic, with one-way local and freight pavements built along each side and passing under the high speed artery at intersections. The plan effectively separates conflicting highway traffic without the prohibitive cost of speedway elevation in the country.

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Ideal Highway of Future Presented by Tribune Plan

Practical Improvment to Meet Vital Need.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

THE TRIBUNE presents today its conception of highway trapsportation near big cities in the near future, and the draft of a composite construction plan to provide for the economic use of twenty million motor vehicles in operation now and the additional fifteen to twenty million cars that will demand road space by 1930.

The plan envisions an ideal and practical main traffic artery for congestion zones with ample provisions made for the safe handling of express, freight, and local motor traffic on all the original right of way site now dedicated to highway purposes. It strikes a happy medium between the prohibitive elevated express road proposals of the highway visionary and the make-shift methods of improvement that are panned by many communities in their desperate effort to end motor congestion.

A four lane express speedway occupying the center of the all-purpose artery is the chief feature of this plan. It is designed the carry the fast, through traffic which must at present mingle with the obsolete horse drawn vehicle, the lumbering truck and all other slow moving vehicles that halt traffic on the outskirts of every city and town. On this highway strip fast passenger cars and busses may move, two abreast, at a minimum of 60 miles an hour without facing the dangers that now loom ahead of the driver operating under the 35 miles an hour speed limit. These dangers are effectively eliminated by the construction of a definite curb line enclosing the speedway at all straightaway points and the elevation of the express road at its intersections with local and other primary highways.

Such a road, it is pointed out by engineers, can be developed on the Illinois highway system and in other states where congestion brings about costly traffic delays and dangers. A tour of the Illinois paved roads shows long stretches of clear pavement where through cars can now attain high average speeds with safety, but it also discloses scores of congested spots where such construction is needed. Highway entrances to cities such as Peoria, Decatur, Bloomington, Springfield, and Urbana are congested now to a degree nearly as serious at times as the jam on Chicago gateway roads, and every village is a potential death trap for the driver using the state pavements.

Freight and local traffic, under the plan, would operate at their maximum speeds on the wide, one way pavements laid along each side of the express highway and connected at intersections by grade separations under the high speed pavement. These auxiliary pavements would afford free movement for the vast volume of trucks, vans and other heavy duty vehicles which now lose valuable time and occupy more valuable space on the narrow main highways throughout the country.

To gain access to the speedway at other than its terminal points in transportation centers, local drivers would enter through carefully guarded gateways easily accessible to the points of highway intersection. Four such gateways are indicated as a part of the intersectional plan published on this page. They would be protected by stop and go signals where the highway passes heavy duty zones and by marked turn lanes in the country where the natural inclination of the driver is to seek the center lane of the roadway. At these points of intersection additional middle curbs would separate the fast traffic and provide added safety for express and local cars.

Provision has been made in the plan to give express and through traffic priority over local traffic just as railroads give their fast passenger trains track and operation advantages over local passenger and freight trains. Installation of stop and go lights to control traffic on local intersecting roads where grade separations give the express lines right of way would eliminate danger of collision near the underpass. Unless elaborate and prohibitive methods of intersection elevation were used at the usual country intersections, local traffic would normally wait its turn at the control lights.

The entire plan is based on scientific traffic studies and is presented as the logical improvement step to follow the emergency widening of main highway pavements to 40 feet. Engineers and traffic authorities agree that the widening of exsting main roads alone will not provide for all traffic requirements. They are unanimous in their demand for the separation of express and freight traffic, for the separation of both highway and railroad grades at intersections, and for the building of auxiliary through routes.

"Unscientific arrangement of existing highways, traffic bottle necks, insufficient road capacity, and highway and railroad crossing blocks are all serious hindrances to free movement on the roads," says the official transportation report on Cook county highways made by the joint United States and Cook county survey. "Grade crossings should be eliminated as new pavement is placed. The separation of grades at railroad and highway crossings is as much a part of modern highway construction as the placing of pavement itself.

"It is not enough to plan for present traffic. A regional plan must provide for continuous highway development."

"It is vital to think of future traffic needs," declared Maj. George A. Quinlan in commenting on the survey report and the highway plan. "These needs are sure to increase to a point that will make our present problem seem insignificant in comparison.

"Transportation is essential to the growth and development of any area. It is dependent on the highways designed to facilitate it. Growth and development of the Chicago region will depend on the vision and foresight used in meeting future traffic needs."

Study of Cook county traffic discloses that motor car registration in the county has trebled since 1920 and it is estimated that the present registration will double by 1930. Population estimates for Cook county in 1950 are set at 12,000,000 people, and by 1930 it is expected that there will be a car for every 4.6 persons in the county. By 1950 traffic experts see 3,000,000 motor vehicles operating in the present county area, or an increase in the traffic volume of county highways of 800 per cent.

It is evident, they say, that any pavement design built now must be constructed so that it can be supplemented and enlarged as the traffic demands.

The ideal highway of the future, in addition to facilities brought out graphically on the accompanying plan, will include the following advantages, according to engineers: ornamental lights at proper intervals along the entire length of pavement; guarded and policed by stop and go signals; drained by storm sewers underground; light and telephone wires underground and speed limits fixed at minimum rather than at maximum rates.

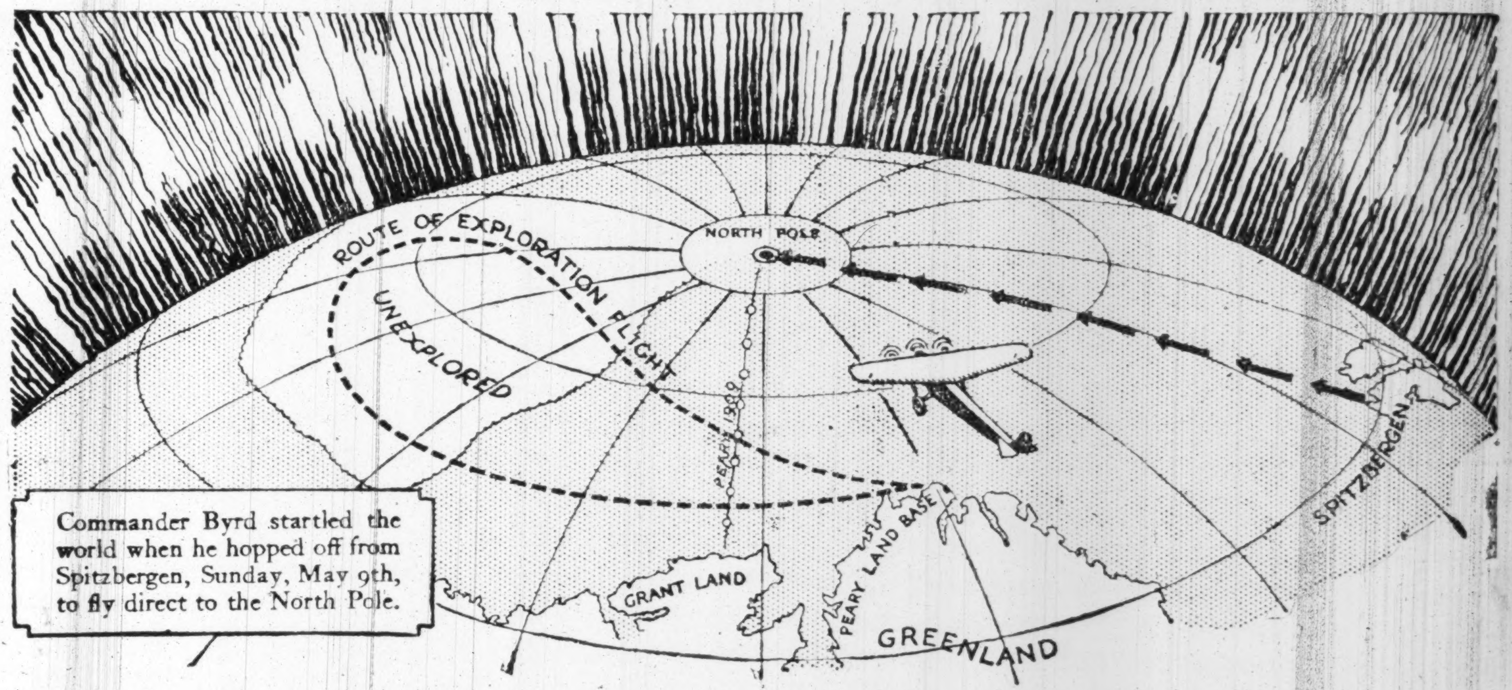
GROW WITH THE TRIBUNE IN 1926



Commander Byrd startled the world when he hopped off from Spitzbergen, Sunday, May 9th, to fly direct to the North Pole.

Byrd reaches his goal!

Mobiloil-lubricated plane carries him safely to top of the world!

FROM the frozen Arctic comes the radio message of Lieut. Commander Byrd's successful flight to the region of the North Pole.

Commander Byrd was expected to make a preliminary hop to Peary Land to establish a base for his further flights into the Arctic. But he startled the world by flying straight from Spitzbergen to the North Pole.

Commander Byrd chose Gargoyle Mobiloil as the one oil supremely qualified to meet the unusual demands made upon the Wright engines of his plane. He knew correct lubrication would be perhaps the most important single factor in the reliable operation of the airplane's motors.

Once again, Gargoyle Mobiloil has played a vital part in a history-making venture.

It was Gargoyle Mobiloil that lubricated the U. S. Army Round-the-World flight in 1924—perhaps the most famous of all adventures of the air. In many other famous flights Mobiloil has played its important part.

This is not a special oil prepared for this test. It is the same Gargoyle Mobiloil that is on sale by good dealers everywhere. Sixty years of specialization in lubrication have given Mobiloil the qualities that caused Commander Byrd to select it. These same high lubricating qualities recommend the use of Mobiloil in your automobile.

The Monoplane, Josephine Ford. Motored by three 200 h. p., 9-cylinder Wright engines. Consumes about 1¾ gallons of Mobiloil and 28 gallons of gasoline per hour. Cruising radius about 1,400 miles.

One month ago	10.00@12.50
One year ago	11.50@13.25

A bulge in the hog market at the close last week carried the average price to $13.55 on the week-end session, a new high point for the season and highest since early last August.

Choice light at $14.40 equaled the highest top in nine months. Both the top and average show 30c advance since the previous Saturday. Offerings on the week-end session were too few to establish a fair list of quotations and market developed into a "catch as catch can" affair directly after a few shipping orders were filled, with local buyers endeavoring to operate at Friday's quotations.

Sales were steady to 15c higher, showing mostly 40@50c advance over the low time of the week. The week's shipments at 24,000 were smallest since last September.

Hog receipts last week at 106,700 were second smallest since last September and below any corresponding period in over five years. This decrease sent prices close to the highest point in several years, the peak for light at $14.40 being within 35c of the highest since October, 1920, with the week's average up 55c at $13.35, standing 90c above a year ago, $6.05 higher than two years ago and $4.05 above the five year average. Estimated average weight of hogs at 252 lbs., was heaviest in nine months and heaviest in a number of years for this time of season, comparing with 233 lbs a year ago and 237 lbs two years ago.

Strength characterized trading in the cattle division during the greater part of last week, with the general average price of good beef steers 5c higher at $9.35, against $10.05 a year ago. Best steers finished 10@25c above a week earlier, while others slumped back to a level with the previous week's close. Fancy baby beef heifers were scarce and held steady, while fat cows, canners and cutters closed 25c lower. Bulls shared in the weakness and showed fully 25c decline at the close. Calf receipts were about second smallest since February and advanced $1.00 under brisk competition, good medium and heavy vealers selling to the best advantage. Stockers and feeders closed steady to 25c higher, fleshy feeders showing the gain. Choice weighty beeves topped this week at $10.35, with yearling heifers at $10.15.

Sheep Decline Sharply.

Last week's sheep receipts at 77,700 were second largest in nearly two months, including a good many old ewes from southern market centers, resulting in a break of $1.50@1.75 in aged sheep, which are lowest of the season and $2.00 @2.50 under the high point three weeks ago. General average price of aged sheep dropped $1.00 at $7.50, the lowest weekly average of the year. Lambs and springers finished on par with a week earlier, but mostly 25c under the high point last week. Top Colorado wool lambs, $15.75, and fed western shorn, $15.25. Sixty-six loads of California springers comprised the week's supply of that class, which sold largely at $15.75@16.50, with four loads at $16.75, and "outs" at $13.75@14.25, feeders taking a few at $13.25@13.50.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 20,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 21,109 cattle, 35,099 hogs, and 21,234 sheep a week ago, and 19,042 cattle, 29,484 hogs, and 22,454 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 60,000 cattle, 125,000 hogs, and 65,000 sheep, against 53,960 cattle, 115,320 hogs, and 77,239 sheep a year ago.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK.

Stocks—Heavy; motor shares again under pressure.

Bonds—Irregular; United Kingdom issues strengthened.

Foreign exchanges — Steady; sterling reaches par.

Cotton—Lower; clear weather southwest.

Sugar—Featureless.

Coffee—Higher; European buying.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—Firm; dry weather northwest.

Corn—Steady; decreasing stocks.

Cattle—Firm.

Hogs—Steady.

COFFEE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 15.—COFFEE—The market was quiet and irregular, closing at net advances of 8@14 points. The buying continued from the same leading interests that have been supporting the market for the last week. Sentiment, however, seems to be generally against the market, as it is believed with this buying interest withdrawn the market will be more under the influence of the dull spot trade. Furthermore, with the mild coffee situation improving it is anticipated that Brazil will not find a ready market for its coffee. Rios 7s, 19¾c; Santos 4s, 22¼@22½c. One Automobile Dealer Sold $2,660 Worth of Used Cars Through a $4 Tribune Want Ad

The cost of a Want Ad does not depend upon the price paid for the space. What really counts is the cost of selling the merchandise. To illustrate: The Roosevelt Motor Sales Company wanted to sell some used cars, and they used The Tribune. One $4 Tribune Want Ad sold five used cars for a total of $2,660. The advertising cost was .0015%.

Advertising space cannot be bought as neckties or candy bars or furniture. You can't see the color, test the material, taste the flavor or note the strength of a Want Ad before buying. Bargains in Want Ads must be based on results in sales, not on the price per line.

But the Want Ad buyer, whether or not he has had actual experience in the use of Chicago newspapers, can determine to some extent the prestige of the newspaper, its "reader acceptance," the success of other advertisers.

By means of its news, its features, its fiction, its comics, its service departments, The Chicago Tribune has secured for itself the respect and interest of its readers. Advertisers benefit from this feeling of dependability.

When you have a used car problem, remember that successful automobile dealers and used car owners find that The Tribune brings them quickest resales—as shown by the comparative number of lines they use in Chicago newspapers.

Invest your advertising dollars in that Want Ad medium which has produced results for others—and can produce results for you.

The voluntary expression of an experienced advertiser, reprinted at the right, and the accompanying lineage figures plainly show which newspaper gets results for used car owners and dealers who want quick resales.

WHEAT, CORN GO HIGHER AS THE WEEK CLOSES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An oversold condition developed in the wheat market. With short covering prices advanced 1½@1⅝c over the close on Friday, with May touching $1.60½ and July $1.36⅞. The finish was well toward the top, with net gains of ⅞@1⅝c with July leading. May closed at $1.60 to 1.59¾, July at $1.36⅝ to 1.36¾, and September at $1.32¾ to 1.32½. Corn had a range off ½@⅞c and closed ⅛@⅜c higher, with May 70c and July 74¾ to 74⅝c. Oats advanced ⅛@¼c, May closing at 40½c and July 42c, while rye was ⅜c higher, with May 82⅛ to 82¼c and July 85c.

Grain markets were decidedly unsettled the last week, scattered showers in the spring wheat territory and better crop reports leading to selling of futures and a decline, with wheat off 1¼@2⅝c as compared with the finish of the previous week. Corn, however, was in better demand and ¾@⅞c higher. Oats were ¼@⅝c lower, and rye 3@3⅝c lower. Provisions showed strength, lard gaining 27½@35c, ribs, 10@20c, and bellies, 32½@40c for the week.

Too Dry Northwest.

Crop observers Kinyon and Le Count are finding spotted conditions in the American northwest, and spring wheat there needs rain again. The lack of subsoil moisture both sides of the international line attracted more attention and had some effect on sentiment, which was less bearish than recently, and the advance in futures was easily attained. Trade, however, was light and largely of a local character. Interest in May was small.

Liverpool wheat was 1⅛@1¼d lower with some selling attributed to American interests. Buenos Aires was unchanged to ½c lower, with May $1.46¼ and June $1.45¾. Winnipeg showed strength early, but the finish was at net gains of only ⅝@1¼c. The weekly weather forecast was for showers in the upper Mississippi valley and lower Missouri valleys with temperatures mostly above normal. Spot wheat basis here showed little change, while Kansas City and Minneapolis were easier. Export demand at the seaboard was only fair, the unsettled foreign exchange being a factor.

No Pressure on Corn.

Local traders were fair buyers of corn and there was limited pressure. Outside interest was light. There was buying of May and selling of July at 4⅞@5c difference at times, with the close at 4⅝@4¾c under for the May. Weather conditions over the belt were more favorable for the new crop. Spot basis was unchanged to a moderate eastern demand and charters were made for 140,000 bu to Georgian Bay. May oats went to 1⅜c under July early, but lost the fractional gain later, and closed 1½c under. Trade in the aggregate was small. There was buying of September rye against sales of September wheat, while liquidation was in evidence in the May, and it declined fractionally as compared with the deferred deliveries.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Large arrivals of strawberries, 40 cars, depressed the market on Saturday, with $3.00 the top on 24 pint cases. Trading was good for Saturday.

In the butter, egg and poultry markets there was a steady tone to values, with a good business for the end of the week.

Potatoes declined 10c with arrivals 62 cars and 222 cars were on track.

Sales of butter for future delivery on Chicago mercantile exchange Saturday aggregated 37 cars and of eggs 157 cars. Prices follow:

CASH GRAIN NEWS

While there were reports of numerous bids for cash wheat from abroad at the seaboard no sales of importance were claimed. Winnipeg did a little business. While sterling sold at the highest figures since December, 1914, and went above par continental exchange was very weak.

Chicago handlers sold 10,000 bu wheat, 76,000 bu corn, 30,000 bu oats, and 1,000 bu barley to the domestic trade. Charters were for 140,000 bu corn to Georgian Bay, 180,000 bu oats to Buffalo, and 85,000 bu to Georgian Bay. Deliveries on May contracts aggregated 7,000 bu wheat, 134,000 bu corn, 56,000 bu oats, and 140,000 bu rye.

Offerings of cash wheat here were small, and with a fair demand the spot basis was firm at 6@7c over May for No. 2 red and No. 2 hard. Kansas City premiums were 1@2c lower, although ordinary No. 2 hard sold from store there at 3c over May. St. Louis and Omaha basis showed little change while spring wheat at Minneapolis were unchanged to 1c lower.

Demand for cash corn was fair and the basis unchanged with No. 2 grades 2@4⅝c over; No. 3 grades 1c under to 3c over, and No. 4 grades 1½@4c under May. Outside markets were unchanged to ½c higher.

Cash oats premiums were ½c higher to ¼c lower with No. 2 white 1¾@2¼c and No. 3 white 1½@1¾c over May.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 26 cars; corn, 50 cars; oats, 36 cars; rye, 3 cars; barley, 12 cars.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

Kinyon's report to J. S. Bache & Co. from Ortonville, Minn., said: "Heavy recent rain from a short distance south of Fargo to here. From Fargo to White Rock, in the Red River valley, at least 50 per cent of the wheat acreage has been severely injured by high winds. Some fields have entire acreage injured, with balance part of acreage injured. In the territory of recent rains recovery of injured acreage is not as good as was expected and does not show stand of over 50 per cent, and many fields will be abandoned and planted to corn. If total amount of injured acreage in North Dakota does not show a better recovery than this section with normal conditions eastern North Dakota will have a light wheat crop. Corn planting has started over this entire district."

The Illinois Central railroad crop report for the week ended May 15 shows 90 per cent of the cotton acreage planted in its territory. Crop is up to a good stand in many sections. Preparations for corn ground are under way and in northern states planting has started in some sections.

Le Count's wire from Lake Preston, S. D., to Stein, Alstrim & Co. said: "Through this territory crops have a very thin stand. Lots of grain that failed to germinate early is coming on now and fields will show considerable improvement later if we get plenty of moisture. We must have frequent rain, as there is no subsoil mixture. Corn planting progressing favorably and acreage will be large."

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Most of the wheat traders are bearish and regarded the upturn as due after the recent break. The short interest, however, remains large and the market is influenced more by pit operations than by news. Dry weather talk in the northwest is becoming more important and the comments of Crop Expert Snow on the situation carried considerable weight with the trade in general. The disposition, however, is to sell on all sharp bulges.

Indications are for a reduction in the visible supply of wheat in Monday's report of 4,000,000 to 4,500,000 bushels for the week, due to heavy shipments from Lake Superior ports to Canada, which comes out of the visible. World shipments are estimated at 11,100,000 bushels, against 9,305,000 bushels last year. These are smaller than weekly requirements and are expected to be a factor.

The government's weekly weather forecast is for showers toward the middle of the week and again at the end, with temperatures above normal for the lake region, with higher temperatures and scattered showers for the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valley. Maxwell's forecast for Monday is for warmer in the mountain states, cool over the Pacific, and unsettled to stormy in the south and northwest.

"Theories of small reserves of wheat and the comparatively light amount immediately available have become obsolete," says Thomson & McKinnon. "The market is under the influence of good growing weather and the inactive foreign demand. There is some buying of our July against sales in Liverpool, but otherwise the buying is poor."

Buying of May and selling of July corn at 4⅞@5 cents difference is the widest spread at this time of the month that the trade has known in years. Corn specialists said it was equal to 6 cents on May 1. It reflected the limited cash demand.

"Present prices for deferred wheat deliveries discount a large crop which has not been raised," says J. P. Griffin. "Sentiment is extremely bearish and aggressive bull leadership is lacking, and buying power is none too strong. These conditions have brought about the recent declines, but we consider it inexpedient to sell wheat on these low levels. We would like to direct attention to the big discount under European values and to the fact that old wheat is cleaning up all over this country without losing any premium. This is confirmation of the fact that we will enter the new harvest with empty bins."

"Our decline in wheat, caused by selling supposed to be for American account," said Bartlett-Frazier's Liverpool cable. "We think the decline inconsistent with the situation clearing up, though mills are working in short time. The labor situation is not entirely settled."

COTTON REPORT REVISED; YIELD, 16,086,000 BALES

A revision of cotton acreage in the United States has been made by the department of agriculture for the season of 1925. Acreage planted on June 25, 1925, was 48,090,000 acres and harvested 46,053,000 acres. Yield per acre in pounds of lint was 167.2 lbs, and crop 16,086,000 bales, compared with the December returns of 15,603,000 bales.

Liverpool was strong and 1 to 3 points higher on futures at the close, and spots there up 13 points. This had but little effect here, as the weather over the south was warmer and with the increase in the crop returns, which confirm private estimates made last year, incuded selling. Closing trades were at intermediate figures, with losses on futures in Chicago 5 to 12 points, and in New York 1 to 9 points, with New Orleans off 7 to 19 points. Spots in New York 10 points lower at 18.85c.

Trading in cloths was better, with more buyers disposed to operate. Prices in leading markets follow:

RAILROAD NOTES

Representation has been given to minority holdings of the Alabama Great Southern railroad, and a vote when consolidation is considered with the Southern railway, of which it is a subsidiary, through the election of Morton H. Fry as a director. He succeeds Robert Mallory Jr. of Spencer Trask & Co., who had represented clients with holdings of between 60,000 and 70,000 shares.

Pennsylvania railroad has been authorized by the interstate commerce commission to issue $17,030,000 of equipment trust certificates. The financing will be handled by the Fidelity Trust company under an agreement dated today, and the issue will be sold at not less than 97.2 per cent of par and accrued dividends.

The north and the south will be brought closer together through reductions in the schedules of all Chicago-New Orleans passenger trains on the Illinois Central railroad that will be put in effect tomorrow. Reductions also will be made in train schedules between St. Louis and southern points and between the Mississippi gulf coast and northern points.

American Bridge company, subsidiary of United States Steel corporation, has an order for 11,800 tons of structural steel from the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railroad for bridge construction and another from the Hillman Transportation company for twenty barges requiring 3,200 tons of steel.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy asked the interstate commerce commission for authority to abandon ten miles of line from Guernsey to Ironton, Wyo., and eight miles between Chalco and Yutan, Neb.

WALL STREET NOTES

New York, May 14.—(AP)—Slowing up of building operations throughout the country in April is indicated in reports of permits issued in 484 leading cities and towns of the United States compiled by S. W. Straus & Co. New building plans aggregating $439,376,535 compared with $479,833,217 in April, 1925, a loss of 8 per cent. Since the first of the year permits for $1,410,826,336 have been issued compared with $1,432,120,681 in the corresponding period last year. The south continued to lead the country in building activities.

Bank clearings throughout the country for the week are compiled at $9,395,136,300; a decrease of .6 per cent under the $9,449,706,702 reported a year ago. There were 447 comemrcial failures in the week ended May 13, against 405 the week before and 386 in the corresponding week last year.

The downward trend to wholesale commodity prices that has been a notable feature of the domestic markets for several months past met with considerable resistance this week, 35 out of the 66 changes that occur in the list of quotations collected by Dun's Review being advances as compared with 31 declines. In last week's tabulation there were 39 reductions and 34 increases in a similar comparison for the corresponding week a year ago 37 advances contrasted with 33 recessions.

Production of Portland cement in April is estimated by the department of commerce at 12,403,000 barrels, compared with 13,807,000 barrels in the same month last year. For the first four months this year output has totaled 38,376,000 barrels, compared with 41,952,000 barrels in the similar period of 1925. Last month's shipments were 13,112,000 barrels, against 11,394,000 in April last year.

Bookings of fabricated structural steel this week were considerably above the average, totaling 43,500 tons, which made up for a couple of lean weeks recently. The average for the last five weeks was only 11 per cent below the previous average since the first of the year. Lower prices for merchant steel bars are reported from the Pittsburgh district, a gradual easing off to 1.90 cents to two cents a pound having developed. The market was 2 to 2.10 cents early in the year.

Production of newsprint in the United States in April was 145,327 tons against 145,910 tons in March. Shipments were 144,600 tons against 142,666. Canadian mills turned out 154,739 tons, compared with 154,093 in March, while shipments totaled 154,015 tons, against 153,157.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., announce that acquisition of Graham Brothers was completed May 1, and in connection with the transaction Dodge Brothers sold $6,250,000 five per cent purchase money notes, due in three installments in one, two and three years. The notes were placed privately and involve no public offerings.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

While a large number of securities were traded in on the local unlisted securities market last week, the total turnover was rather small and price changes were within a narrow range.

Butler Brothers regained a portion of its previous week's loss, rallying from opening sales at [illegible] to high and closing sales at 28¾. American Furniture Mart common was actively traded between 5⅜ and 5¾, while the preferred was quiet at 91 bid, 93 asked. [illegible] became active at advancing prices and showed an improvement of [illegible] points [illegible]. The preferred was also in [illegible] demand, 106 being freely bid, with offerings at 108. Celotex Company common was slightly [illegible], being offered at 125 [illegible] buyers at 113. The preferred relinquished a point of its previous advance, closing [illegible] 86½ asked. Central Cold Storage [illegible] traded in at 35½.

Creamery Package full voting common moved [illegible] sales between 31¼ and 32, while the nonvoting was in demand at 30⅝. [illegible] interest on the buying side developed [illegible] resulting in an improvement of over a point to 85 bid, 87½ asked. The bid price for Elgin National Watch [illegible] 3 points to 83. Goodman Manufacturing Company was neglected, with stock offered for sale at 49½ and buyers at 48. [illegible] Printing moved up fractionally to sales between 75½ and 76¾. National [illegible] also slightly better at 7¾ bid, 8½ asked. Purchasers and Manufacturers' Securities Corporation continued in demand [illegible] sales at 35⅝ to 34½ [illegible] 35. Although several transactions were recorded in Van Ess Laboratories, prices showed little change between 11½ and 12.

Some [illegible] transactions were made in public utility stocks. American Public Utilities common, after a period of inactivity, was dealt in [illegible]. The [illegible] participating preferred and [illegible] preferred were unchanged, however, at [illegible] 81, and 88¾ to 90½, respectively. Both the Chicago Rapid Transit common and 7.8 per cent prior preferred were slightly easier, the former at 8¾ to 9½, while the latter changed hands at 95. Although Interstate Public Service prior lien preferred improved a point to 94@95, the 6 per cent preferred showed a loss of 4 points at 79 bid, 82 asked.

Bank stock prices showed a mixed trend. Union Trust was 3 points higher at 387 to 391, [illegible] selling at 538 in the early trading. First National was wanted at this price with no offerings at 541. Standard Trust was again in demand at 225, while Chicago Trust sold at 235, no change over the previous week's transactions. State Bank of Chicago was freely offered at 725 and lower without attracting bids above 700. Central Trust Company of Illinois changed hands between 310 and 312. Continental and Commercial National eased off 2 points to 445 bid, 448 asked. Illinois Merchants was neglected and without interest at 593@597. National Bank of the Republic changed hands at 265.

RUBBER MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—RUBBER—Close easier; July, 44.50; September, 44.10; December, 44.0[illegible]. Smoked ribbed spot, 48[illegible].

YANKEES STILL INGENIOUS RACE, LEECH BELIEVES

BY HARPER LEECH.

Washington dispatches suggest between the lines that the corn belt legislative proposals have suffered from the analogy drawn by opponents of the Haugen bill to the British mine subsidy.

The recent foreign trade conference at Charleston was the occasion of noteworthy utterances as to the danger of obstructing the flow of commodities in international trade—the ill effect upon our own industries of the rubber, potash, nitrate and other policies of foreign governments was set forth and the points of similarity between those policies and the farm export proposals were noted, with less attention, perhaps, to the points of difference.

This writer has no dogmatic assurance upon any of these matters—and is in that respect in the company of the great majority of Americans. However, we had just as well recognize this fact—agrarian discontent is going to continue until the American farmer is convinced that he is in truth "let in on" the benefits of our protective tariff system. American industrialists and wage earners are not going to allow an approach to free trade—the British "frightful example" is just as potent in favor of the pro-tariff argument. Between those two well balanced economic demands and political forces we will have to work out some sort of arrangement—we want no peasantry in the fields or helots in the mines and mills.

If we have to do something unprecedented, let us remember that America has thrived on discarded precedents. That thought is borrowed from Otto Kahn's Atlanta speech on the farm problem—he, lanta speech on the farm problem—he, like most Americans, is wondering what to do.

It is well to think of this, too. The British subsidy to the coal industry didn't cause the strike—it postponed it for several months. The subsidy is to continue for a while, in the hope that a more effective and basic remedy by root and branch reorganization can be found to make it unnecessary.

It seems fairly certain, too, that any government intervention to regulate domestic farm prices by encouraging exports of surpluses will prove no more than a temporary relief for agriculture. That's no argument against granting temporary relief. But if it should be granted in the form of the Haugen bill or otherwise, it will be incumbent upon us to set to work immediately upon some constructive process of coördinating American agricultural production and prices to the home market. That is its ultimate destiny, anyhow. The desirable thing is for that readjustment to take place without degrading our farm population into semi-peonage during the period of transition.

We may witness the evolution on farms of a strong arm unionism, which will oppress the cities. Those who tell the farmer to help himself and work out his own destiny seem not to take that contingency into consideration.

Such a unionism grew up in British coal—finally to so ossify the industry that it confronts the empire as grimly as Germany ever did and has actually levied an indemnity, in the form of subsidy.

Attractive Investments in Seasoned Railway Bonds.

The average amateur investor, in looking over new bond issues with the idea of picking out a good one, frequently overlooks the excellent investment opportunities offered by some of the old issues on the market.

There are many seasoned bonds, which have been outstanding for years, that offer a high grade investment with a good rate of return.

Take, for example, the underlying bond issues of leading railroads. In respect to security, salability and adequate yield to the purchaser, many such bonds offer an attractive investment.

A large number of old underlying bonds were issued years ago, covering main and branch lines adequate to care for the traffic of those days. The value of these lines has since been largely increased by improvements and additions necessary to take care of the increased traffic of the present day.

The security in back of these bonds has, therefore, in many instances been largely enhanced. They are secured on properties brought up to modern requirements and in many cases the amount of underlying bonds has not been increased since the original date of issue.

Ready marketability is always a desirable feature in security holdings. To some it is a necessity.

As the majority of railroad bonds are listed on the New York stock exchange and also have a ready street market, such bonds answer the demand for salability admirably.

Many of the old seasoned underlying railroad 3s, 3½s and 4s offer a well secured, easily salable investment and can be bought at prices to yield a good return on the purchase price.

Such a seasoned issue can often be purchased at a price to yield as much as some of the new and unseasoned issues which are being brought out each week.

Those seeking high grade securities may do well to give consideration to these seasoned bonds before making their commitments.

"YOUR HOUSE INVESTED MY FIRST $100 FOR ME IN 1891"

One of our old customers wrote to us recently:

"I remember my first $100 investment, back in 1891. Your Mr. George M. Forman selected the investment for me personally. It marked the beginning of a relationship with your house that has been increasingly profitable for me. I shall have $10,000 to reinvest the first of the month, and wish you would be good enough to select the right bonds for me. You have a list of my holdings."

This house cherishes the confidence of its investors, earned by forty-one years of steadfast adherence to this one policy—"the absolute protection of the funds of its clients is the basic consideration of this institution."

Would you like to know the facts about Forman First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds—investments which have provided profitable employment for the funds of thousands of conservative investors?

And may we tell you, too, how the strong safeguards surrounding these bonds enable one of America's foremost insurance companies to unconditionally guarantee, at the option of the investor, the prompt payment of both the principal and interest.

NEEDED
Two Seasoned Executives
An Executive Vice President A Proved Sales Manager

A young Chicago corporation whose rapid growth proves its stability and aggressiveness seeks two high capacity executives. The sales manager should have proved his ability to sell and direct the efforts of a high powered organization selling to merchants.

The executive vice president should come from a position where decision, force and executive ability were primary requisites.

Both should be able to show a record of unusual accomplishment and prove their past successes by their present financial condition. They should be capable of going forward on their own power and of assuming full responsibility. To two such men this swiftly growing company offers an immediate salary commensurate with ability, with substantial increases to follow on proof of performance.

The men associated with this enterprise are Chicago men of the highest standing. The company invites your complete investigation, and facilities for full knowledge will be tendered to and expected from applicants.

In writing for interviews give brief outline of experience and business standing.

Address T T 206, Tribune.

Bond Salesmen

A well known Chicago bond house participating in all leading syndicates and dealing exclusively in well secured general market bonds (no real estate or stocks) is looking for several men to represent them in Chicago and surrounding territory. Only bond men of experience with a clientele can fill this position. A salary of $300.00 a month and upward, and in addition a very liberal commission system far above the average, makes this offer exceedingly attractive to a producer. Replies will be treated in strict confidence and should give complete information. Members of our own organization have been informed of this advertisement.

STOCKS SLUMP AS BEARS DRIVE AGAINST MOTORS

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net chge.
25 railroads	86.67	86.43	86.45—	.26
25 industrials	145.33	144.68	144.82—	.41
50 stocks	116.00	115.55	115.63—	.34

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Pronounced reactionary tendencies developed in today's stock market when selling pressure was renewed against the motor shares, several of which crashed to new low levels for the year. Such constructive developments as the return of sterling to gold parity for the first time since 1914 and an increase in midcontinent crude prices were disregarded. Trading was rather dull at first, but gained momentum in the last hour, the day's sales running over 569,000 shares despite the absence of many large operators.

Hudson was the hardest hit in the motor group, collapsing over six points to 56, a new low record for the year. Other issues to attain new low levels were Chandler-Cleveland at 12¾, Dodge Brothers A at 22½, Pierce-Arrow at 19, Stewart-Warner at 68½, Studebaker at 48⅜, and Willys-Overland at 18½.

General Motors Regains Loss.

General Motors dropped from an early high of 126 to 124¼ and then rallied to 125⅝, off ¼ on the day. Mack Trucks closed two points lower at 107⅝. United States Rubber common and Goodrich also broke through their previous resistance points, and Kelly-Springfield duplicated the year's low level.

Oils displayed a temporary outburst of strength of the publication of the unusually favorable 1925 earnings report of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the announcement of higher crude prices, but they finally weakened with the rest of the list.

Rails yielded with the industrials despite the publication of extremely favorable earnings reports. Atlantic Coast Line closed a point higher, but Texas and Pacific dropped 1¼, but most of the others showed fractional recessions.

Many Low Marks for Year.

Amerada Corporation, American Power and Light, Belding Hemingway, Bethlehem Steel, Brown Shoe, Fisher Body, Gulf States Steel, Mackay Company, Montgomery Ward, National Cloak and Suit preferred, National Tea, Norwalk Tire, Pierce Petroleum, Republic Iron and Steel, Stromberg Carburetor, and Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke also established new low records for the year.

On the curb exchange Standard Oil of New York opened with a small gain, but this improvement was canceled with the introductory dealings in the new when issued shares to be exchanged in the merger with General Petroleum. Sales in the new stock were reported at 31⅝.

A few industrials sold off sharply, among which were a five point loss in Ford Motor of Canada and a decline of 8 points in Kraft Cheese. Baking shares were lower. Penn Water featured the public utility division, moving up 3½ points to 141½.

Bond Market Is Steady.

With a few outstanding exceptions, bond prices remained virtually motionless. Interest centered chiefly in the foreign list, where changes were conflicting. United Kingdom bonds improved fractionally. Polish obligations continued to sag under a heavy weight of liquidation on reports that the revolutionary movement had forced the high officials of the government to resign. Both the 6 and 8 per cent issues sold at new low levels for the year.

In the domestic list a few issues developed independent strength. Atlantic Refining debenture 5s were strengthened by the announcement of higher prices for crude oil and gasoline, and Lehigh Valley Railroad liens responded to reports of record April earnings. Advances of a point or so were recorded by Punta Alegre Sugar 7s, Crown Cork and Seal 6s, and Pacific Gas and Electric 5s.

New York Bank Statement.

Relatively small changes occurred this week in the position of the New York clearing house banks. Surplus reserve increased $5,667,970 to a total of $37,418,810. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $12,727,000. Net demand deposits were expanded by $24,325,000, while time deposits fell off $7,703,000.

The federal reserve board's weekly condition statement of 705 reporting member banks in leading cities as of May 5 shows increases of $56,000,000 in loans and discounts, $18,000,000 in investments, $52,000,000 in net demand deposits, and $38,000,000 in borrowings from the federal reserve banks. Loans secured by stocks and bonds were $29,000,000 higher than a week before. All other loans and discounts increased $18,000,000 during the week.

BRITISH POUND EQUALS DOLLAR AFTER 6 YEARS

New York, May 15.—(AP)—Sterling exchange today returned to a level of full equality with the dollar a position which it had not occupied for six years. The long awaited goal of $4.8665, representing the gold parity basis of the British currency, was passed in London early in the day, with the cable rate in both London and New York later going as high as $4.86¾.

The final advance of sterling to par was curiously aided by the depression of other European currencies, which in the last week has resulted in a flight of capital from France, Belgium, Italy, and Poland to London and New York for temporary investment. No less a factor was the general restoration of confidence in Great Britain's financial and commercial position, influenced by the government's successful handling of the recent labor crisis.

In striking contrast to the strength of sterling was the break in the French franc to the lowest level in its history at 3.02 cents. The Italian lira, after sinking to the lowest rate of the year at 3.36 cents, recovered about 20 points today as the government renewed its support. Polish zloty, depressed by the revolt against the government, continued to hover around its record low of 9 cents.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—COPPER—Firmer during the week with improved British labor situation. Considerable business, domestic and export, reported in electrolytic at 13⅞c delivered, with some producing interests asking 14c at the end of the week. TIN—Reactionary on expectations of early resumption of shipments from England Thursday on inside prices dealers and consumers were big buyers of future straits, largest sales in years. LEAD—Reduced $2 per ton; Mexican ore lead is on an import basis, so buyers have not been in a hurry. ZINC—Advanced trifle on better consuming demand. ANTIMONY—Unchanged for spot, but futures were lower.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Strong, 7.60c. ZINC—Slab quiet, 6.80c.

Mid-Continent Crude Oil Raised 25 Cents a Barrel

The Prairie Oil and Gas company yesterday posted a flat 25c advance on all grades of midcontinent crude oil. Top price was increased to $3.57 for crude testing, 52 degrees and above, while the lowest price became $1.65 for crude of 28 degrees Baume. Other purchasing companies followed the advance.

Gasoline consumption in 32 states during March, as indicated by reports made by wholesalers and retailers, totaled nearly 305,000,000 gallons, compared with 250,000,000 gallons in the same month last year, an increase of over 20 per cent. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana announced that it would increase gasoline prices one cent a gallon tomorrow, while the Atlantic Refining company will increase kerosene prices a cent a gallon.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Buying of July by refiners against cash business and covering of shorts on the bullish statistical situation, generally, caused a further tightening in cotton seed oil today, October making a new high. Closing prices were at the best and represented net gains of 9 to 15 points. Sales, 5,400 barrels. Prime crude, 12.00c nominal; prime summer yellow, spot, 14.10c; May closed, 13.90c; July, 13.49c; September, 13.14c; December, 19.95c.

WHAT MAKES H.O. STONE BONDS SAFE?

No. 8 of a Series

The Security Margins Steadily Grow

THREE THINGS are constantly at work to make our bond issues safer and safer—increment in land values—increases in earnings—and serial payment of the loans.

Land values in the larger cities must increase. The percentage of increase is usually greatest in the most desirable sections. There the properties securing our bonds are located. And as values rise, the incomes from properties inevitably rise and in the same ratio.

While ground values and rental incomes are being augmented, each of our bond issues is reduced year after year by the paying off of a part of the bonds as they mature serially.

From these facts you may see that the originally ample margin between the amount of the bond issue and the actual value of the property continually widens in two directions. The property value goes up—the loan goes down. At the same time the excess of income over the amount required to pay the interest also shows an ever-widening margin.

To appreciate the safety of our First Mortgage Bonds, there are many facts like these which the investor ought to know. You will find reading our literature profitable.

Make Driving Safer

with Reo's Split-Second Braking and Split-Second Steering

The most important seconds of your life are the ones standing between you and sudden danger. Danger from drink-crazed or reckless drivers—from cars dashing out of cross streets—from stray animals, bumps or boulders around blind curves—and from all the hazards lurking in darkness. The National Safety Council, convened at Secretary Hoover's call, emphasized the desperate need for curtailing human recklessness. But today, and for some time to come, only the driver's alertness AND HIS CAR'S RESPONSIVENESS can save him in the fateful seconds. That is why Reo has Split-Second Braking and Split-Second Steering . . . saving the fractions of seconds that are the margin between safety and disaster.

For years automobile engineers have tried, in the interest of much needed safety, to get rid of two serious defects in the ordinary braking control.

The first of these is the danger of pressing down on the accelerator instead of the brake pedal in excited seconds.

The second defect is the sometimes fatal loss of time while the driver lifts his foot off the accelerator and shifts it over before he can even begin to apply his brakes.

Splitting the dangerous seconds

All the brakes on any car won't begin to stop it until they are applied.

And during the time between seeing danger and applying brakes, your car speeds toward the danger.

Too often that time can be measured only in seconds or even fractions of seconds.

Reo Split-Second Braking makes it possible to save from one-half to three-fifths of a second in applying brakes.

It is possible to save this time because you do not have to take your foot off the accelerator to apply the powerful Reo brakes. It also protects you from the sometimes fatal error of stepping on the accelerator when you want to step on the brake pedal.

The time that the Reo driver can save means a great many feet, as the following table shows:

At	One-Half Second	Three-Fifths Second	At	One-Half Second	Three-Fifths Second
20 m.p.h.*	14 ft. 8 in.	17 ft. 7 in.	45 m.p.h.	33 feet	39 ft. 7 in.
25 m.p.h.	18 ft. 4 in.	22 feet	50 m.p.h.*	36 ft. 8 in.	44 feet
30 m.p.h.	22 feet	26 ft. 5 in.	55 m.p.h.	40 ft. 4 in.	48 ft. 5 in.
35 m.p.h.	25 ft. 8 in.	30 ft. 10 in.	60 m.p.h.	44 feet	52 ft. 10 in.
40 m.p.h.	29 ft. 4 in.	35 ft. 4 in.

*m. p. h. — miles per hour

Three choices which only Reo provides

Only Reo has a brake that can be applied faster than any other brake on any other car—a brake so extraordinarily available that with it you can meet emergencies no other kind of control can meet.

Only Reo has this, and only Reo offers you three choices of brake application.

① You can use exactly the same ways of applying brakes that other cars have—if that's what you're used to, and if that's all you want.

② You can have Split-Second Braking and enjoy the same superior safety that over 100,000 other Reo owners enjoy.

③ Or you can have, at no extra cost, the ordinary pedal and lever for applying brakes PLUS Split-Second Braking.

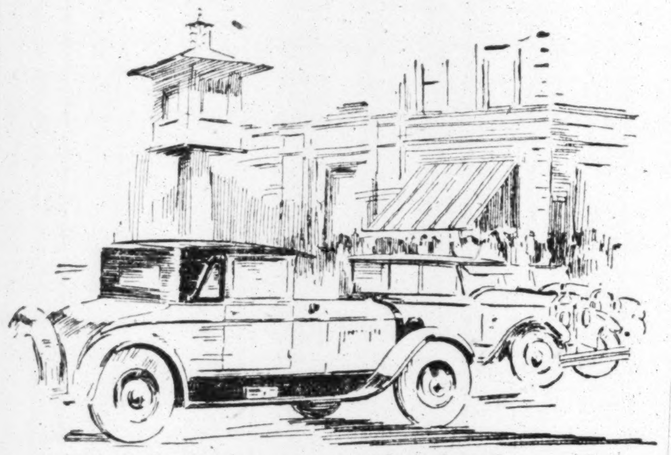
Only Reo offers you these three choices, and only Reo has a steering gear that splits the dangerous seconds.



Only with a Reo can you weave through traffic so easily and quickly. Reo Split-Second Steering makes it possible.

Split-Second Steering

Often only a quick swerve will avoid danger.

Even the smallest fraction of a second here spells the difference between safety and disaster.

The Reo Steering gear saves more than this small fraction—saves it in two distinct ways: first, because it acts more quickly; and second, because, the action is faster.

It saves the split second lost on practically all other cars because they develop "play" in the steering gear—"play" that wastes precious moments because, until it is taken up, the movement of the steering wheel cannot move the front wheels.

The Reo Steering gear seldom, if ever, develops "play." Even ten and twelve-year old Reos ready for the scrap-heap have steering gears as free from "play," as flashingly responsive, as a New Reo.

Quick and Easy Turning on Balloon Tires

In addition to that saving, Reo Split-Second steering saves whole seconds, because it turns the front wheels of the car faster than any other steering gear can.

Balloon Tires are harder to turn than high-pressure tires; and therefore, when Balloon Tires came into general use, most automobile manufacturers had to "slow up" their steering gears.

With Split-Second steering you can turn the front wheels of a Reo car—equipped with Balloon Tires—in half the time that the ordinary steering gear requires.

Most cars now require two, others three, complete turns of the steering wheel to turn Balloon Tires from extreme left position to extreme right position.

Split-Second Steering does this in one and a half turns.

Not only does this mean quicker steering in dangerous seconds—it means easier driving.

Try these Reo contributions to greater driving safety

By now over 100,000 Reo owners know the peace of mind, the comfort, that the Reo Split-Second features provide.

These features are the outstanding contributions to greater safety in driving.

Until the National Safety Council's efforts to curtail recklessness in driving bear fruit, you must depend for safety in many fateful seconds on your own alertness and your car's responsiveness.

Du Page County Selects Route of 200 Foot Super-Highway

SULLIVAN GIVES WORKERS' SIDE IN BUILDING ROW

Refuse to Toil with Nonunion Men.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council, last night declared that if there is a tieup in the building industry on June 1 the shutdown will not be the fault of the building trades unions.

PATRICK SULLIVAN [TRIBUNE Photo.]

He said the building trades desire harmony, a retention of the building industry's confidence, a program of continuous employment and a desire that building be done economically.

"And the only thing that stands in the way of agreements being consummated is the fact that certain contractors urged on by an outside organization, want us to agree to work with nonunion men in affiliated building trades," Mr. Sullivan asserted.

"This is contrary to fundamental union policy, contrary to the Landis uniform agreement, and contrary to the way in which the contractors' associations conduct their own affairs:

Stands for Fair Play.

"We ask nothing for ourselves which we are not willing to concede to our employers.

"Practically all Chicago building contractors are combined into the two big associations. These powerful organizations, composed of employers of all the different building trades, stand together in any controversy, even to the extent of declaring a general lockout of all trades. When they believe it necessary they enlist the support of the Association of Commerce, the Bankers' association, the material dealers, the Illinois Manufacturers' association, and many other great organizations of employers, entirely outside the building industry.

"On the other hand, the building trades at no time have sought the support of organizations whose members were not engaged in the building industry."

Explains Strike Position.

Mr. Sullivan pointed out the building trades are not asking for the right to call symapthetic strikes, as has been frequently stated. He said all they ask is that they shall not be required to work with nonunion men in the building trades, averring the request is one of the fundamental principles of organized labor everywhere. This, he said, has been approved by the United States Supreme court and by nearly every state Supreme court.

"The Landis award," Mr. Sullivan continued, "was drafted for the employment of union men only in the building trades, and a special paragraph was inserted in the agreement by Judge Landis himself which was understood to authorize union workmen to refuse to work with nonunion men.

"The agreement was so interpreted after the Landis award by both unions and contractors until about a year ago, when one group of contractors had an ex-parte hearing before Judge Page and secured an opinion that the agreement meant something else.

Gave Way on Rights.

"Although the building trades were not parties to the hearing before Judge Page, and did not think his interpretation the correct one, nevertheless, rather than disturb building activity, we refrained from insisting on our right while the meaning of the agreement was in doubt.

"Now that a new agreement is to be made, we insist that this right to refuse to work with nonunion men shall be clearly stated. But at the same time we do not propose any arbitrary strikes; the agreement provides that when a contractor is found violating the agreement by employing nonunion men the matter shall be called to the attention of the joint conference board, which is empowered to investigate and adjust the matter before any union men shall leave the job.

Mr. Sullivan said the situation could have been ironed out several months ago if it had not been for the interference of an organization entirely outside the building industry. He attributed the present unsettled conditions entirely to the interference of this outside organization.

In Constant Danger.

"Workmen in building trades are closely affiliated, work side by side, receive nearly the same wage scale, and are in constant danger of injury from careless workmen," Sullivan went on. "It is, therefore, to their mutual welfare that they insist that all building trades workmen on the job with them be union men. The only reason any one objects to this is for the purpose of weakening the unions in numbers and in morale.

"Many building projects require two years for completion. It is of great benefit to owners and contractors to have wages fixed for at least two years in advance so costs may be accurately estimated. For this and other reasons a protracted agreement between the employers and unions is of benefit to all concerned. Chicago building trades are ready and anxious to make such agreements on a fair and equitable basis."

HOW COOK'S PROGRESSIVE NEIGHBOR HOPES TO SOLVE ITS MOTOR TRAFFIC PROBLEM

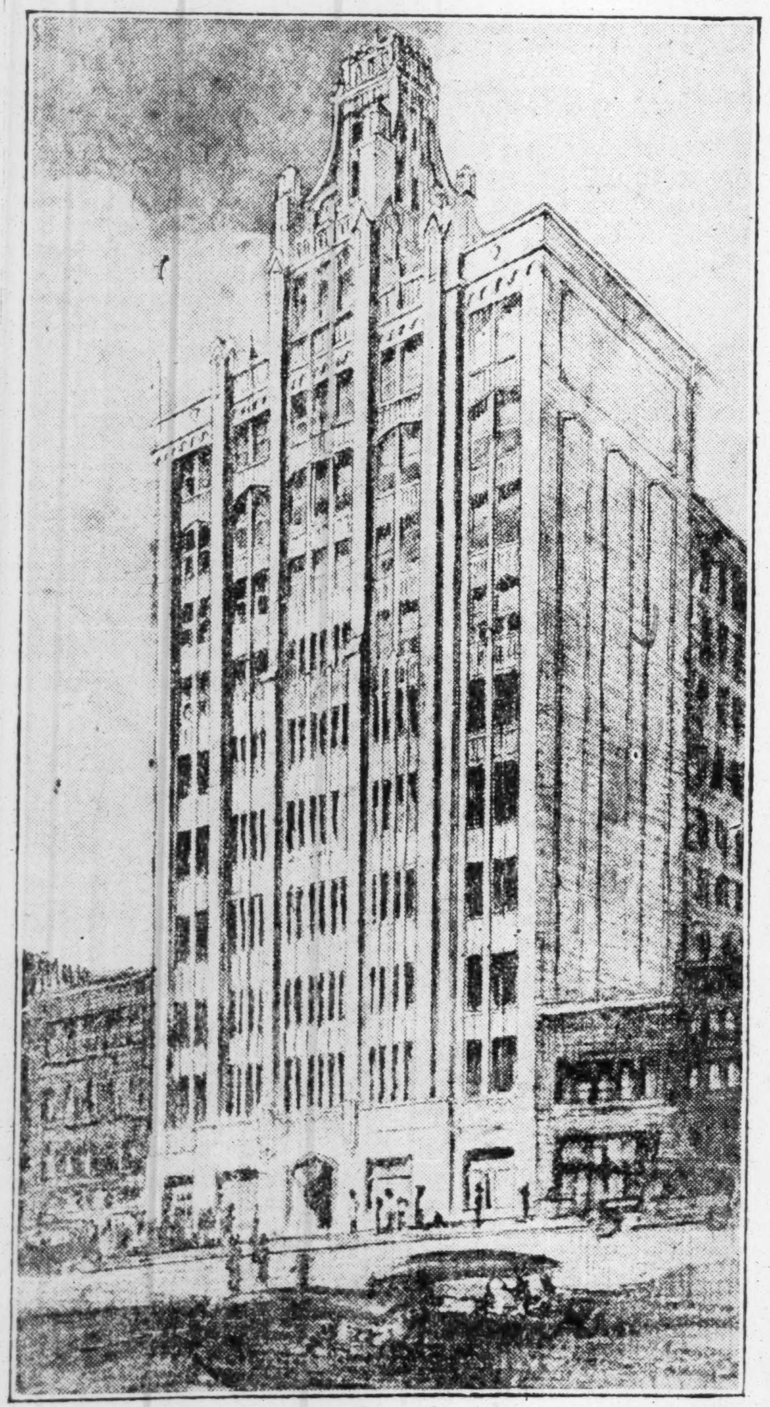
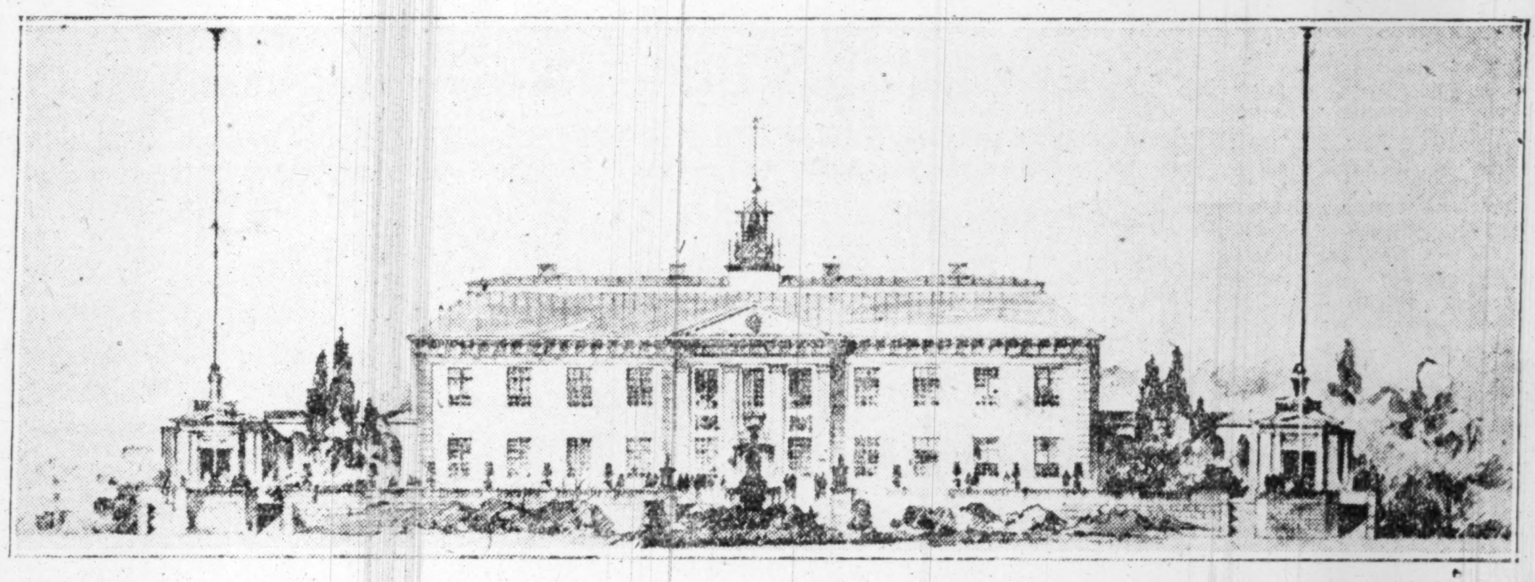
ELGIN'S HIGHEST



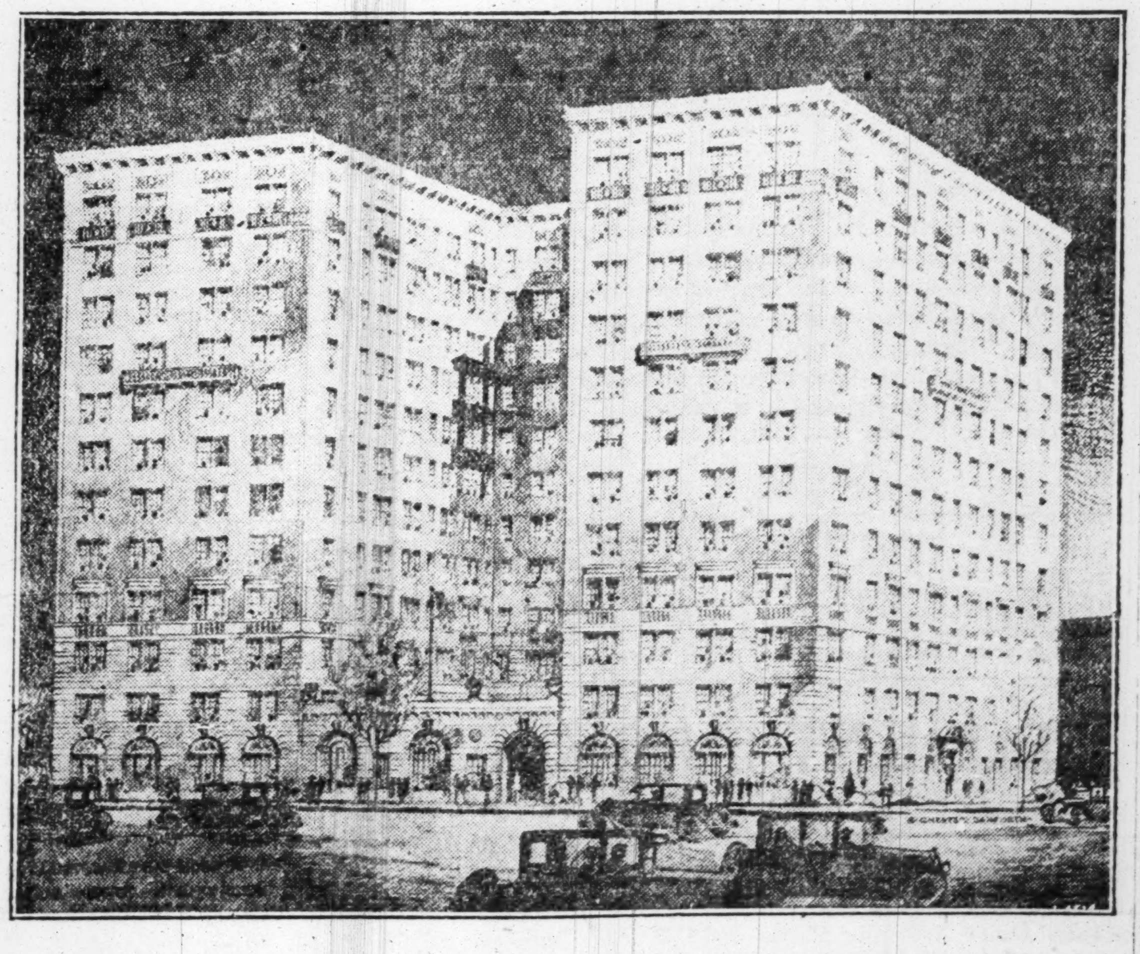
Wolf, Sexton, Harper & Trueax, Chicago architects, designed the above—Elgin's first skyscraper. It'll cost $350,000 and, unlike most tall buildings in medium sized cities, won't stick up above the rest of the business section like a scarecrow in a field, for the architects will use shadow paneling on party walls and carry the design around wherever possible. Thus the rear walls, just as conspicuous from the residence section as the front, will not offend the eyes of Elginites. It'll be 61x125 and will be flood lighted. It'll be 150 feet from street level to the tip of the tower. Percy Hale Lund made the above rendering.

SHOWING WHAT SWEDES HAVE DONE FOR AMERICA



A Chicagoan, John A. Nyden, is the architect who designed the John Norton Memorial building, which will form a part of the Sesquicentennial exposition in Philadelphia this summer. The structure is being erected by the American Sons and Daughters of Sweden, and will provide a means of showing to the world what this Scandinavian race has done for the United States. There are to be exhibition rooms in the building for this purpose. The design is that of a Swedish manor house of the colonial period.

AT SHERIDAN ROAD AND SURF STREET



*Loewenberg & Loewenberg are the architects for the Park Lane, a twelve story apartment hotel to be erected at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Surf street. The design is one of the Italian renaissance period. The structure will cost about $3,000,000 when completed. It is a block north of Lincoln park. Work will start in June and completion is expected by May 1, 1927. C. Chester Danforth made the above rendering.

Creamery Package Concern Plans $175,000 Building

The R. C. Wieboldt company has been awarded the contract for the $175,000 three story concrete building to be erected by the Creamery Package Manufacturing company at 1243-49 West Washington boulevard. Gardner & Lindberg are the architects.

Oak Park Flat Building Changes Hands: $160,000

Fred H. Kopp paid a reported $160,000 for the twenty-six flats at 1168 South Oak Park avenue to T. A. Holm & Co. Roy M. Carpenter of that firm was broker.

PIANIST-REALTOR HAS SKYSCRAPER ALL TO HIMSELF

Alfred L. Miltenberg, realtor-pianist, for the last few days has amused and interested La Salle street by remaining alone in the deserted Woman's Temple building, as its only tenant. Yesterday he moved his office effects to much larger quarters in the First National Bank building, suite 835-40. His new phone is Randolph 2133. Mr. Miltenberg had been a tenant of the Woman's Temple, soon to be torn down to make way for a new building for the State Bank of Chicago, for eighteen years.

ALFRED L. MILTENBERG. [De Haven Photo.]

Other tenants gradually have been quitting the Woman's Temple until everyone was out but Mr. Miltenberg. As an honor tenant he was given several days' leeway by the owners and remained in solitary state, chaperoned only by his office force.

Though probably few realty associates know it, Mr. Miltenberg is a pianist of note, having appeared as a soloist with the Chicago orchestra when he was nineteen, which we believe is a record. Theodore Thomas was then conductor. He selected the youthful Mr. Miltenberg as a soloist after the future realtor had played two selections for him.

But back to business—Mr. Miltenberg says the Butler building, at 160 North State, which he took over not many months ago, is now 99½ per cent rented.

WILL EXTEND ON BUTTERFIELD TO MOOSEHEART

E.L. Gates Also Tells of Route No. 3.

In connection with the following it'll be interesting to turn to the story by J. L. Jenkins, automobile editor, in the "Motordom" section, and read about the Chicago Tribune Highway plan.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

The great Butterfield road mystery has been solved. And, like the famous Westchester puzzle, the Dunham Woods enigma and other baffling buying orgies, the solution explains in a wink the persistent purchasing of property along that sedate country thoroughfare of Du Page county and the resultant skyrocketing of values.

E. L. GATES. [Walinger Photo.]

Butterfield road, it was officially announced last night, by E. L. Gates, superintendent of highways for Du Page county, is to be No. 2 of the trio of great 200 foot superhighways planned to span Du Page county and link Cook and Kane counties.

For months various firms and individuals have been buying along Butterfield road, all the way from its intersection with 22d street extended west to Warrenville. Corner tracts which two or three years ago might be picked up for $200 or $250 an acre changed hands at $500 and $550, were resold at $800 and $900, and then within a few months the $1,000 mark was the minimum and prices soared above that figure.

Buyers always were vague as to the reason for their buying so far away from towns. Some said Mr. Insull's new third rail line might go near their property and others talked cheerfully but vaguely of subdivisions. No one ever mentioned superhighways.

Gives Route of No. 3.

In addition to definitely stating where super-highway No. 2 will go, Mr. Gates announces, for the first time, approximately where No. 3, the northerly route of the country's trio, will cross Du Page county.

"It practically has been decided to run this from the west side of Du Page county, near the new village of Dunham Woods, and extend it easterly along about the location of the Illinois Centrall R. R.," said Mr. Gates.

"It will pass, if and when definitely decided, near the small village of Cloverdale and south of the villages of Blomingdale, Itasca and Bensenville and north of West Chicago, Winfield, Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, Lombard, Villa Park and Elmhurst. It will connect at the east side of the county with Lake street, Grand avenue and St. Charles road. It will have a direct connection with North avenue which the large subdividers and property owners already have agreed to continue east as a 200 foot thoroughfare."

"The board of supervisors all have agreed that these roads shall not go through villages," said Mr. Gates, "and therefore it practically was decided that this road should follow about half way between the villages, along the Northwestern and Burlington railroads.

Authorized by Board.

"This naturally brought the location of the road to the present Butterfield road, and at the May meeting of the board of supervisors, just closed, the committee was authorized to locate the road along or as near as possible to this route.

"The road will start at the Kane county line, in the vicinity of Mooseheart, which is on the banks of the Fox river.

"It will extend easterly to Warrenville, which it will avoid by turning either to the north or south.

"Just east of Warrenville the super highway will pick up the Butterfield road, an old, established thoroughfare running south of West Chicago, Winfield, Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, Lombard, Villa Park, and Elmhurst, and north of Naperville, Lisle, Downers Grove, and Hinsdale."

Narrows South of Villa Park.

Tentative plans call for the 200 foot super-highway to split into two 100 foot highways at the intersection of Butterfield road with 22d street extended south of Villa Park, one to reach into Cook county via Butterfield and the other by way of 22d. These two arms will tap Washington and Jackson boulevards, Roosevelt road, etc.

The Du Page county super-highways are to consist of two forty foot one way concrete strips, with the center 120 feet arranged with a twenty foot strip down the center for future rapid transit lines of some sort and grass plots fifty feet in width on each side of it.

The super-highways will have two forty foot concrete pavements on the extreme edges, for one way traffic. That means four traffic lanes in each direction. The balance of the highway, 120 feet, will be used for a twenty foot right of way down the center for a future rapid transit line of some sort, with two fifty foot grass plots between it and the concrete traffic lanes.

As officially announced some time ago, No. 1 of the three Du Page county superhighways approximately will be the extension of 79th street across to Aurora.

PEACOCK'S TO MOVE INTO NEW PALMER HOUSE

Will Have Shop at State and Monroe Corner.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

ROBERT E. PEACOCK.
[Moffett Photo.]

The jewelry store of C. D. Peacock, Inc., for years at the northeast corner of Adams and State streets, is to move to the second section of the Palmer house, on its completion, according to an announcement made yesterday by officials of the firm. Peacock's will occupy the corner at the southeast corner of Monroe and State, a block north of its present location.

The store will have a frontage of forty feet on State street and a depth of 150 feet on Monroe street, running east to the Monroe street entrance of the hotel. In addition the company will occupy between 7,000 and 8,000 square feet on the third floor, directly above the store, and about 8,000 square feet in the subbasement, or second floor below the ground.

$5,000,000 for Term.

The noted jewelry firm has just entered into a lease with Honoré and Potter Palmer, trustees under the will of Bertha Honoré Palmer, on the premises for twenty-five years from the date of the completion of the building. While the exact figures are not given, it is understood that the term rental will be about $5,000,000 for the period.

Peacock's has the distinction of being the oldest concern in the city, having been established by Elijah Peacock in 1837 at 155 Lake street. This was the same year that Old Dad Dearborn obtained a charter as a city for his home town. Later the firm moved to Randolph street, which at that time was the most fashionable shopping section of the city.

This will be Peacock's third location on State street, the others being at State and Washington, from 1873 to 1896, and at State and Adams, from 1896 to date. The new store is expected to open between Feb. 1 and 15, 1927.

To Have Private Elevators.

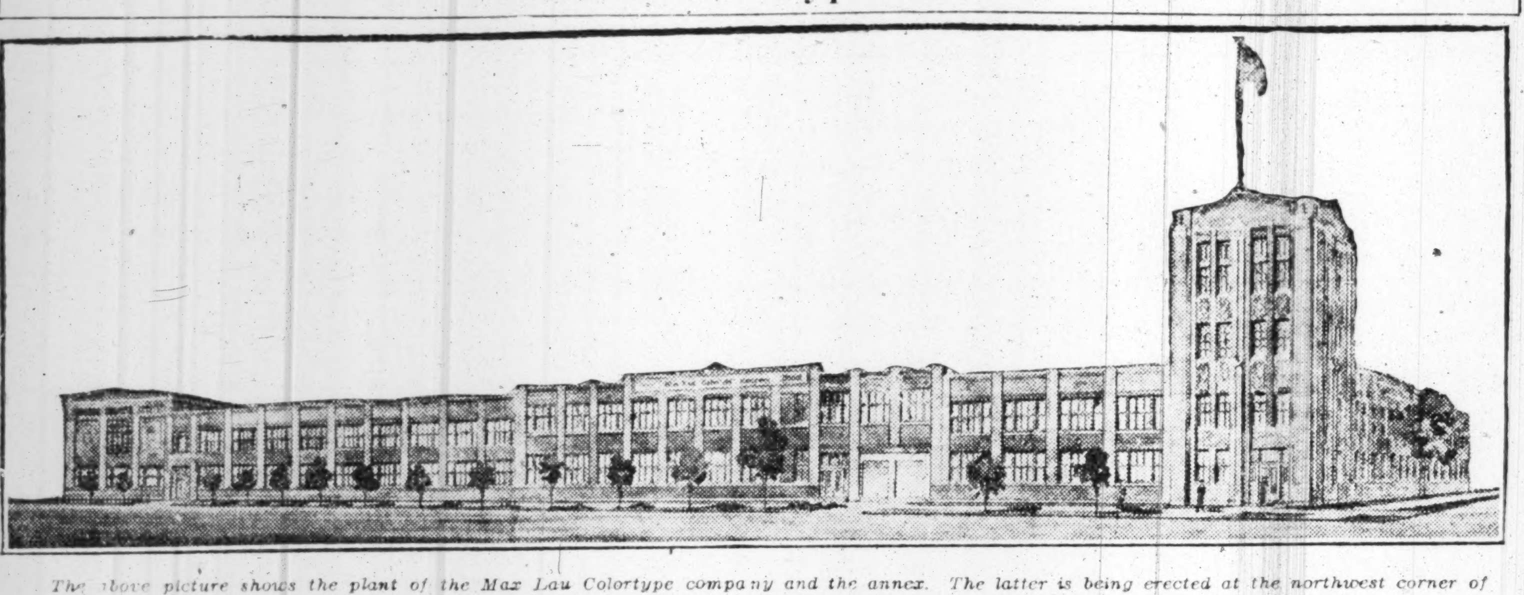
The business now is and has been continuously owned and conducted by members of the Peacock family, direct descendants of the founder of the house of Peacock in England in 1773. The officers of the company are: Robert E. Peacock, president; W. J. Buffington, vice president, and Walter C. Peacock, treasurer.

Holabird and Roche, architects for the Palmer House, are also architects for Peacock's.

Treatment of the store fronts is to be in granite, Bedford stone, and bronze, with ornamental entrances on both State and Monroe streets.

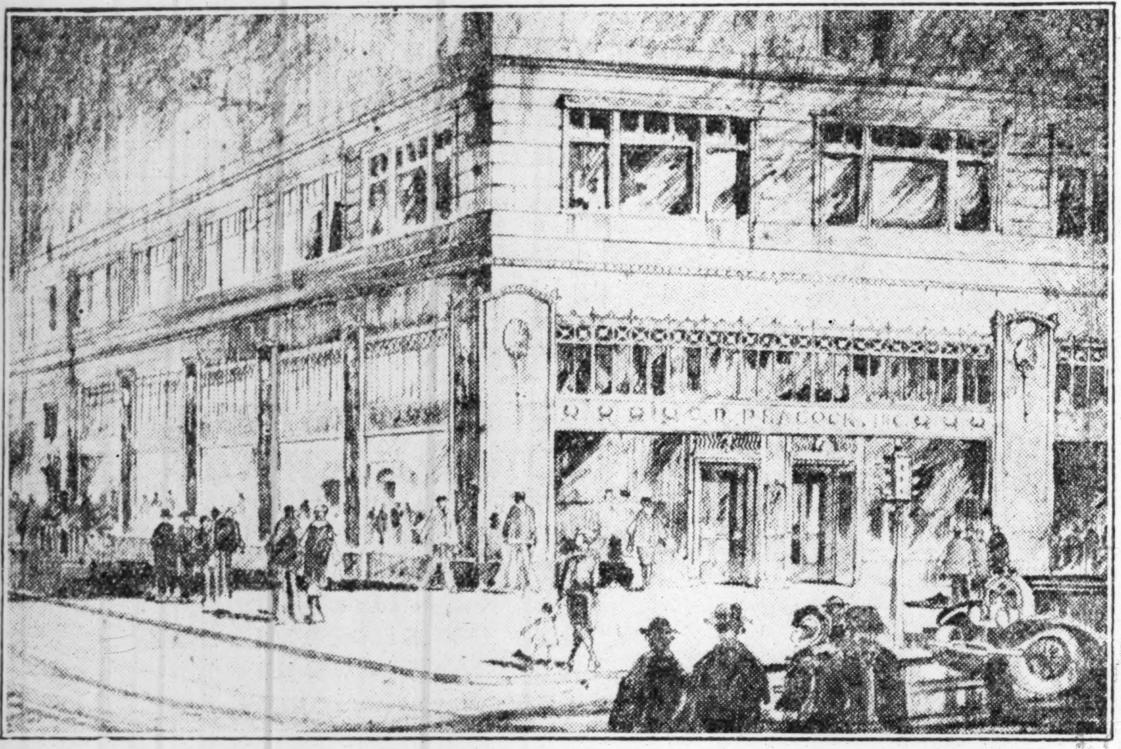
In arranging the lease the legal details were handled for the lessors by Winston, Strawn & Shaw, and for the lessee by Brode B. Davis of Davis, Ramsey, Kelly & Kracke. The real estate agents were Ross & Browne, rental agents for the Palmer estate.

Max Lau Colortype Plant



The above picture shows the plant of the Max Lau Colortype company and the annex. The latter is being erected at the northwest corner of Fullerton and Sheffield avenues. When completed it is said that the new and old building will form the largest colortype building in the city. S. N. Crowen is the architect.

Noted Jewelry Store Changes Location



The jewelry firm of C. D. Peacock, Inc., will move from its present location at the northeast corner of State and Monroe streets to quarters in the second section of the Palmer House, which is now under construction. The new store will be located at the southeast corner of State and Monroe streets, and will front forty feet on State street, with a depth of 150 feet on Monroe. Holabird & Roche are drawing plans for the shop, which it is said will be the most beautiful of its kind in the city. The move will be made some time in February, 1927.

NEARLY HALF OF BUILDING OUTLAY FOR RESIDENCES

Figures tabulated by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company show that for every dollar spent for new building in 1926, forty-four cents went for residential construction, twenty-nine cents for business and industrial buildings, fifteen cents for public works and utilities, and twelve cents for public buildings. The 1925 figures give forty-five cents for residential construction, twenty-four cents for business and industrial buildings, fourteen cents for public works and utilities, and seventeen cents for public buildings.

Hinkamp Company Offers 6 Lots Free to Builders

Hinkamp & Co., announce they will deed six apartment sites in their subdivision near 79th and Western to six citizens who will build on them at once. They are restricted to three story apartments.

PLAN TO EXPEND SIX MILLIONS ON NEARBY RESORT

O. W. GOTTA.

Details on the recent purchase of 586 acres between Long Beach, Ind., and Grand Beach, Mich., by Axel Lonnquist disclose that this proposed summer resort community be known as Michigan Shores. Part of the property is in the Hoosier commonwealth and part in the Wolverine state, hence the name "Michiana." Approximately $6,000,000 will be expended in improvements.

Along the 6,600 feet of Lake Michigan frontage a board walk is to be built between the beach and the one story cottages which will front on the concrete boulevard. This boulevard will link Long Beach with Grand Beach. An eighteen hole golf course will be laid out for the residents. Winding concrete roads also will be built.

Associated with Mr. Lonnquist is O. W. Gotta, president of the Long Beach company, from which concern the Michiana Shores site was bought for a reported $650,000. George M. Illges is in charge of sales for the new Lonnquist community. M. A. Cushman was broker in the purchase.

The Lonnquist company also has just purchased from the Earle estate 110 acres in Michigan City in Earle road and Ohio street, adjoining the Haskell & Barker branch of the Pullman company. Part will be sold to the Pullman interests, a new factory will be located there and an ambitious program of home building will be inaugurated by the Lonnquist company. The first unit will consist of twenty-five cottages.

TIMEPIECE TOWN TO HAVE A TEN STORY BUILDING

Elgin, famous for butter, watches, a cop who does a new Charleston step while he's directing traffic, and a large state institution, is now to make a new bid for fame. It's going to have what is claimed will be the tallest building in the Fox river valley, a ten story skyscraper, surmounted by a three story tower. Wolf, Sexton, Harper & Trueax, Chicago architects and engineers, designed it.

It'll be on Division street, just east of the new Fox hotel and across the street from the Ackermann department store. Excavation has started and it'll be ready for tenants within a year.

It's to be called the "Professional building" and not only is owned by physicians but will have many offices for doctors and dentists and the first floor will house the Elgin Physicians and Surgeons' club. There'll be lodge rooms on the two upper floors. Two floors will be devoted to shops.

The owners are Dr. F. H. Langhorst, Dr. A. L. Langhorst, Dr. E. E. McCornack, Conrad Ackemann, Dr. K. M. Manougiah, and Dr. Scherme.

CHICAGO FIRM TO USE PLANES FOR SELLING REALTY

CHARLES W. SEIGNIOUS.

WHITFIELD B. SEIGNIOUS.

Riparian rights property along Lake Michigan from Chicago several hundred miles north is to be shown prospective customers from the air by C. W. Seignious & Son. They have just purchased a five passenger plane from the government and Charles W. Seignious, a member of the realty firm, and his younger brother, Whitfield B. Seignious, both of them licensed pilots, will personally conduct the flights. They even intend to bring in prospects from points as far away as Cleveland and Detroit and whiz them north along the lake shore. Several more planes are to be added to the Seignious air fleet.

Weeping faucets or CHICAGO FAUCETS

WHAT is more dreary than the incessant "drip-drip" of a leaking faucet? Wasting countless gallons of water (usually hot water, which means fuel waste); wasting itself away—for a leaking faucet is one that is being slowly destroyed.

Chicago Faucets never get into this state, for a leak can be repaired by anyone in a minute or two as easily as replacing a burned-out electric bulb.

To locate the trouble and correct it, simply remove the working unit, clean it or put in a new washer, and slip it back again.

Not only the washer, but the seat itself is replaceable in Chicago Faucets. This is the basis for our thoroughly justified claim that Chicago Faucets will outlast the building.

Equip your home at the start, or replace old, worn faucets, with Chicago Faucets and you'll never have any more faucet trouble.

See your plumber, or if he can't supply you, call, write or telephone

Only $10.00 down puts a complete two-car BELMONT garage on your premises, including cement floor, electric lights, plumbing, and painting—a garage ready to drive into within a week or ten days. Then, one month after your garage is completed —and not until then—you begin to make our easy monthly payments, which are spread over two years. Meet these installments out of the rent you receive. They will pay for your garage, give you free shelter for your car, and an extra cash income besides, every month.

NO MIDDLEMEN'S PROFITS

The BELMONT LUMBER COMPANY is a large, financially sound corporation operating its own big lumber yard and construction department. No separate lumber company or contractor to take a profit for himself. This substantial saving of the middlemen's profits is passed on to you. Dealing with us you get the most for your money. You get the best of materials and solid, substantial workmanship. You know beforehand exactly what your garage will be like. You take no risk. And remember, every BELMONT garage is backed by our guarantee of satisfaction. Ask us to prove these facts to you. No obligation to buy. Mail coupon below for full details.

THE TRUTH ABOUT "SPECIAL" OFFERS

Just as a matter of common sense, do you know of any business firm that really gives away anything FREE? Our regular specifications and prices always include so called "special," "extra" and "free" features. The BELMONT LUMBER COMPANY never offers "special" values for a limted time only. Our policy has always been to build the best garage we know how to build—to build lasting quality from foundation to roof. That is why we can guarantee satisfaction and save you money.

"THE PARK LANE" IS NEW ARRIVAL FOR SHERIDAN RD.

Will Be 12 Stories High; Cost $3,000,000.

(Picture on page 1.)

Word has just been received here from the building stork that the city's latest big apartment hotel will be deposited in a huge breadbasket at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Surf street. A name has already been selected for the new arrival—it's to be called the Park Lane.

M. L. LOEWENBERG [TRIBUNE Photo.]

L. S. LOEWENBERG [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The site the structure will occupy is one of the most notable on the north side, being impressed on the minds of north siders by an odd little frame house that occupied it ever since this department can remember. The little frame building resembled a farm house and it belonged to the Lermann estate for years. A superintendent employed by the estate lived in it for some time.

But to get back to the Park Lane. It's to be a twelve story structure and will represent an investment of about $3,000,000 when completed. There are to be 220 apartments of from two to five rooms each.

Lowenberg & Lowenberg, architects and engineers, designed the building which will be in the Italian renaissance period. There will be no ugly duckling sides for all four elevations are to be of face brick, with stone and terra cotta trim.

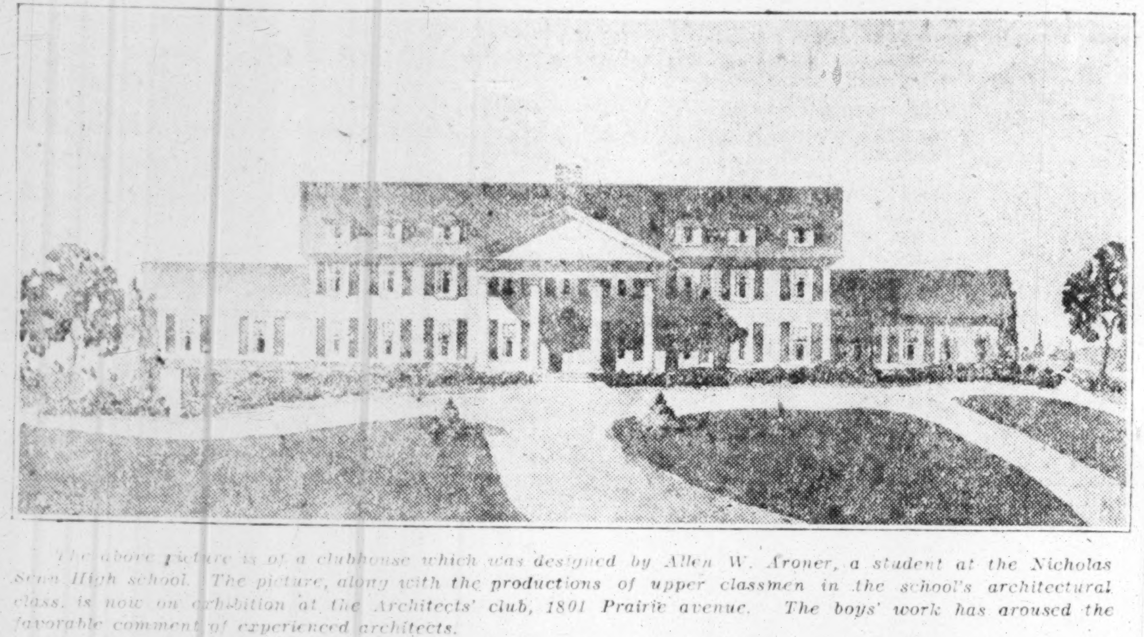
One feature of interest will be a large playroom for the use of children living in the structure. The first floor will have space reserved for a valet, manicurist, barber shop, food shop, and similar uses.

The owners of the Park Lane are the Park Lane building corporation, of which Irving M. Sevin is the president and Harry L. Solomon is secretary. The owners announce that contracts will be let immediately, and that work will start in June. It is hoped to have the building completed by May 1, 1927.

A. M. Kerensky & Bro. are handling the financial arrangements, while Epstein & Feiwell are attending to the legal details.

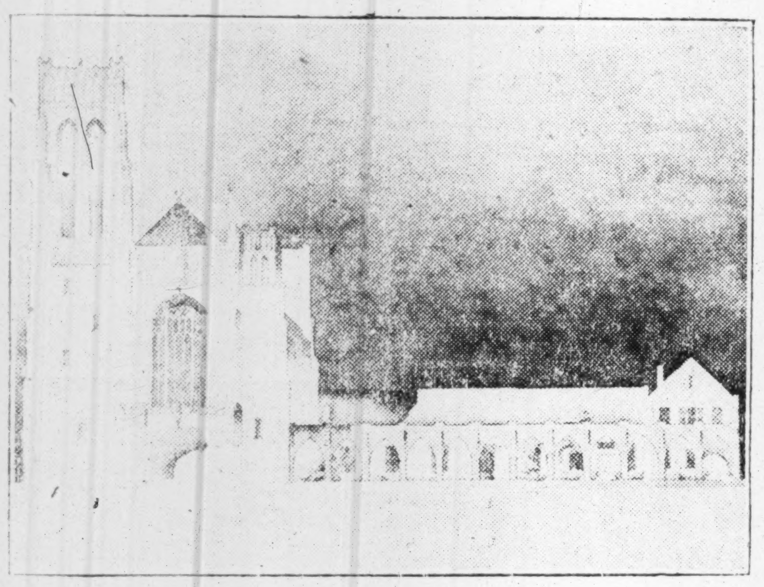
The Park Lane will be just a block north of Lincoln park—in a former residence section, which has now become one of the finest large apartment and hotel districts in the city.

On Way to Fame



The above picture is of a clubhouse which was designed by Allen W. Aroner, a student at the Nicholas Senn High school. The picture, along with the productions of upper classmen in the school's architectural class, is now on exhibition at the Architects' club, 1801 Prairie avenue. The boys' work has aroused the favorable comment of experienced architects.

A Vision of Youth



A high school student, Robert Rodgers, designed the above striking group for a country church. This rendering, along with a number of others made by upper classmen in the architectural class of Nicholas Senn High school, is now on exhibition at the Architects' club, 1801 Prairie avenue. A. A. Woerner is at the head of the architectural department of the school.

EASTERNER BUYS IN WILMETTE.

N. P. Zech has purchased for an undisclosed consideration the nine room house at 918 Forest avenue, Wilmette, from Charles H. Brethold. Robert E. Rickson Jr., of Quinlan & Tyson was the broker representing both parties. Mr. Zech recently came here from East Orange, N. J.

PLAN $3,000,000 APARTMENTS FOR SHERIDAN-GRACE

B. Leo Steif is drawing up plans for a twelve story coöperative apartment building for the northwest corner of Grace street and Sheridan road. The property, formerly owned by the Lehmann estate, fronts 300 feet on Sheridan and 200 on Grace street. The cost will be around $3,000,000.

NICHOLAS SENN BOYS SHOW SKILL AS ARCHITECTS

The boys of the architectural class at the Nicholas Senn High school are giving an exhibition of their work at the Architects' club 1801 Prairie avenue, which has amazed their elders because of the quality of their productions.

A. A. WOERNER. [Baddell Photo.]

There are about 100 students in the class, which is conducted by A. A. Woerner, head of the architectural department. The exhibition at the Architects' club consists of the work of about thirty upper classmen.

Among the most notable works are those of Allen W. Aroner, Robert Rodgers and William Pereira. Allen has two productions, one of a country club house and the other of a tower. The tower is somewhat reminiscent of the famous Tour St. Jacques of Paris.

Robert has designed a country church group which would be a credit to a man of seasoned experience, while William is represented by a stately memorial. Among other subjects shown are a country residence, a small library, a park fountain and a mausoleum.

Among the boys represented at the exhibition, which will run during the month of May, are: Robert Rodgers, Arthur Bross, Charles Rummel, M. Paddock, Nels Werner, William Pereira, W. E. Hood, N. D. Roller, James Wagner, H. Schwartz, Ivan Sarkios, H. G. Bergstrom, Raymond Sander, H. Mortenson, K. Davis and Ernest Larson.

Benjamin Franklin Buck is the principal of Nicholas Senn High school.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To May 16, 1896: 30 Years Ago Today

Charles T. Yerkes, Clarence Buckingham, and D. H. Louderback, with other capitalists, have bought a tract of 510 acres west of Western avenue and north of Irving Park boulevard for $750,000, at the rate of $1,470 an acre. The negotiations for the land have been in progress for nearly a year. The land is bought by the syndicate for speculative purposes and it will be placed on the market as soon as elaborate improvements contemplated can be made.

CHARLES T. YERKES.

Work has begun on the station of the Illinois Central located in Lake Front park, at the foot of Van Buren street. Plans for the building were drawn by John F. Wallace, chief engineer of the Illinois Central. The structure will be novel in many respects. It will be entirely underground, with the exception of the ventilating shafts, and it will resemble the underground depots of London, with the addition of many conveniences.

To May 16, 1906: 20 Years Ago Today

Reginald De Koven sold to William H. Scriven the residence property in Bellevue place, 271 feet west of Lake Shore drive, with 24½x129¼ feet of ground, south front, for $26,000. The buyer secured all the purchase money by a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company for ten years at 4 per cent.

REGINALD DE KOVEN. [Moffett Photo.]

One of the most interesting deals of the week was the lease by Mrs. Julia F. Heyworth from Thomas Shith of the property at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Harrison street for a term of 198 years. The lease provides for an annual rental of $12,000 for the first five years, $16,000 for the second five years, and $20,000 for eighty-nine years. The rent for the succeeding ninety-nine years is $25,000 a year.

The lot fronts seventy-seven feet with a depth of 172 feet and is improved with an old residence which has been used for some years as a boarding house called the Maison du Lac. The old building will be torn down and a seven or eight story building to cost $200,000 erected in its place.

To May 16, 1916: 10 Years Ago Today

The old homestead fo Andrew McNally at the northwest corner of Lincoln park West and Garfield avenue has been sold by Hary B. Clow and F. W. McNally, trustees of the McNally estate, for a reported consideration of $50,000 to the Lott Hotel company. The residence was long one of the residential landmarks of this part of the city, being the home of the founder of the Rand-McNally company. John Alschlager & Son are drawing plans for a ten story hotel to contain 225 rooms. The sale was negotiated by John R. McGill & Co., who represented the McNally estate, and Alfred Tuvin of Lee J. Lesser & Co., who represented the Lott Hotel Co.

ANDREW McNALLY

The largest loan of the year in the downtown district was closed last week. It is for $800,000 and was made by D. H. Hill & Co. to the John V. Farwell company. It is secured by the block in Market street from Adams to Monroe, extending back to the river, runs for ten years, and bears 4½ per cent interest. The property is improved with a six story mercantile building.

MAYOR OF NILES CENTER TELLS OF SUBURB'S PLANS

In a recent address before the village board, Mayor John Brown outlined the work now going on in the suburb and told about the village's plans for the future. In his talk Mr. Brown said that he had adopted as the village's slogan, "Make Niles Center Chicago's Greatest Suburb," and he urged the councilmen to get behind him to make this a reality.

MAYOR JOHN BROWN. [Bernie Photo.]

Mr. Brown told how a zoning commission was appointed during the last year and stated that Jacob Crane Jr. has been appointed to draw up a town plan. The zoning commission consists of George Busscher Jr., George H. Kiehm, and Henry Heinz.

He urged the erection of a new town hall and said that the board must furnish an adequate water system. The mayor said that the Greater Niles Center association, composed of the great subdividers, has entered into a building program with the various firms constructing from four to fifty buildings. The council has authorized the expenditure of $5,000,000 on improvements.

PLAN $350,000 THEATER BLOCK FOR LOMBARD

Lombard is going to have a $350,000 theater and business block it was announced last night. A Chicago syndicate associated with two Lombard men, one of whom is E. L. Frum, real estate broker, will erect a two story building to contain a 1,500 seat playhouse, stores and offices and a 200 car garage and salesroom. It will be 150x180. J. L. Shayne of Lombard is architect. The site will be announced later. It will be south of the Northwestern. Work will start within thirty days, according to Mr. Frum.

ROBERT BROOKS TO TALK BEFORE REALTY CLASS

Robert E. L. Brooks, the former president, will speak before the real estate and law class of the Cook County Real Estate board Tuesday evening on "The Torrens System and What It Means." Mr. Brooks will review the progress of the system during the last fifteen years since the Cook County Real Estate board first advocated its use. Mr. Brooks is said to hold the record of having secured more registration of property under the Torrens system than any other individual in Cook county.

RIGHT HERE IN CHI !!

Here's how William C. Milroy, a former newspaperman and now an attorney with offices at 190 S. State street, handed Dame Fortune a jolt. In October, 1924, "Bill" bought the northwest corner of Dixie highway and 159th street, west of Harvey, on contract for $7,500. But when he sold the lot a few days ago to Thomas M. White, a contractor, for $25,000 he had paid only $3,000 on the purchase price. So, on an investment of $3,000 he made a profit of $17,500 in a year and a half. Bill figures this lot increased in value at the rate of $943 a month while he was paying at the rate of $162.

M. J. Flynn a week ago bought for $80,000 the forty acres at the southeast corner of 103d street and Cicero avenue from the Chivers' estate. And now he has just sold the property to J. P. McArdle for a reported price of $100,000, giving him a profit of $20,000 in a week. Lowenthal, Kay & Simon were brokers.

BRIGHT COLORED AWNINGS LEND CHARM TO HOME

Here's Spanish House for Small Sized Lot.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Now, with summer close upon us, appears this Spanish house, of considerable stateliness, but with few pretentions, and smartly flaunting to the sun's hot rays its cooling awnings of southern type.

Murison, Cummings & Sanford, Inc., 343 South Dearborn street, Chicago, are the architects.

The charm that awnings can lend to an exterior design is visible here. And it is this charm which leads many people to indulge in them, even when they add somewhat to the cost of the house.

Bonnets of architecture, these awnings have been called, and whether they are planned along conservative lines for the city home which does not wish to present too radical a contrast to its neighbors, or whether they are conceived in daringly original color designs and shapes for the country or suburban dwelling, the effect of added beauty and cheer is the same.

Gives Colorful Contrast.

In this case they contrast with the color scheme of the house, which is of sand gray stucco, with the roof of Spanish tile in the light pastel shades. Against this are the valanced awnings of emerald hue, lined, embroidered, and fringed with white.

By this lining of the awnings with white, one objection so often raised to awnings—that they contribute to the darkening of the room—is removed. Probably the majority of people prefer the contrast of shades between the house and the awnings, on the ground that it increases the gayety of the exterior in summertime. There are those, however, who insist on a perfect harmony of color between the walls and the awnings. This, of course, is entirely a matter of taste.

If such a color harmony were desired in this case, the awnings could be of pearl gray, fringed and embroidered with a touch of ebony, and only the lining kept in white.

For Narrow Lot.

This house is of a particularly economical design, completely contained as it is in a square of 34 feet. It is intended primarily for a narrow lot on a city or suburban street. For this reason the sunroom has been placed at the rear of the dining room, that it may overlook the garden.

The entrance is of stone and arched in the Spanish style. The vestibule leads direct into the living room, which has exposure on three sides.

Observe the placing of the breakfast room between the dining room and the kitchen. This, as planned, has the advantage of a separate wall between the breakfast room and the kitchen, obliterating the necessity of any kitchen odors.

Here, too, the kitchen has outside window exposure on two sides. Almost as necessary a ventilation feature, and surely as desirable, as the double window exposure in the bedrooms.

Upstairs there is a general main hall into which all the bedrooms open.

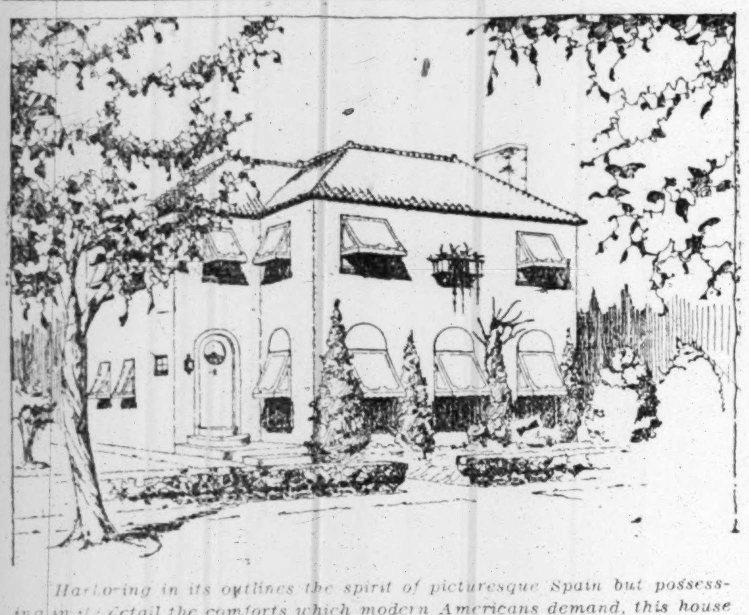
Master Bedroom Ideal.

The master bedroom is the ideal shape for a bedroom, purely rectangular. A bath connects the room and the rear smaller one.

The second bath opens into the hall and is not connected with any bed-

The house has hot water heat, with frame construction and a foundation of concrete. It can be built on a 45 foot lot for about $15,000 on the present market.

A Picturesque Residence



Harboring in its outlines the spirit of picturesque Spain but possessing in its detail the comforts which modern Americans demand, this house is economical in design and can be contained within a square of 34 feet. It has been fashioned with a narrow lot in mind, on a rather public street. Murison, Cummings & Sanford, architects.

PORTLAND ASSN. MOVES TO HOME IN GRAND AVENUE

A fire in search of a pleasant place for a nice quiet burn will be just wasting time if it drops in at the new headquarters of the Portland Cement association at the southeast corner of Grand avenue and Dearborn street. Practically everything from the roof to the subbasement is of concrete or

The building, which was designed by Holabird & Roche, is five stories high, entirely of concrete, and was built to carry additional floors if they are found necessary. It contains a number of chemical and other laboratories for experiments and tests with concrete and cement. The association's present laboratory is to be moved into the new building from the Lewis institute, where it has been for years.

A striking feature of the building is the decorative scheme of the entrance lobby where a marble effect is obtained by a mixture of marble chips and cement. All the general offices of the association are housed in the building. There is one of the most complete libraries in the country on cement. The association recently moved into its new building from the Conway building, where it was located for the last ten years.

EVANSTON AND GARY AMONG NATION'S 25 BUILDING LEADERS

The remarkable growth of Chicago's metropolitan area again is emphasized in a national building survey just made by S. W. Straus & Co. Included in the twenty-five cities reporting the greatest building volume during the month of April are Evanston, and Gary, Ind. New York is first, Chicago is second, Gary is twenty-first, and Evanston twenty-fifth.

Evanston made a building gain of 82.9 per cent over April of 1925, while Gary made a 142.8 per cent advance for the same period. Evanston's volume for this April was $2,707,420, compared with $1,480,220 in April, 1925. The April 1926 volume of Gary was $2,947,655, and $1,213,650 for April, 1925.

The building volume for Illinois as a whole showed a 11.7 per cent loss for April, alhough many towns in the Chicago area gained. Chicago reports a volume of $39,940,200, as compared with $44,994,900 of a year ago; a 10.2 per cent loss. New York's building volume for April, 1926, was $101,321,947, compared with $102,259,497 of a year ago.

The Straus survey reveals that other suburban cities in the country are making remarkable building gains, although the nation has sustained an 8 per cent loss in comparison with April, 1925.

The figures for April, 1926, for other twosn in the Chicago area follow: Aurora, $405,138, a 17.7 per cent gain; Berwyn, $1,042,200, a 1.1 per cent loss; Chicago Heights, $547,570, a 206.1 per cent gain; Cicero, $546,620, a 25 per cent loss; Elgin, $351,393, a 21 per cent loss; Waukegan, $429,469, a 17.5 per cent gain; Hammond, $892,400, a 33.5 per cent gain. The Maywood volume was $847,800, no figures being kept for April, 1925.

108th Engineers' Club Leases on Michigan Ave.

The 108th Engineers Veterans Club, Inc., has leased the building at 1710 South Michigan avenue from E. Kent Hubbard and Helen Kent Hubbard for a term of years, with the privilege of buying. The officers of the club are William Cardwell, president; Col. Henry A. Allen, vice president; O. F. Yetter, secretary, and J. Reddington, treasurer. The advisory council consists of Gens. George Bell, Samuel Felton, and Charles G. Dawes and Judge Harry F. Hamlin. George F. Sivore & Co. arranged the lease.

News of the Architects

Another architectural firm has forsaken the loop for the quiet cleanliness of the upper Michigan avenue district. Wolf, Sexton, Harper & Trueax, for years at the southwest corner of State and Madison, have moved into a colorful and picturesque suite of offices perched in the thirteenth floor of the Tribune Tower, where magnificent views can be had over lake and north side from both the offices of Albert M. Wolf and Frank A. Sexton, as well as from the drafting room.

THERE IS No Satisfactory Substitute FOR PLASTERING

NO other interior finish so completely seals the rough work of masonry and carpentry, provides sound and heat insulation and offers such a barrier to fire. At the same time, it presents a smooth or textured background for all interior beauty and comfort.

Plastering "made on the job" conceals all irregularities and makes economies possible in masonry and frame construction. It is the one material of construction that has been used in practically the same way since it changed huts into homes four thousand years ago.

No machine-made or precast unit can produce such beauty, unbroken surface, or perfect lines, nor such true economy.

Buildings are constructed less solidly than in previous generations and a reinforcing base of steel—Metal Lath—is needed to counteract the strains now put upon the plaster. This Better Plastering on Metal Lath is the modern contribution to the plastering industry.

FARM AND GARDEN

Chicago Business Men Visit Purdue Experiment Farms

Learn First Hand of the Methods to Aid Agriculture.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

CHICAGO is getting ready to contribute its share in formulating a policy that will give agriculture its proper place in the nation's scheme of economics. Agriculture's problem is the city man's problem, and Chicagoans recognize that. Business men throughout the country see the crucial transition which agriculture is now going through and many foresee the effect the outcome may have on other industries.

That the country is now facing a situation which needs to be corrected in order to put farming on a fair basis with other industries is well known by men of the city as well as the farm, but there seems to be a great difference of opinion as to how to remedy it.

Through the agriculture committee of the Association of Commerce, Chicago's business interests are taking the lead among big cities in going out to find ways and means of getting at the facts so that some adjustment can be made that will put farming in step with other industries. The first step in the practical move was made recently when a big delegation composed of the city's agricultural committee took a special train to Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., for the specific purpose of getting first hand information that can be used in some practical way to aid the farmer and indirectly improve conditions for the business man in the city.

THEY SAW PURDUE.

CHICAGO'S AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE STUDIES HOOSIER STATION'S WORK.—In this group there are twenty-five or more members of the agricultural committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who spent a day recently with officials and faculty members at Purdue university's agricultural experiment station. These business men are looking for practical things that will aid them in working on a program that will establish a balanced relationship between industry and agriculture. Director G. I. Christie and President E. C. Elliott of Purdue are the first two men standing on the bottom step at the left.

Marking an Event.

It is a long stride toward giving the busy man of the city a closeup of what has already been done by agricultural institutions and farmers to improve production and what must be done in the marketing field to bring up prices so that American farmers can permanently maintain the high standard of living due every honest producer of farm products. The trip to Purdue marks the first time business men, representing various industrial organizations, have gone from their own centers to give serious study to farming and, in a broader sense, to bringing about a closer understanding and a fairer economic relationship between the farmer-business man of the country and the business man of the city.

Heretofore many trips to such institutions have been taken by business men just to get away from the office, but with the members of the agricultural committee the trip was made as the initial visit to experiment stations and agricultural states with the hope that facts and figures gathered through such observations and studies may be used intelligently by Chicagoans in whatever part they play in the new farmer-business man program.

Purdue university's officials and faculty realized the significance of the move on the part of business men. Almost every one of them from President E. C. Elliott, Director G. I. Christie, and Dean J. H. Skinner down to the newest staff member turned out to welcome the Chicago delegation and took the visitors on a tour of the experiment stations, showing them improved crops and flocks that represent the life work of hundreds of men, and, more than that, that represent what this and similar institutions are doing to improve the products of the farm, to decrease the costs of production, and in turn to lower the cost to the consumer.

Plenty of Eye Openers.

There were eye openers all along the route over the experiment farms, through the barns, and in the laboratories of the Hoosier institution. Even to these wise men who are accustomed to handling big problems in their businesses day in and day out, Purdue had something to tell and things to show them—things directly concerned with the business of farming, to be sure, but it only took a few minutes to see how the experiment station helps the people of the city by helping the people on the farm.

When the Chicago men heard the stories of the station's herds and flocks they realized why Indiana farmers have such a profound respect for the findings of the research workers and the teachings of the institution, and why men in industry regard so highly Purdue's engineering school, the largest state engineering school in America, with its 1,900 students.

On the tour the visitors got a glimpse of university farms. These were nothing fancy, but all were substantially equipped and run in a practical way. They viewed the modern poultry plant owned and operated by the station for the benefit of farmers and poultrymen of both country and town. Two thousand hens of many different breeds are kept on the 17 acre poultry farm, and on this place, through the experimental work carried on, Purdue investigators have pointed the way for the rapid development of the poultry business in Indiana, which already returns to Hoosier flock owners a total of $60,000,000 a year. Dozens of new ideas developed at the station have become common practices on Indiana farms.

Producers of Champions.

Doubting Thomases in the party were relieved of their skeptical ideas about where international grand champion steers come from and where artists get their subject material when they paint a picture of cows and calves under apple trees in full bloom. Herdsmen at the station rounded up some of the choicest Shorthorns, Herefords, and Aberdeen-Anguses kept in the college herd of 175 animals. When the visitors rolled out of the cars at the pasture gate men had the red, white and roans, the white faces and black mothers of baby beeves all quietly chewing their cuds under pink blossomed apple trees. Here were the herds that had produced four of the International Live Stock exposition's grand champion fat steers — Fayvi Knight, Merry Monarch, Fayvi Knight the 2d, and Black Ruler.

The Purdue herd is handled in a practical way, which shows that almost any good farmer could produce a grand champion as easily as the men who look after the Indiana station's herd. Dean Skinner said: "We don't try to keep our herd in show shape, but as it would be kept for actual farm use."

The Angus herd, the meat producing black cattle on the university farm, was of special interest and has a story for every farmer. Back in 1903, Dean Skinner bought two cows and a bull from a famous Indiana herd, paying as much as $100, then an unheard of price, for one of the cows. The cow produced the first grand champion steer shown by Purdue in 1908 and one of her calves produced the other champion of that breed ten years later.

What Breeding Can Do.

The next glimpse in the Purdue panarama was the flock of sheep that has produced many prize winners. In a group of Rambouillets no new ewes have been introduced for nearly thirty years. New blood has been introduced by using different sires. The foundation stock with which the flock was started was of the best type, and the good methods of feeding and wise mating have produced one of the outstanding flocks of the breed, from which came the grand champion ram and other prize winners of the International show two years ago.

The dairy herd offered the same sort of demonstration. For example, one of the heifers in the herd is expected to more than double the butterfat record of her dam, according to estimates based on her record to date, all as a result of crossing with a high grade, pure bred bull. Through the clean methods practiced in the handling of the herd, the bacterial count of the milk is kept down to 2,500 to 3,000 per cubic centimeter. Chicago's city ordinance only requires that the number of bacteria in whole milk do not exceed 50,000 per cubic centimeter in winter and 100,000 in summer.

In the dairy herd there are several state champion Holsteins and Jerseys, and in almost every case they can be traced back to the foundation stock bought by Purdue years ago, showing what good breeding will do.

"All of the herds and flocks have been developed as John Jones and Bill Smith can do it on the average farm in Indiana or the middle west," said one of the men at the station. "All have come from meager and comparatively inexpensive starts to their present high state of development merely by wise selection of breeding animals and good methods of feeding and management, something taught all the students who study agriculture."

Increasing Tomato Crops.

In the greenhouses the Chicagoans were given a peek at plants of the great high yielding tomato developed by Purdue horticulturists. Through careful selection they have developed a strain of tomatoes known as the Baltimore, which yields from 15 to 20 tons to the acre, while the average yield of this crop is only 4 or 5 tons to the acre, according to these experts.

Indiana is the largest grower of tomatoes for canning purposes of any one of the forty-eight states, last year having about 80,000 acres in tomatoes. In coöperation with the Indiana Canning association, which pays the cost of part of the work in developing the Baltimore strain, 6,000 pounds of the seeds of the high yielder have been distributed to growers for this season's crop. This one piece of work will bring to Indiana growers, many of whom ship their products to the Chicago market, enough money in a single season to pay several times the cost of the experiment station work in a year. It not only gives the grower more money, but it furnishes the city consumer with a tomato of better quality and gives him more for his money.

Dozens of other contributions to the common good of both city and country were cited by Purdue workers as the Chicago party went over the farm and through the laboratories, all of them a direct service to the farming industry of Indiana and other states.

From Laboratory to Farmer.

Experimental work is going on every year at this station which has farms not only at Lafayette, Ind., but at more than twenty other points in the states. Some of the farms have been donated to the university by persons interested to see certain experiments worked out to a final and definite conclusion. The Spoor farm of 80 acres, for example, turned over to the station by J. A. Spoor and A. G. Leonard of the Chicago Union stockyards, is used to carry out a practical demonstration in farm reorganization work.

The results of the experiment on the various farms and the new information that grows out of such tests is constantly being given out to men and women of both the city and country through Purdue's extension system. More than 500,000 persons, a sixth of the Indiana population, were reached through Purdue's extension department last year.

The Chicago agricultural committee members were impressed with the practicability of the work as done by Purdue, and they see in it the source or fountainhead of the great movement for better agriculture in Indiana, better agriculture for the nation, and a better nation.

GARDENER'S POCKET SIZE GUIDE.

"Suburban Gardening," a sixty-four page illustrated booklet, is a valuable book to pack around in the garden overalls, especially at planting time. It has a planting chart on page 18, worked out particularly for Chicago vegetable gardeners, showing how much seed to buy for a 100 foot row, how far apart to mark the rows for different crops, how much space to allow within the row, when to plant, and about when the vegetables will be ready to use. There are hundreds of other valuable tips in the booklet for the amateur grower. The book was written by Frank Ridgway, "The Tribune" agricultural editor. Copies are available at The Tribune Public Service office or The Tribune Tower lobby for 10 cents, or 13 cents by mail.

Let Us Finance Your Building Needs

For 12 years our organization has specialized in the financing of buildings. During this time many millions of dollars of loans—first mortgages and first mortgage bond issues—have been made by us on apartments, commercial properties, and high grade office buildings. ORGANIZE TO GET ALL BENEFITS OF NEW I. C. ELECTRIC Monee Property Owners Form Association.

With electrification of the suburban service of the Illinois Central nearing completion, owners of property in the district between Richton, the electrification terminus, and Monee, four and a half miles to the south, are organizing to get the fullest benefits from the development. Already preliminary steps have been taken looking toward a permanent organization.

MAX LOEB.
[Meffett Photo.]

Among the real estate firms interested in the development are Loeb & Hammel, Cerf & Ehrenhalt, Cowing Brothers, Walker & Trankle, William Behrens, Henry P. Kransz & Co., and Frank C. Lemon. An executive committee to supervise the activities of the organization has been named and the members consist of Shirley Cowing, Max Loeb, Mr. Lemon and Mr. Behrens.

The principal aim of the group will be to obtain for the territory in which they are interested recognition as a part of the south suburban area primarily affected by the Illinois Central electrification, and ultimately, as the result of the development, to bring about extension of the electrification southward.

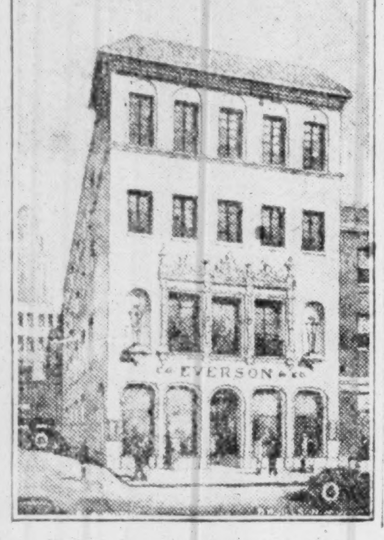
Cabranette Corporation Builds Indiana Plant

The Cabranette corporation of Chicago is building a $100,000 factory at Michigan City. The structure will be 500 feet long and 100 feet wide. J. L. Wiener, vice president of the firm, is the architect. M. A. Cushman of the Cushman Bond and Mortgage company was instrumental in having the firm bring its plant to the Indiana city. He is making a bond issue on the building.

Firm of O'Connor, Burke, McDonnell Quits Business

Daniel J. O'Connor, Edmund H. Burke, and Walter J. McDonnell announce that their real estate firm, which formerly operated at 750 East 79th street, under the name of O'Connor, Burke & McDonnell, has been dissolved. The erstwhile partners will open separate offices in the near future.

Bit of Spain



Byron H. Jillson is the architect for the four story building at 217 North Dearborn which is being remodeled for the C. G. Everson company, manufacturers of lighting fixtures. The building will be used for salesrooms. The structure is to be divided into rooms of different periods and nations. There will be Spanish, French, Italian, Georgian, English, and colonial rooms. The exterior is to be in the Spanish style, the central feature being a replica of the panel windows in the Hotel Del Rey. The attractive design of the building was adopted so that it would be in harmony with the fine buildings to be erected on Wacker drive adjoining. Ed. L. Bloomster made the above rendering.

Chicagoans Subdivide 120 Acres on Lake Koshkonong

The Hecht, Werner company has opened a subdivision called Edgerton Park Beach on Lake Koshkonong, one of the largest inland bodies of water in Wisconsin. The property consists of 130 acres and is 110 miles from Chicago. The firm has just moved from room 503 to 429 Burnham building.

$132,000 PAID FOR 80 ACRES IN CRAWFORD AVE.

Many Deals Reported in Chicago Area.

The Guarno Real Estate Improvement corporation reports two Crawford avenue acreage sales in which the sellers do not wish to disclose their names. In one deal the Union Bank of Chicago took title for a syndicate to forty acres at the southwest corner of Crawford and 119th street, paying at the reported rate of $1,800 an acre, or a total of $72,000. Gerard M. Guarno was attorney representing all parties.

In the other deal a syndicate headed by Jacob Sobelman bought the forty acres at the northwest corner of Crawford and 115th street for a reported price of $60,000. Subdivision is planned. Hoffman & Becker were brokers for the buyers and Vincent E. Guarno was broker for the seller.

The eighty acre tract at the northeast corner of Naperville and Warrenville roads has been sold by Amelia Book Fey and John Book of Naperville to Samuel Slosberg and Albert Cutter for a reported price of $80,000. The property will be subdivided and sold by the Consumers' Realty and Development company as their Naper Villa subdivision. Maurice A. Barancik represented the buyers and Benjamin L. Piper the sellers.

J. Putnam Tobias has sold ninety-eight acres in section 30, Bloom township, in the Matteson-Chicago Heights district, to a syndicate for which the Union Bank of Chicago took title. The reported sale price was $120,000. Cowing Brothers of Homewood, Ill., were brokers.

John Prassas bought forty acres at the northeast of 119th and Crawford avenues from Grover C. Elmore for a reported price of $1,200 an acre. The purchase was made for investment. Allen & Nikopoulos represented both parties as brokers.

Charles Horcher has taken title for an undisclosed syndicate to the 160 acre Weidner farm located on Dundee and Rand roads. The price was not given. C. M. Behrens & Co. of Arlington Heights were brokers.

WINNEMAC AVENUE SALE.

I. T. Robert Evans bought the six flat building at 1449-51 Winnemac avenue; lot 50x117 feet, from Joseph Blonski for a reported $40,000, subject to $28,500. Knipp & Shapiro were brokers.

BUY 345 ACRES AT BARRINGTON; PLAN GOLF CLUB

D. C. Schroeder and Gilbert D. Johnson & Bro. are heading a syndicate which has purchased 345 acres north of Barrington, Ill., and south of Wauconda, from the heirs of Charles Miller and Vincent Davlin. The syndicate has put a dam across a creek traversing the property, forming a body of water called Indian lake. Leonard Macomber, a golf architect, is making a survey of the land, and it is stated that an eighteen hole golf course is contemplated. The tract contains 125 acres of woods, which will be used for home sites.

Have you a limited amount to put into a home?

If your means won't permit a large expenditure for a home, it's all the more important to buy a well-built house that is economical to live in.

Often it is the needed additions to equipment that interfere with the monthly payments and cause financial embarrassment.

Look out for an old-fashioned, hand-regulated heating plant! Nothing will more quickly upset the New Home Budget you have planned. Choose a house that is equipped for comfortable, economical heating with a Minneapolis (automatic) Heat Regulator. It isn't strictly modern if it hasn't a Minneapolis. You will find it in the better-built homes, even those costing only a few thousand dollars.

WHY
KRENN & DATO
Offers You
The Best Selling Opportunity

Our selling campaign is forging ahead vigorously; our Sales Organization is stronger now than ever; we are just finishing a Sales Contest which is the admiration of the entire real estate field in Chicago.

The reason for this splendid progress in Sales is to be found in the reputation and accomplishments of our Firm; in the excellent properties which are selling in and around Chicago.

We have the most remarkable Subdivision developments on the market today. Our Salesmen and Saleswomen are making money because of the class of properties we sell, and the variety of locations we are offering to the public. A sale is never lost for a Krenn & Dato salesman because the prospect wants something the firm does not have.

We have properties to suit the needs as well as the pocketbooks of every prospective purchaser in Chicago. The following properties are now on the market for you to sell:

DEVONSHIRE MANOR
Formerly the Devonshire Golf Club, located at the crossing of two full-section lines, one block from the Dempster Street Elevated Terminal.

HIGHLAND PARK HIGHLANDS
In Chicago's most exclusive suburb; located within a stone's throw of Lake Michigan.

NORTH EDGEWATER
The only Northside property within the city limits left for sale.

NORTH SHORE ACRES
Along Sheridan Road in the livest town of the North Shore.

CALUMET HIGHLANDS
The closest-in South Shore Property.

If you are an active, red-blooded, two-fisted Salesman and believe in yourself, you can make this season the greatest in your career. We want no drifters nor failures from other organizations to join us; we want men and women who are willing to sell high-grade properties according to our standards of doing business. There is room in our Organization for WORKERS. If INEXPERIENCED in selling, we teach you HOW TO SELL in our Free School of Real Estate Salesmanship. All you must have is ambition and willingness to work; the rest is our job. See me in person.

Greater NILES CENTER District

The Triangle of Fortune Linked to the Loop by

RAPID TRANSPORTATION

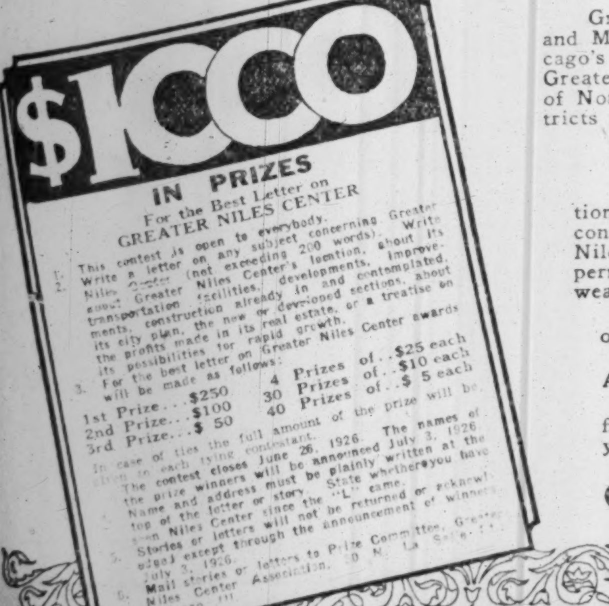
MINUTES, not mileage, determine distance. Today the Greater Niles Center district is but 39 minutes to the Loop. It is nearer in time than Devon and Western, 63rd and Cottage Grove, 79th and Halsted.

The Niles Center "L" Express will be the last word in modern transportation. It draws the only open property adjoining Chicago's north shore boundary into quick contact with the city's center. The Greater Niles Center district, Chicago's newest real estate development, thus has the advantage of the latest and fastest form of city transportation.

If Greater Niles Center had but the "L" express, that alone would warrant its claim of excellent transportation. But it has, besides, the new Skokie Valley Route of the North Shore Line, to begin operation June 5th. It has also the interurban schedules of the Northwestern and St. Paul railways, besides handy bus lines. Already the Evanston street car system has applied for a franchise to extend westward.

Transportation builds values. Here is transportation in a variety and quality rare if not unprecedented in the history of new Chicago developments.

It is the location of Greater Niles Center that justified superlative transportation. Its close proximity to the lake, its contact with the North Side and Evanston—districts with the finest type of improvements and the highest ground values and rents along the north shore—give Niles Center a unique and exclusive advantage extended perhaps to no similar development of its magnitude in Chicago's history.



$1000 IN PRIZES
For the Best Letter on GREATER NILES CENTER

1. This contest is open to everybody.
2. Write a letter on any subject concerning Greater Niles Center (not exceeding 200 words). Write about Greater Niles Center's location, about its transportation facilities, developments, improvements, construction already in and contemplated, its city plan, the new or developed sections, about the profits made in its real estate, or a treatise on its possibilities for rapid growth.
3. For the best letter on Greater Niles Center awards will be made as follows:

1st Prize...	$250	4 Prizes	of..$25 each
2nd Prize...	$100	30 Prizes	of..$10 each
3rd Prize...	$ 50	40 Prizes	of..$ 5 each

In case of ties the full amount of the prize will be given to each tying contestant.

4. The contest closes June 26, 1926. The names of the prize winners will be announced July 3, 1926. Name and address must be plainly written at the top of the letter or story. State whether you have seen Niles Center since the "L" came.
5. Stories or letters will not be returned or acknowledged except through the announcement of winners July 3, 1926.
6. Mail stories or letters to Prize Committee, Greater Niles Center Association, [illegible]0 N. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

The Greater Niles Center District Is the Triangle of Fortune

Greater Niles Center forms a triangle between the beautiful north shore suburbs and Milwaukee Avenue's line of thriving communities. The irresistible force of Chicago's growth and yearly expansion of 100,000 will quickly and inevitably populate the Greater Niles Center district as it did Edgewater and Rogers Park. The amazing history of North Side "L" terminals in the Wilson Avenue, Howard Street and Ravenswood districts is bound to repeat itself here—and with greater rapidity.

Construction Now Going On

Today Niles Center is a mighty community in the making! With building operations now going on, with millions invested in underground improvements that precede construction, with many more millions to be spent this spring and summer, Greater Niles Center district is taking on the appearance of a building era. The building permits in the first three months of this year—the "quiet" months, with unseasonable weather conditions—totaled $410,000.

Residences and apartment buildings are rising overnight, and are quickly occupied. Ground costs are much lower and building costs far under Chicago.

Was there ever a better opportunity for a home, a business or an investment? A rare location, unparalleled transportation, improvements, building activity!

Conservative bankers believe in Niles Center's future. They are ready to finance construction of homes, apartments and stores. If you already own property you can build at once.

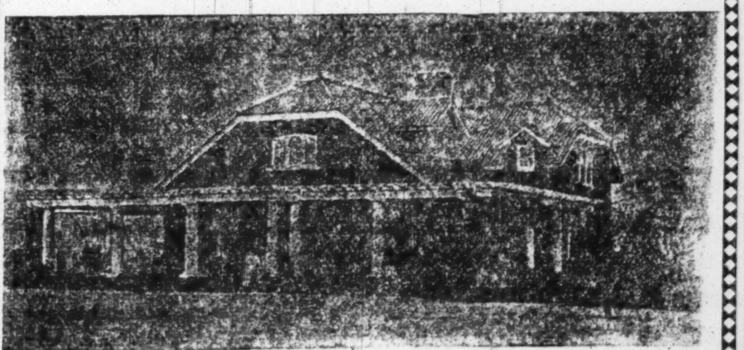
MAGNIFICENT SOUTHERN ESTATE
With Private Golf Course, Ideal Year-Around Place for Pleasure and Profit



1,300 acres with modern palatial home, cost to build, $40,000. Foreman's house, twenty tenant houses, $10,000 equipment, all necessary machinery, tractors, mules, etc., to operate. Home furnishings valued $7,500. Golf course and lake. Ideal site for more lakes and game preserve. 17,000 peach trees, 3,000 pecan trees. First 10,000 peach trees past seven years have netted 8% on $250,000; with 275 acres young orchards and groves on eve of bearing, will soon pay 8% to 10% on half million dollars. Income sure, never had a failure of crop. Reason for selling, bad health and desire to quit business. For this reason owner will include usual $40,000 to $50,000 peach crop as of May 1 when crop will be nearly made, without adding a dollar to price of farm. Owner will assist through harvesting. Prospects now 45 to 50 cars. Farm has state-wide reputation, peaches always selling at premium prices. Ideal location for private winter or year round resort with fine income. Middle Georgia, near two state highways. Can be subdivided. Estimated value $3[illegible],850. With young orchards bearing will then be worth double what we are now asking. For above reason owner will make sacrifice price for quick sale. A rare [illegible] Southern Home. TERMS: One-fourth cash, assume loans, balance 5 to 10 years to suit. Take long term and pay for property [illegible] request. Brokers protected.

Hammond Needs Better Class Homes

Woodmar Is Where They Are Being Built. The Demand Is Acute.

MILLION DOLLAR BUILDING BOOM NOW UNDER WAY

We will finance builders for 70 per cent of the cost of homes, the plans of which are approved by us. All utilities available. The environment may be judged by the fact that the Woodmar Golf Club, owning an 18 hole course, has practically a filled membership list and a public 18 hole course is also under construction in 225 acre Wicker Park, adjoining Woodmar.

Prospective home builders need not apply unless: 1. They are responsible. 2. They are adequately capitalized. 3. Know their business. 4. Will build distinctive homes.

Woodmar is a self-contained city of 640 acres, located inside the city limits of Hammond. It is zoned and restricted. Business locations, flat sites and five classes of residential property meet as varied and exacting requirements as that of any Chicago suburb.

HAMMOND'S POPULATION IS NOW 75,000

The recent school census shows an increase of 10,000 in one year. WOODMAR lies just outside of the industrial district. The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Works and the Roxana Petroleum Corporation are each now building plants, the combined cost of which is $30,000,000 and will employ a total of 7,000 men.

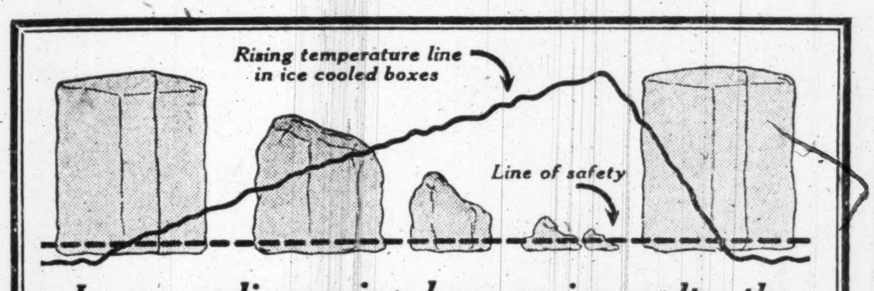
The Last Ice you ever need buy

Right into the ice compartment of your present icebox goes Zerozone, and you will have colder-than-ice refrigeration every hour of the day and night, every day of the year, for years to come. For less than the cost of ice you can enjoy the wonderful convenience of automatic electric refrigeration. Nothing to worry about, or pay any attention to.

Keeps Food Always Fresh

Zerozone eliminates needless drudgery, and simplifies housekeeping. More than that, it directly promotes the health of your family. Old-fashioned ice, besides being expensive and troublesome, is unsanitary. Authorities have proved that a certain temperature must be maintained in the refrigerator to keep food and milk in proper condition. Most iceboxes, only refilled at intervals, cannot possibly do this. Zerozone safeguards health, by automatically and continuously maintaining a temperature that keeps your food always within the zone of safety.



In an ordinary ice box, as ice melts, the temperature rises above the safety line

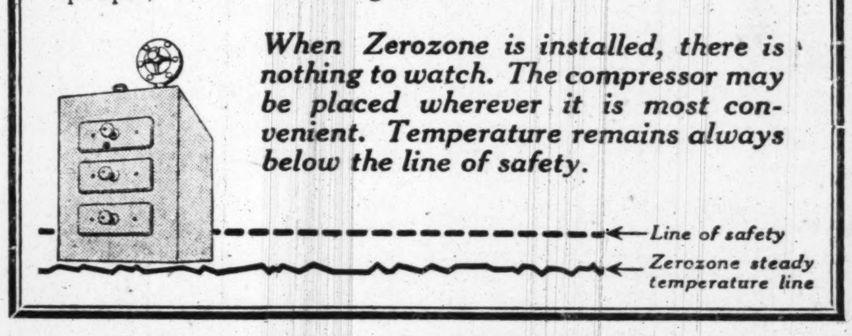
Zerozone Safeguards Health

Dr. J. B. Williams, Rochester, N. Y., stated before the American Medical Association, 1925:

"A refrigerator which is not kept at refrigeration temperature is a good incubator for bacteria. It furnishes food, humidity, darkness, and still air—just the conditions required for healthy bacteria growth."

Of 243 iceboxes examined in a test, only 103 had a temperature below 50°. The others were worthless for preserving food. 45% of refrigerators in homes of the well-to-do, and nearly 70% in homes of working people, were in the danger zone.

When Zerozone is installed, there is nothing to watch. The compressor may be placed wherever it is most convenient. Temperature remains always below the line of safety.



Indispensable to the Hostess

Zerozone is vital to the hostess with a reputation to maintain; it introduces a new era in table luxury. Delicious frozen salads and desserts, iced drinks with Zerozone cubes, tinted if you wish, surprise and delight the family and guests. These frozen delicacies can only be made by electric (colder-than-ice) refrigeration. They are unknown in homes with old-fashioned ice cooled boxes.

Free to You

Every good hostess wants to know all about this new vogue of iced dainties. We have prepared a very interesting booklet "The New Art in Iced Foods." It gives you a choice of frozen delicacies, from over 31 new and delightful recipes you will not find in your own cook book. Women everywhere are asking for it.

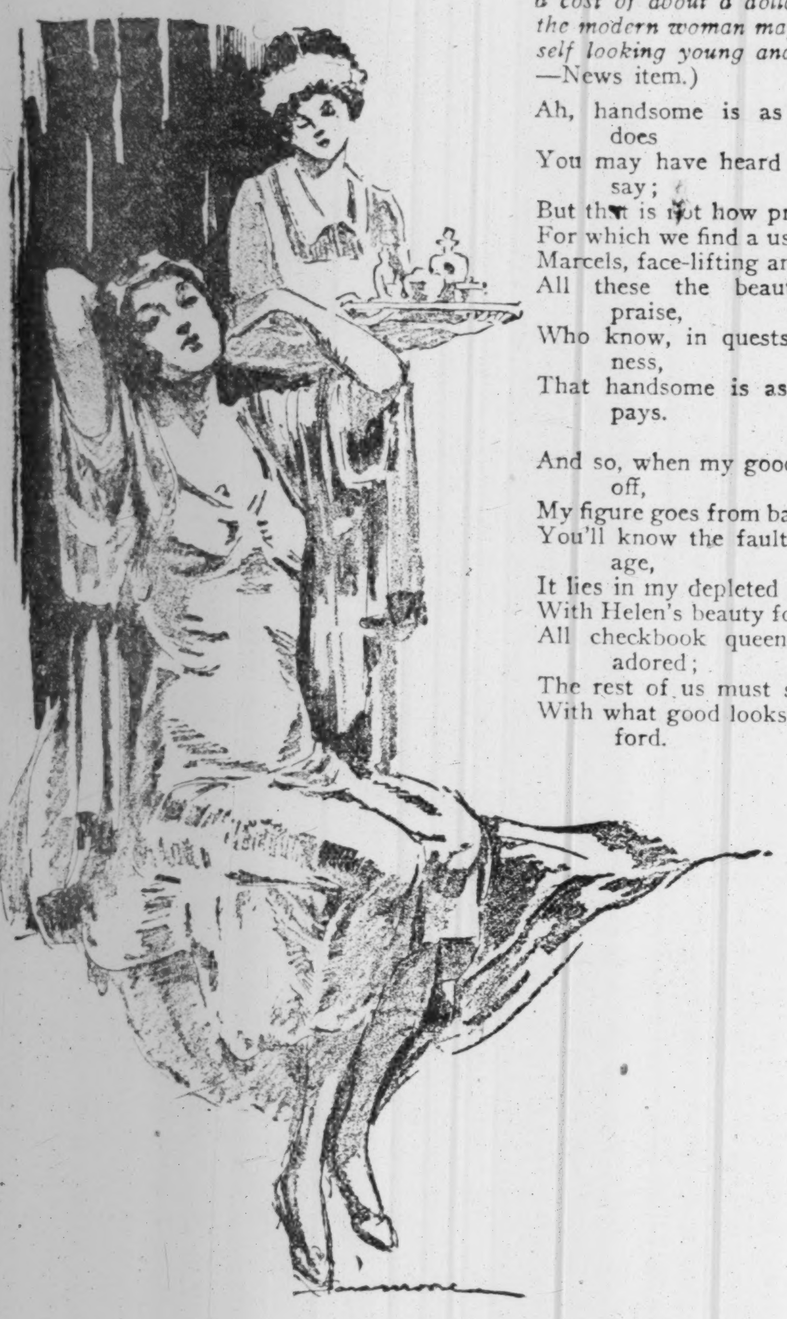
MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

by SARA MOORE



PRICE TAGGED.

(For seven dollars a week—at a cost of about a dollar a day—the modern woman may keep herself looking young and beautiful. —News item.)

Ah, handsome is as handsome does
You may have heard old timers say;
But that is not how proverbs run
For which we find a use today.
Marcels, face-lifting and massage,
All these the beauty doctors praise,
Who know, in quests of loveliness,
That handsome is as handsome pays.

And so, when my good looks fall off,
My figure goes from bad to worse,
You'll know the fault is not my age,
It lies in my depleted purse.
With Helen's beauty for spot cash
All checkbook queens shall be adored;
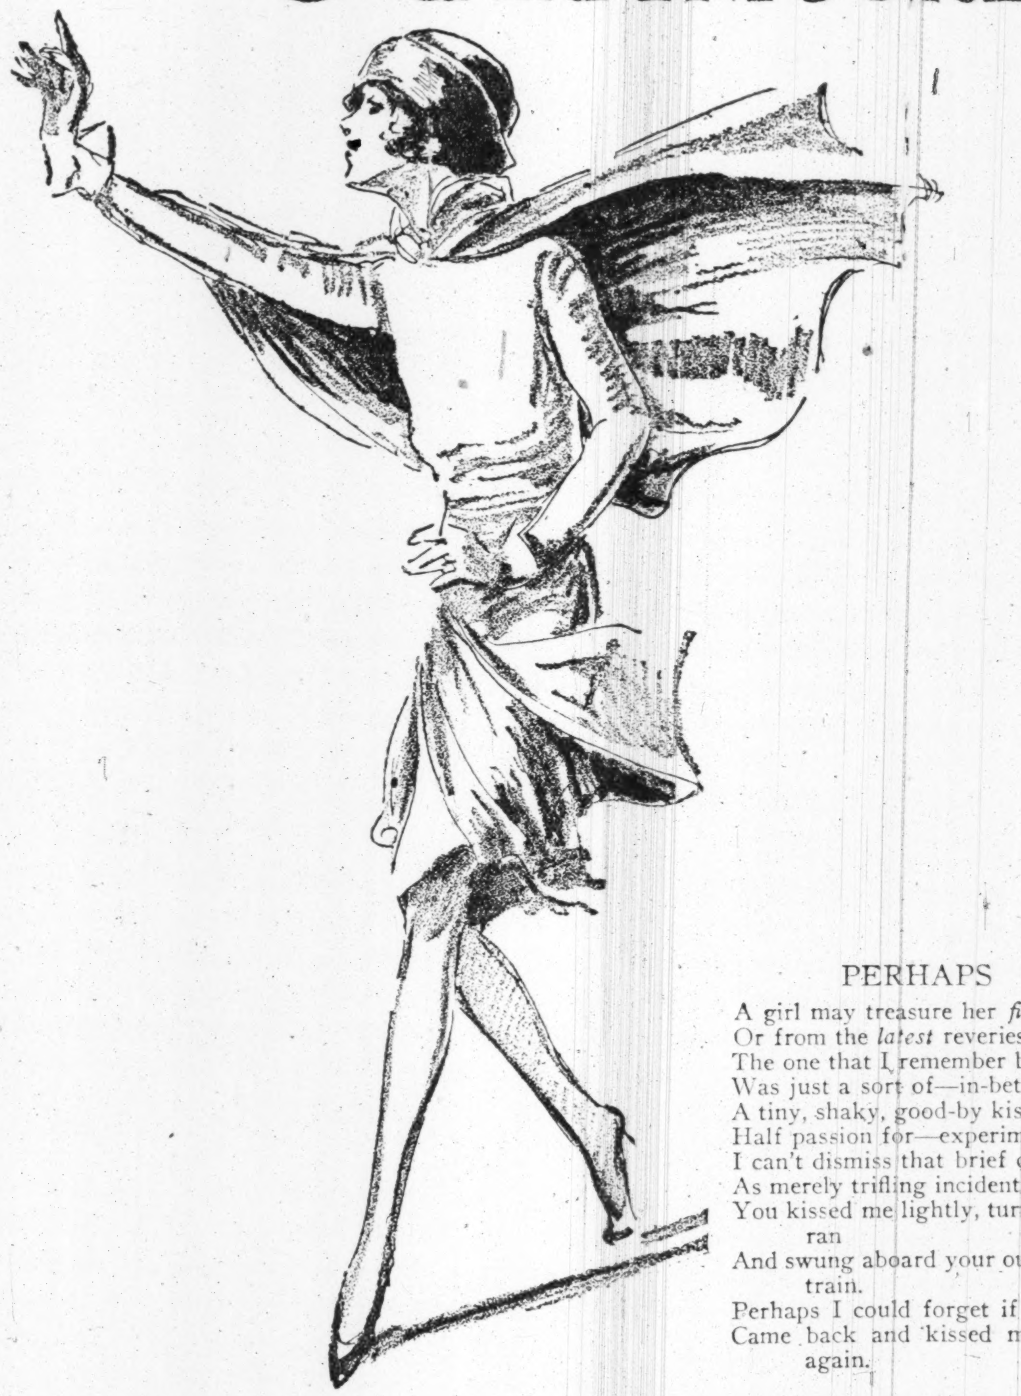
The rest of us must struggle on
With what good looks we can afford.



PERHAPS

A girl may treasure her first kiss
Or from the latest reveries glean;
The one that I remember best
Was just a sort of—in-between.
A tiny, shaky, good-by kiss
Half passion for—experiment.
I can't dismiss that brief caress
As merely trifling incident.
You kissed me lightly, turned and ran
And swung aboard your outbound train.
Perhaps I could forget if you
Came back and kissed me once again.

"DON'T DIE ON THIRD."

"They" remarked:
The chimes ring out. A radiance
Moves slowly down the aisle.
The bride seems just a trifle pale
Beneath her sweet, shy smile.
The wedding has solemnity
For just a little while.

The bride thought:
Well, here I go. I leave third base
To make the scoring run.
The stretch from here to home-is where
The game is lost—or won.
A little nerve, a final spurt
And then the thing is done.

Selecting Linen for the Bride of Moderate Means

BY PERSIS STANDISH.

TROUSSEAU! Beautiful word interwoven with the dreams of every girl, connected subtly with the elegance and romance, woven into the fabric of feminine youth like the water-mark of fine papers! Indelible word written on all girlish hearts, but grown indistinct in some because, like other dreams, it began early to be faded by the glare of reality! But here is cheering news, here is a statement that will bring back the color to the word and hope to the blue little heart. It is not the cost of the trousseau that counts, but the cleverness with which it is selected.

An inexpensive trousseau carefully and tastefully selected can be as correct as a lavish one and is apt to be much more appropriate for the use of the girl who marries the young man in moderate circumstances. What good, for instance, are a set of Venice lace doilies if one hasn't enough bath towels? And surely the average man would rather have two plain linen towels than one with lace on it. You can supply your sense of the artistic by substituting color for laces and embroideries.

The secretary of a friend of mine who married lately, and who made $25 a week and supported her mother, had one of the most attractive trousseaux I have ever seen. Her favorite color is green, so instead of trying to buy a lot of lace and embroidery on her linens with her limited income, she used her favorite color for her inspiration. She bought guest towels in plain green linen and hemstitched them herself. For hand towels she bought white linen and had green linen hems two inches wide picoted on to them. Her bath towels are white with green striped borders, and she has monogrammed several in green. A green hooked rug made by her mother, at the cost of eight dollars, and green voile curtains complete the bathroom where a green oilcloth covers radiator and window sills.

Her table linen, too, is charming. She has several luncheon sets in various shades of green, and napkins to match, some of which she has made herself in an Italian hemstitch which is simple and goes quickly. For her best set she bought a plain Irish damask and napkins to match and paid three dollars to have them dyed. If she had bought them in her favorite shade she would have had to pay three times as much as she did in white. So you see the question is not how much a trousseau costs, but how well it is selected.

For the Average Person.

To get back to the original theme, the question is what does the average bride need for a trousseau. The answer is, conventionally speaking, enough clothes for a year, and household linens. Here is the way it may be done on a small income. We will talk of linens first, because every woman takes a certain pride in having the proper linen to take into her new home.

In former times it was quite an undertaking because no tablecloth was less than two yards long and napkins were at least twenty-four inches square. But things have changed. Linens, like clothes for women, are less conventional and more beautiful than they have ever been. What with small apartments and consequent small tables the old fashioned white damask has disappeared in favor of lovely colors and charming designs, just as the old fashioned white canvas night gown with long sleeves and high neck has vanished in favor of bright shifts of crêpe de chine and satin.

Choosing the Linen.

One's table and linen may be lovely and yet a small item in one's trousseau budget. Sheets and pillow cases, on the other hand, must be purchased, as always, with care and thought as to their stability. A few substantial sheets and pillow cases will outlast twice the number of sleesy ones.

Color and imagination may be used again in the purchase of towels, but, since these have to be washed so often, care should be taken not to buy the colors that are not fast—such as lavender and pale blue.

Table linen can now be used for three meals. Where it was once considered rude to serve dinner on an uncovered table with just doilies, it is now the thing. In fact, the smartest of smart tables is one on which there is nothing but the central runner, made either of linen, lace, or old silk damask. There is a variety of lace, wide and coarse, known as filet antique, available in any shop for prices ranging from three to seven dollars a yard that is ideal for those runners and which takes a dye beautifully if one cares to have them in color. They can be finished by hand fringing, which is simple and interesting work which the fancy goods department of any shop will be glad to instruct you in.

One Bride's Budget.

Here is the list of a practical but inexpensive trousseau of linens which a bride who works for a small salary can buy for herself. It is a model of correctness and taste:

12 sheets at $2.25 each [percale, since linen sheets are out of the question for limited incomes]	$27.00
12 pillowcases at 60 cents each	7.20
12 bath towels at 75 cents	9.00
12 hand towels at $1	12.00
Six guest towels at $1.25	7.50
Six wash cloths at 25 cents	1.50
Two colored damask luncheon sets of six pieces [a small square cloth and six napkins] at $5.50 each	11.00
One lace and linen luncheon set of thirteen pieces, in color, with cream Binche lace	23.50
One hand made filet antique runner dyed deep tan	4.75

This runner she made of the lace spoken of earlier in this article. It is 42 inches long, with a 6 inch fringe, which makes its entire length 54 inches.

Six tan Italian napkins, 18x18	$ 5.00
Six lace service doilies	2.50
Six Madeira napkins for tea or supper	3.00
12 dish towels at 40 cents	4.80
12 dish towels [cotton] at 25 cents	3.00

Next Sunday I will adivse the prospective bride about her clothes.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

By Bettina Bedwell.

GEORGETTE FOR SUMMER.

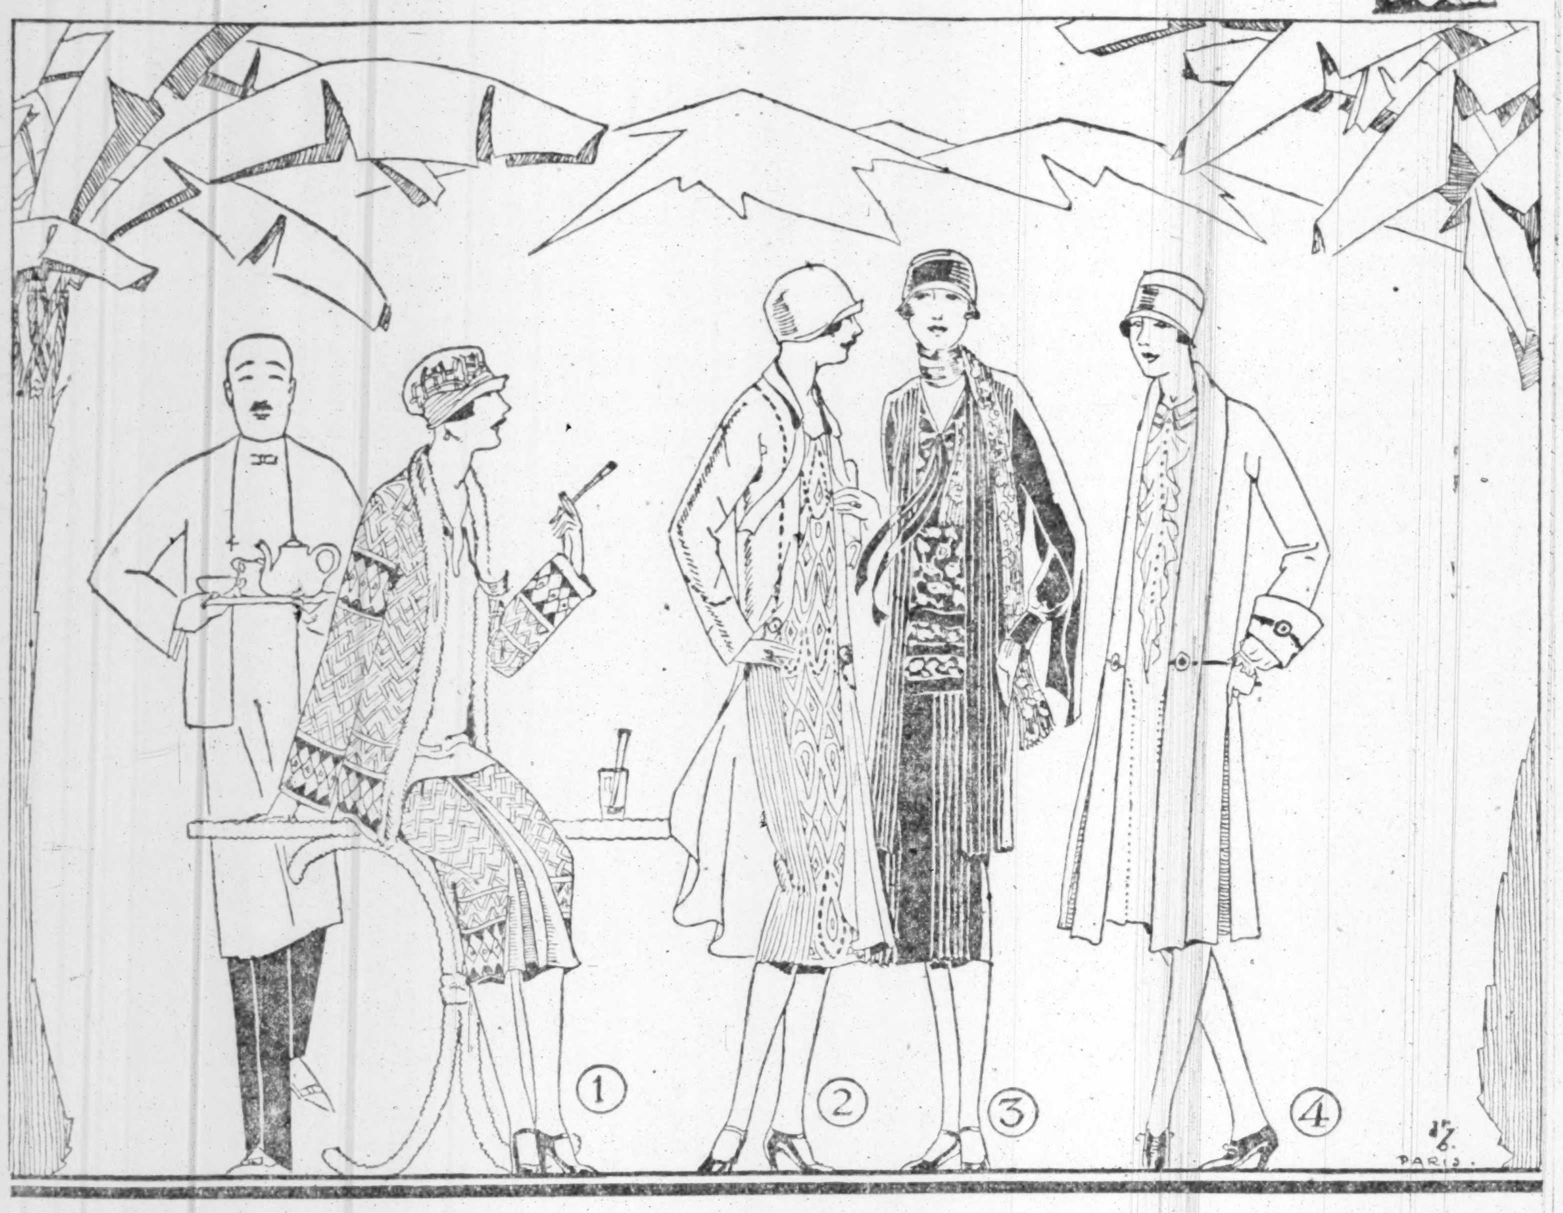
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The crêpe family, and particularly the georgette branch, has increased noticeably this spring. There are a goodly number of new offspring—crêpe ginette, a twin sister to georgette, and fluer de soie, a first cousin, being prominent indeed in the Paris mode. The new crêpes are all of a vaporous variety, so thin that they counterfeit chiffon, without inheriting its evil habits of pulling and general sleaziness. They have the sturdiness that has kept crêpe georgette in the wardrobes of the first families of the mode for many seasons, and this season makes them really leaders in summer fashions.

Now that everybody has established the habit of wearing a coat, no matter how hot the weather, crêpe georgette is taking first rank as a fabric for midsummer ensembles, with other crêpes following. The couturiers of Paris and their fashionable clientèle are divided about fifty-fifty on the question of whether georgette shall be printed or plain, which means that it is altogether a matter of personal taste. The question of chic is settled with the acquisition of crêpe georgette or its diaphanous kin as the fabric of your summer ensemble. This ensemble may be of the regulation kind, with full length or three-quarters length coat, or it may have a jacket like a tailleur. Again, it may be made with a knee length jacket. Any of these wraps are favored by Paris leaders of styles. If the printed crêpe is chosen and you want to add opulence, Paris will embroider part or all of the printed design for you, in beads, in silk, or in raffia, the last being quite the newest idea that has appeared this spring.

Printed crêpes with a decorative border are used frequently by Paris grands couturiers for summer ensembles, and some of the most stunning ones I have seen are made of these bordered crêpes. However, this is a material for the slender, and the tall woman, particularly where the border is pronounced, as it cuts the line of the silhouette. Breaks made by the border are good, indeed, to offset too great height, and to increase the appearance of width, but they are not for the woman who wants to appear taller or more slender.

Our first model today is a Worth ensemble for the girl between 16 and 30—in looks. It makes excellent use of the bordered crêpe georgette with an all over pattern, also. The colors of the crêpe are brown and mahogany red, and Worth has applied the artist's color touch in the gray squirrel band that forms a collar and full length revers on the hip length straight jacket. The novel feature of this crêpe georgette jacket is its dropped shoulder sleeve, this cut being accentuated by the border design, which appears there and at the cuff also. The idea is, so M. Worth says, to get away from that square angular line which a lot of women have, and the trick of dropping the armhole does this. The border of the crêpe georgette also forms a decorative band at the bottom of the jacket, which is lined with plain mahogany crêpe georgette.



1—Worth trims a mahogany and brown georgette tailleur with gray squirrel.

2—This Poiret ensemble of dark blue georgette is embroidered in tiny steel tubes.

3—A plaited dark blue georgette ensemble has a distinctive scarf and blouse of printed crepe.

4—Full length revers are an important style item on this beige georgette ensemble from Drecoll.

Under this jacket is worn a straight jumper blouse of the plain color, having a regulation jumper blouse collar that is novelized by two long tabs in front. The blouse is fitted close on the hips so that it forms a graceful drapery of folds. Worth has made the skirt straight, and places the border at the bottom to form a hem. Width is introduced in the deep plaited godet that is placed at the center front. This godet is made of plain, mahogany colored crêpe georgette, and each crease is outlined by a narrow zig-zag line of gold braid. The ensemble is the kind that Parisiennes wear for afternoon, and often for dinner in the Bois and dancing later.

Our second model is a general daytime ensemble of crêpe georgette from Poiret. The coat, which is of plain dark blue crêpe, has a flat back and a circular flare in front from the low waist line. A typical Poiret touch is the collar, which is made of a flat band of the georgette arranged in two loops that meet at the back of the neck. Two long ends, which may be tied, are hung from beneath the loops in front. The only trimming of this simple coat is a row of long steel beads, shaped like those crystal tubes that are used to embroider evening dresses. This file of steel tubes outlines the front closing and curves around the waist. A similar trimming is used on the sleeves. Linked steel buttons at the waist line in front form its fastening.

The accompanying dress combines plain dark blue crêpe georgette with a front of blue and gold printed georgette. Full length plaits at the sides and in back make a gracious fullness, which a narrow girdle restrains at the low waist line. Poiret has enhanced the printed design that forms the front panel by an embroidery of oblong steel beads below the V of the neckline, at the waist, and at the hem.

Our third model is another Worth ensemble in georgette, and one of his most successful, which sells for enough money to help considerably in decreasing the French deficit. It is made, for the most part, of dark blue crêpe georgette, with a knee length plaited jacket and a side plaited skirt. The sleeves of the jacket are slit from the elbows, showing half of the dress sleeve, and they are somewhat longer than the knuckles of the hand. A nice item of distinction is the plaited scarf, made of printed georgette on a blue ground. This scarf is worn outside the coat as you see it, on one side, wound around the neck, and passed through a slit under the blouse collar to hang in a bust length end inside of the coat. The coat itself has no collar, and the collar of the blouse is the simple jumper with a long crêpe georgette tie. The blouse is cut bolero, with a border at the natural waist line termination of blue braid, and the top of the skirt has a double printed crêpe yoke, divided by braid which gives the appearance of a hip length jumper.

The last model is one of Drecoll's most beautiful summer ensembles in beige crêpe georgette with a full length coat having box plaits at the sides, and a narrow line girdle of black velvet ending in big, black and beige buttons. The cuffs are similarly trimmed. A smart feature is the full length rever collar. With this coat is worn an exquisitely simple dress of beige crêpe georgette, with four box plaits on the skirt, at side front, and back. A double collar of self-material and a deep jabot trimmed with crêpe covered buttons finish the frock in a satisfactory manner.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

COCOANUTS AND CURRIES.

WE of the temperate zones, who are accustomed to crying for such things as the moon, may, not without reason, bewail that state of affairs which deprives us of that delicious natural confection, the green cocoanut, or the contents of what is, sometimes called the "jelly nut"—the unripe cocoanut. No sugar is required to sweeten this pudding of nature's own making, although certain rather violent utensils are required in order to get to it, such as a hatchet, or an ax, or, in the fierce days of pirates, a more picturesque piece of steel with a sharp edge.

An old book on foods, the science of which is quite unreliable today, says the green nut is lined with a creamy substance and contains an intensely cold water which is "readily obtained by cutting the end of the nut across with a cutlass and holding it upright. The enjoyment of this fruit by one living in a hot climate cannot be appreciated by those in temperate regions."

The account of the cocoanut palm in this book says that it furnishes "meat, milk, wines, spirits, vinegar, sugar and sirups, besides mats, cords, sails, strainers, tinder, firewood, houses, boats, and fencing, and is undoubtedly the most useful tree in the world."

It is enormously used by the real estate men in Florida for decorative purposes and the quick growth of the tree to bearing stage has given it great popularity in that quarter of the globe. In twelve years after planting the little sprout you can have nuts which will furnish milk and cream for the table and for cooking, or an equivalent of afternoon soda water. On Long Key, where the train going to Key West stops to allow passengers to get luncheon, I saw stacked a ton or so of cocoanuts which a man was selling as fast as he could dig out their eyes or punch holes in them and insert sippers. After the milk inside was sipped the people who had wandered around in the cocoanut grove sands while sipping returned to the source to have the nut cracked. After that they strolled around eating the meat.

In the city of Havana, Cuba, both the green cocoanuts and the cocoanut water are to be had at refreshment places, and the latter is sold with one of the most curious meringues—giving a combination somewhat like ice cream and cake—that one of wide experience in seeing such things ever saw.

Because real cow's cream is expensive in the tropics, the milk of the cocoanut, and a sort of cream that may be got from it, is used even for coffee, and those who get accustomed to its use are said to prefer it. For various desserts the milk is used with milk and sugar, but it would be impossible to cook anything that would equal the contents of the green cocoanut for this purpose.

In some parts of the tropical world cocoanut meat, or the milk, is considered an indispensable ingredient of curry, into which also go the sour fruits. Such a combination of ingredients forms one of the most delicious ways—when right—of making a bit of meat go the longest way possible.

The cocoanut is really a sort of Arabian Nights fruit. Not long ago some American investigators took to hunting for the beautiful pearl which the inhabitants of the Malayan peninsula find floating—one in about 1,000 times—in the milk of the cocoanut, and which they wear as a precious amulet.

It is said that both the word "toddy" and "jag" came from uses made of the cocoanut. But tropical peoples drink the fresh milk or a thickish liquid made from the green cocoanut by the gallon, fresh. The fermented product is hard to find.

Cocoanut Milk.

Grate a fresh cocoanut and measure. Pour over it an equal quantity of boiling water, stir for a few minutes and strain it through a cloth. Set this aside to cool and a layer of snow white fat will form on the top, which is stiff like the cake of fat on beef soup but this can be melted and used for coffee, or for any of the things for which pure vegetable fat is desirable.

Cocoanut Butter.

If one chooses to make a little cocoanut butter, she can be sure that her product is about the most sanitary thing possible, while the same thing made on a large scale is something different again. A writer in the Country Gentleman a few years ago discussed the making of this because of the scarcity of real butter and its high price. He said: "Butter made of cocoanuts is entirely as good as, and some people think it better than, that which is made of cow's milk. Grind the meat of the nut as fine as you can with a good grinder, and to each nut add a pint of boiling water; put it in a press to separate the milk from the pulp, and you have a milk much like cow's milk in looks and taste."

This looks like milk, but it tastes as nearly like the pulp as it can, naturally. At this stage this writer says it can be used on cereal, in coffee, for custards, or for anything for which one would use cow's milk. There is no reason why one should not drink it, varying it to suit the taste as one does cow's milk by adding a grate of nutmeg, or other seasoning, or a sirup.

As to the rest of the process, this is what he writes: "From this stage the treatment that we follow is just the same as that ordinarily used for cow's milk. Let the milk stand and the cream rise; sour it and churn. After washing out the buttermilk salt, make into rolls or molds." This may be colored, this writer says, like any butter, and adds: "Our friends from the north who visit us frequently are delighted with our cocoanut butter, and something curried—curried prawns and them. It takes from six to ten nuts to make a pound of butter. It should be churned at a temperature of 70 degrees, or below." We do not believe that it could be churned at a temperature much below 70 degrees, because the cocoanut fat stiffens as it cools.

Curry Powder.

A curry recipe has one uncertain element. It is the curry powder. One of the men who professes to know just what curries should be says: "It is of the utmost importance to get good curry powder, for if your curry powder is not right your dish will be ruined. It is either good or bad." There is nothing one learns more surely by eating in the restaurants of London, every one of which will have something curried—curried prawns shrimps are almost universal—than that curries can be excellent or abominable. So in giving recipes for curries, pleasant little compounds of meat made to go a long way by serving them with rice, I like to give the following recipe for a highly superior curry powder, which can be used in frying meats as a part of the seasoning put into the pan with the fat, for sauces for macaroni and in many other ways:

Two teaspoons of black pepper, two teaspoons of cinnamon, four scant teaspoons of mustard, four scant teaspoons of powdered ginger, two teaspoons of salt, one teaspoon of ground alspice, one teaspoon powdered cloves, fourteen scantily level teaspoons of turmeric powder. Less turmeric powder can be used and other spices added, such as cardamom and coriander seed in about the same proportion as the mustard and pepper, but as the cardamom has that sort of "cubeb" flavor that not everybody likes, it is really better to use these in making the curry, putting them in plain when cooking it.

Veal Curry.

In India the tamarind, with its delicious type of sourness, is used for the curry. We can use sour apple, and lemon juice is frequently used, but in the following we would advise anybody to try it without that and then to try it with, and the chances are that its deliciously dainty quality will be so much liked without the addition that to add the lemon juice will seem unjustifiable. For a veal curry, to serve three or four persons, take one-half pound, or a little more veal—a good slice, not thick—three onions sliced, two tablespoons of flour, one teaspoon of the curry powder given above, or less, if you like the lightest of seasonings—one-half teaspoon will do—one and one-half cups of cocoanut milk, one tablespoon of marmalade, two tablespoons of raisins, one tablespoon of chopped celery leaves, one-half tablespoon of salt, and the lemon juice if you want it, also a bit of cardamom, etc., and some salt pork for the cooking medium if you want to use it, but some other highly palatable fat can be used. One ounce of salt pork will, when cut in dice, yield two tablespoons of fat which is enough to cook the onions in gently, and the diced pork cooked till crisp can be in with the whole and no one will ever think of it as pork, when it gets all the seasonings, but only as one of the disappearing elements that help to make a perfect whole.

Take up the pork before cooking the onions; then take up the onions and put in the veal, cut in squares of about one and a half inch measure. Brown both sides of the meat gently, then take it up and stir in the flour, mixed with the curry powder. Next add the cocoanut water and cook until it thickens. Put in all the prepared parts and the marmalade, raisins, and celery, and simmer gently one-half hour. Serve over or across a mound of boiled rice.

Boiled Rice.

The other day a recipe for boiled rice turned up in which alum was used. Just think of the uselessness of that! Alum is something a little worse than any food. To boil rice in more water than it can take up is to waste all the starch in it that cooks out into the water, and a good deal can cook out. Then people waste more yet by rinsing the cooked rice in cold water. And what do they get? A product that requires something to flavor it, because its dainty flavor is more than likely to be ruined—at any rate, to my taste. I like to keep in any food all that nature put in, with some exceedingly rare exceptions—there are exceptions to all rules.

Rice will take up three times its measure of water when cooked in recipe a most excellent product can be obtained: Wash a cup of picked over rice in several waters until the last is clear. Put into a drainer and let it get rather dry. Put three cups of water to boil, adding a teaspoon of salt, and if you want to, about a tea-spoon of butter. When it is boiling add the rice slowly so that the water will not cease to boil and let it cook gently for five minutes. Now remove the cover and let it dry out for about ten minutes. The way to fail with this is to have the rice cold and wet, and to let the whole boil at the start so hard that there will be a little volcano or two in the rice with chimnies, before it is covered. Another way is to have so much fire under it after it is covered that some of the water boils out. It will not be fine then, and may be quite poor.

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

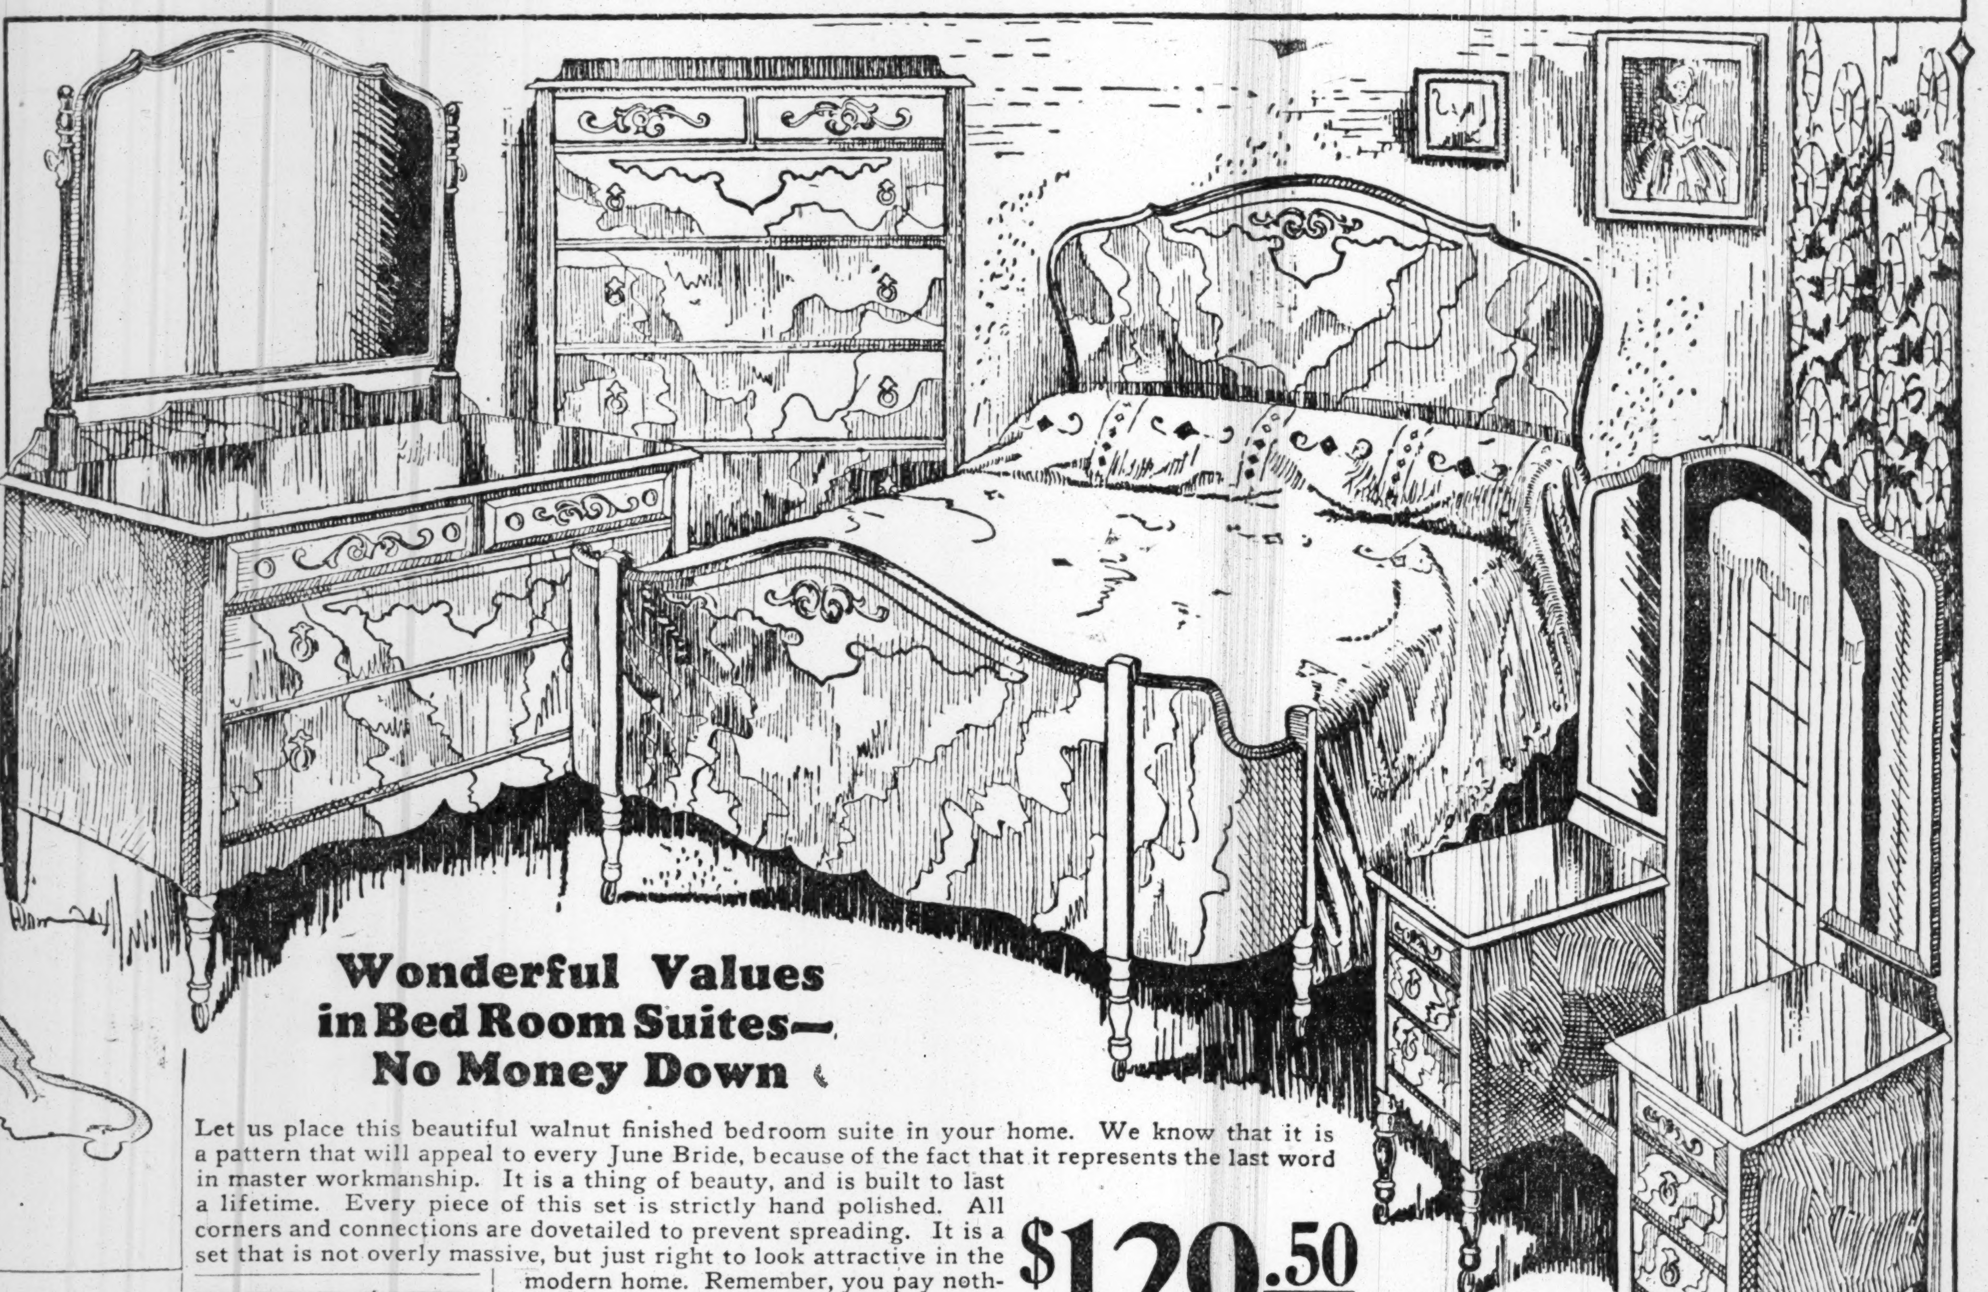
R FOR HOME OUTFITS

PAY AS YOU PLEASE

The Brides from every nation under the sun can be seen any day in the week making selections from our unlimited stock. For over thirty-three years The General Furniture Co. has offered special inducements to newlyweds to buy their outfits at its stores, and these special inducements have won us the confidence and good will of those starting out in life to make homes for themselves. This year we are offering to deliver complete outfits to you without a penny down. Our slogan this season is "Pay as You Please," because we want to make our terms as easy as possible for you—a little each pay day—your soon own a well furnished home and you do it so gradually you never miss the money.



Wonderful Values in Bed Room Suites— No Money Down

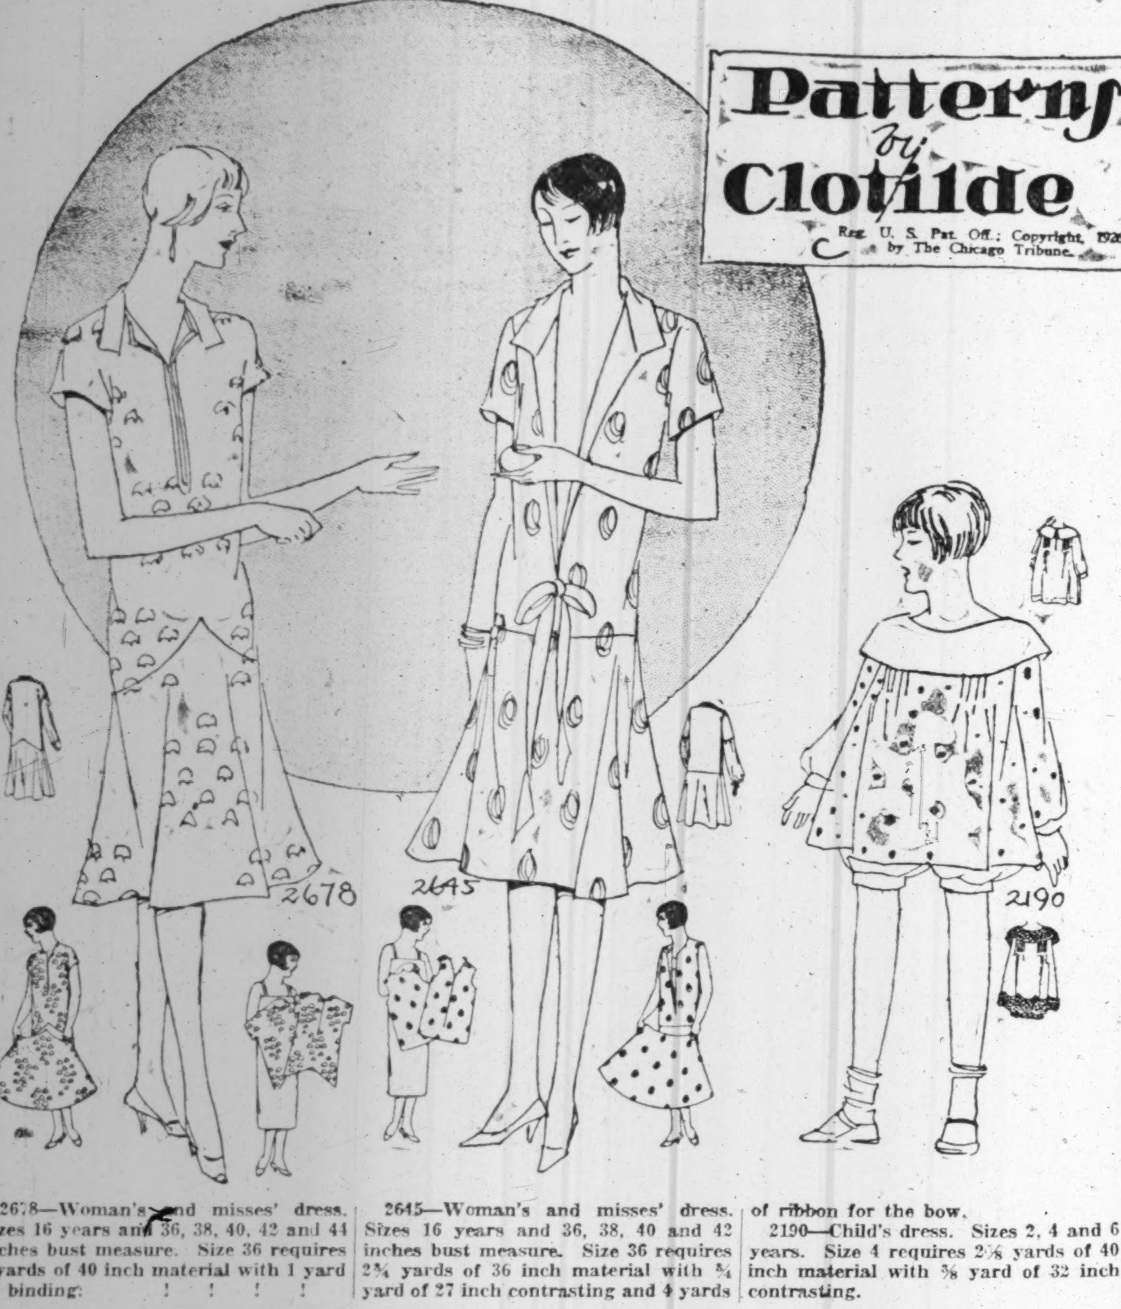
Patterns by Clotilde

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1926, by The Chicago Tribune.



2678—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 40 inch material with 1 yard of binding.

2645—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material with ¾ yard of 27 inch contrasting and 4 yards of ribbon for the bow.

2190—Child's dress. Sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 40 inch material with ⅜ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

HERE is a practical and pretty design for a dress. The pattern, No. 2678, is one of the newest, and one of the printed crêpes, wash silks or voiles would make up charmingly. The dress is cut with separate upper and lower parts and joined at a low and prettily shaped waistline.

The waist is slashed down from the neck in the center front, the edges bound and rolled with a collar. This collar is simply cut straight and is made to extend beyond the edges of the dress. As the dress is slashed down quite low, a shield is provided. The shoulders are cut long, providing in that way for short sleeves. If full length ones are preferred, there is a pattern provided that is different from those seen commonly. This is a one piece pattern, and at the wrist a plait is taken, making it close fitting. Then a turned back cuff finishes it at the hand. One can always add a touch of trimming by putting the shoulder seams together with a piping, and setting on the lower sleeve in the same manner.

The two piece, flaring skirt, after it has been seamed together, should have a line traced around the upper edge, ¾ inch below the edge, to show where the edge of the waist comes. Turn under the lower edge of the waist, clipping where it is needed. Then baste a piping carefully in place, making a perfect joining, and letting this come at one of the side seams. Then pin the skirt carefully in place on the waist, pinning first in the middle back and front and then at each side. Then it can be safely basted in place all around and two rows of stitching put in—one exactly at the edge and the second about one quarter of an inch above.

In removing bastings, it is a good way to cut the thread at rather close intervals, and then use a stiletto to remove. Scissors or pin are apt to catch the material, and this won't do it any good.

The bottom had better be finished with a binding; but don't forget to let the skirt stretch first.

Printed wash materials make up charmingly in these simple dresses for small girls. Pattern No. 2190 is cut with a round yoke in two pieces, and to this the dress is attached. Instead of the usual gathers the fullness is disposed of in clusters of tucks put in each side of the middle, front and back. Full length, one piece sleeves are set into narrow wristbands, and the dress is slashed down the middle of the back for an opening.

There are two piece bloomers finished with a casing and an elastic at the top, and at the bottom set into narrow leg bands. This pattern would also be fine to use for something dressy—organdie for instance—with the yoke covered with rows of narrow Valenciennes edging, set on slightly fulled. Little sleeve caps may be treated in the same way—also the leg bands and bottom of the skirt. Half inch edging would be best for the yoke, leg bands and sleeve caps; and inch wide edging for the bottom of the skirt. In putting the lace on the yoke, start at the bottom and baste on so that the lower edge of the yoke is covered. Full the lace on slightly and have each succeeding row just cover the sewing on of the one below.

Pattern No. 2645, is an unusually pretty design. Slashed down from the neck in the center front, it is underfaced and rolled with the collar, forming revers. Then a deep inset shield is tacked invisibly in place on the right side of the opening, fastening to the left side with tny snaps. The short sleeves are lengthened with one piece sections that are gathered into wristbands.

The two piece circular skirt is set on at a low waistline and measures at the bottom for size 36, about 2⅝ yards.

A bow of ribbon gives the right finish at the bottom of the opening. Any of the crêpes or silks are suitable materials.

My place in Maine

Plan a Maine vacation this year and while you are there look around for a permanent, summer home. Perhaps a little colonial house in some quaint elm-shaded town; a farm or cottage by the sea or on a pine-fringed lake; a big-woods camp; a bungalow in some quiet mountain retreat. Or perhaps a small island just off shore—there are hundreds of them. What a thrill to have this little "kingdom" of your own!

Come this summer and judge for yourself. We will gladly help you find just the place you want.

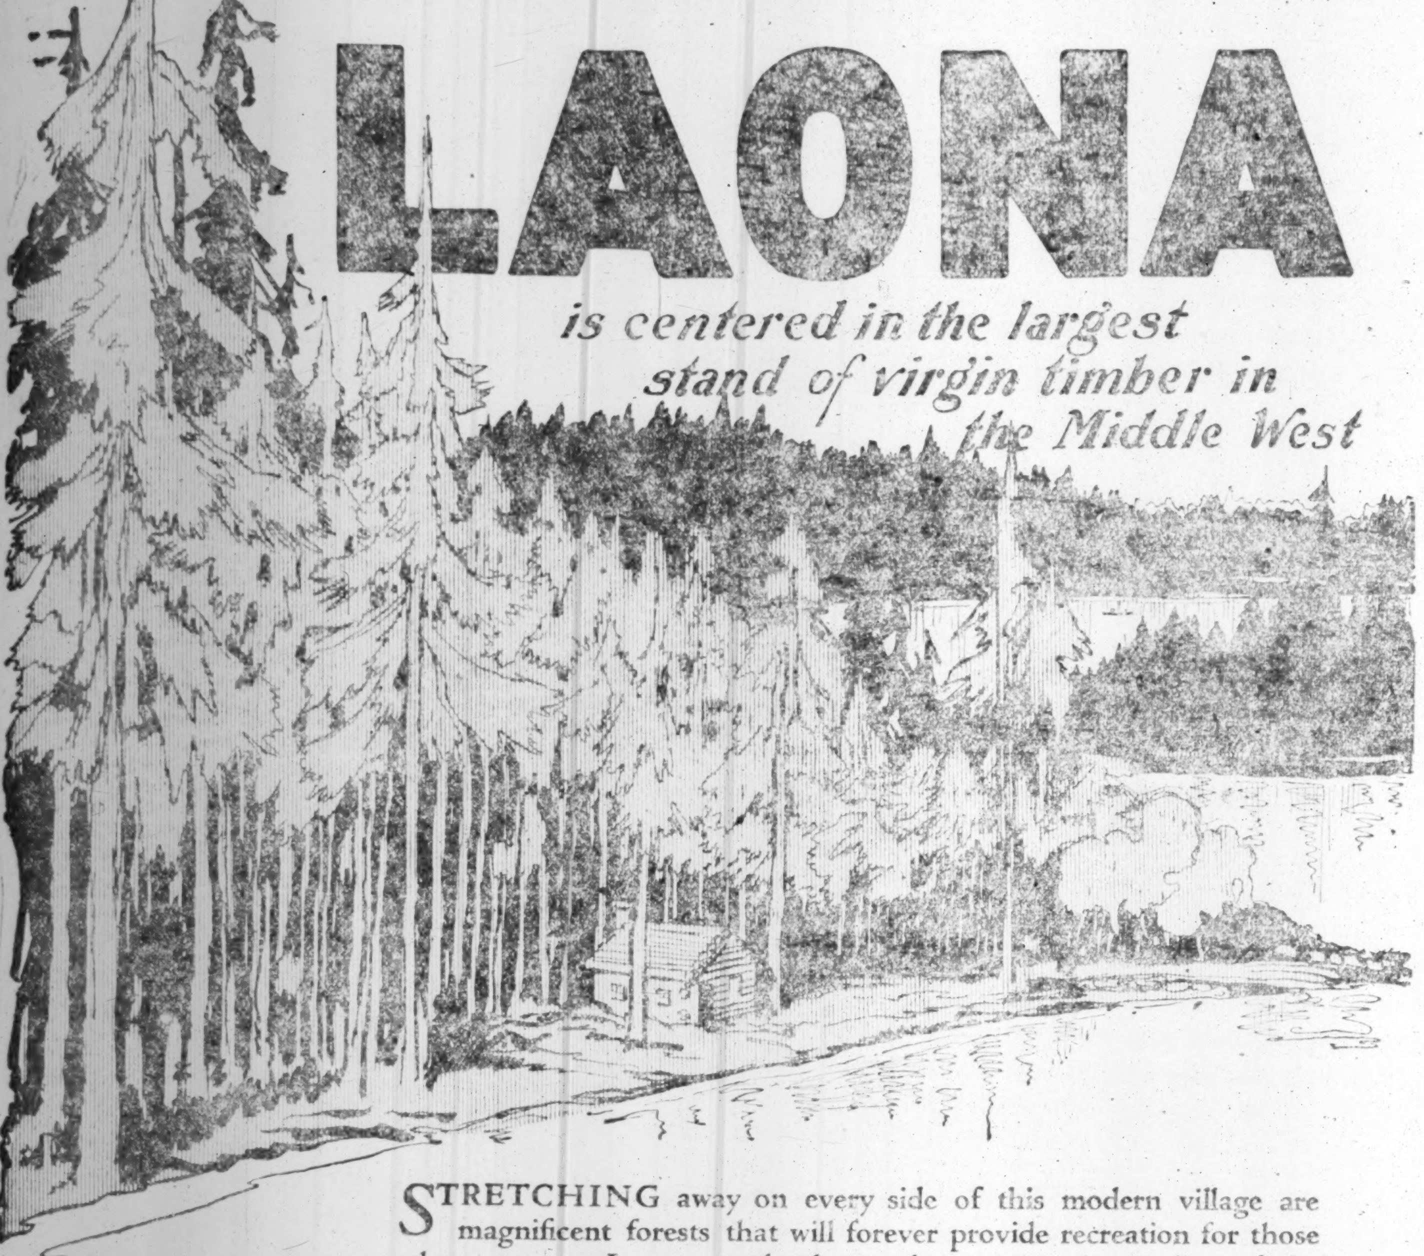
LAONA

is centered in the largest stand of virgin timber in the Middle West



STRETCHING away on every side of this modern village are magnificent forests that will forever provide recreation for those who come to Laona — thanks to the conservation policy of the Connor Lumber Company. Here you can work and play, with every advantage that Nature can offer you at your doorstep.

There are 24 lakes and 15 trout streams — including the famous Peshtigo — in the immediate vicinity of Laona. Hidden among the giant pines of this district are lakes yet unnamed and unmapped. Selective forestry maintains the natural splendor of this timber-covered section.

Laona is a flourishing village that affords every modern convenience. It offers the unexcelled and unusual opportunity of the city's advantages with the pleasures and recreations of nature close at hand. Come to Laona — arrange to spend your vacation here. Summer homesites are reasonable — you'll want to come again after you've once visited this land of myriad lakes and big trees. Write to us for information.

New delights await you—

LIVE again with Frontenac, Marquette and Joliet! Paddle down the historic rivers and lakes whose gleaming surfaces were broken by the paddles of these daring explorers during the picturesque French regime. Enjoy the thrill of discovery—from the "great river" to the "shining big sea water"; adventure beckons men who cannot resist it. And who can?

Broad prairies spreading away beyond the reach of the eye; bold, heavily wooded bluffs; sparkling lakes and rivers—Wisconsin invites you to this land of historic legend and scenic beauty. Step into God's sunshine, where pale cheeks become tanned by Nature's tonic, where unused muscles become hard and strong; where the spirit of Manitou imbues you with the love of nature, and the tread of the red man still echoes down the forest aisles.

Plan your vacation now—the woods and waters of Wisconsin, the Land O'Lakes—await you. Good concrete and hard-surfaced roads invite you—splendid accommodations will greet you.

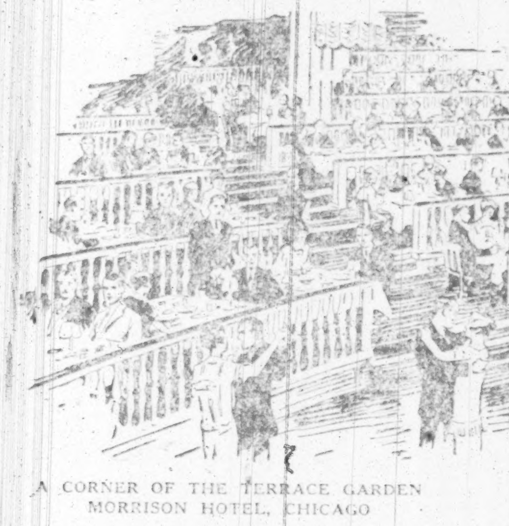
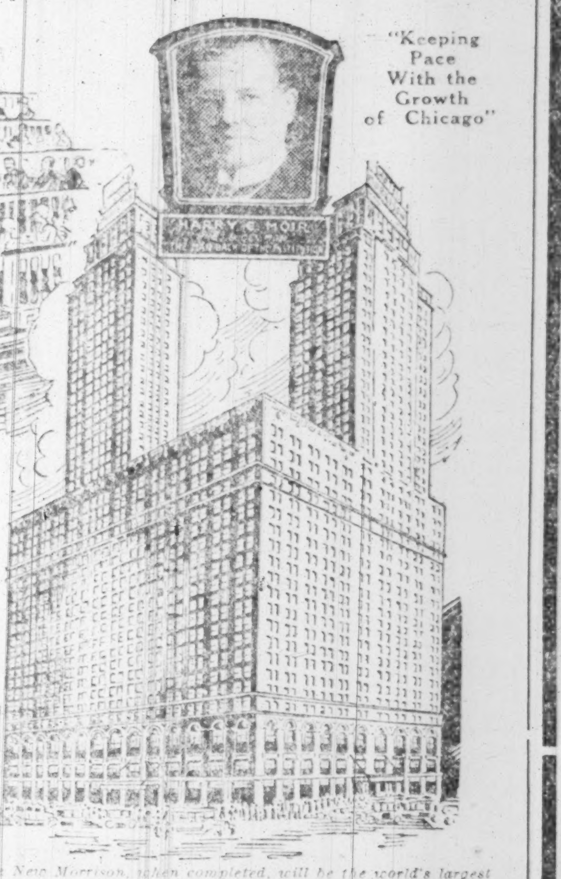
The Morrison
Its Appeal to the Summer Tourist



A CORNER OF THE TERRACE GARDEN MORRISON HOTEL, CHICAGO



"Keeping Pace With the Growth of Chicago"
HARRY C. MOIR

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

CHICAGO—while affording a wider choice of outdoor recreations than any summer resort—offers also, on a scale unsurpassed in New York or Paris, the pleasures that only a great metropolis can offer to the visiting traveler.

The brilliantly "cosmopolitan" character of the Morrison Hotel contributes a substantial share toward Chicago's unfailing appeal to the tourist.

Forty-Six Stories—The World's Tallest Hotel

If the traveler requires the solitude and quiet of a highland lodge in the Rockies, he finds it in the Morrison tower, far beyond earshot of street-noises, and cooled by the purest air ever breathed—yet at the city's most central location.

The Terrace Garden and Boston Oyster House

But if he prefers the vivacity of the gayest metropolis, he finds it in the Terrace Garden—a picturesque background for Henri Therrien's song-dramas. The carefree informality of the Boston Oyster House has an entirely different character—but both have won international repute.

Why Morrison Rates Are Low

Each of the 1944 rooms is outside, with bath, circulating ice water, bed-head reading lamp, and Servidor—a sure safeguard against intrusion. Every floor has its own housekeeper, and all guests enjoy garage privileges. Yet rooms are rented here for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 elsewhere—an economy made possible by the valuable store subrentals, which pay all the ground rent.

Twenty Passenger Observation Coach

A Different, Better Two Weeks' Circle Tour East

Here is a real vacation for you, uniquely different in its character and delightfully wonderful in its course. Decide now to take this trip: 2 glorious weeks in a Royal Blue Line Motor Coach; touring the most fascinating part of the United States. More comfortable and enjoyable than rail travel, cleaner—and, you see more.

This Tour Includes

Niagara Falls, Adirondacks, the Thousand Islands, Ausable Chasm, Lake Champlain, the Green and White Mountains, Old Man of the Mountain and Boston. From there on to Old Deerfield, and over the historic Mohawk Trail into the BERKSHIRE HILLS; then down the Hudson River thru West Point and over the "Monarch of all American Highways"—the Storm King, and Sleepy Hollow Country to New York City.

Return routes include either Delaware Water Gap, Bushkill Falls, Pocono Mountains, Five Finger Lakes Region, Watkins Glenn, or including Atlantic City, Philadelphia and the Sesqui Centennial Exposition, and Washington.

Departures weekly from both Chicago and Niagara Falls. Write or call for full particulars before making plans for this year's trip.

COLORADO

has the Three Highest Auto Highways in the World

—Fall River Pass, Berthoud Pass and Pikes Peak—and the highest scenic railroad trips in the world

There are two National Parks—Rocky Mountain and Mesa Verde. There are 15 National Forests, with 500 lakes, 6,000 miles of fishing streams and 8,000 miles of auto highways. Of the 59 Mountain Peaks in the United States, 14,000 feet high, or over, 46 are in Colorado. Denver has a $250,000 Auto Camp at Overland Park and there are 180 others conveniently located over the State. Denver has more scenic trips, by rail and auto, than any other city in the world.

Under Three Flags

Detroit—meaning in French "City of Straits"—is rich in historical traditions. French, English and Colonial influences have each left a permanent imprint.

Names of the original French settlers are still daily bywords. You hear Cadillac, Pere Marquette, Lafayette and St. Antoine—and Belle Isle, Grosse Pointe, River Rouge—all echoes of an earlier day.

Important historic landmarks have been faithfully preserved. You see the site of Fort Pontchartrain, Detroit's first settlement. You stand on the ground that commemorates the Indian siege of Detroit in 1712.

While revering the gifts of the past, Detroit has built for the future. She has created beautiful parks—world-famous public buildings—hundreds of miles of super-highways—mammoth industries, and modern, comfortable hotels with plenty of rooms for visitors. Prices to suit every purse.

Detroit invites you to enjoy her treasured past and her inspiring present.

A Country Club on the North Atlantic

PLENTY of sport on big broad decks—quiet comfort in luxurious smoking rooms and lounges—long healthy sleep in cozy cabins—attentive service all the time—and the best cuisine on the North Atlantic. You enjoy all these things when you go on a United States Lines ship to Europe.

Go if you can during August or September. First class rates are lower then and you will have a greater choice of accommodation in all classes.

"George Washington"
Swift, steady, beautiful and always a favorite. In planning, furnishing and every detail of service, this giant liner is a luxurious home on the sea. First class rates from $231 (after August 1st, $210), second class from $136.25 and Tourist III class from $97.50.

"Leviathan"
Flagship of the fleet and the most famous ship in the world. First class rates from $290 (after August 1st, $265), second class from $147.50, Tourist III from $102.50.

"President Harding" and "President Roosevelt"
The fastest Cabin Ships on the North Atlantic. No first or second class distinctions. Rates from $145, Tourist III from $95.

"Republic"
The famous cruise liner. A Cabin ship without first or second class distinctions. Rates from $140, Tourist III from $95.

Raymond-Whitcomb

CRUISES by LAND & SEA

Whether your interest urges you to the most northern civilized town of the Old World to the southernmost tip of America — or whether you desire to circumnavigate the globe — you will always find a Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise "the best in travel"

ROUND the WORLD

Sailing October 14, 1926

All continents, including Australia and Europe

Japan, China, Philippines, Java, India, Egypt, etc. Rates cover more than 40 Shore Excursions, including such essential points as Peking, Delhi, Agra, Benares, Cairo, etc. — and for the first time includes historic Seoul (capital of Korea), the Great Chinese Wall, the magnificent New Zealand Fjord Country.

The "right" seasons everywhere

The only cruise visiting each country in the right season and also giving an opportunity for a European visit before returning home. The specially designed Cunarder "Carinthia"— many rooms with bath—many single rooms—hot and cold running water throughout.

Rates ($2250 & up) include over 40 shore excursions.

ROUND SOUTH AMERICA

Sailing January 29, 1927— sixty-three days on the S. S. "Laconia" to Panama, Peru, Chile, Straits of Magellan, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Trinidad and Porto Rico, including visits to Valparaiso, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, the Andes, etc.

Comprehensive sightseeing included. Rates $975 & up.

ELEVEN LAND CRUISES

Throughout the Summer — June to September

Ocean comfort on a cruise across America

The Land Cruise liners have rooms with private baths, showers, beds instead of berths, wardrobes, dressing-tables — gymnasiums, movies, dance- and lecture-rooms, barber and manicure shops, lounges — these ultra-modern cruising trains were especially designed by Pullman for Raymond-Whitcomb.

Scenery by day—nights at noted hotels

Exploring Indian pueblos, stone forests, gold countries, cowboy lands . . . places heretofore almost inaccessible to the average traveler — cruises of from 15 to 36 days, sailing —

June 2, July 2, August 11, September 9—Southwest, California, Northwest, Canadian Rockies.
June 27—Alaska, Yellowstone, Northwest, Canadian Rockies.
August 1, July 29—Canadian Rockies, Northwest, Glacier, Yellowstone.
July 25, August 25, September 8—Colorado, Yellowstone, Bad Lands.
July 31—Colorado, Yellowstone, Yosemite, Northwest, Canadian Rockies.

Comprehensive trips by automobile (such as a drive from Field to Banff) and accommodations at famous hotels included in the rate.

Rates from Chicago $225 & up.

Midnight Sun Cruise sailing June 29 — S. S. "Carinthia"— Iceland, Norway, etc. Rates $800 & upward.

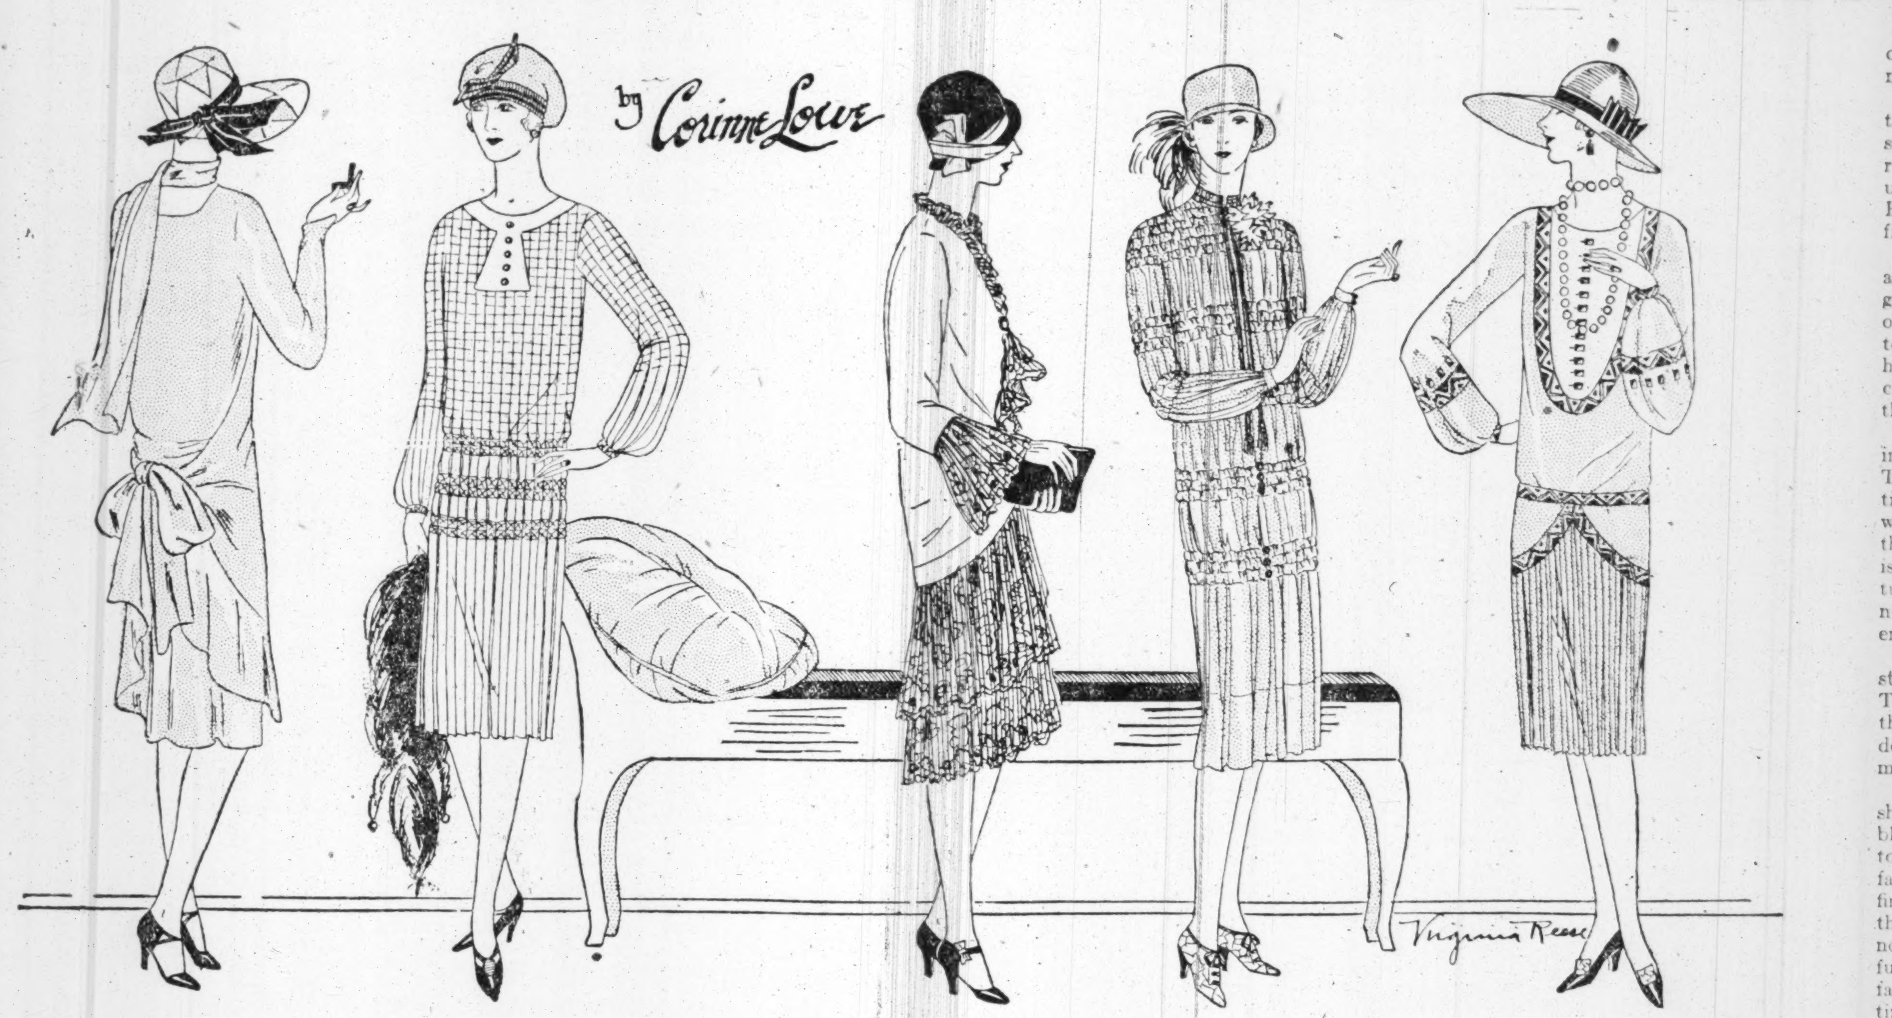
NOWADAYS WE TAKE FEMININE MODES WITH OUR TEA

by Corinne Lowe



We might call it the Chanel crossing—our second model from the left. For on a corsage of cardinal red crepe Chanel crosses tiny plaits in such a way as to form checks. Rows of smocking and a horizontally plaited skirt join with a yoke of plain material to finish the model.

At the extreme left satin back crepe in the fashionable reddish brown receives the benediction of both apron and bustle impulses.

A combination of green crepe and matching lace by Jenny occupies the center, while next Chanel does some new and exceedingly smart tricks with smocking on a black chiffon frock, otherwise trimmed with rhinestone buttons and finished with pearl strands tasseled in rhinestones.

At the extreme right a black satin frock with white chiffon vestee has telling touches of red and white embroidery in Egyptian design.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—A handsome woman physician of my acquaintance never wears the severely tailored garments which have become almost the uniform of so many feminine followers of Æsculapius. "I wear earrings," says she gayly, "and therefore no neurosis."

There is a great deal of profound philosophy in what she says. The more tailored shirts and four-in-hands we wear the more completely we forget we belong to that sex which once fluttered black silken eyelashes over alabaster cheeks and looked up from its tatting to say to its husbands, "You know best, dear." Of course, one is not in favor of a relapse into such acute feminity as this, but neither, on the other hand, is one in favor of the 2 per cent woman. We need some feminization of our clothes to modify the denaturing process of boyish bobs, boyish figures, and boyish sackcoats.

And this spring we are getting it. Last week I spoke of the frills and furbelows which had invaded our sports clothes. In other provinces of dress this trend is even more emphatic. Go to tea at the Ritz, or any other smart place, and you will see what a boycott has been placed upon the boy cut—not of hair but of clothes.

Quite a good deal of the missionary work in redeeming clothes from this undermining masculine influence is effected by trimming details. Laces are an in-tea-gral part of the tea hour. So are brilliant embroideries, confined usually to ceinture or the full under section of the sleeves. Speaking of embroidery, too, let us not forget the part which English eyelet work plays in many a fashionable toilette. Then there are numerous ruffles and flounces, aprons and panels, to say nothing of the innumerable exploitations of jabot and rever. As to plaits, these are utilized quite as frequently in the afternoon dress as they are in the sports genre.

The combination of black and white is one of the smartest things to take with your tea, and this pertains not only to frocks but to wraps as well. One cannot overrate the importance of this classic alliance and, whether it be carried out in taffeta, chiffon, or crêpe, the frock of this type will not suffer in any comparison with other tones. Plain gray is another favorite in coats and gowns for the spring afternoon, and if any one has been deluded into thinking that we have overcome the beige habit she will have to reconstruct her point of view the moment she steps into a fashionable tea haunt.

An example of the clientèle of beige is Miss Mary Brown Warburton, who was seen recently teaing at the Ritz in a beige kasha coat of slender lines which was trimmed with summer ermine, mated with a matching felt hat and worn over a crêpe frock of reddish brown. And, by the bye, these reddish browns are awfully good for the afternoon crêpe or chiffon.

Navy blue is a tone perhaps more esteemed for street wear than for the more formal afternoon occasions. Yet it gets no recess even here, and especially is it found in the coat accompanying a frock of colored crêpe. Smart women wear these blue coats—or capes—over bois de rose and red and powder blue gowns. In considering navy blue as a whole we may say that the latest edict from Paris concerning its most congenial tints are powder blue and pink, and it is one of these confederacies often represented in the more formal type of navy frock.

It is another Paris fancy to mate navy blue with a polka dotted fabric. This brings one to the mention of prints in general. They are being used now, but only in sufficient number to constitute a prediction of their vogue later on. As a rule the printed costumes we see in circulation today are in the form of a cape ensemble in which a patterned crêpe frock gives the tonal cue to a plain color cape. In other words, this cape is always developed in some tint predominating in the dress.

Among these neutral colors various tints, both violent and subdued, mingle with the greatest freedom. Red in all tones, from raspberry to the most prejudiced crimson, is a leading element in fashion, and it is often daringly espoused in both the wrap and frock of an afternoon ensemble. Yellow is another favored hue, and its vogue is to be traced from the province of sports clothes to the most elaborate of evening toilettes. As to the blue range, this is most fashionably represented in powder blue, Lanvin blue, and the "flag" tone raised chiefly by Chanel. Take it all in all, one's color preferences, whatever they be, are not apt to be thwarted by the spring.

Perhaps nothing better indicates the feminine drift of our modes than the Jenny model in the center of the page. Here is a green crêpe which presents the familiar up in the front silhouette in connection with lace dyed to match the gown. The tiered skirt and the bell flounce of the sleeves are characteristic of our spring mood, and so, too, is the dainty lace collar with its jabot of lace. One does not have to make this a one tone frock, either. One might, for instance, develop the upper part of shell pink crêpe and interpret the lace in either black or golden brown. Either of these latter modifications would be quite in line with many recent ideas.

As the season advances one may be sure of at least one thing. It is the importance of the bloused waist line. This silhouette, presented for our guidance this spring, has been reiterated throughout the midsummer showings, and it will undoubtedly follow us straight through into the autumn. Even the jumper modes, as I have frequently pointed out, frequently blouse over a narrow girdle.

The fifth model on our page demonstrates once more the authority of this bloused ideal. It demonstrates yet another great truth, and this is that our fashionable combination of black and white may often be enlivened by a brilliant touch of color. This model, noted recently at a smart tea hour, is developed in black satin, with a vestee of white chiffon punctuated with red crystal buttons and bordered by the band embroidery found elsewhere on sleeves and skirt.

It plays quite a tune of color—this band—for it is done in red and white silk in motifs borrowed from the Egyptian. The skirt is plaited all the way around under a yoke formation accomplished by the embroidered bands. And, by the way, the yoke top of the skirt is an important novelty in this season's styles. One finds it in the best society—this is to say, in that of plaits. A climax to the chic of the costume is reached in a millinery mode of which one sees much nowadays—a broad brimmed creation of finest black Milan, encircled severely by a band of grosgrain ribbon.

Several years ago Chanel, by inventing the jumper, first started that new "Song of the Shirt" which has superseded Thomas Hood's classic. This year she gives us the Song of the Shirred. Shirring has come into its own, and a great deal of its popularity is due to Chanel's repeated employment of this trimming detail.

Our fourth model on the page is from Chanel, and she shows you what can be done with a straight line frock of black chiffon merely by the fervent use of this favored touch. Rows of shirring form the yoke—still an insistent factor of fashion—and below this at persistent intervals we find groups of three rows of the same work. You will note that the treatment of the sleeves is especially ingenious, for not only does the yoke extend down over the arms but further sympathy with the corsage is established by the fact that here the shirring is placed so that it seems a continuation of the rows on the frock proper.

Again the black and white motif! For this model is made over white chiffon and a sparkling white is supplied by the rhinestone buttons down the front. Rhinestones also achieve the tassels of those strands of imitation pearls which give the consummate finish to the costume. As for the flowers, these follow the new Chanel lead by being of self-material.

In this model Chanel shows you what she can do for your afternoon by shirring. In the second model she demonstrates that she is almost equally able in the matter of tucks. Now, tucks are fashionable, and so are checks, and so Chanel makes the latter out of the former on a frock of cardinal red crêpe. Plaits crossing each other in this manner are arrested at last by a row of smocking, over which the corsage blouses ever so lightly. Two more rows of smocking intercept the horizontal plaits of the skirt and another group of it achieves the cuff. A yokette of self-material is left unplaited and trimmed with matching crystal buttons.

One sees quite a bit of the bustle and of the apron, and in our first model the two join forces. This is a frock of satin back crêpe in the popular reddish brown, and both flounce and scarf present the shiny side of the material to contrast with the remainder of the frock.

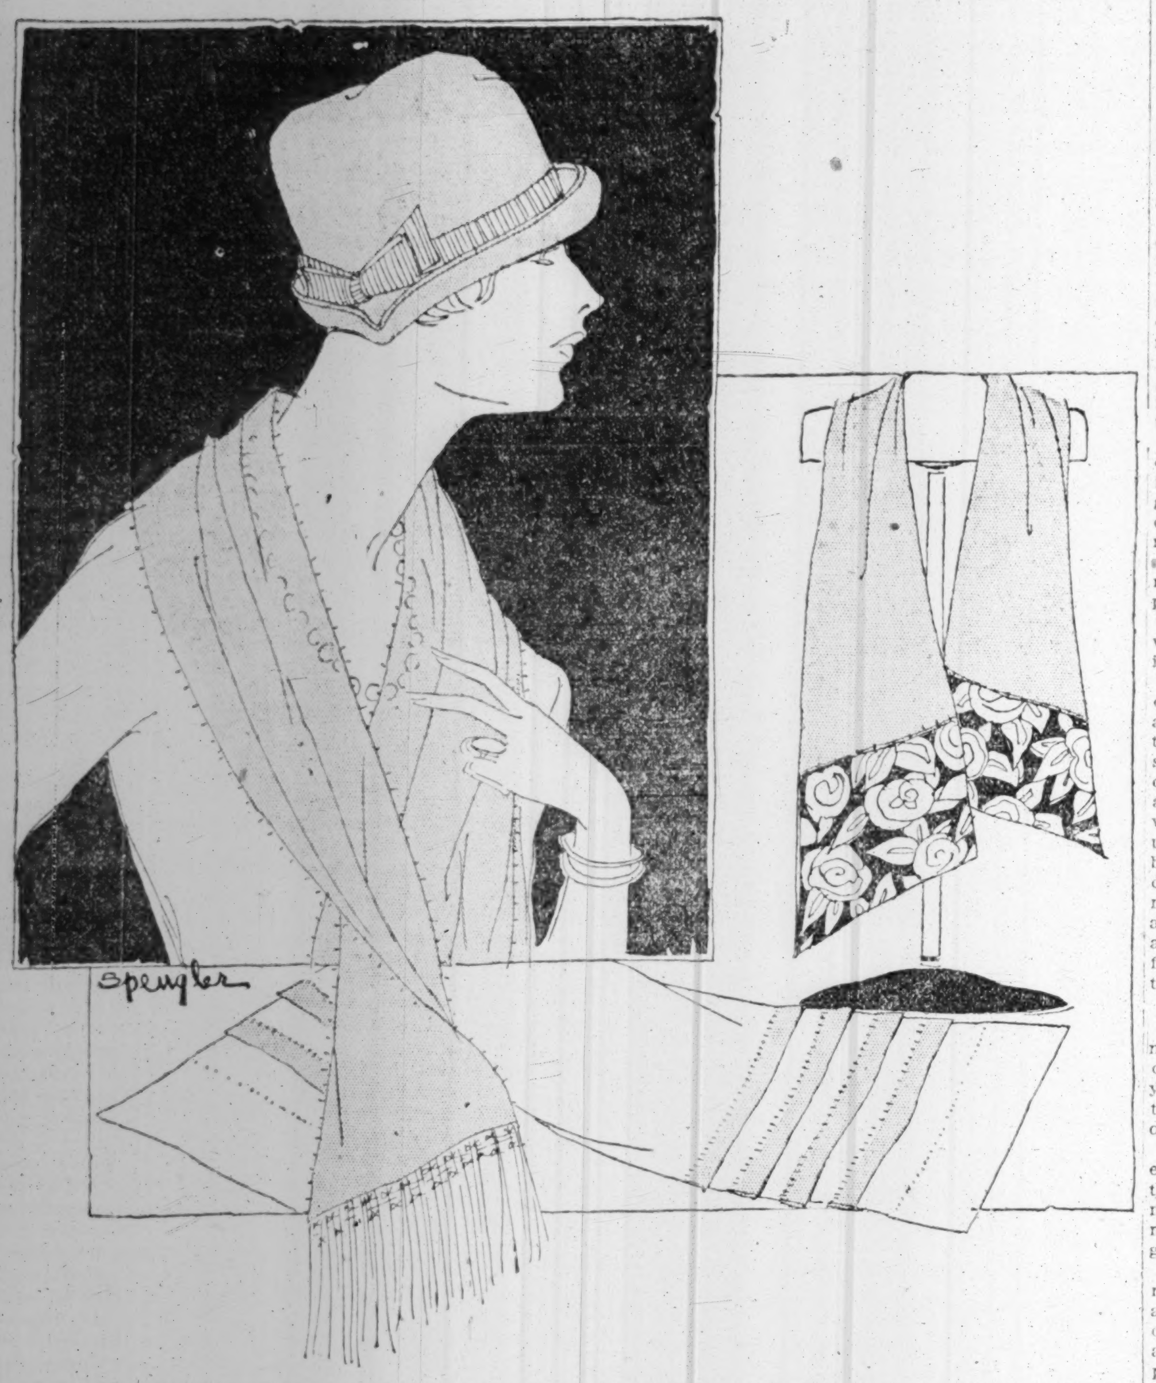
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

MAKING YOUR OWN SCARF.

THE question is often asked of people that are authority on smart women's wear, "Will scarfs be worn again this season?" The answer is, more than ever. They are shown in georgette, canton crépe and printed silks. Both sober and startling colors can be used to match hats and costumes. The scarfs are usually cut one and one-half yards long and one-half the width, if material comes double width.

They make pretty gifts, and two can be made almost as cheaply as one. Having selected the color and right length, have it hemstitched all the way around and down through the center fold. Always press any hemstitching with a hot iron before cutting, to make picot edge. This is done to stretch the threads and when they are cut they will not ravel and fray out.

For the ends of one of these scarfs use silk fringe six inches wide. Baste it on both ends, then sew firmly with a sewing machine. The fringe can be bought in a dressmakers' supply section in any department store.

For the other scarf use flowered georgette on the ends, one-half of a yard cut in two [one-fourth of a yard on each end]. This can be put on double or single. Baste on to the ends of the scarf and have hemstitched also, but if put on the ends double do not hemstitch the ends of flowered georgette—just leave it as a double hem. If made single, hemstitch all the way around.

Navy blue canton crepe or silk with tan or white polka dots makes attractive scarfs when the plain blue is set in strips four and one-half inches wide near the end of the scarf. Then a piece nine inches wide is set on the bottom and hemstitched, as described in the other.

A pretty scarf seen recently was of pink orchid georgette, one and one-half yards long and single width, one-fourth of a yard of georgette on straight of goods. This was made double to give the effect of a tuck and was set on the scarf, the first one about six inches from the bottom, the rest about three inches apart. Four of those tucks were used. The first one, near the hem, was a pale green georgette, the next a soft yellow, the third a bride's blush pink, and the last one a delicate shade of blue. These tucks were all hemstitched onto the scarf with thread the color of the scarf.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

WHEEL CHAIRS ARE NEEDED.

ISN'T it a joy to be alive and to get out into the fresh air, now spring has come at last? There's not one of us but feels happier by far, and looks forward to outings in the country, happy hours in the parks and at the beaches, and all the rest that goes with spring and summer.

But how about the people to whom all this happiness is a hollow mockery—hollow, that is, unless we help? Last week Mrs. M. L. was kind enough to offer a wheel chair through this department, and if you could have seen the applications — widowed mothers working hard to support crippled children, young girls and boys robbed of their youth by their loyal efforts to support ailing parents. The offer was like a glimpse of heaven to them, to say nothing of the sufferers.

If a member of your family has been enabled through restored health to give up the wheel chair, may not one of those people have it? It would be splendid if they could, particularly now, when fine weather is calling, and Mrs. M. L.'s generous offer has raised their hopes.

Imagine yourself a shut-in, or caring for one on a meager weekly wage; and you'll appreciate what the gift of a wheel chair would mean.

If you have one not in service, please do what you can to make this springtime one of joy for these poor sufferers.

Sad Case.

"Here is a family of seven children, three boys, four girls, and an eighth coming. The father is in the hospital. They are in need of clothing and furniture, a stove, and rug. The boys are 14, 12, and 6; the girls are 10, 8, 4, and 2. The mother has nothing for the new baby.

Mrs. H."

This is a sad case that might easily be taken care of with the clothing your children are ready to discard or have outgrown. And if you are thinking of replacing some of the old furniture, especially the stove, here's a splendid place to dispose of it.

Needs a Stroller.

"Mrs. N., a foreign mother with eight growing youngsters to feed, is anxious to attend cooking classes. At present she is unable to go because she has no one to stay with the two younger children. Has some one a discarded stroller to give her so she can take them with her?

C. P. P."

Who will come to the assistance of this mother and supply the stroller so she may take advantage of these classes in cooking?

For a German.

"I have an illustrated German Bible, in large print. Perhaps there is some person who would appreciate it. I have two German hymnals, also.

Mrs. M. S."

If yours is the German tongue and you are interested in this offer, write me and you may fall heir to one or the other of these books.

Dog Wants a Home.

"Can you find a good home for a female fox terrier, 10 months old? She is good with children, but we cannot keep her in the apartment where we are.

R. L. M."

I am sure there are a number of good homes for this pet where she will be most welcome and a number of people who'd be glad to take advantage of this delightful offer.

Sweeper for Some One.

"I saw in today's TRIBUNE that E. H. is asking for a carpet sweeper. I have one to give away she can have by calling for it.

MRS. R. S."

We have already given E. H. a carpet sweeper, but perhaps there is someone else who would like to have one.

Would Start a Home.

"I am a widow with two children and have been living with my mother the last year. I have no furniture, and I want to move to a little flat of my own. I need a cabinet or dresser for my linens, an ice box, and a little heater for the kitchen. I will be grateful for anything I may receive.

"MRS. M. P."

The pieces of furniture you don't need, or no longer care for, would mean so much to this widow when she is ready to start a little home for herself and her children.

For Twin Babies.

"I have twin babies and I am not able to buy a new buggy, as I have other children and my husband has been out of employment until just recently. If you know of any one who has a twin stroller I would be thankful to get it.

G. B."

Have your twins outgrown the use of their carriage? Here's a good opportunity to dispose of it and make another pair of babies happy.

Rug to Donate.

"I have a 9x12 rug I would be glad to pass along to some one.

"Mrs. W. B."

If you can make use of Mrs. W. B.'s rug, write me for it.

DENTAL HYGIENE

by Antoinette Donnelly

Keeping the Mouth in Healthy Condition Will Ward Off Pyorrhea and Other Ailments.

Dorothy Dulin

NEW YORK—It is said that pyorrhea afflicts ninety out of every hundred persons in the United States, in one form or another.

What is the cause of this mouth disease so damaging to teeth, health and beauty?

Errors in diet, faulty preparation of food, resulting in insufficient content of vitamins and mineral salts, play a most important part, there is no doubt. Unbalanced diet, faulty elimination and toxic absorption from intestinal food decomposition are likewise contributors.

Local causes which aggravate the condition, causing injury to teeth and infection, consist principally of unhygienic mouth conditions, such as soft deposits of food left under the gum margin, or between the teeth.

Investigations disclose the fact that nations that subsist on coarse and simple foodstuffs are practically free from the affliction. Our epicurean taste which craves highly concentrated food is at fault.

The modern diet lacks vitamins and calcium salts. Milk, eggs, whole grains and a liberal amount of fresh vegetables and fruit, according to the season, will furnish all the vitamins required by the body. While canning and cooking do not destroy all the vitamins, it should be remembered that uncooked fruits and vegetables are to be preferred and should be eaten every day. These, beside containing vitamins, also contain an appreciable amount of mineral salts to build bones and teeth, and sufficient cellulose or fibrous material to prevent constipation.

Mineral Salts Needed.

White bread, meat and sugar, the most popular foods, are poor in calcium content. Oral pathologists will tell you it is impossible to eat enough of these to supply an adequate amount of lime salts to the body.

The foods containing the most mineral salts are milk, eggs, meat, potatoes, fruits and vegetables. The vitamins are more abundant, as are the mineral salts, in the outer layer of grain and vegetables.

In the diet of the nursing mother milk and eggs, fruits and vegetables, are recommended for the benefit of the child's health. Milk and orange juice are fed the child with the same purpose in view. When the child is old enough it is given food that requires special effort to chew on. The food of the adult does not differ from that recommended for the child if healthy teeth are to be preserved. Hard food will furnish exercises to keep the tissues around the teeth in good condition. Soft, soggy foods have a tendency to lodge between the teeth and in crevices made by irregular teeth, and if the gum margins are inflamed it will cause pyorrhea.

The cleansing foods should be used as much as possible. These are fibrous foods, such as fish, meat, bacon, poultry, fruit, and uncooked vegetables like lettuce, cress, radishes, tomatoes, and celery. The cooked vegetables are cleansing, but in less degree than the uncooked.

Meals that end with fruit are of particular value because of their cleansing nature.

Correct Method of Brushing.

If we were not guilty of food errors it is said we would be able to get along without the aid of a toothbrush. But since we are guilty, tooth, gum, and tongue cleaning are rites that must be practiced religiously in order to reduce pyorrhea and caries to the minimum.

One of our leading dentists tells me that half of his patients brush their teeth regularly enough but they do not know how to brush them properly. They forget, he says, that the toothbrush has a double mission to perform. It is to be used not only for cleaning the teeth but for stimulating the gums. And, in order to do this, brushing straight across the teeth will not help a great deal in their preservation. The gums must be included in the brushing.

Pyorrhea Preventative.

As the best preventive measure against pyorrhea this brushing program should be adopted: Brush the teeth four times a day—before breakfast with clear water; after each meal with a tooth paste or powder. Brush two minutes each time. Time yourself, and you may discover that you have been giving yours no more than half a minute. In less than two minutes you cannot hope to stimulate the gums nor thoroughly cleanse the teeth.

After partaking of candy, sugar, crackers, cake, pastries, and bread be sure to brush the teeth. These foodstuffs, if allowed to remain on the surfaces, contribute quickly to decay.

Brush with a circular motion, beginning on one side. Make the brush go backward and downward to the lower gums until it has traveled a complete circle. Do this circular motion rapidly. Go over the entire mouth with the circular motion. Brush the roof of the mouth and the inside gums and surfaces of the teeth with a fast in-and-out stroke. Reach back carefully to the last teeth and brush the gums thereabout carefully. Lastly, brush the chewing surfaces and use dental floss to remove every particle of residue from between the teeth.

Persons who wear fixed bridges should use blunt, curved needles, called bodkins, by means of which floss silk can be carried underneath a bridge for the purpose of cleansing the part in contact with the gum.

Mouth Wash Is Beneficial.

A mouth wash should always be used after the teeth have been brushed.

If it is inconvenient to brush the teeth after the luncheon meal, or any other meal away from home, dentists recommend that the mouth be rinsed out with clear water.

If the gums are spongy and bleed easily, as they do in the more serious cases of pyorrhea, the brushing should be persisted in with even greater regularity than where they are sound. Particular care must be given the tooth brush, for an old and ragged brush will injure the gums. Tooth brushes do not last forever, it must be remembered. The rule of the day is to have not less than two brushes, and use them alternately. Particular people have three and four brushes to use on successive days, so each brush may be given a chance to dry out thoroughly and be sterilized by sunning, where it is possible.

The hygiene of the tongue is often neglected by otherwise careful persons. Because food particles become lodged in the crevices of the tongue and later may become wedged between the teeth or in the gum margins the use of a tongue scraper daily is strongly urged.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

by Antoinette Donnelly

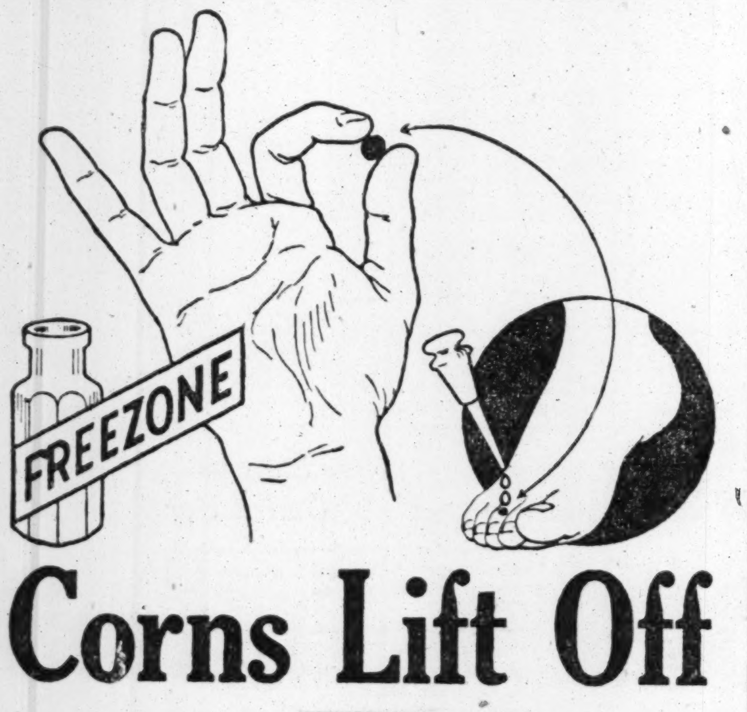
What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

MRS. T.: WHEN THE SKIN ON the arms and legs is rough and dry and has the appearance of gooseflesh it is a pretty sure sign that the circulation is faulty. I have some splendid exercises called my "Youth Preservers" which I shall be glad to send you on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope. And if you will follow your bath with a cold shower and a brisk rub with a Turkish towel you will set the skin aglow. A brisk walk of several miles a day is very good.

ROSEMARY: BITING THE LIPS coarsens and thickens them. It is a most disfiguring habit to acquire. You can break yourself of it, if you will. It will require will power, though.

D. N. L.: TO RESTORE A BUST which has become flabby through nursing requires daily care and attention. Bathe your bust every day with cold salt water. Wear a suitable brassiere to support the tissues, as when the tissues are properly supported the circulation through the parts improves and the structures, as a result, become healthier. Massage every night for ten or fifteen minutes with a good fattening cream. It is well to wear a brassiere during the night.

J. G. B.: IT IS NOT ONLY NECESSARY to instruct the child in the proper care of the teeth, washing and scrubbing them, and having any possible cavities filled, but also you should be careful that she has the proper kind of food. Foods which are hard to chew, such as rye bread, and crusts of bread, give the teeth work to do, sending good blood to the inside of the teeth and keeping them strong. When we eat concentrated food there is little work left for the teeth, and tooth troubles appear.



Corns Lift Off

You'll laugh, really! It is so easy and doesn't hurt one bit!

Drop "Freezone" on that old, bothersome corn. Instanly it stops aching; then shortly you lift that sore, touchy corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm, every time.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and calluses—Try it!

Short Lessons in English

By Mary Griffin.

DO YOU KNOW:

That you are overworking the word "work" when you could often substitute,

Achievement,
Exertion,
Business, Occupation,
Toil?

That in place of "lead" you could often say,

Conduct,
Guide,
Precede,
Surpass,
Head?

The errors in the following sentences? (Answers below.)

1. We shall take the trip providing we have the money.
2. Stricknine is a highly poisonous alkaloid.
3. The cape coat is one of the adult styles that have been adapted to the requirements of little girls.
4. Things now look more favorably.
5. Mrs. Jones took some delicious current jelly to her invalid neighbor.
6. Hope you are well.

ANSWERS.

Sentence errors:

1. Say "provided," not "providing."
2. "Strychnine" is misspelled.
3. "Has been adapted," is correct. The verb must agree with the subject in number.
4. Do not use adverbs as adjectives.
5. "Currant" is correct. "Current" refers to a stream.
6. It is slovenly English to omit the subject of a declarative or interrogative sentence.

Thousands of People Attended the Opening of Spiegel's New South Town Store

79th and Halsted at Green

The thousands of old customers and interested visitors that passed through our new South Town Store on Saturday, the opening day, filled us with pleasure not to be expressed in words! They streamed in all day and far into the night—crowds upon crowds—eager to see the latest Spiegel achievement—a new and beautiful store, dedicated to serve a greater South Town community! The response was greater than our expectations but it truly revealed the confidence that the people of Chicago have placed in Spiegel's! It's a tribute we shall always remember! All that we can say is:—

We Thank You

TELLING FORTUNES - - - These Games Seldom Fail to Arouse Interest and Provide Amusement - - - -

by Doris Blake

"WOULD you help an entertainment committee with a suggestion or two? Principally, we want a fortune telling game, as it seems to be more amusing than any other. Something not too complicated, if we may ask it. Your flower game was a lot of fun and we used it at our last meeting. Something along that line would make us grateful to you for life.—Committee."

Here is one that would seem to suit the requirement of simplicity, and I hope will afford your guests amusement.

Take a large piece of paper. Draw a huge circle on it and divide the circle into twenty-five parts, numbering them from 1 to 25. In order to determine your fortune at one guess, take a pin, a hat pin if these implements are not too archaic to be missing entirely, or some sharp pointed instrument, close your eyes and strike a number on the "Wheel."

Table Tells Your Fate.

Refer to the following table for explanation of what the gods advise, or have in store for you:

1. You are advised to be careful in your actions, lest one foolish move upset the desire of your heart and get you talked about.

2. You are recommended to turn your thoughts toward earning a place in the next world, instead of being so obsessed with thoughts of this.

3. Your partner in marriage will be your guiding genius, so choose her or him with that in mind.

4. Do not think so much about clothes and making yourself attractive to the opposite sex.

5. If you will stick to one thing instead of having so many irons in the fire you will make a greater success of life.

6. You are loved for your own sweet self and many anxious hearts will await your decision with fear and trepidation.

7. Don't dream your life away. If you see some one you want for a life partner, go get him or her.

8. You will be fortunate if you act honestly and openly, and do not carry on flirtations under cover.

A Promise of Love Returned.

9. The one you love loves you and your affection will always be returned with the same lavishness you yourelf bestow.

10. If you will listen to advice and do not go recklessly along, as you are doing, your chances for happiness will be greater.

11. The fates prophesy two mates for you, and a possible third. The first will be good and appreciated; the second will keep you stepping lively, and the third will be a matter of deep regret.

12. You are going to have a whole houseful of children for whom you will work hard. You will be an indulgent parent, and will be rewarded with a glorious old age.

13. The unlucky number which means your life will be disappointing. You will not get the mate you want, nor all the money you feel you need.

14. You will marry late in life, but do not despair, for you will be compensated abundantly by your selection.

15. Luck is on your side in all things of money and business, but in the affairs of the heart you will not be so fortunate.

16. The fates indicate that you are due for a life of ups and downs, moving hither and yon, always restless and discontented.

17. Your most ardent wish is about to be fulfilled.

18. You are likely to inherit some money, but you will go out and risk it in some foolish speculation and be no better off than now.

19. For one of your temperament married life is not suitable, so you had better stay single as long as you can.

20. Cheer up. The worst is yet to come, unless you get hep to yourself and change your mode of life.

21. There is a great treasure within your reach. Don't let it escape you.

22. In marriage you will be successful. You will have two partners, each providing you with different interests and rare comforts.

23. You will marry a rich and homely person, and things will not be so easy for you as you'd like them to be.

24. If your manner were not so cold you would be able to see that a certain person is madly in love with you, but receives no grain of encouragement and, consequently, is thinking of turning to another for consolation.

25. You are a terrible flirt. One of these days some one is going to get hold of you and make you toe the mark as you have never done before. There is no escape for you.

Fortunes by Cards.

And here is a simple method of telling fortunes by cards. It gives each member of a large group a single chance to learn something of interest. Shuffle a full pack. Pass it around and let each guest draw a card. By the following meanings of the cards you can read a simple fortune from the card drawn:

DIAMONDS—
ACE—A ring is on the way.
KING—A light married man will hold interesting conversation with you.
QUEEN—A fair woman is watching you.
JACK—A fair young bachelor watches your next step.
TEN—Money is coming to you.
NINE—You are going to an enjoyable affair.
EIGHT—A parcel is due you.
SEVEN—A letter you'll receive.
SIX—A gift for you.
FIVE—You are going to be where there are children.
FOUR—This spells marriage for you.
THREE—A great surprise.
TWO—A visitor.

What Hearts and Clubs Say.

HEARTS—
ACE—You will meet your fate in a large building.
KING—A sandy complexioned man is after you.
QUEEN—A red haired woman is coming into your life.
JACK—Young man with red hair is interested in you.
TEN—Proposal, either business or marriage.
NINE—You will get what you wish for.
EIGHT—Pleasure in store.
SEVEN—A new friend.
SIX—Gay society.
FIVE—You'll be where there are many people.
FOUR—A strange bed.
THREE—A strange country or drive.
TWO—A kiss from a traveler.

CLUBS—
ACE—A letter.
KING—Brown haired man with good news.
QUEEN—Brown haired woman with bad news.
JACK—Brown haired young man awaits you.
TEN—Long journey by water.
NINE—Crosses.
EIGHT—A disappointment.
SEVEN—Troubles.
SIX—Eating and drinking.
FIVE—Falsehoods and deceit.
FOUR—A second marriage in store.
THREE—Tears.
TWO—A short journey by water.

* *

The Stories Told by Spades.

SPADES—
ACE—Travel.
KING—Dark man unhappy about you.
QUEEN—Dark woman unhappy about you.
JACK—Handsome suitor would have you.
TEN—Sickness at a distance.
NINE—Anger.
EIGHT—Vexation in store.
SEVEN—Unexpected annoyance.
SIX—A quarrel.
FIVE—A broken engagement.
FOUR—Disappointment.
THREE—Grief.
TWO—An accident.

Each player is allowed to make a wish before a card is drawn. If the nine of hearts turns up the wish is granted, regardless of its meaning. If a player wants to ask a question relative to the answer to the card she drew and it can be answered by yes or no, the entire pack is shuffled and run through until an ace turns up. If it turns up red, the answer is yes; if black, no.

MR. HOGGELGOG HIMSELF.

BY WM. DONAHEY

ALL the animals in Puckerbush knew that Mr. Hoggelgog was a little queer. They also knew that he was a self-made rabbit; he made himself do a great many things. He put himself to bed at night and got himself up in the morning. He washed his own ears and starched his own collars. He whipped himself and scolded himself. In fact, there wasn't a thing about himself that he didn't make himself do.

Washed his own ears.

Sometimes he had a terrible time making himself do something for himself, for sometimes it's mighty hard to make ourselves do the things we ought to do for ourselves.

It was quite a task for Mr. Hoggelgog to make himself save his money, for there were so many things he wanted to buy. Sometimes he had to scold himself to make himself save his money, and once he whipped himself and sent himself to bed, without any supper because he spent a dime that he should have made himself save.

"I believe it would be much easier to make some one else save my money than to try and make myself save it," he said to himself one day when he was trying to save a penny he wanted to spend on himself.

He did a great deal of thinking and talking to himself about hiring some one to save his money for him, but the more he thought about it the more he believed it would be better to save for himself.

"I'd just have to make myself watch the person I hired to save my money," he told himself. "Then if he should run away with my money, I'd have a lot of blame to put on myself."

He thought once of hiding his money from himself, but he gave up that idea, for he'd have to tell himself where he had hidden it and that wouldn't be safe.

Finally he got himself a little china pig bank and made himself put his money in it, but it didn't do a bit of good, for he couldn't keep himself from taking a hammer and breaking it open.

Being a self-made rabbit, Mr. Hoggelgog hated to ask advice of any one but himself, but he decided Mr. Nickeldick might help him to save his money, so he took the matter up with that dignified rabbit.

"I just simply can't keep myself from spending my savings," he told Mr. Nickeldick. "Something must be done."

Mr. Nickeldick nibbled clover seeds and thought over the matter for some time before he had an idea.

"I have it!" he said. "You can keep a promise, can't you?"

Mr. Hogglegog nodded.

"Well," continued Mr. Nickeldick, "get a bank and put your money into it, and make a solemn promise that you won't take a penny out of it for a year."

"That's a bully idea!" cried Mr. Hoggelgog. "I'll never break a promise I make to myself."

He went straight to the Rabbit Ten Cent Store and bought himself a little iron penny bank. Taking it home, he dropped five pennies into it and made a very solemn promise not to take anything out of it for a year.

Every day Mr. Hoggelgog put a few pennies into the bank, and before long it grew quite heavy. Every now and then he wished he could take out a few pennies to spend, but he couldn't do that without breaking his promise to himself, and he wouldn't allow himself to do that.

Mr. Hoggelgog saved and saved, and if he hadn't seen some rabbit roller skates he might have saved a great deal of money during the year.

He saw the silver plated skates in the hardware store, and he wanted them. He had enough money in the little savings bank, but he had promised himself not to take any of it, and of course he couldn't take it after he had promised.

Made a solemn promise.

He wanted the skates so badly he would lie awake in his bed at night trying to scheme out some way to get the money out of his bank without breaking his promise to himself. At last one night he had a brilliant idea.

"I can rob myself," he said to himself. "I didn't promise not to rob myself."

He got up out of bed, dressed himself, and, taking his pistol, he went outdoors, being careful to lock the door after himself. He then tied a handkerchief over his face so he wouldn't know himself and, pointing the pistol at himself, he ordered himself to rob himself. Pointing the pistol at himself with one hand, he made himself pry open a window with the other hand and climbed into the house. With the pistol pressed tight against his body, he made himself break open the bank and take enough money to buy the roller skates. After he had robbed himself he climbed out of the window, let himself in at the door, and put himself to bed.

The next morning he intended to buy the roller skates, but when he awoke and saw the broken bank it suddenly occurred to him just what a terrible thing he had done. He had robbed himself.

A kind-hearted fox.

Poor Mr. Hoggelgog was terribly ashamed of himself and he determined that he ought to be punished, so he went over to the courthouse and had himself arrested for robbing himself.

When he was brought out for trial Mr. Hoggelgog testified against himself and he was found guilty of robbing himself, but the judge, who was a kind-hearted old fox, let him off when he promised never again to steal from himself.

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that the scales of a fish, the feathers of a bird, the hair of a dog, the horns of a bull, the thin top skin on the back of your hand, should all be made of the same material?

Yet it is true that feathers, hair, horns, fingernails, claws, hoofs, are all this tin top skin worked up by nature into different implements. Various needs of animals as they have developed along differnt lines have put the material in this top skin to different uses.

The world was once a quite tropical place, for instance, and animals had to take no precaution against the cold. They were then mostly in the reptile stage and reptiles still get along without skin covering for warmth.

Later certain of the animals became mammals. The birds branched off from reptiles, took to the tress, but continued to hatch their young from eggs as did the reptiles. The world grew colder and these two branches of the animal kingdom began to feel the need of protection against it. The mammals began to modify their cuticle, to grow it into a more abundant form. The particles of it gradually lengthened as the millions of years rolled past, and became hairs.

The birds, shivering there in the trees, found it necessary to develop a covering for their bodies. They likewise used the cuticle as the basis for it. But the form of the covering was a bit different. It became feathers.

If one works with a shovel for a week in his garden he will notice that the cuticle inside his hands is hardening, is developing protection against the shovel. In the same way various needs of the various animals have developed the cuticle into various forms. The cat needed claws to help it in climbing. The cuticle, through the centuries, evolved into claws. The horse found that he needed a solid hoof for beating against the rough ground. Though his foot was originally soft like that of the dog, it eventually became a rigid sheath. The rhinocerous needed a horn on its nose and built it up of cuticle.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Helen has a bad habit of not staying on the sidewalk. Instead she runs over lawns and curbs, wherever she pleases. Her mother scolded her, saying, "Helen, look at the other children. They don't run all over. Why can't you stay on the sidewalk as they do?"

Helen looked thoughtfully down at some childish tracks in the mud that bordered the sidewalk, which her mother hoped she had not observed. "How happen," she asked, "that little kids' foots have tracked where little kids aren't been?" E. V. A.

Marion, aged 4, was enjoying a visit from Aunt Jane. Upon being informed she was to sleep with her aunt she retired in high spirits.

Some hours later when Aunt Jane went into the bedroom she stumbled over a barricade of chairs, brooms, etc., which had been placed before the door.

"I just wanted to know when you comed to bed," the little girl sleepily explained. M. M.

Janie is the oldest of four little tots, and mothers them all. Recently she visited an aunt and uncle who have no children. Each day she grew more homesick and lonely for her little brothers and baby sister, until one evening she could stand it no longer.

"Please, Nanna," she choked, "I think I'd better go home. You see, I's not used to such an empty family." K. D.

TENDER, ACHING, FEET

THE minute you put your feet in a "Tiz" bath you feel pain being drawn out and comfort just soaking in. How good your tired, swollen, burning feet feel. "Tiz" draws out the poisons that cause tender, aching feet.

"Tiz" takes all the soreness out of corns and callouses. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store for a few cents.

End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and comfortable.

Bathe Them in TIZ

STUDYING LAMP SHADES.

SHADES of paper, shades of silk, and shades of other stuffs. Such a great array of them for every room in the house. Miracles may be worked through the friendly magic of lamp shades. Designs may be chosen which express with delightful precision the spirit of any setting. The missing touch of color needed to transform a room from commonplace drabness to distinctive artistry may be introduced by means of lamp shades. A general rule to be remembered in selecting colors is that those which cast a yellowish, or a pinkish tone are preferable to those of bluish or greenish tinge. If the shade is needed to carry out the color scheme of a room, it should be lined with rose, so that when lighted it will throw a soft mauve light.

Various kinds of paper shades are much to the fore this season, a circumstance that is of interest to those who do their own decorating, as they are so easy to make. Even the silk shades are feeling the influence of the straight, stiff lines of the paper shades. To be smart they must be kept severely tailored. Silk fringed shades, so much in evidence a short while ago, are seldom seen. Fussy, much beruffled and lavishly decorated shades are absolutely out.

Square shades, though they are not really an innovation, are enjoying a new vogue, due, no doubt, to their susceptibility to decoration with prints and silhouettes. Four sided frames, slightly smaller at the top than bottom are good. Plain taffeta in pastel colors, stretched smoothly and finished with bias bands; rows of cording, plain silk braids or harmonizing ruching, is finding much favor.

The penchant for old prints has really brought the paper shades into their own. Few people can make designs and color schemes of their own, but anyone can cut and paste. Beautiful old wood cuts, engravings, landscapes, flower plates and fashion drawings can be found either in originals or reproductions in art stores and art departments. Once these are selected, it is easy to decide on the background and to get a frame of good proportion for the size of the print. The base of the lamp, too, must be taken into consideration.

An atmosphere of gracious hospitality is achieved in the living room illustrated today. The general color scheme is amethyst, jade green, and gold. Walls and woodwork are a goldeny parchment yellow. The davenport and big chair shown are upholstered in amethyst mohair velour. On the floor is a two toned bronze chenille rug. Draw curtains at windows and French doors are of jade green taffeta shot with gold and lined with old gold sateen. They are drawn apart to disclose a lovely view in the daytime and at night the gold flecks catch and reflect the lamp light in starry sparkles.

A feeling of restful balance is attained in the davenport arrangement. Shades on the gold and black end table lamps are of plaited cloth of gold over rose color. They are bound with black "moss" and finished with double drops of georgette—the under one of rose, the upper of mauve. Plain little parchment shades finish the side lights. On the wrought iron lamp beside the wing chair is a parchment shade decorated with old flower prints pleasingly spaced and shellacked. The shade is banded in jade green.

The lamp shades in a little girl's room are most cleverly worked out. Pink and blue and white is the color scheme. The walls are calcimined pink and the woodwork is white. All of the furniture is painted robin's egg blue. Bed cover and window draperies are made of printed percale showing little white and pink stars on a blue ground. On a stand beside the bed, on the dressing table, and on the center light are shades made by pasting smoothly over a paper shade percale of the same pattern, but with blue and white stars on a pink ground. Oval white spaces are left clear and filled in with darling little Mother Goose characters. These medallions and the edges of the shades are outlined, not bound, in white rickrack braid so that they appear to have a scallopy edge.

Charming is a bedroom done in rose and leaf green. The woodwork is painted leaf green and the walls are covered with a paper spattered with small, delicately colored flowers. Furniture is leaf green decorated with floral motifs. On the twin beds are taffeta covers of rose, finished with full, leaf green flounces. Crispy, rose colored organdie makes ruffled curtains at the windows. Rose colored glass candlesticks, electrically wired, are used on the dressing table and night stands. These glass candlesticks are especially lovely for dressing tables and may be had in many delicate colors—amber, jade green, blue, ruby, rose, amethyst, or crystal. In this instance shades are made of white silk, veiled in pale green georgette, so that they fit in with the color scheme, but when lit show a white light because the green chiffon is so thin. They are finished at the edges with rose colored taffeta covered cording and trimmed with French flowers.

Plaited shades of decorated oiled parchment paper are novel and attractive, as the light shines through the colors so translucently as to make them look almost like stained glass. These are especially pleasing on wrought iron lamps, though they are charming also on pottery vases. Shades of this type are used in an interesting sun room. The floor is done in red tile set in black mortar. Furniture is black, decorated with touches of dull gold. Wrought iron reading lamps have plaited parchment shades decorated with a floral design of Spanish character, oiled so the colors show clear and bright. Striped silk gauze, in a rainbow array of colors, makes the window curtains. The colors of the stripes are repeated in gay cushions.

MY GREATEST THRILL.

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

Unique.

Since I can remember, I have been trying to write. Naturally enough, I am by this time quite familiar with the appearance of a rejection slip. Two weeks ago I sent a poem to a magazine, and today a thin envelope lay in my mail box.

"Another slip for my collection," I thought ruefully. Hesitatingly I opened the letter. My first literary check!

I have gone on a wolf hunt, I have gone under water the second time, and I have been in love—but I have never known a thrill to equal this.

Hungry Bear.

My greatest thrill came two years ago when I took the northwestern tour to Yellowstone park.

The bears out there, when they hear the honk of an auto horn, come out of the woods and beg the tourists for something to eat. Naturally we were all anxious to get a picture of a bear. One man happened to have some popcorn and was letting one eat out of his hand. I couldn't get over how tame the bear was, and I couldn't resist petting it.

I had hardly got my hand to its head when it stopped eating and made a snap at my knee. I managed to get strength enough to jump back a step, and the old boy stepped forward and bit my knee again.

I looked around to see if some one was coming to my rescue, but they all stood there like stone. I jumped back another step, and the bear gave me a most disgusted look and went back to the man with the popcorn and started to eat again.

It gives me an icy chill when I recall what a narrow escape I had. They said I was a lucky girl to get away with only a bruised and skinned knee.

In He Went!

At Cedar Lake, Ind., one summer, when down at the shore, which was about two feet high, my three year old son decided to go fishing while I sewed.

Well, before one could say "Boo!" he had fallen over into a thick, slimy green scum, which forms on shallow water when the wind blows landward. In the next half second I dropped my sewing, stepped in and pulled my "fisherman" out—a fisherman filled with and covered by this green scum.

Although the water was shallow, it was deep enough for him to drown. A thrill combined with a scare!

THE IDEAL VACATION

What is your notion of the ideal vacation? A fishing jaunt, an ocean trip or a lake voyage, a stay at a fashionable resort, a stretch of lazy idleness in the woods, a long motor tour—most every one has his or her own idea of the best possible vacation. Perhaps you've already had yours, one that stands out in your memory as the finest vacation possible. Perhaps you're planning that never to be forgotten event this summer, or next year, or just as soon as circumstances will permit. If you've enjoyed yours already, tell the others about it; if yours is still to come, let the others know your ideas. We'll pay you $1 for every letter we print. Real Love Letters

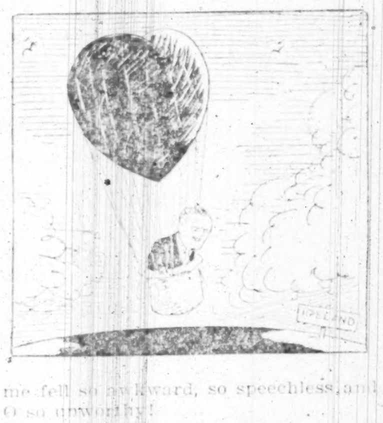
To an Irish Sweetheart.

DEAREST UNA: I've been reading Donn Byrne, and thinking much of the beauty and romance of my beloved Ireland and of being with you. It is so hard, my dear, to believe that an ocean, with all the depth and blueness of your sweet eyes, separates us. For us, sweetheart, an ocean should be a small thing. Surely a love and companionship like ours can span that.

You will write, I know. You will tell me you love me, that you wish I were with you, tell me of the heartening beauty of the sky and of the sea, of the manner in which you have spent your day, and again that you love me. I shall so love to hear of it all!

If only I could be with you! It seems a century since we climbed together those heather covered hills. There, I think, is where we found each other. There it was that your sweet seriousness fled and your alternating shyness and gayety caught at my heart. Your sweetness, your innocence, and the pure, white heart you offer to me, make me feel so awkward, so speechless, and O so unworthy!



My heart is so full and I cannot speak, cannot pour it out to you on this cold, white paper. In the words of that old ballad, "I love you, I love you, that's all my heart can say."

They Stain Teeth

Why Pretty Teeth Grow Dingy

You stain them, then don't remove the stain

A viscous coat constantly forms on your teeth. You can feel it all the time. Foods, coffee and tobacco stain that clinging coat. Then teeth look dingy. The glistening enamel is hidden by a cloud.

Magnesia removes those coats, sometimes in one application. When those coats are gone, the natural beauty of the teeth comes out. The change will delight you.

But use Phillips' Dental Magnesia. Then, while you polish teeth, you protect them in many ways. You apply antiseptics to combat germ attacks on the teeth and gums. You apply cleaners, iodides and deodorants—five tooth pastes in one.

You apply, above all, an alkaline cream and force it between the teeth. There it neutralizes the acids which are constantly forming to cause tooth decay.

Send coupon for a ten-day test. See how this dentifrice beautifies teeth. Learn what a delightful taste and feeling it brings to the mouth next morning. You will never go a day without it when you know.

Phillips' Dental Magnesia

Based on Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—the genuine—standard for 50 years with dentists and physicians.

All In One

Its 16 ingredients combine in one application

Antacids
Antiseptics
Iodides
Cleansers
Polishers
Deodorants

It is five tooth pastes in one, to meet every modern requirement.

THE CHEEKIEST PERSON I EVER MET

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscency of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Justified.

In Iowa pioneer days fruit was scarce. Early settlers noticed that there was great variation in the size and flavor of the wild plum and crab-apple fruit.

On a corner of Mr. B.'s farm was a plum tree, which bore delicious fruit. His neighbor, an old friend of mine, was making a great effort to start an orchard on her farm, and one day told her boy to get a pail and they would walk over to Mr. B.'s tree and pick up some of the plums which were lying on the ground under it, to plant in the new orchard.

As they walked back they met Mr. B. riding on top of a load of hay. She told him what they had been doing. "O," said he. "Vell, you joost hand me up de pail and I vill eat de plums and throw you down the seeds."

They did as ordered, but when he was out of sight went back to the tree, shook it, filled their pail full, and marched home again. T. B

Not Sick Enough.

I've been an M. D. for some time, but this beats them all. A patient of doubtful intentions as to settlement of an old bill called to ask that I come out right away.

On being told that we would look after him only on condition he settle his bill in full at once, he remarked: "Guess I'm not that sick, Doc."

A. S. F.

Ungrateful.

I have done countless favors for my neighbor across the hall and can truthfully say I have never asked a favor from her.

One day she was ironing. Friends came in and she had to stop to entertain them.

Meeting me on the porch she told me she had only two more curtains to iron. They were starched and dampened. Would I please iron them? I did. But instead of being two curtains there were two pairs and two valances with double ruffles.

The friends took her to a matinée. Later she called for the curtains. I told her that there were two pairs and she said of course there were. I asked if they were ironed all right, thinking she would at least compliment me.

She said, "Pretty good, but they're not ironed any better than I do."

Cheeky? J. P.

Registering a Protest.

Although I am just a freshman in a large university full of supercilious sophomores and other objectionable persons whom a freshman has to endure, I want to register an emphatic protest against the cheek of a certain upperclassman.

A report on "Minor Land Forms" was due for geology 1, and after many hours of hard work I completed it.

In came the person and looking over my paper he took it, saying only a few corrections that he would make were necessary to make it perfect. I thanked him sincerely.

The next day I turned in the paper hopeful of at least an "A." All I got was a severe "bawling out" from the instructor for handing in a copied report. Although I protested heartily, what is a freshman's word against a sophomore's?

He got an "A" on my theme, but I got the satisfaction of knocking his block off after class. J. D. W.

Pretty Small.

My sister married a young man just starting out in a profession and the couple came home to live. In order to help them save expenses my mother asked nothing for my sister's board or for their room, but charged my brother-in-law five dollars for his board, as she thought the extra food would cost her that much.

One evening my brother-in-law worked late and got his dinner in town. At the end of the week he handed my mother four dollars and a fifty cent piece and said, "My dinner Tuesday cost me sixty cents, but I didn't have the change. You can give me the ten cents change when you have it."

If that wasn't cheek, I don't know what is. E. K. Y.

Taking Her Time.

I work in the boys' section of a large department store. On a busy day a woman came in and wanted to see a cap for her son. I tried every size on him till I found one which fitted him. Then, at her request, I tried every style we had on him. This lasted three-quarters of an hour. She then said, "What size does he wear?" I told her.

"Will you write it down on paper? I want to go downtown tomorrow to buy a cap there and I won't be able to take him with me, so I wanted to know what size he wears and what style looks best on him." Saying this, she walked away without a "Thank you."

Cheek? The word isn't big enough to express hers! R. B. F.

Miles of It.

My neighbor had been watching me paint the garage for a day or so. When I had finished he looked into the paint pail and said: "Got some left, eh?"

I said, "A little!"

He said, "I'd like to borrow that to trim up those back windows upstairs, what say?"

I replied, "All right," and gave him the paint. He came back in a few minutes and borrowed my brush and ladder.

About twenty minutes later he returned and said, "Gosh, it makes me dizzy on that ladder! I wonder if you could paint those windows for me?"

I did, but wasn't that nerve?

D. K.

Accepting the Ride.

The cheekiest person I know is my neighbor. Having to go to a town some miles away on business, and not wishing to travel on the train alone, she asked me to go with her.

We went to the depot and when it was nearly train time and she had not purchased our tickets I took a bill from my purse, saying, "Guess I will get my ticket."

She answered, "Let me take your money and I will get both tickets."

I handed her the bill. She bought two return trip tickets with my money and brought me the change. G. A.

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

Why Blame the Friend?

"Dear Miss Blake: I have fallen in love with a boy who, on account of the jealous wiles of a girl 'friend' of mine, has been led to believe I no longer care for him. What can I do to regain his love for me? BLUE EYES."

Don't place too much of the blame on your girl friend, Blue Eyes. Boys have been known to change their minds about girls and transfer their affections to another, dear.

Sees Her Too Often.

"Dear Miss Blake: My parents object to my boy friend coming to see me every night. He says he loves me, and must come every night. I'm wondering what to do.

"WONDERING."

You're quite apt to grow tired of each other, spending so much time together, Wondering. And it's well for girls to keep up their interests in other things even though they have beaus.

Merely Bashful.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would it be proper for a girl to invite a boy to her home who has never asked to take her out? He is inclined to be quite bashful. DISCOURAGED."

If you have reason to feel he'd like to come it would be quite all right to ask him, Discouraged. Bashful boys need to be encouraged, dear.

Keep It a Secret.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a girl who is eighteen months older than I. Will it interfere in future life? SPARKY."

Not in the least, Sparky. If she's pretty no one will ever suspect it, so why not let that be your secret?

She's Playing Safe.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go with a girl who tells me she loves me but insists on going out with other fellows. Do you think she is doing the right thing when she does this? RUDY."

She's quite right, Rudy. Don't you think she would be a foolish girl to cut herself off from her friends? She believes in playing safe, Rudy.

Expecting Too Much.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go with a boy whom I see every day at school, but he never takes me out. How can I get him to take me out? LOLA."

The average schoolboy hasn't wealthy parents, dear, and we mustn't expect things which are out of season.

Poor Health.

"Dear Doris Blake: I love a fellow who says he loves me, but never suggests anything definite. He has delicate health. Could this be the reason? "DOUBTFUL."

If he hasn't enjoyed good health that's a reason why he couldn't. You mustn't expect unreasonable things, dear.

Parents Object.

"Dear Miss Blake: There is a young girl of 20 in our town, but her folks will not let her go out with me. We are seriously thinking of eloping. Do you advise this? BILL."

Don't do it, Bill. You'll be sorry if you do. Find out why her parents object to you, and then set yourself right with them.

Does HE Like Gray Hair?

Ravinia Is Product of Real Idealism

By Edward Moore.

"RAVINIA," says Mr. Eckstein, "has its foundation rooted in a single purpose—to lend impetus to that great movement through which the American people are being brought to a deeper appreciation and understanding of the art of music drama.

"It was founded on idealism, it has been continued in altruism," he continues—for the moment he is regarding it from a different angle from the actual répertoire of this summer. "No note of commerciality," he goes on, "has ever sounded in the symphony which has been woven from its activities. The idea of profit has had no place in its scheme of things. Art alone is the keynote of its structure—art elevated to the highest plane in the enshrinement of the classics of operatic literature and the augmentation of these classics through constant effort. As its accomplishment has mounted ever upward, its raison d'être—the cultural advancement of the community it serves and a further contribution to all that America has done as its share toward the propagation of music—has never been lost to view.

RUTH ALEXANDER TRACY
in piano recital at the Princess today.

"When these things are considered there is justification for a natural pride as we contemplate the years which have slipped by so rapidly since Ravinia was brought into being. It has taken time, effort, care, and responsibility. But these alone could not have achieved such results. Without idealism, faith, hope, and coöperation there could have been no Ravinia as it is known today. They are the factors which created its atmosphere, that have constantly supplied its background, and to them its traditions steadfastly cling.

Born of the Spirit.

"These elements, born of the spirit, have given Ravinia its place in the sun; have placed upon it the stamp of worthiness and have served as warrant for the world artists who deem it an honor and a privilege to be a part of this institution, which, since its inception, has continuously included the Chicago Symphony orchestra, making it unique in that it is the only opera house in the world with a permanent symphonic orchestra as part of its personnel.

"The gates of Ravinia swing wide," concludes Mr. Eckstein, "and thousands of pilgrim feet will tread its paths during the coming season. May we hope that you will be of their number—that you will share in that musical inspiration which is so much a part of this Opera House in the Woods."

The music department of this paper believes Mr. Eckstein has in no way overstated the case. It takes this opportunity to indorse what he has said. Ravinia from the beginning has been as romantic an adventure as this country has ever known, a dream and more than a dream, because hopes and aspirations were firmly bound with the cord of accomplishment. All that one needs to be convinced is to go out to Ravinia one of the pleasant summer nights in July or August and see for himself what that dauntless band accomplishes.

Boston Produces "Mme. Butterfly."

While on the subject of opera, there is room this morning for a bit about a performance that went on in Boston a few nights ago. It was "Mme. Butterfly" done by the New England conservatory. Dorothy Francis in the name part and Jeska Swartz as Suzuki are two members of the large and constantly increasing alumni association of the Chicago opera. Wallace Goodrich conducted. Frank St. Leger, for several years connected with the conductorial staff here, took to himself the functions of stage director, and they tell of him that he achieved a performance with pace and illusion.

H. T. P., writing in the Transcript, was moved to say that it resulted in "as admirable stage direction as Boston has seen these many days on the singing stage. Most of the Chicago performances last winter Mr. St. Leger put to deserved and accumulated shame."

Ann Arbor Prepares for Festival.

Those who turn their course by train or motor in the direction of Ann Arbor, Mich., this week will find that the customary activities of the town have been converted into preparations for the annual music festival which runs from Wednesday to Saturday night. Elaborate preparations they have turned into. The Chicago Symphony orchestra will play, the Michigan Choral union will sing, soloists of distinction will appear.

The first concert on Wednesday night will be a symphonic program, with Mr. Stock conducting and Mme. Louise Homer, contralto, as soloist. On the following night Mr. Stock will turn over the baton to Earl V. Moore for a performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," with Marie Sundelius, Jeanne Laval, Charles Stratton, and Theodore Harrison as soloists.

Two concerts, afternoon and evening, are booked for both Friday and Saturday. The first afternoon will be divided among the orchestra; Albert Spalding, the violinst; the children's festival chorus, J. E. Maddy, who conducts it, and Mr. Stock. In the evening, among other events, Giovanni Martinelli will sing and Howard Hanson will conduct the first performance on any stage of his "The Lament for Beowulf," which enlists the services of chorus and orchestra.

The Saturday afternoon concert, symphonic again, will introduce Mischa Levitski, the pianist, as soloist. The last event will be a concert performance of Wagner's "Lohengrin," with the orchestra, chorus, Mr. Moore conducting, and no less a cast than Florence Austral, Augusta Lenska, Richard Crooks, Richard Bonnelli, James Wolf, and Barre Hill. Then the orchestra will come home to get ready for another festival at Evanston.

Some Gratifying Figures.

Some one with a taste for figures has been indulging in it in the New York Times on the general subject of music. He comes to the conclusion that the annual musical turnover in this country is in excess of $100,000,000, and as there is no way of contradicting the figure, it may as well stand.

Some of the high spots make pleasant reading for those who look upon music in the light of big business. He tells how Toscanini was paid $50,000 for his three weeks' conducting in New York last winter, how Feodor Chaliapin paid an income tax of $52,000, how Paderewski's gross earnings were slightly less than $500,000, how Fritz Kreisler manages to struggle along on a weekly income of $10,000 to $12,000.

Gross, however, is a long way beyond net to the musical artist. Expenses mount high in spite of the unprecedented fees that some of the foreigners—few, very few of the Americans—are able to command. They say that some of the highly paid foreign artists are able to sail for home with 40 per cent of their earnings intact at the end of a season, and some are not. Twenty per cent of an artist's concert earnings becomes his manager's fee, perhaps 25 per cent goes for living expenses, 10 per cent more for income tax and incidentals. They tell of three noted foreign artists—not naming them—who enjoyed sound successes here this season and broke exactly even.

The mainstay of the concert business is the $500 artist. Here his expenses are apportioned something this way: Manager's fee, $100; printing, $30; transportation, $25; hotel bills, $25; trade paper advertising, $50. This leaves him $270 out of his $500, or, if he is lucky enough to have twenty engagements a season, $5,400. That does not include the fact that he must have clothes, or, if he is anything but a pianist, an accompanist; and, if he desires to keep abreast with his profession, some coaching in his off time.

Financially, and in spite of huge earnings by the chosen few, it is not such a glamorous life after all. They say this last season has been poor, and they are running around after many reasons except, perhaps, the true one. One manager

WEST MEETS EAST AND EVENTS OCCUR

"THE FIGHTING BUCKAROO."

Produced by Fox. Directed by R. William Neill. Presented at the Monroe theater.

THE CAST.

Larry Crawford	Buck Jones
Betty Gregory	Sally Long
Glenmore Bradshaw	Lloyd Whitlock
Percy Wellington	Frank Butler
Judge Gregory	E. J. Radcliffe
First Crook	Ben Hendricks Jr.
Second Crook	Ray Thompson
Andy Parker	Frank Rice

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning!

Well, what can I do for you this morning, outside of reviewing a picture for you? Whilst deciding, wouldst read about "The Fighting Buckaroo" that's at the Monroe?

It's Buck Jones' latest and is a lively work—full of purpose—which is to show you just how many stunts this open-faced son of the prai'ries can pull within a given time.

Of one thing you can always be sure—turn one of Mr. Fox's cowboys loose in New York and E-vents WILL Trans-PIRE. Hostelries will be wrecked. Traffic will be demoralized. The law will be toppled over by a hearty clap between the shoulders. Dignity will prance in pajamas on Broadway. Staid roofs and astounded fire escapes will feel the patter of running feet and, from first one vantage point and then another, THE GIRL who is the cause of it all will yip unceasingly. That her yips will be stifled in the finale's hearty buss is also, of course, a foregone conclusion.

BUCK JONES
as Larry Crawford in "The Fighting Buckaroo."

It was so in the beginning of movie cowboyitis, is now and ever shall be, world without end with never an Amen! These films feature occasions, you will admit, where east is east and west is west and the two do meet with a vengeance.

A Problem in the First Reel.

Now the particular case before the house as regards "The Fighting Buckaroo" has to do with Larry Crawford who, the war well over, comes home, bringing in tow an everlastingly grateful rich chappie—British—whom he has rescued from the mud of No Man's Land.

The cowboy has an option on a certain ranch and discovers to his horror that that option is due to expire in about three days. His own ranch foreman, a hairy, worried soul, meets him in New York, fairly dripping with sad tidings.

Larry, the careless darling, has, it seems, forgotten!

"But what shall I do? I haven't any money and now there's no time to raise any!" he cries, about to be discouraged.

Did virtue and valor ever go unrewarded, or bread cast upon the waters ever fail to return with a family of many loaves—in a Fox film?

Nope.

Up speaks the grateful rescuee:

"I'LL let you 'ave the coin!" chirps he.

Which would have just fixed up everything beautifully if——

The "if" responsible for the next few reels is our hero's encounter with a certain eminent jurist. The latter is out riding in his limousine with his fair daughter. (Yep, she's the girl) and our hero is hotel-bound with his foreman and the chappie in the taxi.

Quick—to the Rescue!

A small boy and a bicycle—a small boy ON a bicycle—either way will do—are—is—knocked down by a car that fails to stop and the weeping chee-ild, questioned by the good and mad cowboy, points ahead and says: "THAT car!"

And "that car" our hero believes to be the limousine in which the eminent jurist is riding with the fair daughter.

Giddyap, giddyap, WHOA, taxi!

Halt, limousine!

Full of indignation for the mighty who would downtrod the helpless, the hero leaps on the limousine's running board and leaning over tweaks the jurist's nose and otherwise assaults and batters him. Daughter yips. Traffic stops. Jurist howls. Small boy speeds up on his bicycle in the best of health and squeals: "Not THAT CAR, Mister!"

But the damn-age is done. Judge calls policeman.

"Take this brute to jail!" shouts he.

"I'll be at such and such hotel if you want me!" (It rhymes, but there's a little something the matter with the meter.)

Roaring orders to his friends to put up at the judge's hotel instead of the one for which they were headed, the cowboy goes to jail.

Why does he want to change hotels? Why, he's discovered in the yipping fair one the ONE WOMAN!

A few hours later, bailed out for $500 by the chappie, he appears at the hotel.

Complications, and More of 'Em.

O, don't let me forget to tell you that certain Low Citizens who have found out there's gold (or coal, or oil, or quartz, or something) on the optioned ranch, are on the hero's trail, darkly bent on preventing him from getting to Arizony in time to take up the option. And WOULD you believe it, the judge is the owner of that ranch!

Yes, you say you would believe it. All right, go ahead and be blasé if you want to!

Anyhow—between the Low Citizen, the eminent jurist, the yipping daughter, the foreman, the chappie and the cowboy, that hotel certainly would have been better off had a cyclone struck it!

The film ends in a blaze of action in which trains, airships, handcars and what have you, or what will you? figure in fast and furious fashion that well . . . !

Arizona is reached in time. The option is taken up as the clock strikes the hour. The dove of peace descends and settles like everything over everybody's devoted heads and, as prophesied——

Quenched are the yips
By Buck's hot lips.

Action is this picture's middle name, and—nothing to it—if this sort of movie is your stride, you'll fall for it hard—for it heads its particular class.

Events move so fast in a film of this kind that it's hard to keep tab on the acting. Perpetual motion interferes with grave critical judgment. However, I should say that the acting's quite as good as the plot needs. Also, a kind word for the director whose head must have been in a buzz, but who allowed the whirligigs transpiring before him to interfere not one whit with his intelligent guidance of the action demanded by the nutty scenario. Also the photography, sets, scenery, etc., are okay and a general air of happiness fans the atmosphere. I THINK Mr. Jones et al enjoyed themselves immensely making "The Fighting Buckaroo."

And now—should we go to the ball game?

Bits aBOUTem.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS is back in Hollywood after "the best vacation I've had in years!" The vacation only lasted a week, but while it lasted I guess it was good. Mr. Barthelmess, after finishing "Ransom's Folly," boarded a 45 foot boat and sailed for Santa Cruz island, where, report has it, he hunted mountain goat and wild boar, obtaining some fine trophies.

MISS ANNA JARVIS, founder of Mother's day, wrote to Samuel Goldwyn regarding "Stella Dallas": "It should make every man and woman a better son or daughter."

See you tomorrow!

On Encyclopedias

By H. L. Mencken.

MY trade requires me to make frequent use of reference works, and so I have become extremely familiar with all the standard encyclopedias, both in English and in the other so-called civilized languages. It is my belief, reached after long experience and due prayer, that the most useful of them all, at least to an American, is the New International, issued in 1917. This is a purely American product, though in plan it is based upon the well known German Konversations-Lexikon of F. A. Brockhaus. Its chief editor was the late Daniel Coit Gilman, president of Johns Hopkins university and one of the most remarkable Americans of his time.

Gilman borrowed from Brockhaus the sound idea that when a man turns to an encyclopedia for help he is in no mood for reading a long and profound article, but wants his information in succinct and readily assimilable form—more, that he wants to find it quickly. So in the New International the facts are sorted out under as many headings as possible, and every article is as short as it can be made. If one desires, for example, to learn something about hippuric acid, one is not required to search for the facts in an elaborate treatise on organic chemistry. Instead, hippuric acid has a heading of its own, and under that heading everything that is worth knowing about it is set down.

This scheme, of course, makes for a certain amount of duplication. A part, at least, of what is said of hippuric acid is said again of benzoic acid, its father, and of glycine, its mother. But that duplication, obviously, aids the reader rather than hinders him. He gets what he wants very quickly, and there are intelligent cross-references to help him if he desires to proceed further. If what he seeks is in the New International at all, he can find it at once; if it is not there he can discover the fact at once and turn to other reference books.

Unfortunately, the number of such lacunæ, in the New International, as in other encyclopedias, is considerable, and sometimes they are very irritating. It seems to be the habit of all encyclopedia editors to include whole classes of subjects of very slight present interest, and to bar out other classes that are unquestionably interesting. I know of no encyclopedia that doesn't devote a great deal of space to the gods in the Greek and Roman pantheons, many of them so obscure and unimportant that probably even the majority of Greeks and Romans never heard of them. And by the same token I know of none that isn't loftily sniffish about characters, ideas, and institutions that are in actual being.

Some time ago, for example, in the pursuit of researches into American idealism, I wanted to find out something about the history of the Bethlehem Steel corporation. The importance of this company, I take it, will be admitted by every one. It has a vast capitalization, it employs hundreds of thousands of men, it is immensely influential in politics, and the chairman of its board, the Hon. Charlie Schwab, LL. D., is one of the most eminent of American sothsayers—after Henry Ford and Judge Elbert H. Gary, perhaps, the most eminent of them all. But I could find nothing about it in any encyclopedia. Even the New International didn't mention it. There were excellent articles on the original Bethlehem in Palestine, on Bethlehem, Pa., on the Bethlehem Bach festival, and on the Bethlehemite Brothers, but not a line about the Bethlehem Steel corporation or Dr. Schwab. Even in the article on Bethlehem, Pa., they were not mentioned, though, as every one knows, they own and run the town, including even the Bach festival.

So I had to go to an intellectual stock broker and borrow one of his financial reference books. There I found what I was looking for set forth in voluptuous detail. But the New International had failed me grievously, and so had all the other encyclopedias in my literary cellar.

My suggestion to the editors of encyclopedias is that they let down their bars and print more articles on the men and institutions that give form and color to the modern world. In the next edition of the New International there ought to be a comprehensive article on the Bethlehem Steel corporation, showing its history, the location of its properties, and its capital and profits, with something about the puissant and patriotic men who own and run it. There ought to be an article of the same sort on the United States Steel corporation, which is even larger and more philanthropic, and there ought to be yet others on the Ford Motor company, the Postum Cereal company, the Procter & Gamble Soap company, Armour & Co., the Coca Cola company, the United Cigars Stores, and the Pullman company.

To say that such organizations are not important is to talk nonsense. The influence of the Ford Motor company upon the history of the American people has been greater than that of all the Presidents since Lincoln. It has completely reorganized American life, and now proceeds to reorganize the life of all the rest of the world. So with the other great corporations that I have mentioned, and with many like them. The historian of the future will have to deal with them at length. But the American of today who wants to find out about them finds it very difficult. He sees their works all around him, but the simplest facts of their history are hidden from him.

Who will believe me when I say that there is nothing in the New International about the Pennsylvania railroad? Yet it is a fact. There are articles on Pennsylvania college at Gettysburg, with 332 students and an annual income of $53,000, and on Pennsylvania College for Women, with its special "advanced" courses in special service, music, and elocution, but there is not a line about the great railroad which takes in millions of dollars a day and employs whole armies of men and comes very near running the state. Here is an obvious absurdity. The Pennsylvania railroad is more interesting and more important than a whole herd of Pennsylvania colleges for women. Vastly more persons want to know about it. It has an infinitely greater influence upon American life. But the editors of encyclopedias overlook it.

They overlook, too, most of the great organs of opinion. I can find no mention in the New International of the Nation, the New Republic, the Ladies' Home Journal, the Christian Herald, the Atlantic Monthly, the New York Times, or the Saturday Evening Post. The Dial, by some accident, is listed, and so is the London Saturday Review, but there is nothing about the Century or the Boston Transcript or the Outlook. Certain influential newspapers and magazines are discussed briefly in the articles on their founders or editors, but this fact helps the inquirer only seldom, for the very thing he wants to find out, as often as not, is who the founders and editors were and are.

Here the gentlemen who make encyclopedias simply fall down on their jobs: the history of the Nation or the Atlantic is plainly as important as the history of Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia or Pottstown, Pa., which all of them give in full. In other directions I discern a certain intellectual snobbishness in them, highly unbecoming to men of genuine learning. The New International reduces the history of the American burlesque show, certainly one of the most characteristic of national institutions, to a few lines in an article on the subject of literary burlesque. Under vaudeville there is not a word about the American kind. The Ziegfeld Follies are not mentioned at all.

Worse, there is absolutely nothing about Lydia Pinkham, or about Dr. Munyon, or about the Beecham of the pills, or about the Smith Brothers of the cough drops, or about coca cola. Aspirin is mentioned, but not bromo seltzer. Chiropractic is disposed of in eleven lines, and there is not a word about its inventor, the eminent Palmer. Comstockery hides in a brief article on old Anthony. There is nothing about the Breckenridge-Pollard case, nor even about the Thaw case. I look in vain for articles on Maud S., Amos Rusie, and Muggsy McGraw. There are brief ones on John L. Sullivan, Schlatter the Divine Healer, and John Alexander Dowie, but none on Jake Kilrain, Bosco the Snake-Eater, or Anna Eva Fay. I protest earnestly and even bitterly. Let the editors of encyclopedias take heed.

GUILD "GAYETIES" IS MOCKINGLY CLEVER

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Theater Guild juniors, mostly youngsters who are studying with the Guild and playing small parts in the Guild productions when there are any, have staged the second of their "Gayeties" entertainments at the Garrick, hoping for a summer run and standing a fair chance of getting it.

Last year they tried this most successfully. This year their show is more professional and more expensive. They have acquired the confidence that goes with experience and a bank roll. Instead of depending entirely upon their own librettist, they have gone into the market and bought sketches. This gives the program variety, but it also dates it slightly. Some of the sketches play as though they had been on the market quite a spell.

There is one done by Lew Fields' son Herbert, for instance, which makes sport of the familiar musical comedy form—the sirupy song hit, the obvious music cue, the handsome tenor, the marching soldiers. It is well done and amusing. But the type of entertainment it burlesques has been quietly passing out for the last ten years.

MARY ELLIS
helps "The Romantic Young Lady."
(Morrison Photo.)

There is another on the excessively optimistic American drama in which everything possible happens to Ma Hoskins' family without robbing her of her optimism or the play of its happy ending. Just before he dies after the house falls on him, pa shoots ma. But even this fails to discourage her. She had a lot rather be shot than struck by lightning.

There is a modern bit which extracts the symbols from the season's more puzzling dramas without the use of gas, and another in which a half dozen dancing grandmothers with bobbed gray heads lose their attending gigolos to the bare-legged chorus.

There are two or three good songs by Richard Rodgers, one called "Mountain Greenery"—where God paints the scenery—that bore repetition pretty well; another called "Keys to Heaven" and a dance number for the dumb belles called "What's the Use of Talking?"

Neighborhood Players to the Fore Again.

There is some advantage in having a theater obscurely located. There is nothing play-interested folks had rather do than beat a path to its door, given a fair excuse. I probably have told you before of the Neighborhood playhouse, which is located just the other side of the pushcart market in Grand street. This is what the actors call a sleeper jump from Times square, and a good taxi ride from nearly any place.

But all this year the Neighborhood players have been doing such interesting things that they have actually been forced to put one hit aside while they prepared another. Like the Theater Guild, they start the season with a promise that they will produce a certain number of plays for their subscribers, and they hold to that program whether the plays prove popular or not.

The newest of their hits is a light comedy called "The Romantic Young Lady," written by the Spaniard, Martinez Sierra. It is not a new play, and many stock companies around the country have produced it, I understand. But it is new to New York.

Mary Ellis is partly responsible for the local hit. She, you will recall, is the young woman Arthur Hammerstein took away from the Metropolitan Opera house, made prima donna of "Rose-Marie," and placed under a five year contract by the terms of which she cannot sing for any other manager. She tired of "Rose-Marie" and quit, nor all the king's horses could lure her back to it again. Her voice was tired, she said, and her throat endangered if she did not rest. While she was resting she went down to the Neighborhood playhouse and made her debut as the heroine of the Jewish play, "The Dybbuk."

Hammerstein brought suit to restrain her from playing, alleging that if she was strong enough to do that she was strong enough to carry out her agreement with him. But the court decided that the "Dybbuk" part was neither a singing part nor particularly trying on the voice, and therefore no violation of the contract terms.

When "The Romantic Young Lady" was decided upon Miss Ellis was chosen for the rôle of the heroine, though her experience as an actress has been limited. She is gifted, however, with the certain subtle something called charm, and she has common sense. Not much more is demanded of a popular actress. Especially in romantic comedies.

Madrid Casts a Romantic Glamour.

Here she is Rosario, a restless, ivory-tinted Castilian pacing her grandmother's drawing room in Madrid on a hot August evening. Her silly brothers have all gone pleasure hunting, her grandmother has tripped off to bed, and she is left to read herself to drowsiness. Suddenly in the half light a man's hat blows through the window, followed a second later by a man. Thus the romance starts. With all due apologies and many graceful explanations, the hat owner recovers his panama. Then he lingers to remark her taste in literature, seeing she is reading a popular author of the day with whom he is well acquainted.

She defends her author and, being ever so eager to meet him, accepts a note of introduction from the interesting stranger. At which point the brothers come home, grandma gets up to investigate, and the gentleman leaves hurriedly by the window, still without his hat, but inadvertently carrying with him one of Rosario's slippers.

To recover her family prestige Rosario calmly throws the intruder's hat out the window after him. And he as politely tosses her slipper in to her. Which serves to bring the first act curtain down in what is commonly known as a gale of laughter.

After that there are adventure and discreet love making. The nocturnal gentleman following the lost hat is of course the favored author himself, as Rosario learns when she calls on him next act. And she is engaged to him and happy at the play's end. The romantic drama is what the players make it. Miss Ellis, as said, makes this one real and altogether pleasant. Ian MacLaren is the author.

Dallas Wins the Belasco Trophy.

I suppose there was dancing in the plaza down Dallas way last week when word came that the Little Theater group of that Texas town had for the third time been awarded the Belasco trophy in the annual Little Theater tournament held here.

There should have been. It is something of an achievement for a town nearly 1,500 miles from Broadway to develop so capable a band of amateur actors that they can three years in a row take the honors away from this metropolitan district, where other entrants are constantly in touch with the most and the best the theater has to offer.

This year the Texans' triumph was even more complete. There were entries not only from four or five other states, but from England as well. Following an elimination contest involving seven Little Theater groups, the British Drama league sent over the Huddersfield Thespians to represent English amateurs and have a try at the trophy. Which gave the tournament an international importance.

About the New Mexican Penitentes.

The Dallas players have always been wisely advised and well directed. The dramas they choose are original, and so far have commanded sufficient atmospheric background to give them distinction. They won the first year with a piece called "Judge Lynch," the second year with "The No 'Count Boy," and this year they brought a dramatic, almost tragic, playlet relating a passion play incident of the Penitentes' Easter rites in New Mexico called "El Cristo."

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

MR. COHAN'S new comedy involves more merit than was easily discernible in the excitements and the emotions of the première. "I'm as nervous as Allhell!" he said two or three minutes before the curtain went up, and added, explanatorily: "This thing of opening cold, you know." He meant the experiment of a first performance in a big city without the preliminary test of two or three performances in a smaller city. Ethically, the theory is indefensible, of course; one doesn't have to be an anti-vivisectionist to believe that the dog has rights. Commercially, it seems, more than nine times in ten, the sane thing to do: the indoor showmen say that their common experience is that the chances of success are halved when a play "opens cold" in Chicago or New-York.

WILLIAM ELLIOTT
He's important in the cast of Mr. Cohan's "The Home-Towners."

The trouble with the theory, as I have found it, is that the downtown theater-goers do not respond at the box-office when asked to assemble for a play without a big city reputation, and that the audience on such occasions is mainly composed of persons who are passed in. Their attitude is that of all persons who assume that something had for nothing isn't worth anything; and their reaction is correspondingly without the values of a popular verdict . . . One of the best travesties I've ever seen (and "ever" carries all the way back to the tragedy of Pyramus and Thisbe in "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream") was cut out of a piece because it didn't evoke a titter in Bay City, Saginaw, and Flint, the try-out towns. Later, as a detached item, it was acted here by the original cast at a benefit with such results that within two days three producers were in eager competition for the right to perform it in New-York, where, when sold to one of them for $1,000 bonus and a royalty of $110 a week, it was placed in a revue and used for more than seven months. And that is told about as illustrating one aspect of the theory that there is virtue in the small-town experiment, and not as an isolated instance: I know fifty others in kind.

Yes: and the idea was to write about "The Home-Towners," concerning which at 8:35 of Monday, May 10, 1926, the author was nervous as Allhell, and no less nervous than that at 11:10 of the same day.

Deft, Unusual Playwriting.

Looking on at a cast of seasoned actors who seemed to regard their ordeal as something far more tragic than that of a mere author who happened at the time to be opening a costly new theater, he noted many a line designed for laughter go without it, and many a gesture or pause or strut defeat the sought purpose: yet, as he looked on, he ought to have known that the play caught and held the affection of an audience that, however eager it was to have the play succeed, could not have forced or urged itself into the especial laughter and the especial applause that marked the performance. For the comedy that until the third act fooled and kidded and played tag with the audience had in it an appeal to thought as well as to emotion, and a "moral," as we used to call it, that was of all the warmer eloquence because it was delivered in the terms of lusty fun.

I find to admire in "The Home-Towners" as an achievement in play-making as much as I found in that deft, clever work of twelve years ago, "Seven Keys to Baldpate." The story there was not his, of course; but the play he made from that story was a perfect thing in craftsmanship, and a technical feat whose superior has not been put into the theater by any native dramatist. The story, the slant, and the philosophy of "The Home-Towners" are his own, as is the craftsmanship; and I regard as high praise my saying that the new piece ranks with his footlighting of Mr. Biggers' ingenious romance. . . .

Mr. Cohan's method of "coppering" is employed with bully effectiveness until the time comes to clear things up. (And it may be necessary to insert here the explanation that the verb To copper was one in use in the unholy, godless period of American life when men drank strong brews and distillations and when they gambled for money: it was a faro-player's verb, and went out of use July 1 of 1919 with playing-cards, dice-throwing, naked stage-women, sex-talk, corkscrews, and whiskey. So's your old Mania a potu!)

The Girl in the First Act.

Among the tasks to which I was assigned some years ago in Chicago was the management of an English play named "The New Sin," notable for nothing save that all the characters were masculine; and Mr. Harry J. Powers and I knew the joy night-after-night of returning ticket-costs to indignant playgoers who insisted that they never would have bought seats had they known the play was without women. Now, none of the feminine characters appears in the first act of "The Home-Towners"; but not only does Mr. Cohan compel you to believe that you intimately know the nice girl of the romance, but also coppers you into believing that you know her not as she is, but as the man from South Bend, who has never seen her, undertakes to make her fiancé believe she is—a sly, insincere, no-good little saleswoman of the affections who is the willing utensil of her bawdy family in making a come-on and a fool of a nice man with more than a million in dollars. . . .

You are coppered again and again by Mr. Cohan's skill as the play goes on. When the curtain falls on the first act, you just know that Old Uncle Squaretoes from South Bend has arrived in New-York none too soon if he is to save his younger pal from a trap into which he would have tottered and fallen, and that the simple life and the where-men-are-men surroundings of the devout Mid-West have prepared a stern, uncompromising character for battle with the harpies and the cheats of Manhattan.

A week of other new plays [that's what the authors call them] has kept me from a revisit to the Four Cohans; but it seems safe to assume that the actors, old and young, relaxed by Tuesday, and by Wednesday were engaged in doing the things Mr. Cohan had hired them to do. He gave a good rôle to each of them; and the rôles did more for them than they did for the rôles in the panic of "opening cold."

Miscellany.

The London Morning Post, learning that somebody desires to stage "Abie's Irish Rose" in England, doubts that the play will succeed there "unless it can be modified and put in the shape of 'Paddy the Next-Best Thing' and 'Peg o' My Heart.'" . . . It may be that that means something. I saw "Paddy the Next-Best Thing" there, and was unable to detect that it had any shape. As to "Peg," it was as shapely a bit of hoakum, thanks to the co-authorship of Miss Laurette Taylor, as anything I've ever seen.

The Post adds that, after "Abie" had been turned down by the established producers, it was "ultimately put on by an 'art-group' tired of searching for highbrow material with money in it." . . . Well, "Abie" doesn't classify as highbrow material; and there is money in it. But the art-group consisted of Miss Nichols, the author, and some associates; and, when their money was gone, she borrowed $10,000 or sold a quarter-interest for that sum, which tided them along until the box-office intake was in excess of the weekly costs. A further detail, if I've been correctly informed, is that the angel with the $10,000 was the most notorious of the sure-thing gamblers in the United States, although his alms in this case were contributed without his even having seen a performance.

Auburn Haired Film Star Gathers Rare Curios

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — [Special Correspondence.] — Gertrude Short, petite red haired player, was at home to friends one afternoon recently in her large, old fashioned house underneath the pepper trees of Cahuenga boulevard. In the midst of the feminine buzz of conversation Gertrude's almost new husband, Percy Pembroke, arrived home to meet the girls before the party was over. "Pembroke," mused a visitor, "isn't there an Earl of Pembroke in England?" "O, yes," answered Gertrude. "If seven or eight people should die Percy would then be the Earl of Pembroke."

GERTRUDE SHORT entertains her friends.

Gertrude claims she got quite a prize husband and with him several family curios that are interesting. A collection of fans gathered by her father-in-law was brought downstairs and displayed. There is an elaborately carved tortoiseshell one, once the property of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst; another with mother of pearl shafts and white satin appliqued with antique Irish lace is a fan used by Adelina Patti at her début in London.

A third, of tortoiseshell and black Spanish lace sewn in an intricate design in tiny silver sequins, was once the property of the Empress Josephine. Many others of historic interest are included and the old fashioned boxes in which they came are almost as interesting as the fans themselves. Each fan has its pedigree in the box with it. The box containing Patti's is of white satin with a true love knot of white satin ribbon, now gray from age, sewn on the cover, and a curiously worked gold clasp for a lock.

Another curio is the world's smallest oil painting—at least all present were willing to concede the title to it. A tiny bit of ivory the size of a thumbnail and not any thicker was brought out, and with it an old magnifying glass. The naked eye revealed nothing but several colored splotches, but through the glass one was enabled to see an old fashioned coach and four complete with a red coated and beaver hatted coachman snapping his whip over the backs of four huge bays. It is the work of a great-grandfather Pembroke, who did art work of various sorts as a hobby.

A handsome and especially large grandfather clock had arrived for Gertrude only the day before. It was made by her father-in-law and elaborately carved in the manner of Swiss wood carvers' work. Alpine scenes decorate the whole clock case and a tiny lever at the side sets going an old fashioned music box with tinkling waltz tunes of long ago. Gertrude had admired the music box and Father Pembroke put it into the then nearly completed clock case as a surprise.

Gertrude's romance is startling, if true, and she says it is. She was coming down a hill when her roadster was hit and overturned by a large car. Her then unknown husband dragged her unconscious from the mess of broken glass and sat in anguish holding her hand in the ambulance and at the hospital until she regained consciousness. He finally, in his frenzy, began imploring "little sweetheart," whom he had never seen before, to open her eyes and speak to him.

Gertrude says she opened one eye to see what he looked like and then opened both suddenly and sat up and asked him if he meant that sweetheart business. He must have, for several weeks later they were married.

Engagement Is Rumored.

Joan Crawford, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player of Sally in "Sally, Irene and Mary," and now working in "Paris," has had a terrific struggle with rumor this week. Joan was suspected by interested friends of being married to Michael Cudahy, grandson of Edward Cudahy, the Chicago meat packer, and son of Jack Cudahy.

Joan says she isn't now, but may be some time, as she certainly is fond of Michael. They are crack Charleston dancers and have won two Charleston cups in the Hollywood cafés this week. Michael's mother, Mrs. Jack Cudahy, says Michael has promised her to finish school before he thinks of getting married, but, be that as it may, Hollywood is betting against mamma.

Alice Calhoun, Vitagraph player taken over by Warners, has salved her woes resulting from a disagreement with Warners (which resulted in cancellation of her contract by mutual consent) by getting married to Mendel B. Silberberg at her Wilshire home. Mr. Silberberg is a lawyer. Alice played with Syd Chaplin in "Charlie's Aunt." Alice's friends were stunned with surprise at her marriage, which was performed by a judge, with a rabbi among the few present.

Jacqueline Logan, who is taking a trip to New York and Paris, is considering giving up motion pictures. Her husband, R. H. Gillespie, who dabbles in real estate, is insisting that she retire. Rumor has it that he cleaned up a good deal of money on recent transactions. Jacqueline remarked before leaving on the trip that if pictures ever conflicted with her domestic life she would be sorry about the loss to the film industry.

The tragedy of age is not alone that of the actress tweaking silver threads from among the gold and rushing to Paris to get her face lifted. There is the tragedy of the young ones; comes now the case of Mickey Daniels, the engaging freckle faced urchin of Hal Roach's "Our Gang." Mickey is growing up and is being replaced by another spotted wonder, who boasts three freckles to Mickey's one, which, in the aggregate, makes considerable freckles. Mickey is graduating into Huckleberry Finn rôles and leaving the youngster stuff behind.

Dempseys at the Derby.

Estelle Taylor has accomplished the Herculean task of getting her new home replastered, redecorated, and landscape gardened, as well as refurnished, all in one week prior to leaving to see the Kentucky Derby with her husband, Jack Dempsey. They expect to be home June 4, and Estelle wants to surprise Jack with his new home all fixed up to the last cat's whisker.

Mabel Normand's new picture for Hal Roach has been titled "Raggety Rose." Mabel expects to return from New York, where she went to close her apartment, and will begin work here on a second two reeler for Roach about June 10. It is said that Roach has an option on Mabel's services to make feature length pictures if the public receives her two reelers as well as is expected. Letters from fans have been bombarding film producers for some time asking for Mabel.

Alarm this week filled the Talmadge set at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio, where Constance is making "The Duchess of Buffalo," renamed "Sibyl." The excitement followed the writing of a letter by a woman in Knoxville, Tenn., stating to a California police chief that Constance's new husband was really her own spouse. Constance's excitement at this peculiar news totally disarranged the thirty-eight inch blonde wig brought especially from Scandinavia for her picture, and Connie gave every sign of an old fashioned attack of the vapors. It all changed into comedy, however, when it came out that the missing husband from Tennessee had been married to the claimant of Constance's husband just thirty-seven years ago, whereas Capt. Alastair Mackintosh is only 36 now.

Scott Sidney, who is to direct "The Nervous Wreck" at Christie's studio, says he was the manager of the first motion picture show there ever was. It was at the Nashville exposition in 1896, and while the "show" consisted of three pictures, the total footage of film was 300 feet and lasted just eight minutes. The pictures were: 1. Scene showing a train moving. 2. A fire engine coming out of a station and going down the street. 3. The high spot for the thrill seekers, a couple kissing. In those times moving pictures were such a novelty that people fell over each other in their eagerness to pay a dime and see the eight minutes of galloping flickers.

H. B. WARNER, because of delay on the part of Warner Brothers, will not be able to appear in their contemplated film, "The Door Mat." His contract with Cecil De Mille goes into effect May 25, at which time he will start work in "White Gold." He will be directed by Rupert Julian, who directed him in "Silence"—the picture that caused De Mille to offer him his present long term contract.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Face Young

"Brings Out the Hidden Beauty"

If every woman knew of the wonderful rejuvenating and beautifying qualities of Mercolized Wax, druggists could not begin to supply the demand for this remarkable product. Just think! You apply the wax to an aged, faded, withered skin and that skin gives way to one of youthful loveliness, clear, soft, delicately tinted.

How is this accomplished? By actually peeling off the defective outer skin which covers up the true skin underneath. This is a painless process, for the thin veil of outer skin has no nerves. Nature renews complexions in exactly the same way, constantly shedding tiny particles of the surface covering, or scarf skin. But in time this process slows up. Then Mercolized Wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. This is the secret of its marvelous success. So if your skin is old-looking, sallow, overred, blotchy, parched, rough, oily—the stubborn scarf skin—just peel it off! Get rid of it! Have you pimples, freckles, moth patches, liver spots? Peel them off!

It's the sensible thing to do. And simple—just apply Mercolized Wax at bedtime, as you apply cold cream; wash it off in the morning. Fine, almost invisible skin particles are flecked off with the wax. No harm. No detention indoors. No inconvenience. The lively, young healthy underskin is brought gradually to view—you have the exquisite complexion of robust girlhood—the kind women envy and men admire—and you easily look from 10 to 20 years younger.

Obtain an ounce of Mercolized Wax from your druggist or department store today, use as directed—and join the vast multitude who are praising the virtues of this wonder-working product.

Guild Gayeties Is Mockingly Clever

By Burns Mantle.

ng prayerful and exalted at the ought of having been selected for so oy a sacrifice, learns at the last mo- ent that there is also a political sig- ficance attaching to his selection.

After he has suffered the tortures of e cross and all but literally died in ulation of the Savior, he will per- aps recover and become a man of in- ence among his people. He will be pected to use this influence to fur- er the candidacy of his father, who ants to be the next sheriff.

The boy rebels at the sacrilege of nding religion to base uses, and his usin and rival is chosen in his place. it plays, "El Cristo" is a throbbing onotone of grief and religious exalta- n. The Dallas actors are able to get beneath the surface of it that it comes intensely holding. They came so with their own scenery and prop- ties. A young man named True ompson had the name part.

There were sixteen groups entered the tournament this year, and four 00 cash prizes in addition to the Be- sco cup. Second prize went to the ttle Theater of Shreveport, La., for eir presentation of a sentimental lit- e folk play called "The Cajun." Two the five judges were also of the inion that this entry should have st prize over the Texans, but the her three ruled otherwise.

A local group, the Celler Players of udson Guild, were given third prize r a crook drama entitled "Release." The English players had a sometimes musing but rather overwritten satire lled "St. Simeon Stylites."

Hardly What You'd Expect.

A simple, charade like affair called "The Sport of Kings" has drifted in om Chicago, and, with the help of e cut-raters, hopes to continue for a w weeks at the Lyceum. I found it ather childish stuff, though it is well ayed by O. P. Heggie and a numerous ast, including a copper headed beauty amed Betty Linley, Alan Mowbray, a leasant English actor, and Walter Kingsford.

Ian Hay Beith, who wrote one of the first and also one of the best books of the war, "The First 100,000," is the author of "The Sport of Kings," which goes to show that with writing men you just can't tell. You never would expect the author of the Beith book to be interested in the type of farce in which a mildly hypercritical country gentleman, straight-laced and abnormally normal about the house, bets on the races and even paints his face and sells pools, in the hope of winning enough to reimburse him for his super taxes. But here it is.

Another of the milder delights of the spring season is a musical version of "Little Miss Brown," the Philip Bartholomae farce which fifteen years ago served to introduce Madge Kennedy to the Broadway stage. "Kitty's Kisses," it is now called, and its dances are better than its jokes.

Young Nick Long, being a master jumping jack and an acrobatic stepper of exceptional gifts, had not the slightest difficulty running away with the entertainment on its opening night at the Playhouse. Wayne and Warren from vaudeville and Dorothy Dilly, a toe dancer late of the Music Box, now turned actress, are in the cast.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT AND ACTING

MISS MARGARET LAWRENCE

MISS JUNE DORIAN

Miss Lawrence, who has for six weeks been acting an incidental part in "Close Quarters," goes this week into the principal part, Cyprienne, in another play of French origin, "Divorçons!" Sardou's comedy is in revival by her, Mr. McRae, Mr. Edinger, Mr. Kerr, and others who have been in the new version of the younger Dumas' old piece called "Le Demi-Monde." . . . Miss Lawrence has had many a predecessor as Cyprienne, although nobody has had the part here since, in 1907-'08, Miss Grace George acted it in the Grand Opera-House, where the Four Cohans now is.

Miss Dorian is as yet without biographical importance in the annals of drama in Chicago; but it is suggested that you have a look at her picture, above, and then see what she's like as she contributes atmosphere to the second act of "The Dybbuk" in the part of a beggar.

THEY ALL LIKE ROD LA ROCQUE

My Dear Mae Tinée: The last time I wrote I guess I was a bit too strenuous in defending Carol Dempster against some one who called her pigeon toed and goofy. I was punished by not getting my letter published. Still, I wish that bird that called Carol pigeon toed and goofy knew what I thought of them.

I'm writing to hooray Rod La Rocque. I saw him at my neighborhood show in "Brave Heart." It surely was a darb. One can always count on seeing an exceedingly interesting picture if Rod or Reginald Denny is starring—the kind we don't mind having the kiddies see. That goes for Syd Chaplin, too. How about it, Mae? ETHEL.

Editor's Note: Sounds reasonable, Ethel.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

MISS BLANCHE RING, idle since she withdrew from "No! No, Nanette!" in the course of its long Chicago run, is replacing Miss Marie Dressler in the New-York revival by the Players of Part I of "King Henry IV." . . . And Miss Ring, the erstwhile singer of "In the Good Old Summer-Time," as an actress in Shakspere isn't any funnier to me than the news that Miss Winifred Lenihan, after a season devoted to running the New-York Theater Guild's school of acting, is to return to the stage as a star. The play selected is by Philip Barry, in whose "You and I" H. B. Warner acted here in 1923. The title is not given; but the work is described as "a comedy about street-cleaning."

Miss Irene Bordoni implies that she is all aspiration to perform the title-rôle of Sacha Guitry's comedy named "Mozart" in this country. . . . Now, while this is comical, it is not nearly so comical as if she were to go to Paris and play the rôle there, where it has been acted by the exquisite Madame Guitry, known to playgoers as Yvonne Printemps.

New in Manhattan.

The sole novelty of the new week in New-York,—apart from such plays in the répertoire of some Spanish actors as have not been shown there in English versions or in adaptation,—is "The Great Temptations," the successor in the Winter Garden to the long-run "Artists and Models," now here in the Apollo. Miss Hazel Dawn, Billy B. Van, Miller and Lyles, Florenz Ames, and Jay C. Flippen are members of the cast in possession of recognizable names.

The Spanish company is headed by Miss Maria Guerrero and Fernando de Mendoza, who are said to be the foremost players of their land, whatever value that may have as a rating: most of the Spanish actors I've seen, in Spain or elsewhere, have been rather ham. It is said of the Señor De Mendoza, by way of emphasizing how good he is, that he is the only actor of the Spanish stage permitted to keep his hat on while in the presence of the King of Spain; but I know actors here who regard themselves as privileged to keep their hats on in my presence. . . . The Spaniards are to give seven plays in the week; and their expectations of attendance are such that they've taken for the visit the Manhattan Opera-House, where the late Oscar Hammerstein made his final stand against plutocracy as represented by the solvent directorate of the Metropolitan Opera.

And New-York is to have a visitor from India, too—Rahman Bey: he's a fakir, and is brought to this land by one of the Messrs. Selwyn to give what is said to be a "startling exhibition."

Shows are scarce in New-York, where theaters are many; so, somebody is dusting off two more of the old ones and setting them up in revival. One is "The Climax," regarded as great stuff back in 1909, when managers hailed the late Edward Locke as a great playwright because he had fashioned a piece with but four actors to pay and one cheap set of scenery;—and the actors in 1909 weren't unionized, either. And what a blowsy thing "The Climax" was when, two years ago, Guy Bates Post disinterred and acted in it in the Cort! . . . The other piece dragged back into the light this week in New-York is the late H. V. Esmond's "The House of Ussher," which was held to be pretty bad when tried there earlier in the season.

Changing Playbills

"Weak Sisters" in the Adelphi.—A play by Lynn Starling that had a New-York hearing early in the season now ending. It has recently been a work of high popularity in Los Angeles. It has to do with professional reformers and bad-laddies, in the general manner of Ludwig Thoma's famous German work named "Moral." "Weak Sisters" is put on by the Ascher Players, with Miss Risdon in the rôle regarded in New-York as the most effective. . . . Tonight.

"The Green Beetle" in the Central.—A shocker by John Willard about wicked Chinamen and their attitudes when they're opposed in love by the San-Francisco brand of Nordics. The author wrote "The Cat and the Canary." Miss Shirley Warde heads the cast of "The Green Beetle," which is new here: it has been shown in New-York. . . . Tonight.

"The Red Robin" in the Jewish People's Institute.—A play by Meyer Levin, who wrote it while a member of Professor Lovett's English-Six class at the University of Chicago. It is to be acted by the Players' Club of the J. P. I. once—tonight.

"Divorçons!" in the Blackstone.—Sardou's enduring comedy in revival by some of the players who have been acting "Close Quarters" in this theater. Countless plays, mostly farce, have had their basis and their inspiration in this piece, which has not been acted professionally in Chicago since Miss Grace George appeared as Cyprienne in the Grand Opera-House in 1907-'08. The principal parts are assigned thus in Mr. Tyler's revival in the Blackstone:

Cyprienne	Margaret Lawrence
Des Prunelles	Bruce McRae
Adhemar	Wallace Eddinger
Louise	Cynthia Hyde
Bastien	Geoffrey Kerr
De Clavynac	Percy Ames
Estelle	Martha Mayo
Clarisse	Eva Kelly-Huntley
Giuseppe	Edouardo Cianelli

Miss Lawrence's rôle has been acted by many celebrities of the stage, including Duse, Mrs. Fiske, and Miss Violet Vanbrugh. . . . Tomorrow night.

The Princess is closed, with nothing in sight, although the promise of a busy Summer in Chicago is interesting most of the managers with new plays that have not been seen here. . . . It is not likely that the Playhouse,—which is now without a lessee, not to mention such a detail as an attraction,—will be reopened before mid-August, at the earliest. . . . The investors in the revival of "The Two Orphans," finding in eastern cities no interest in their constellation of stars and near-stars, are saving car-fare by not coming hither with the show; and that seems to means that the Garrick will be closed after Saturday. . . . It is not probable that anything will be booked into the Blackstone after "Divorçons!" nor into the Illinois after "Louie the Fourteenth," wherein Leon Errol is so amusing. . . . Shows are scarce—so scarce that few of the Chicago theaters have been supplied with something for September, regardless of their plight in June, July, and August.

TED LEWIS

He's back in the Palace, whose clientèle believes him to be a greater wit than Shaw, a greater musician than Bach, and a greater all-around entertainer than Governor Small.

Embarrassing Moments

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moment, The Tribune, Chicago. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Why He Smiled.

One Sunday afternoon, while out walking with my husband and a girl friend, my husband asked us to wait a minute while he stopped in a drug store to get a cigar. We strolled along slowly, and hearing, as I thought, his footsteps behind us, I half turned my head and, to tease him, said in a rather loud voice, "Here comes the handsomest man in town."

To my chagrin I found it was a young man who had come out of the drug store ahead of my husband. He smiled and tipped his hat, but, thank goodness, passed on, while I wished the pavement would open and swallow me.

E. S.

Forgetful.

My most embarrassing moment happened yesterday in a beauty shop where I went to get a shampoo.

The operator was a girl whom I had known several years ago and when she started the shampoo she removed a pretty diamond ring from her finger and handed it to me, asking how I liked it.

I slipped it on my own finger where I had been in the habit of wearing a ring and in a short time I had completely forgotten about it. Just as I put on my hat ready to leave she said, "You had better leave my ring with me before you go."

Embarrassed, I'll say I was. R. R.

The Awful Truth.

A friend of mine, a woman, gave me a box of cigars, intending, I think, to repay me for a favor I did. They were too strong and the first one caused me to become ill.

One evening later the woman called and our 5 year old gave us a shock by saying to her: "Daddy was awful, awful sick."

"Why, what was the trouble?" she asked.

"The kind of cigars you sent him caused it," our young horror explained.

C. A. G.

Confused.

One of my friends and I were walking down town together one day, and me met another friend. After she had left us I said, "What a hideous dress Mary had on today. I have never seen her look worse."

My friend replied, "That was my dress she was wearing."

Needless to say, I was more embarrassed than any words can express.

M. R.

Force of Habit.

Correct behavior at the table was one thing about which my parents were most particular. The man whom I married was over 35 and had lived the greater part of his life in a hotel.

I was never more embarrassed than, when we were entertaining for the first time, I noticed him vigorously polishing his plate with his napkin!

N. R. D.

And Then Some.

I do not get a chance to finish reading the morning paper, so usually take it home with me in the evening. One evening coming home on the street car I thought I had the paper with me. The car started while I was on the rear platform and jerked me against a man in back of me. I looked for my paper and it was gone.

I turned around and saw the man I fell against, holding a paper. Thinking it was mine, I said, "Sir, you have my paper."

He said, "No, madam, I just bought this paper at the corner."

I then said, "I can't help it, that is my paper."

He, not wanting to cause a scene, gave it to me.

I went into the car and opened it to find it was not my paper, but the evening news.

EMBARRASSED? I'll say.

A. R. P.

Guess Again.

I was a visitor in Chicago, and, like any other, was anxious to see this great city.

One afternoon a friend of mine suggested we visit the Field museum. Thinking the museum was a zoo, I suggested we buy some peanuts and feed the monkeys.

You can imagine my embarrassment when my friend explained to me that all the monkeys I'd see would be stuffed ones.

With New Shows—New Ideas

To The Theatre-Lovers of Chicago:
The New Artists and Models
now at the Apollo Theatre is a new and entirely different show than any other ever given under this world-famous title. It was brought here last week by special train direct from New York where it played to capacity audiences for forty eight weeks.
Cast and production are here intact exactly as played on Broadway. This New Artists and Models has never been shown anywhere except at the New York Winter Garden and because of its magnitude and daring it will only be presented in the largest cities of the country next season.
The cast contains many of the greatest Artists in America, headed by Phil Baker, that lovable clown;
the 18 World Famous Gertrude Hoffman Girls and includes the most beautiful women in the world.

Ravinia Is Product of Real Idealism

By Edward Moore.

sists that the taste for recitals is on the wane and that the public is turning toward ensembles, orchestras, opera, and choral organizations. It is true that here in Chicago the violinists have had the worst season and the pianists the best of several seasons.

But ever since I have been watching musical activities there has been complaint about poor business, and it has usually narrowed down to one point. The few clever, interesting, ingratiating musicians, not necessarily the large earners but the great performers, have only too often been swamped by the host of mediocrities. This was true twenty years ago, and today, when the concert business has more than doubled, it is still true.

With the Melody Makers.

William Boeppler's efforts to put Bach on the map the other night with his specialized chorus resulted in a definite artistic success. It is a movement toward the further acquaintance with and enjoyment of some fine music, and in an ideal musical condition there would be many such. There is much enjoyable music everywhere that for one reason or another is never heard. Something of the same sort ought to be done for Handel. Of course we get "The Messiah" in season and out, but "The Messiah" is only one item in a vast and rich output. Ottorino Respighi pointed out another line when he rescued and transcribed a set of ancient airs for the lute. The most attractive music I discovered in Europe last summer was done by the English Singers, six persons who sit around a table and sing old English madrigals. They are entrancing. Yet with so much else in the world all the pianists engage in a long distance contest on Chopin's B flat minor Sonata, all the singers sing the same Schubert and Brahms songs, and all the violinists play the Bach "Chaconne." Here is a chance for a real reform.

Herbert M. Johnson, business manager of the Civic Opera, tells in a letter to the company how he arrived in London in the lull before the strike, staying long enough to see that business was proceeding as usual in preparation for the Covent garden season. He reports that London was full of artists familiar to the American public, all billed for appearances there and in the provinces, but that when the labor storm broke there was a concerted flight to the continent, with the airplane the favorite vehicle because the quickest. Charles Hackett arrived in the midst of the strike, with the experience of having to carry his own luggage from boat to ship train, and again in London. And, as Mr. Johnson adds, tenors certainly trail a flock of luggage. Mr. Johnson conferred with Mr. Insull, Melba, and Charles Moor, the stage director, before going to the continent. A later cablegram tells that he has gone from Paris to Milan, where he will remain for a few days.

Leo Sowerby, recently appointed organist and director of music of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, will give an organ recital there next Sunday afternoon. His program will include works by Bach, Franck, Bonnet, Frescobaldi-Respighi, Dubois, and himself.

The annual festival "public service" at St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston, under the auspices of the Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists, will take place Tuesday evening. Robert R. Birch, Allen Bogen, and Stanley Seder will play, and the vested choir of forty voices will sing.

The Eastman School of Music of Rochester, N. Y., will hold a second scholarship audition at the Bureau of Fine Arts, 610 Fine Arts building, next Sunday. Dr. Howard Hanson and Vladimir Rosing, both of the Eastman institution, will be present. Lyric soprano, tenor and baritone voices are desired. Appointments may be made with Jessie B. Hall at that address.

OF DECORATIVE DANCE

[Basabé Photo.]

She has had an interesting history of ballet appearances here as the Infanta in John Alden Carpenter's "The Birthday of the Infanta," in Henry Eichheim's "The Rivals," which is the character here, and many other characters in Adolph Bolm's Ballet Intime, where she will continue next season. Before that, however, she will be made known to the Ravinia audiences this summer, having been engaged as solo dancer for all of the operatic performances that require solo dancing.

Seemed Logical.

They were discussing the North American Indian in a school one day when the teacher asked if any one could tell what the leaders of the tribes were called.

"Chiefs," answered one bright little girl.

"Correct. Now can any of you tell me what the women were called?"

There was silence for some time, and then a small boy frantically waved his hand for recognition.

"Well, Frankie?" said the teacher.

"Mis-chiefs," he announced, proudly. N. K. V.

A Fine Blaze.

Farmer Tullet drove along the quiet country road in his trap. As he came near the little village he met the minister walking along with downcast head and a meditative look upon his face.

"I am right sorry to hear of the fire at your house last night," said the farmer to the clergyman. "Was there any serious loss?"

"Indeed there was, my good Tullet," said the minister dolefully. "Ten years' sermons are completely destroyed."

The old farmer touched his horse with the whip, and a sly twinkle came into his merry eye.

"Ah," he returned, as the trap moved off, "they make a grand blaze, sir. They were so dry, you see." W. E.

Doubtful.

A bashful young couple, evidently much in love, entered a crowded street car.

"Do you suppose we can squeeze in here?" he asked, looking doubtfully at her blushing face.

"Don't you think, dear, we had better wait until we get home?" was the low, embarrassed reply. H. S. O.

That's the Swindle.

Newsboy: "Extra! Great swindle! Thirty-two victims!"

Citizen (after buying a paper): "I say, boy, I don't see anything about a swindle."

Newsboy (pocketing nickle and running off): "Extra! Great swindle! Thirty-three victims!"—J. D. W.

As a Result.

Miss Withers: "Yes, father has always given me a book for my birthday."

Friend: "My, what a wonderful library you must have!" A. Y.

RADIO INDUSTRY STABILIZED, U. S. OFFICIAL SAYS

Receiver a Utility for Everyday Use.

Radio is now definitely established as a practical, dependable, permanent utility for everyday use, according to Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio section of the United States Bureau of Standards, Uncle Sam's final authority in radio technology.

J. H. DELLINGER.

The day of rapid changes in radio models, Dr. Dellinger says, has passed. Following the period of experimental development, during which the market was flooded with scores of "sets" of all degrees of receptivity, the industry has now settled down to the production of a relatively few standard, high class sets, expertly designed and substantially built, which may be expected to give as good results five, ten, or fifteen years from now as they do when new.

No Reason for Waiting.

"There is no longer any more reason for waiting to buy a good radio set," says Dr. Dellinger, "than there is in waiting to buy a good piano. While there doubtless will be occasional refinements in receiving equipment, these are not likely to affect appreciably the comparative value of the standard sets of today. Tubes, of course, will lose their efficiency after from 1,000 to 2,000 hours of use, but most of these can be reactivated at small cost. The set as a whole, however, will retain its efficiency and value indefinitely."

Dr. Dellinger's conclusions as to the stability and permanent utility of standard present day sets is regarded as particularly important by the radio authorities of the department of agriculture, who are planning a wide extension of departmental radio services as a direct aid to agriculture.

Delay Among Farmers.

Many farmers, the department finds, have delayed the installation of radio equipment in the belief that sets installed before the industry became stabilized and the science perfected soon would be antiquated and out of date and would either have to be junked or replaced at considerable cost. With assurances from government sources that receiving equipment has been perfected and standardized so as to insure the permanet use and value of their sets, it is believed the installation of radio equipment on farms will be much more rapid.

Francis R. Sheib on WJAZ Program Thursday

Frances Rosemary Scheib, soprano, will give a recital program of art songs on Thursday, May 20th, at 9:00 o'clock, from station WJAZ. She will have the assistance of James Vandersoll, violinist, a youth of 16, who is already a member of a symphony orchestra and is rated as one of the most promising violinists in Chicago. On the same program Alice Regina Johnson and Lucille Sweetser, pianists, will give a program of two-piano numbers of a high order of merit.

U. S. Battleships Get New Transmitters

Following criticism of inadequate radio facilities, it is reported that up to date model TP radio transmitters are now being installed on the battleships Oklahoma, Colorado, Mississippi, Arizona, Maryland, and Omaha with our fleet in the Canal Zone. It is expected that the sets will be in first class working order in time for the forthcoming maneuvers in southern waters.

Roosevelts Out of Touch with Radio in Africa

Col. Theodore Roosevelt reports that his expedition was out of touch of radio most of the time. There is, however, he added, a wireless station at Kashgar which communicates with Peshwar. This, incidentally, is the only rapid means of communication between India and Turkestan. It is under the control of the Chinese government at the present time.

England May Soon Put Parliament Sessions on Air

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 15.—The whole question of the occasional broadcasts of the proceedings in parliament will come up again for attention of the house of commons shortly. Many members of parliament are known to favor it strongly and many of those who are not so keen on the idea admit that it must probably come some day.

U. S. Prisoners at Atlanta Enjoy Radio Programs

To make life a little less onerous to prisoners in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Warden John W. Snook permits the operation of some fifty radio receiving sets. Only during music hour between six and seven p. m., are loud speakers permitted, but practically all of the sets have wires attached with earphones in different cells at which convicts can listen in.

34,185 Vote Wet, 12,483 Dry in WJAZ's Radio Poll

An unusual evidence exhibit was the radio poll taken by station WJAZ in Chicago and incorporated into the wet and dry hearings on the question of the modification of the Volstead act in the senate. As a result of a twenty-four hour intensive canvass by this station 34,185 listeners expressed themselves as wet and 12,483 as dry.

WAITING LIST GROWS.

The list of those desiring to erect broadcasting stations has increased to 580. Those applying during the week were J. Wilbur Jones, Newburgh, N. Y.; Mort-Smith Radio store, Peterson, N. J.; Pitchford Radio Company, Gooding, Idaho; Virgin's Radio Service, Medford, Ore.; American Legion, Lincoln Post No. 73, Shamokin, Pa.; Oriental Dye works, Ironwood, Mich., and Carsten company, St. Edward, Neb.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Chicago Daylight Saving Time.)

ON W-G-N TODAY

CARL CRAVEN. [Koehlk Photo.]

ANNA NYBERG SPOONER. [Morrison Photo.]

THE Illinois Central Chorus will give an hour's program of choral music at 3 o'clock this afternoon on W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. Carl Craven is director of the chorus and Ella Smith accompanist. An interesting and varied program has been prepared, as follows:

The Volga Boat Song	Russian
As Torrents in Summer	Elgar
Chorus.
Little Mother o' Mine	Burleigh
Ladies' Trio.
Goin' Home	Dvorak-Fischer
Heav'n, Heav'n	Burleigh
Chorus.
The Garden of Your Heart	Dovel
Enageline Dickson, soprano, and Clarence Combs, tenor.
One Fleeting Hour	Lee
Male Chorus.
O, Dry Those Tears	Del Riego
The Builder	Cadman
Chorus.
Little Cotton Dolly	Geibel
Male Quartet.
Sing, Sing, Birds on the Wing	Godfrey
Chorus.

The regular Sunday afternoon organ recital by Edwin Stanley Seder will open today at 2 o'clock. This is given in the Lyon & Healy studio. Anna Nyberg Spooner is the assisting artist on today's program. Listeners are familiar with the work of this talented musician, as she has performed before on W-G-N.

The second of the New York programs to be broadcast every Sunday night on W-G-N this summer will be presented tonight at 8:15 o'clock by Allen McQuhae. This popular artist is one of the best known Irish-American tenors of the present day. Among the selections he will offer tonight are: "A Dream," by Bartlett; "All Through the Night," by Boulton, and the well known hymn, "Now the Day Is Over."

The composers to be discussed tonight in "Our Music Room" are Coleridge-Taylor and Hadley. An interesting talk on their lives will be given and several of their best known compositions played. Every Sunday night new composers are treated. Listeners are invited to come to "Our Music Room" tonight at 9 o'clock. During the course of the hour several songs will be presented by Mark Love, basso.

Ambrose Larsen will be heard at the Wurlitzer organ this afternoon at 1 o'clock. The hour of organ music offered by Mr. Larsen is a regular Sunday afternoon feature on W-G-N. He will present an unusual and interesting program today.

Among the headliners on the 10:10 o'clock musical program is Armand Buisseret, violinist, a member of the Drake Concert ensemble. Mr. Buisseret will offer several classical selections tonight.

Sam 'n' Henry will be on the air as usual tonight at 10 o'clock with their humorous dialogue. They have been away the last few days at the Kentucky Derby.

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon Pattison Coates, baritone, will offer a special recital. The assisting artist on this program will be Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist, who has been heard on W-G-N several times in the past.

Every listener who has not yet filled out the W-G-N questionnaire is asked to send his name and address to the station and a questionnaire will be sent to him. On the questionnaire is a place for the listener to indicate what features he enjoys most and what kind of entertainment he would like to hear on the air in the future. This is an unprecedented opportunity for listeners to order the type of program they wish to hear. The questionnaires are being sent out in conjunction with W-G-N's first annual roll call of listeners.

WLIB PROGRAM

Another of the delightful Sunday evening programs heard weekly on WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake hotel, will be given this evening at 5 o'clock during the Arabian Nights' entertainment. Aladdin will rub his magic lamp and an ensemble of musicians will appear, playing both strange and familiar melodies. A varied program comprising the music of many lands will be presented. Special arrangements of each selection will be used and new effects introduced. The assisting artist this evening will be Pattison Coates, baritone. Arabian Nights' entertainment will continue until 6:15 o'clock.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

THE RADIO PUBLIC should decide for itself what it wants. And in the great nation-wide poll or questionnaire that the Loud Speaker has been conducting for some weeks the public is voicing its preferences. The canvass is now practically concluded, except for scattered votes for Underwood which are straggling in from Alabama.

The tabulation follows:

Grand opera	10
Grand opera [in the movies]	96
Speeches [doctors]	47
Speeches [lawyers]	38
Speeches [merchants]	28
Speeches [chiefs]	9
Recitations [polite]	8
Recitations [dialect]	32
Vocal quartets [singing same song]	56
Beers and much wine	234
Musical saws [jazz]	1
Musical saws [symphony]	1
Three weeks' vacation	197
Market reports [light]	18
Market reports [classical]	12
Short sermons	24
Shorter sermons	48
Even shorter sermons	96
Al Smith for president [comic]	25
Al Smith for president [serious]	25

Give the public what it wants!

ROLLO: "Tell me, Grandpaw, how many wave lengths are there in these United States?"

GRANDPAW: "There are 89 wave lengths, my boy."

ROLLO: "My, my! And how many radio stations are using these wave lengths, Grandpaw?"

GRANDPAW: "There are 536 stations operating on those wave lengths, Rollo."

ROLLO: "My, my! And are there many others who want to start broadcasting?"

GRANDPAW: "There are now over 400 applications in the department of commerce, my good Rollo."

ROLLO: "From what states do these applications for new stations come, dear Grandpaw?"

GRANDPAW: "Well, there are 47 from Illinois; 40 from California; 28 from New York; 22 from Florida—and so on down."

ROLLO: "The nickname of Illinois is the Sucker State, isn't it, Grandpaw."

GRANDPAW: "You are right, Rollo, and you are a smart boy. Have a grape!"

WE OF THE RADIO have the enviable privilege of seeing almost every song that the sheet music mills turn out. Therefore we can appreciate the stupendous literary effort that is expended in creating the "lyrics" of the popular songs. We have decided to award, every Sunday in this space, a hatpin apiece to the two best song "lyrics" that come to our attention.

Four men, the cover tells us, were engaged in writing our first prize winner, with still another doing the "ukulele arrangement." It is called "Broadway's Broken Hearted Cinderella":

First verse:

You left your home for old Broadway,
Cinderella, Cinderella,
Lured by the lights of old Broadway,
Cinderella, Cinderella,
Silken gowns and silver slippers, too,
You've had them all, it's true—and now you're blue.

Chorus:

Broadway's broken hearted Cinderella,
Broadway made you just a real good fellow,
And still with all the lights and laughter
You never gave a thought to what comes after.
Each night finds you all alone and sighing,
You might know the folks at home
are crying,
Broadway's broken hearted Cinderella,
Go back home!

Second verse:

You dance your life away till morn,
Cinderella, Cinderella,
You make your bedtime after dawn,
Cinderella, Cinderella,
But remember life is worth your while,
So wend your way back home to mother's smile.
[Chorus again.]

And the second lucky winner this week—all of it, words and music, written by only one man—is "Florida, Here I Come":

Take my little tip, pack your leather grip,
Go down to that sunshine state.
Cold winds never blow, there's no ice or snow,
I can hardly wait.
I'm sure going down to that southern town,
That's the place for me.
I'm gonna take a boat, leave my overcoat,
Happy I will be!

Chorus:

Florida, O Florida, here I am.
I'm gonna live and die under this southern sky;
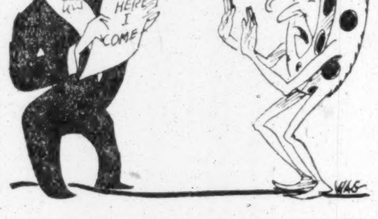
'Way down where the soil is black,
There's the place I'll make my jack,
In Florida, O Florida!

Rin-Tin-Tin doesn't give a woof for flattery or compliments. While we where introducing him last week on the radio he yawned twice, stretched his front legs, winked at us and rolled over to rest.

Broadcasting is an old story to Rin-Tin-Tin. The Warner Bros., for whose film company he works, have also a radio station in California and Rin has often participated in the Saturday night "all star" programs with Lillian Rich, Monte Blue and John Barrymore.



FOR MIKE'S SAKE, CUT IT OUT!
FLORIDA HERE I COME WAS

He was the first of the innumerable movie celebrities that we have escorted into the radio studio who didn't exhibit great trepidation or discomfiture at facing the microphone. He came in with his owner and director, Lee Duncan, and an attendant who led him on a leash. He is very gracious in meeting people singly, but he won't stand for an adoring crowd standing around and staring at him: then he growls.

Rin's muzzle and leash were taken off and he stepped gingerly around the studio, glad for the freedom and heavy carpets, and cocking a suspicious eye at the sounds that emanated from Uncle Walt's toy animals.

What does he possibly do on the radio, you ask. Well, first, Mr. Duncan introduces him, with the "mike" placed low on a chair, and tells the dog's unusual eight year life story. He asks Rin to show various emotions by his different kinds of barking, and then requests him to go through bits of dramatic business as he does in the pictures, which his director in turn describes for the radio audience. Not once does Mr. Duncan have to snap a command at him, but coaches him all the time in a paternal voice, "Rin, go over to the chair and rest your head and left paw on it, and then come and lie quiet under the piano. Scratch, hard, now, as we used to do in France."

And when Rin-Tin-Tin was leaving he signed our "Celebrity" book. By pressing his paw on a red ink pad and then on the page, he laid his hand and seal in the long roll of famous signatures that includes Rudolph Valentino, Richard Barthelmess, Red Grange, Leon Errol, Senator Borah, Clarence Darrow, and Paul Ash.

FRED HAMM AND HIS BAND BACK ON STATION WLIB

Famous Leader on Air from Elgin.

Fred Hamm and his band are back on station WLIB!

The famaus jazz impresario and his orchestra, popular favorites of millions of listeners throughout the country, are once more broadcasting over the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake hotel, following a triumphal tour throughout the mid-west. Last night saw Hamm and his boys playing their first numbers over the station, and they will be featured each night in future. Their music is broadcast direct from the Purple Grackle cafe in Elgin.

Arrangements have been completed by the station officials that will enable Fred and his boys to present a series of special programs on several nights each week. They will be the feature orchestra of WLIB's late night jazz shows, from 11 o'clock to 1 a. m., and they are also to take a prominent part in the "Pepper Party" staged by W-G-N each Wednesday night between 10:30 and 12:30.

Hamm's orchestra is probably the best known of any of the jazz bands that have gained their fame via the ether. They started their career with WTAS. When Liberty Weekly took over the Erbstein station and renamed it WLIB, Fred and his band stayed, and their music was one of the chief factors in assuring the instant popularity that the new station won with the listening public.

The band is practically intact, being the same organization that listeners liked months ago. At the piano, Jess Sutton, "the Pershing of the Ivories," still holds sway; Ray Parker is still beating the drums; "Slue" Ledford is still tooting the meanest of saxophones; plump and smiling Vincent McCauley still labors over the trombone; Skid Owens and Fred Hamm himself continue as cornetists, and Grover Hamm is still carrying the big tuba on his shoulders. The orchestra numbers twelve men in all.

U. S. GOVERNMENT SEEKS 3 MORE RADIO EXPERTS

To fill vacancies at the Bureau of Standards, where some of the most important radio research work in the country is being carried on, the Civil Service commission announces open competitive examination for a physicist at a salary of $3,800; an associate physicist, $3,000; and an assistant physicist, $2,400.

Competitors will be rated in optional subjects of radio, electricity, mechanics, and others. Receipts of applications will close June 8th and full information and application blanks will be given from the Civil Service commission, Washington, D. C.

W. L. SPERRY, HARVARD DEAN, SUNDAY EVENING CLUB SPEAKER TONIGHT

Dean Willard L. Sperry, member of the board of preachers of Harvard university, will be the speaker at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall tonight. His address on "The Value of the Plain Man" will be broadcast by KYW, together with the music program by the choir of 100, and the informal Bible talk on "Some Old Letters," by Clifford W. Barnes president of the club.

REV. WILLARD SPERRY.

Last Sunday night Mr. Barnes told the radio listeners that the club had under way tentative plans to provide those coming to Chicago during the next season with reserved seats at Orchestra hall. Some form of "radio membership" entitling the holder to this privilege was under consideration, he said, to be presented in more concrete form at the opening of the twentieth season, Oct. 3. Those who had become acquainted with the club through the broadcasting, especially out of town fans, were invited to send in their suggestions.

NORTHERN LIGHTS HURT RECEPTION ON WEST COAST

During an exceptionally bright display of "northern lights," reception in the northwestern states of the union was cut almost in half, according to a report received in the radio division of the commerce department's bureau of navigation, from one of its radio supervisors in Seattle.

According to the report, tests were made with an extremely sensitive set, in order to ascertain as nearly as possible the extent of the interference if any, caused by this natural phenomenon. It was found that various California stations, which under ordinary conditions are received with strong volume with one stage of audio amplification were received with about one-half this former volume, even though a second stage of audio amplification was used.

Whenever the display of "northern lights" became brighter or shifted their position the signal strength of these stations was materially reduced, it was noted. In listening to stations transmitting on wave lengths below 350 meters, the same blanketing effect was noted and in addition a pronounced swishing noise was caused in the radio receiver. At times this interference became more intense, causing a distinct sputtering.

From the observations made, it was noticed that while this display of "northern lights" produced the blanketing effect on all wave lengths no atmospheric disturbances could be noted in the receiver, except on wave lengths below 350 meters.

PLENTY OF WEATHER.

Weather bulletins are now being broadcast by 138 radio stations.

ANCIENT INDIAN CHANTS ON KOA PROGRAMMONDAY

Navajos' Good Luck Song Interesting.

Denver, Col., May 15.—[Special.]—Southwestern tribal chants of strange, unknown origin, many of them wholly unfamiliar to white men, will be microphoned for broadcast listeners for the first time over station KOA Monday evening as the inaugural feature of a stupendous eight day music week program.

Conducting this unique program of ceremonial Indian songs will be Dr. Jean Allard Jeancon, who is widely known as director and curator of archaeology and ethnology at the Colorado State museum.

Many Indian Songs.

This microphone offering, which is slated for 8 o'clock mountain standard time, includes the colorful Butterfly dance and song of the Hopi, buffalo and game dance and greeting to the sun of the Towa tribesmen, moon song of the Utes, the Apaches' sun song, and the mysterious good luck chant of the Navajos.

"Of the many Indian ceremonials, the good luck song is perhaps one of the most interesting," Dr. Jeancon explained.

"It is the means of expelling bad influences when a tribesman becomes ill or when he undertakes a long journey, begins a hunt, prepares for warfare, moves to a new camp site, and so on.

"Recently I heard it in entirety when an Indian companion undertook to guide me across a 150 mile stretch of Arizona wilderness to the ruins of a prehistoric American civilization which flourished more than 2,000 years ago.

"Safe from Devils."

"Before starting our hazardous trip, my guide lifted his head to the sky and began mumbling. Next he lowered his eyes to the rocks beneath our feet and then chanted to the east, south, west, and north.

"'Now we safe from devils,' he spoke in the language of the Navajo when the ceremony was over. 'I sing to the six sacred regions and drive away bad magic. Now we make trip.'"

Concluding the program will be primitive music of the northwestern Indian tribes, lingering songs of old Spain, cowboy ballads, and songs of the "covered wagon" period. The complete studio presentation is designed to portray the spirit and development of the west.

THE REV. ENEAS B. GOODWIN, PH. D.,
(Moffett Photo.)

Father Goodwin, likewise fittingly called Dr. Goodwin, is pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church at Downers Grove, Ill., which will dedicate this afternoon its new school and community building. The Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, will officiate. At 3 p. m. Bishop Hoban will administer the sacrament of confirmation to a class of 150. At 4 p. m. Bishop Hoban assisted by many of the clergy of Chicago and suburbs will dedicate the buildings. At 5 p. m. a community supper will be served by the women of the parish to more than 500 visitors and parishioners. The new buildings are of collegiate Gothic design and contain two auditoriums with a total seating capacity of 800.

Father Goodwin has served for four years as the head of a people's forum where current questions are discussed, patronized by residents of Downers Grove irrespective of church affiliations. He is also in charge of Holy Trinity chapel, Westmont, a mission of St. Joseph's.

West Pullman Methodist Episcopal church, 120th street and Normal avenue, will dedicate its remodeled building at 10:45 a. m. today.

The Northern Baptist Theological seminary, 3040 Washington boulevard, will hold its commencement exercises beginning today. Dr. Julius A. Jensen will preach the baccalaureate sermon at 11 o'clock at the Second Baptist church, Jackson boulevard and Lincoln street.

Illinois Presbyterians will hold their fifth annual conference in Carbondale June 7-11. The conference includes the annual meeting of the Illinois synod, the annual meeting of the women's synodical society, and a popular program under the title, "the annual get-together conference."

The completed new building of All Souls and Jackson Park Community church, 66th place and Blackstone avenue, the Rev. Fred Merrifield of the University of Chicago, pastor, will be dedicated today with services at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

The First Congregational church, 34th street and Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, Ill., will be dedicated today at 3 o'clock. The Rev. H. C. Hoover is pastor.

The Rev. P. A. Jones, pastor of the Pleasant Grove Baptist church, affiliated with Ebenezer church, is seeking a fund of $50,000 to erect an institutional church.

The Albany Park Methodist Episcopal church, Wilson and Albany avenues, will dedicate today a new pipe organ.

The seventy-fourth session of the Western Unitarian conference will be held tomorrow and Tuesday in Hotel Sherman. The general theme is "Next Steps in Religion."

The Rev. L. G. Polspoel of the University of Louvain will speak on "My Impressions of America" Thursday evening at a dinner given by the Illinois Club for Catholic Women at 814 South Michigan avenue.—The Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Lawndale avenue and 24th street, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding today at 4 p. m. Former parishioners are especially invited.—The Rev. James Belton Haslam will preach today at 11 o'clock at the Cathedral shelter, 117 North Peoria street.—Dr. Frederick L. Fagley will speak tomorrow morning at the Congregational Ministers' union, and Dr. James M. Yard of China will speak to the Methodist ministers.—The Rev. William E. Patrick, national chaplain of the American Legion, will preach today at 11 o'clock at the St. James' Episcopal church, Cass and Huron streets.—St. Elizabeth's Episcopal church, 62d street and St. Louis avenue, will dedicate a pipe organ today.—The Episcopal Northeastern deanery will meet tomorrow at Wheaton, Ill.

How to Prolong Your Life

TO PROLONG life, to be protected against disease and in most cases to restore health you must practice hygiene all along the line.

Do a workmanlike job in clearing your body of infection, guarding it from further infection, from strain, from poison, from food deficiency and food excess, and you will be adding years to your life and immensely to your efficiency and happiness.

But first of all you must have your body thoroughly examined in order to search out and correct any factors which may be causing a present lowered condition of your health or which may be the start of some serious illness later on.

The Life Extension Institute was organized to provide just such a service. The Institute's health service includes a standardized examination of the whole body, suggestions covering any needed form of medical treatment, instruction in all phases of correct personal hygiene and many other valuable privileges.

The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body and submits a report that assists your physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of your physical defects.

The Institute's services are available for both men and women and are appropriate for every class of citizen. Write, telephone or visit the Institute for information about its different services and for its free booklets "How to Live Long" and "Neglect of the Human Machine."

It is estimated that fifteen to twenty years can be added to the average life through such periodic physical examinations and the practice of correct personal hygiene. Get yourself and the members of your family—if you are so fortunate and happy as to have one—regularly examined by your family physician if not by the Life Extension Institute.

Organization and Scope

The Life Extension Institute was organized in 1913 by a group of nationally known physicians, scientists, educators and public-spirited business men who desired to provide a self-supporting central institution of national scope devoted to the science of disease prevention and healthful living—a responsible and authoritative source from which the public might draw knowledge and inspiration in the great war of civilization against needless sickness and premature death. Two-thirds of the profits are to be devoted to national health educational work. Nearly a third of a million people in all parts of the United States and Canada have already been examined by the Institute. Examinations at the Head Office are made on appointment between 9:00 a. m. and 5:00 p. m. There is a separate department for women at the Head Office. If you live outside of Chicago the service is available through the Institute's medical examiner in your section. Send in the coupon below for complete information and free booklets on the prevention of disease and the prolongation of human life.

Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., the former Harriet Lowden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, has been elected a director of the Improvement Association for the Blind.

MISS JANE AND MISS BETTY SCRIVEN.

Miss Jane and Miss Betty Scriven are daughters of Mrs. William H. Scriven. The former was one of the workers for the Emerson House benefit bridge party given on Monday at the residence of Mrs. Lawrence Whiting, and her younger sister was one of the bridesmaids for Miss Margaret Willing's wedding on Wednesday to John V. Farwell III.

Miss Marjorie Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Allen, is to be married on May 26 to Hugh Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wilson.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Dodge Widow Now a Social Power

By Grace Robinson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The recent marriage of Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, America's richest widow, will tear great rents in the social fabric of Palm Beach next winter. Her new husband, as all the world now knows, is Hugh Dillman, long of Broadway fame and for a lesser period a sharer in the limelight that manages to pursue Marjorie Rambeau, brilliant actress. Dillman and Marjorie were husband and wife, in what Dillman now terms an "unfortunate" union.

The Palm Beach colony, now physically scattered to its various town and country homes, is united in speculation on the effect of this unusual and picturesque match on the Florida resort next season.

It would not trouble Palm Beach so profoundly if the marriage had not, by way of casting its shadow before, caused the sale of the Cosden mansion there. There were a few among society's prophets who foresaw something interesting early in the spring when Mrs. Dodge bought the Spanish mansion at the north end of the resort—the very castle of glory on which Mr. and Mrs. Joshua S. Cosden had lavished several of their well known oil millions.

To the Head Again.

Since Mrs. Cosden is thus left without a habitat in the winter playground, it appears that the Stotesbury sun will now shine more brightly than it ever did before the advent of the Cosdens. Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia for years was the undisputed ruler of Palm Beach. Her Spanish villa with its costly stairways and garden pieces brought bodily from Italian and Spanish palaces overseas was the holy of holies for Palm Beach society. Then came Mrs. Cosden. She had great personal charm and, what is even more important, she had stupendous sums to spend in attaining the leadership of Palm Beach. She attained the coveted place—in a mere matter of two or three years.

And now comes Mrs. Dodge, who, it would appear, not only removes Mrs. Cosden from the social battleground, but actually looms as a stanch rooter for the Stotesbury name. For Mrs. Dodge is not only an intimate friend of Mrs. Stotesbury but she is actually in the family, being the mother-in-law of Mrs. Stotesbury's son by her first marriage. To put it more simply—Mrs. Dodge's daughter, Delphine, is the wife of James H. R. Cromwell. And he is Mrs. Stotesbury's son.

Despite her winter sojourns at Palm Beach, Mrs. Dodge has not been as great a power socially as many women with far less wealth. But now, with the resort's most costly and beautiful mansion as a background, and the assistance of an attractive and active young husband, the motor millionairess will be a power to reckon with.

Dillman acted as Mrs. Dodge's agent when she purchased the Cosden property. There is now

Chicago Has Hand in Polar Flights

By Nancy R—

IT'S beginning to look from where we sit as if the north pole would soon have to put up traffic signals! What an adventurous lot of mortals these explorers are, a splendid, fearless lot, unspoiled by the luxuries and ease of these twentieth century times, whose pleasure and whose purpose in life is the conquering of new fields and old elements. To those of us who must stay at home and take our adventure second hand, from the printed page or the tales of returned heroes, few things are more stirring than the recent deeds of Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, of Roald Amundsen and of Lincoln Ellsworth.

Perhaps some day we'll all be taking our warm weather holidays in the icy retreats of the polar regions. With swift airplane expresses to travel in and a smart floating club anchored to the pole, any number of our summer birds could probably be induced to move north for at least a part of the time between June and September. It's even possible that some day the lonely animals who live next door to the pole will become as sophisticated as our own little Lincoln park squirrels, who never cross the park's winding and crowded roads without looking carefully up and down the street before they skim over to the haven of the other side during a gap in the traffic.

Marking an Epoch.

Seriously speaking, it's a great thing to be alive just at the time when the first two flights in the history of the world are made over the north pole. It's a great stride forward, and a conscious stride, thanks to the rapidity with which the whole world may learn of the news. We may have something the feeling that the discovery of America created in the men and women of that time; we have the added security of knowing quickly the outcome of such undertakings.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Chicago may take special pride in the latest aero-polar accomplishment, the sailing of the giant dirigible Norge over the top axis of the world, for Lincoln Ellsworth, the man who financed the expedition and accompanied Amundsen on the trip, is a former Chicagoan. His father, the late James W. Ellsworth, made his fortune in the coal business here, and lived for many years at 1820 Michigan boulevard.

While he lived in Chicago, Mr. Ellsworth played an important part in our civic life. He was a leader in the management of the World's Fair. For several years he was president of the south park board. He was an active supporter of the Art institute. In his later years his main interest was in developing the Western Reserve academy in Hudson, O., restoring the old buildings and adding others to this famous school. It now stands high in the ranks of education, featuring the study of manual training.

To a Sunnier Land.

Mr. Ellsworth left Chicago some twenty-seven years ago because the smoke of this untidy city of ours damaged his beautiful collection of paintings, books, and rare objets d'art, a collection that was one of the most notable in the country.

His self-imposed exile eventually took him to Italy, where he bought the enchanting Villa Palmieri, near Florence, where so many Chicagoans have established footholds, among them Mrs. Arthur Acton, Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, and Horace Oakley. In this villa, famed as being the scene of one of the tales from Boccaccio's Decameron, and also as being Queen Victoria's summer home, this former citizen of ours spent most of his time until his death less than a year ago. He was one of the striking figures in that part of the world, and any number of wandering Chicagoans whose footsteps took them to Florence, saw and renewed their acquaintance with this interesting man.

Urged On by Adventure.

The younger Ellsworth has always felt a more restless urge. His travels have taken him all over the world, with the adventuring impulse always uppermost. For years he devoted himself to the task of exploring and surveying the great stretches of land and water in northernmost Canada. The northern stars have have long been his guides and his guardians, and this latest trip of his was only the natural result of his inclinations and studies. The 1925 expedition which he financed and set out upon with Amundsen only whetted his interest and courage; a failure then merely meant that he would start all over and try again, and now he has succeeded in doing the thing he cared most to accomplish. A toast to him, I say, and to all the others whose efforts have made this feat possible.

No plans as to a Chicago visit from Lincoln Ellsworth have as yet been announced, but I rather imagine if no other call leads him to the city by the lake, the Adventurers' club here will find a way.

Beginning Early.

Apparently the urge for the thrills of exploration starts early in life. Young Kennett Rawson, the 16 year old son of the Frederick H. Rawsons, of 1550 North State parkway, is eager to be up and at 'em. He is studying hard in school just now, so that his marks next month will justify his going along with the Field museum expedition into the Arctic regions headed by Commander MacMillan and financed by the Rawsons.

I understand he'll go in any capacity whatsoever, just so he is allowed the trip. And unless I miss my guess, his parents will say yes, for at heart they know the same call and realize the importance of answering it. It's the thing that finds and builds new empires, that pushes the world a little farther along on its whirling way, that broadens the path we're treading in this life.

Kennett's brother, Frederick Jr., has already made his plans for the summer, and is getting ready to go to Europe, where he'll study and play until autumn.

Exploring Brought Home.

While these far north expeditions are going on, smaller explorations are taking place right along our own north shore. The Indian Hill Riding club, which has grown tremendously in the last four years, is spreading its bridle path tentacles through several miles of the wooded land west of the charming Indian Hill clubhouse.

Heyliger De Windt and Carlos Daughaday started this equestrian organization less than four years ago, with, I believe, less than a dozen members. This season its roster boasts more than 200 names, and every one concerned is heart and soul in the development of the club's activities.

At a dinner given last Tuesday evening at Indian Hill, the purpose and plans of the Riding club were outlined and discussed, with Mr. De Windt, who has been the president until this year, at the head of the table, and G. H. Atkins as toastmaster. It was a gay evening, one of the first events on the Indian Hill program.

Delano De Windt, the younger of the De Windts' two sons, was a guest at the dinner party Tuesday. Since his marriage to Ruth Church he has lived in Great Barrington, Mass., and has made only infrequent visits to his native heath. This one was fleeting, as he arrived on Tuesday morning and after the dinner departed with his father for a week's trip in Canada. However, he's hoping to spend several days here on his way back to the east, and will probably divide his time between his parental rooftree and the homes of his two sisters, Mrs. Albert Gardner of 456 Surf street and Mrs. Randolph Owsley of Lake Forest.

English Union Busy.

The English Speaking union, whose purpose is "to draw together in the bond of comradeship the English speaking peoples of the world," has launched an extensive program for the coming season. I don't know when I've seen such a comprehensive list as theirs for the convenience of our countrymen traveling in England. With the general strike over, many Chicagoans who had planned to go abroad this year will carry out their original arrangements of going to England first, and this union, whose list of members includes any number of prominent citizens of ours, with Frank H. Scott as president and Graham Aldis, secretary, has provided a most helpful portfolio for them and their friends.

There is a splendid educational department to be consulted if one wants to study abroad. There are dozens of interesting motor tours to choose between. There are lists of London restaurants available, with two devoted exclusively to the whims and needs of the vegetarian. There is a calendar of the 1926 season in London, so that visits may be timed to take in the great events in the racing, boating and golfing worlds. And there is, of course, a complete list of hotels and boarding houses throughout the land.

More than that, there's a real and a warm welcome awaiting members who find their way to the union's headquarters in London, at 1 Charing Cross. The writer remembers well the friendliness, courtesy and attention she was shown there two years ago, when she wandered in one morning.

Arts Club Calendar.

The Arts club pursues its busy and interesting way, in spite of the fact that many members have embarked on their summer outings. This evening, at half past seven, the music committee is sponsoring a supper there, to be followed by a program by Don José Mojica. On Thursday of this week the club is to have its regular annual meeting at half past four in the afternoon. At that time the new directors will be elected, the officers and committees will make their reports, and other business of importance will be transacted. The club is planning to stay open through June, and possibly into the first week in July. After that it will be closed until fall.

One of the most attractive of north shore estates is the one in Glencoe which Edward Glaser has been remodeling recently for his bride of last November, the former Catherine Mallory. They were married in Paris, and after a wedding trip abroad the Glasers returned to Chicago until time to open their country home for the painters and decorators.

The house was built some ten years ago, so the garden is in perfect condition. A green lawn stretches away from the house, bordered by white hawthorns, which lend a hazy outline to the grounds. Purple and white crocuses and little blue star flowers bloomed in April, and now the early spring flowers are opening new buds each day.

Within, the house, which is old English in period, is in order to the casual caller, as the work is confined to the upper floors, where delicious shades of yellow, peach, green, blue, rose, and tan are being blended into the various rooms. The charm of the new mistress is evidenced by her taste, and her hospitality is known already to the many friends who have visited the new ménage.

MRS. JOHN T. MASON.
[Moffett Photo.]

As president of the tenth district, I. F. W. C., Mrs. William F. Farrell will act as chairman of the local board for the convention of the women's clubs of the state, to be held this week at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The Chicago Collegiate bureau will hold open house next Saturday in its new offices, 1816 Mallers building. Mrs. Florence S. Robnett, director, will receive with the other officers. The bureau has completed its thirteenth year of successful operation in placing college trained women.

Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora and Mrs. Walter W. Seymour of Chicago are contestants for the office of president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, which convenes in Chicago on Tuesday for its annual meeting.

Illinois Clubs to Elect President

THE presentation of two candidates for the office of president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs looms as the most interesting light at the annual convention of that organization this week. Sessions will begin on Tuesday and will continue through Friday at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Mrs. Walter W. Seymour of the second district, past president of that large sector and more recently first vice president of the I. F. W. C., has been presented in the Chicago field.

Qualified by Service.

From the eleventh district, comprising outlying clubs near Chicago, the name of Mrs. John T. Mason is being brought by her co-workers. Mrs. Mason is state legislative chairman, has served as president of the Aurora Woman's club, state civil service chairman, and state vice president. Mrs. Mason is now civil service chairman for the general federation.

Mrs. William H. Hart of Benton, former state president, and Mrs. George T. Palmer of Springfield, retiring president, are contestants for the office of general federation director.

The local board, of which Mrs. William F. Farrell is president, as president of the tenth and hostess district, have completed plans for the entire program, all activities to be handled within the headquarters.

Many Events Planned.

There will be department luncheons where real committee work is to be done; various educational and instructive displays, and exhibits. Arrangements also have been made for visits on Wednesday to the three club houses in the tenth district—the North End club, the Rogers Park Woman's club, and the Woman's Club of Evanston. Officers and board members at these clubs will receive the delegates.

The program for the general sessions, which was given in this column some time ago, remains practically the same. Expert speakers will appear before departmental meetings and there will be a club institute and reports giving progress of the work done by the clubs during the last club season.

Fete Proceeds Will Aid Palestine Work

PLANS are being completed for the second international fête, a program of varied interest, to be given next Sunday at the Municipal pier, the proceeds to be used in aiding the workers in Palestine. A musical program under the direction of Alexander Zukovsky will be one of the features.

Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Judge Hugo Pam, Prof. Paul H. Douglas, Judge Harry M. Fisher, and James Mullenbach are on the list of patrons, and Mrs. Julius Stone is executive chairman, aided by a large committee.

Changing a Country.

There are 20,000 workers now in Palestine, and additional numbers are arriving from Poland, Latvia and Lithuania. Their coöperation and intensive work is creating a remarkable change in the physical conditions and the morale of Palestine.

The working men and women are banded into an organization known as the "Histadruth," which has fostered a network of coöperatives which make rounds of the entire country. They have forty agricultural colonies, a consumers' coöperative arrangement, road construction and rebuilding, a workers' band, sanitaria, and convalescent homes.

Conditions Are Bettered.

Educational work also is a part of the program of the organization. The whole idea of the members is the purpose of bettering conditions and making possible the opening of new fields and opportunities for the immigrants who are leaving Europe. Training schools for young and old, kindergartens, traveling libraries and traveling teachers, also a daily newspaper, are features of this branch of the work.

CLUB NOTES

There will be a board meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Woman's City club, and the city finance committee will have a luncheon meeting at noon, with Mrs. Annie Peaks Kenny and Mrs. Mark P. Mears as speakers. Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch will preside at a luncheon meeting of the civil service committee on Tuesday. On Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock there will be a reception and tea for the new officers and directors, also a joint meeting of all ward branches. Miss Jane Addams will speak. Genius Hovers Over the Name of Lavery

So beautiful a lady, passing fair,
With pearls around her neck, and at her breast
A lovely jewel that sparkled in the sun,
In silver lace and satin she was dressed.—

And I paid homage as she sat in state,
Kneeling, a slave, before her radiant sight—
My heart was water, and I felt a pang,
But whether love, or wonder, or—just fright,

The soul within me could not say. I stared.
The beauty that was hers stirred to a smile,
A little smile that bowed those scarlet lips,
And told me we had loved once on a while.

E. J.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE paintings by Sir John Lavery, an exhibition which opened the first of May at the Arts club, count among the best that have been exhibited in Chicago this season. John Lavery has an established reputation. One might as well try to dam Niagara as to question his genius, though genius is a risky word to use in connection with any painter who has not been dead two or three hundred years.

Contemporaries have a miserable way of bobbing up and belittling this and begrudging that, and comparing the one with the other, and nailing you fast to the mast with a single adjective. There are undoubtedly a score of artists you would recognize immediately, were their labels suggested to you. This practice is not a fair one, but it is human. It does a great deal of harm to the painter who is caught in its mesh. At the start, he is handicapped by having a limit put on his possible achievements.

Lavery, however, is lucky in his handicap because it groups him with the great English portrait painters of other days, Romney, Gainsborough, and Reynolds. Lavery is a finished technician, a polished craftsman and an exquisite in the school of beauty, as evidenced in his paintings. He is a conservative and paints exactly what is before him, his vision inspired by a sincere appreciation of the nuances of lighting and the values of color.

When Words Seem Small.

There is a touch of the historical drama, that has seemed particularly Sir William Orpen's province these last few years, in the two rather large convases depicting scenes in the house of lords. One shows Lord Mordley addressing the house. There is a huge hall and crowds of men, and the whole affair does not strike one as being entirely the painter's choice in subject.

Far different from this in character, splendid and assured in every detail, is the portrait of Stephen Donoghue, a jockey, that carries the title, "The Jockey's Dressing Room at Ascot." Words are paltry coin to pass in valuing the merit of such a painting. It speaks for itself.

The portrait of another man, the Marquess of Londonderry, chancellor of Belfast university, is a second masterly achievement. Again words are wasted in describing it. It, also, speaks for itself.

Portraits of a Great Beauty.

When we turn to the portraits of women, Lavery is found at his most picturesque. Several of the portraits are portraits of his wife, a charming and beautiful woman. There are "The Silver Dress," "The Red Robe," and "Lady Lavery"—in ruffles. Each is a perfectly staged hymn to beauty, exquisite, tranquil, and utterly fascinating. The lighting in the "Silver Dress" is especially effective.

A few landscapes reveal a more or less unpracticed side of his art, and several interiors strike again a more assured note. The interiors, in a number of cases, are those of persons of note. For an example, there is a family group of the Irish tenor, John McCormack, and another dignified group of the English royal family, King George, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, and Princess Mary.

The most beautiful interior is less significant in the characters involved, but more personal in its various values. It is "The Studio Window." You will see an entrancing window nook with a desk and a couch, and a girl looking wistfully from the high panes to the pigeons, wheeling in the dusty air above London.

Jazzing Up Art.

The room adjoining the long gallery in which the greater part of the Lavery paintings are hung is a distracting medley of rampant colors laid upon canvas by the reckless hand of Paul Burlin, a modernist, who, one feels, is jazzing up art as a certain Irving Berlin has jazzed up music. The paintings look as though they had been run off at top speed and had lost, somewhere in the race, the inspiration of Matisse that, quite possibly, was responsible for their start.

Landsee's "Dignity and Impudence" is an irresistible comparison of the two painters, Sir John Lavery and Paul Burlin. Or, perhaps more truly descriptive, the Burlin contribution puts one in mind of a sleek, thin, smart alley cat edging in on tip toe past the serious, considered footfall of a great St. Bernard.

Contrariwise, if you remember Tweedle-Dee, chancing to be enamored of the modernism that is wildest when most in earnest, you may easily be caught by the pagan recklessness of Paul Burlin, and like his stuff.

One thing is certain. If you like Burlin, you will find Lavery stupid. You will find him conventional. You may even find him sentimental. Paul Burlin will not trouble you that way. No farthest stretch of the imagination could bring poetry into vital contact with the female figures he has evolved.

At the Institute.

In the print rooms in the Art institute, speaking particularly of the largest of these rooms, there is installed at present a brilliant exhibit of contemporary color prints, many of them by Chicago artists, and nearly all of them by artists with whose names and work we are familiar. In a further gallery is an exhibit of old English sporting prints, which make a brave show. The two rarest prints are the "Snipe Shooting in Winter" and "Partridge Shooting." Perhaps the two best are "The Fox Chase" and "Dogs Having Lost the Right Scent."

But it is the contemporary color prints that chiefly engage our attention. There are some lovely things in this exhibit. In a fashion it resembles the Chicago Etchers' exhibit, although in the present case color gives an added fillup to the beauty of the work shown. The "Morning Glory" and "Wisteria" by Bertha E. Jaques are two lovely prints by one of our best loved etchers.

Two softly hued prints of flowers by Pietro de Francisco, "La Grande Marguerite" and "L'Aloustier," are exceptionally beautiful. "City Nocturne" and "The Beach" by Beatrice Levy are from a group of attractive prints by this gifted young Chicago artist.

A "Design" by Helen West Heller is a striking composition, and from the transition is a bit breathless to the interesting, French flavored, alive prints by George Hart, prints that include the "Cockfight, San Domingo," the "Poultryman" [a broad French farce, most amusing] and the "Picnic Party" [a little reminiscent of Bellows' blocky people, but sanctified by the Gaul in their veins].

Prints that Charm.

"Goldfish" and "Little Gray Cat," by Elizabeth Norton, are prints that will particularly delight children. "The Nightingale," by Allen W. Seaby, is a delicious likeness, and "Venetian Night," by W. Monk, is really lovely.

In mentioning drawings of pets, the superb Russian wolf hound, by Beatrice Levy, must not on any account be overlooked. It is extremely good. The proud beast's name in full is "Hans Neumann Jr." There may be a catch in this, but that is what the card beside it reads.

Rudolph Ruzicka has a number of delicately colored scenes of various foreign towns. Among them are "Charles Bridge, Prague," a fragile moment of great beauty. Bringing us nearer home, there is his "Peck Slip, New York," a shivery, cold picture that fairly sends the chills along your spine, so realistically below zero is the atmosphere.

There are a great many other artists represented in the exhibit. The prints are for sale. By all means go—and buy, if the spirit moves you. There is little chance in this exhibit for taste to go wrong. What you like is standard enough to judge by. The entire show is good.

In a tucked away nook may be found a charming array of prints by Mary Cassatt. The theme of mother and child is alive in many of them. This is one of the few intact sets extant. Only twenty-five sets were ever printed. They are aquatints, colored in the Japanese manner and are lent by Martin A. Ryerson.

Another diversion in prints is found in the seven engravings by William Blake, after his drawings for Dante's "Inferno," colored, so tradition tells it, by his wife. It is an extremely rare set and most unusual. Boston has an uncolored set. The engravings on view at the Art institute are lent by Miss Elizabeth McCormick.

Notes of Art and Artists.

The Children's museum in the Art institute is open every day on which the institute is open, except when an exhibition is being installed. Just recently it has been closed for painting and repairs, but in a few days it will be open with an exhibit of pottery, textiles, and book binding done by students in the art classes of the various settlements, including Hull house, Gad's Hill, Arden Shore, and Eli Bates house.

More than twenty pictures from the international water color exhibit, current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute, were sold during the first three days of the exhibition.

In the antiquarian rooms at the Art institute, in the Hutchinson wing, downstairs, there is at present an exhibit of early American furniture. It is vastly interesting and vastly soothing. There is a calm and solidity about those '76 household goods that speaks well for the poise and self-reliance of our forefathers.

The Helen Birch Bartlett memorial collection of modern art has been installed in the gallery of the Art institute formerly occupied by the Nickerson collection of paintings and oriental art.

For a summer vacation of study, work, and pleasure, J. Allen St. John, instructor in the Art institute school, will sail for France in the near future. Mrs. St. John and Marshall D. Smith, the painter who gives us those fascinating, warmly colored glimpses of New Orleans, will accompany him.

During the month of April there were 61,376 visitors to the Art institute, an increase over the attendance figures for April, 1925, of 5,600 visitors.

◆

The summer exhibition of the Chicago Society of Artists may now be seen at the Hamilton park fieldhouse, where it will remain until the end of May. Sunday programs with music and talks on art will add interest to the exhibit.

The Joy of Giving Pearls

There is just as much pleasure in the giving as there is in the receiving of Pearls as a gift.

The enthusiasm with which any woman receives Pearls . . . and their sublime adaptations to feminine loveliness . . . makes Pearls the ideal gift.

The association of the name LEBOLT with Pearls has been the custom in Chicago for more than twenty-five years. It is an association that means satisfaction to Pearl buyers.

U. S. Government reports for 1925 show that LEBOLT & COMPANY received over 90% of the Pearls passing through the Chicago Customs office.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

much speculation as to whether he received the usual percentage to brokers or whether he was content with his staggering prospects as fiancé of the rich woman. Certainly no man of this generation has profited so handsomely in Florida real estate!

Beginning Their Honeymoon.

The fact that Dillman's real name is Hugh Dillman McCaughey did not appear to disturb the bride's dignity when the pair visited New York recently. They came here to start on their honeymoon, which will consist of a motor trip through France and Italy. They were radiantly happy, surrounded with flowers and deluged with messages from friends. The disparity in ages apparently did not mar the union, although there is not as much difference as many persons believe. Dillman was 33 when he applied for his license to wed Miss Rambeau. It is, thus, easily deduced that he is now 40, since that wedding occurred in 1919. Mrs. Dodge's age, according to her application, is 49.

An Unusual Pet.

When Col. Henry H. Rogers and his interesting family go to their home at Southampton, L. I., in the middle of June, they will be accompanied by as interesting a little beastie as ever graced a Social Register fireside. This creature is a mongoose. If you don't identify that animal at once in your memory, you may hark back to Kipling and the jungle book for his prototype.

Mongo, as he is called in the Rogers menage, is a small animal with brown fur, a long striped tail, and a pointed snout. He is an adept at catching rodents—not that there are any in the perfectly regulated Rogers estate on Long Island! It is really a pity that Mongo's talents should be wasted on this magnificent farm with its eighteen gardeners, its endless chambermaids, chauffeurs, dairymen, and even its own butcher who sees to it that the oil family has a supply of genuinely fresh meat. What a blessing Mongo would be, set down in the middle of New York's east side! There children are likely to waken from sleep minus a piece of a finger or an ear due to the rat population.

Mongo is the property of Countess Millicent Salm, the Rogers' daughter. She is devoted to her pet, but all her affection cannot overcome a serious fault which has almost robbed Mongo of his exalted home.

COLLEGE BALL

MISS MARION DOYLE.

At the senior ball at Saint Mary-of-the-Woods college in Indiana, Miss Marion Doyle of Binghamton, N. Y., was chairman and led the grand march with Hugh McCaffrey of Philadelphia.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"WELL, election's all over," commented the past president. "Those who won are happy and those who lost have a chance to show what kind of stuff is in their makeup—whether they can accept defeat as graciously as they can victory."

"Some can and some can't," opined the board member, "and occasionally one is afraid she can't and refuses to run for office unless she's the only candidate."

"And again we have such examples of can's and can't's as were Mrs. Crest and Mrs. Sander, who you remember were both defeated for office last year," recalled the past president. "Mrs. Crest thought she was abused and duoble-crossed and discriminated against, and she's been bitter ever since. Mrs. Sander said it was probably her own fault that she lost; she hadn't shown as much interest in the club's work as she might have, or put herself out particularly to make friends, but she insisted that she was coming up for the same job again and was going to win, too, if preparation would help her to. And, sure enough, she did."

"She has the ability to look at a personal matter in an impersonal way," rejoined the board member. "A woman with that gift can have any office for which she's willing to qualify."

"I've known of cases where victory was as hard on a woman as defeat," put in the charter member. "You remember Mrs. Jason? No, I guess she was before your time. Anyway, she ran for the presidency and got it. Before election she was a good fellow, apparently sympathetic and open to reason and suggestion; after election she became dictatorial, overbearing, and egotistical."

"Evidently her success went to her head," interposed the past president.

"So much so that it took us several years to revive from the effects of her administration. She killed herself completely in the club. I've often wondered just how defeat would have affected her."

"When two candidates run for office one must lose," remarked the board member, "and I'm for the one who sees defeat as well as victory through a smiling."

A Message to Beauty-Seekers from
MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

(International Beauty-Scientist)

BEGINNING Monday, May 17, I shall be in Chicago and I want every woman who is seriously interested in developing her beauty and expressing her individuality, to visit me at where I myself will make a special study of each skin privately and will outline in detail the scientific treatment for its proper home care.

It has been my great good fortune to have women from all over the world tell me that my advice has proved so helpful as to be a veritable turning point in their lives.

I want to see not only those who have visited me in my Paris, London and New York Salons, but every woman who appreciates sound, helpful advice on how to solve her beauty problem.

Do come early so that I may be generous with my time.

My consultation and advice are yours for the asking.

Sincerely yours,
Helena Rubinstein

The two men we want must have had experience in handling salesmen.

Preferably in the securities line. We prefer an executive with NO previous subdivision experience, as we prefer to train the man we select to our methods.

This position is a GENERAL SALES MANAGERSHIP and will require unusual ability in organizing and closing.

The financial rewards are great.

Our HEART OF WESTCHESTER campaign exceeded all records; our advertising and promotion methods unsurpassed.

This is an unusual opportunity for the hard hitting, brilliant executive in some other line who has been desirous of getting into the real estate business, to adapt his ability to this business, and work in a capacity congenial to him.

AUSPITZ & OAKES,
12th floor, Mallers Bldg.,
5 S. Wabash-av.

I WANT A MAN

Who Can Prove Himself

1. Honest,
2. Loyal,
3. Industrious.

$5,000 a year is what I expect him to earn to start, and better later on if he qualifies and succeeds.

I believe that some American born man, between the ages of 25 and 40, will find this an opportunity to get out of the rut and into a place where hustling will be properly rewarded. Call for a personal interview, 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

ANNOUNCING SAMUEL E. ARVOLD'S ARVOLD REALTY CO.

After hitting the high spots for the other fellow for sixteen years Mr. Arvold has declared himself a postgraduate, and here he is. Having been on the firing line all this time, he naturally knows all the obstacles and various lines of resistance encountered by salesmen and managers. This experience has enabled him in opening his own business to reduce your troubles to a minimum. Particularly is this true in the selection of his properties. He did not have to take whatever was offered him on a sales contract, but was able to go out and after careful selection buy his properties in the districts he wanted them, with the result that he offers close in real estate at prices that will sell on sight. This means quick, easy sales, which insures salespeople a positive, consistent income.

To those coming in now there are openings unequaled in this city. This means highest commissions plus property and prices that challenge all competition.

It costs you money to work on a dead one. It's easy to win if you're on the fastest horse!

Today is now:
Tomorrow never comes.
Let us pray.
But let us also help ourselves.

ANY ONE

Willing to begin with weekly income of $50 to $60 and build up to $125 per week with easy possibilities of $175 per week in 9 months phone Mr. Laidley at State 5493.

ARE YOU THE MAN?

There is a man living in Chicago that we want. He is between 25-40 yrs. of age. He knows success means work. He needs and must earn a substantial income. He must have personality, initiative, and energy, be able to close a sale. The compensation he will receive should average over $5,000 per year. He need not be experienced in our business. Do not confuse this with the ordinary want ad. If you are the type of man we want, you are as much interested in this position as we are in having you. If you have the above qualifications and want a permanent connection with an established real estate company, address A T 204, Tribune.

ARE YOU AMBITIOUS?

If you cannot answer yes truthfully do not waste your time replying to this ad. If you want to start at the bottom of a sales force and by dint of your own effort make your way to the top you may be the man we want. We have an unusual opportunity for a young man to make a place for himself in one of the largest organizations of its kind in the country. If you can qualify as a salesman for our Chicago force you can make $40 a week to start. We have men who started in this dept. who are now making $200 and more a week. Address T G 127, Tribune.

ARE YOU AFRAID OF WORK?

If not, I have something to offer to full or part time men in the best field that Chicago has today. Men who appreciate that a live wire organization constantly co-operating is the place where honest effort is substantially rewarded, come in and I will explain the proposition to you. This is your opportunity. Grasp it. See MR. POST, Rm. 348, 29 S. La Salle-st. Office hrs., 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

MAKE MONEY QUICK SELLING "FLY-KIL."

Hundreds of men starting this week. Many already earning from $20 to $40 per day. No experience required. Just show farmers how "Improved Dairymen's Fly-Kil" kills flies and protects cattle, and it sells itself! "Dairymen's Fly-Kil" leads all other insecticides and repellents in sales to progressive dairymen and farmers. This year it is better than ever.

"Household Fly-Kil" is colorless and tremendously effective household spray. Is selling like wild fire at approximately one-half the price heretofore charged for household sprays. Housewives buy immediately when shown how pleasant to use and effective it is. Stores, banks, restaurants, hotels and summer camps are saving money by buying in large quantities. No such product ever before offered by direct to consumer salesmen. Get in on the ground floor! Write immediately for booklet containing statements of many users and our written guarantee. We will outline for you our proposition to distributors and salesmen under which we know any man who is willing to hustle can clear big money beginning on the very first day. Ask your banker about the responsibility of this company, then apply at once, stating territory desired and giving name of your banker or other character reference.

MAKE YOUR TIME COUNT.

You undoubtedly believe that you have at least average ability. You know or have heard of other men not as capable as you who are making a big income in the real estate business and yet something has held you back from making a contact that would enable you to likewise enjoy all that big earnings mean. Don't you think that it would at least pay to investigate what a connection with us would mean to you. We offer the highest grade properties at lowest prices and pay the biggest commissions. We give you the cooperation which means immediate earnings to you even though you have had no previous experience. Come in and let us talk it over. I will see you personally.

MEN WANTED.

Married or Single, Without Experience; Must Be Over 21.

You have often been tempted to answer a real estate ad because some one told you that there's lots of money to be made in that business. You have hesitated because you felt that you had no experience. You can do what other men are doing, you know you can. All we are attempting to do in this ad is to interest you sufficiently in us to cause you to investigate.

Now, I will tell you what I'll do when you come in. I won't promise you that you'll make a fortune every week, but I do promise if you follow my instructions that you will work yourself into the best position you ever had in your life.

Remember, I am going to talk with you personally and show you what other men like yourself who came to us without experience are making.

SALESMEN—SALESWOMEN.

Experienced or Inexperienced Full or Part Time.

One of the largest and financially strongest piano manufacturing firms, with retail outlets all over the world, is making an offer to salesmen and saleswomen whereby they can increase their weekly earnings 100%. These positions are unusual because of the extreme simplicity of the work and rate of pay far greater than the average. Even if you can only give it your spare time, it will pay you a big income.

We don't say that you can make a fortune, but we do insist that with our personal co-operation we will place you in a position where if you co-operate with our sales system, we guarantee that your efforts at the end of the first week will be rewarded with a substantial check, the amount of which will in all probability be in excess of your present income.

As you read this ad there are probably many of your acquaintances who are at the present time interested or could be made interested in the purchase of a piano, which means money in your pocket.

We have at the present time men and women who are making big money and whose future has been established for them through our consistent training and co-operation, and sincerely solicit your calling at our warerooms for a personal interview.

REMEMBER—Turn those spare hours into golden hours.

SIX CAPABLE SALESMEN

Wanted By THE WORLD'S LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF ALUMINUM KITCHEN WARE.

The men desired should be about 30 years old, married, clean cut and of sterling character and ambitious to make a connection where they can exercise their ability; must have at least several years' experience selling merchandise, preferably to the retail hardware, general and department store trade; the market is highly competitive, but the line is the peer in its field, enjoying national distribution and dealer good will. This opportunity is not for order takers nor for men who are accustomed to selling on a price basis. The work is not easy, but it is intensely interesting, all year round and permanent; vacancies will occur in middle western, southern and eastern states. The positions pay a monthly salary, commission and traveling expenses.

If you can meet these requirements we are interested in you. Write us fully, giving a record of your experience, education, earnings and references. Send photo. Address C P 42, Tribune.

SIX MEN

who like executive work will be given an unusual opportunity. Must be over 21 years of age and now employed in some legitimate work in Chicago or surrounding towns.

The men selected will be trained and educated through an intensive series of practical spare time methods under a definite guarantee of accomplishing greater financial success.

The power of mind, with our natural attributes, knows no limitations; the only difference is one of development.

You will be given both a vocational and character analysis and guidance free of charge if your reply is satisfactory by a man nationally known who has helped thousands find themselves. There are no obligations attached to this in any form whatsoever.

If your wishbone has not switched place with your backbone, and if you do realize the absolute necessity and value of a practical, intensive education, then write immediately for full information.

Address S 322, Tribune.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR MANUFACTURER'S REPRESENTATIVE.

Here is an opportunity such as comes to few men.

Experienced salesman of 35 to 40 who has already earned his spurs in selling but who is looking for a chance to earn more money and form a permanent connection in a field where future possibilities are limited only by his own ability and ambition, will do well to read further.

Nationally known manufacturer of automotive accessories, selling only through legitimate jobbers, needs high class sales representative immediately to take full charge of already developed and profitable territory in Middle and Southwest on drawing account and commission basis that insures attractive compensation from the beginning and really exceptional remuneration within a short time.

Not a high pressure or trick proposition. You will be backed up not only by merchandise which is superior to all competition but by exclusive sales plans of proven effectiveness and by a rigidly honest sales policy that has earned the good will of the entire industry.

If you are a seasoned salesman, absolutely honest, willing to travel and to work with a reasonable amount of discretion and a capacity for following helpful suggestion to the letter, here's your password to a permanent success.

Experience in automotive field desirable but not imperative.

Write fully in confidence, giving us complete particulars of your experience in the selling field, age, when available, single or married, present earnings, references, and telephone number where you may be reached for interview.

Tell us just why you think you are the man we need.

TUESDAY, MAY 18TH, AT 7:30 P. M. SHARP.

Room 650, 31 S. Clark-st. I want to meet a few real honest-to-goodness men to assist me in special work of a highly dignified nature. Three weeks ago I engaged two men. I paid one man $1,500 to date. The other fellow has ONLY collected $999. Neither of these boys had any previous experience in our line. They are not supermen. They simply possess the faculty of grasping instructions quickly. There are many thousands more in Chicago that are capable of doing just what my first two have already done. The concern I represent has been established for 17 years. We have thousands of satisfied clients. Many of our men that have been with us for three years or more are independently wealthy. In fairness to those that may respond to this advertisement I will not divulge the nature of the work. If I do you may cheat yourself out of a real chance. Honesty and sincerity are all the qualifications you require. We will furnish the rest.

REMEMBER, TUESDAY, MAY 18, 7:30 p. m. IF YOU ARE HONEST AND SINCERE. Come in and let me show you that you have not been adequately compensated for your efforts in the past.

HARRY L. BECK,
ROOM 650,
31 S. CLARK-ST.

Miscellaneous.

I WISH TO GATHER ABOUT me a few young men possessing personality, fire, ambition and an unconquerable spirit.

These men should have college or at least high school education.

With attention and application to my copyrighted method of teaching practical salesmanship, such men will have built up their latent powers now lying undeveloped.

They may also earn good money while receiving instruction.

Call 9 to 12 only, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday.

Junior Department,
16th floor Majestic Bldg.,
22 W. Monroe.

ATTENTION!

SALESMEN ARE MADE, NOT BORN.

WE MAKE 'EM.

Many men and women who never earned over $35 to $50 a week and who came to us absolutely green are today earning from $3,000 to $15,000 a year. Never in our seventeen years' experience in training men have we been able to offer you anything like THIS.

Six of Chicago's most eminent sales instructors have been engaged to help our sales force increase its present earnings.

During this campaign we will also train a few full and part time men or women.

Men and women without sales experience preferred, as we want our salesmen trained to our methods.

You start to work at once and can earn good money while learning.

First class meets Tuesday, May 18. Class meets five mornings a week, at 9 a. m., and lasts one hour.

Call for interview at once, as we will only take on a few new people and we must make our selection of applicants before first meeting. You are under no obligation.

Permanent Position.

This is an opportunity for intelligent, honest, and ambitious women over 25 years of age with or without experience; no drifters need apply.

We are about to open TWO MILLION DOLLARS worth of GENUINE NORTH SHORE property, held intact for many years. We need ambitious women to distribute this desirable investment by interviewing a large field of prospective buyers who never before have been able to secure this real North Shore at our low prices on easy terms.

This means that YOU can now join our organization, Chicago's largest real estate operators, where you will receive personal co-operation from veterans in the business. We train you thoroughly. You need not waste time experimenting. In our 27 consecutive years of successful enterprise we have always selected all our executives from the sales organization and have evolved the most scientific, productive and best paying plan for our men to follow. THIS MEANS PERMANENCY AND ADVANCEMENT.

That's why we have no dull season. Our men are making money the whole year round. Success begets success.

WOMEN OF ENERGY
WANTED.

The women's department of the Westchester sales organization of the George F. Nixon Company is now ready to take on a few new junior saleswomen. For these openings we need energetic, intelligent young women with some business ability. Previous real estate experience is not at all necessary.

This is an ideal time of the year to get started and a psychological time to begin in Westchester. When you sell property for the Nixon Company you know that you are offering your client the best there is and are protecting him and his heirs with the Nixon Estate Protection Plan.

I will gladly talk this over with you Monday or Tuesday morning, between 10 o'clock and 1 o'clock.

WANTED—FEMALE HELP.

LADIES,
READ THIS LETTER.

Dear Miss Farrell:
Sixteen months ago I was working as a cashier in a restaurant on La Salle-st. I read your advertisement for ladies to do special work. I came in for a confidential interview, not because I expected to change my position, but because I knew you were a character analyst and I wanted you to tell me about yourself.

You impressed me greatly and convinced me that I could handle your special work and I quit the fairly good and permanent position I had and took up the special work you offered me.

I was a slow starter, but you helped me and under your efficient suggestions I have made good and I am sure you will be pleased to know that my actual earnings have averaged better than $510 per month for each and every month I have been with your concern. I want to thank you most sincerely for the great interest you took in making me successful.

MYRTLE DAVIS.

Lila Farrell is a character analyst of national reputation. We need several ladies now for special work and have engaged Miss Farrell to look over all applicants and analyze their good and bad points. This service will be rendered to all applicants without charge. Come in Monday after 10 a. m. and let Miss Farrell definitely tell you about yourself. Confidential interviews in Miss Farrell's own office.

ROOM 922,
77 W. WASHINGTON-ST.

ATTENTION!
SALESWOMEN ARE MADE,
NOT BORN.
WE MAKE 'EM.

Many men and women who never earned over $35 to $50 a week and who came to us absolutely green are today earning from $5,000 to $15,000 a year. Never in our seventeen years' experience in training men have we been able to offer you anything like THIS.

Six of Chicago's most eminent sales instructors have been engaged to help our sales force increase its present earnings.

During this campaign we will also train a few full and part time men or women.

Men and women without sales experience preferred, as we want our salesmen trained to our methods.

You start to work at once and can earn good money while learning.

First class meets Tuesday, May 18. Class meets five mornings a week at 9 a. m. and lasts 1 hour.

Call for interview at once, as we will only take on a few new people and we must make our selection of applicants before first meeting. You are under no obligation.

THE AQUITANIA
ON THE LAKE SHORE.
AT 5000 NORTH.

The location of the Aquitania is only one of many features that make it the outstanding fine apartment residence of Chicago.

You will appreciate its enviable location, particularly during the hot summer days and nights, for this beautiful, fifteen story building, standing on the very shore of Lake Michigan, has the benefit of the cooling breezes which are constantly blowing off the lake.

These finely appointed and unusually spacious apartments possess that appealing beauty which inevitably sets them apart from other fine apartments. It can be truthfully said that they have all the fine characteristics of a truly livable home.

There are only a limited number of four and six room apartments available.

HOUSES—WEST SIDE.

TODAY

I am offering for your inspection seventeen new five room brick buildings which represent the best in building construction at any price. These five rooms are composed of a large living room, two large bedrooms with closets off of each, with connecting bath; a small dining room beautifully arranged to become a part of the living room when not in use as a dining room; a kitchen so efficiently designed with modern one piece apron sink and combination spray faucets and cabinets built in around the walls, with flour bins, sugar bins and all modern appliances to make housework a pleasure instead of a drudge. The bathroom is equipped with the best grade of built-in enameled plumbing set on hexagon tile floor and equipped with best grade of steel medicine case and mirror.

In addition to these five rooms there is another room known as the sleeping porch. This room, containing approximately 100 sq. ft. of floor space, could readily be used, if plastered, as an all year round bedroom. Then off of the kitchen is an enclosed private porch, all glazed in and made serviceable for summer cooking. A small attic above the entire building is serviceable as a storage room. And best of all, under the entire house is a concrete basement as large in area as the entire five rooms above, wherein is installed a laundry with two part laundry tray, swinging hot and cold faucets, with hot water boiler heated with gas, and furnace room with the best type of furnace that is known; a vegetable cellar built in solid concrete in which the temperature will vary only slightly.

The entire outside walls of these buildings are resting on 4 feet of solid concrete, which in turn rests on a concrete footing two feet wide and one foot thick. The middle part of building is supported by steel Eve Beams, which in turn are supported by steel lally columns resting on concrete footings.

As usual, my perpetual guarantee against defects in workmanship and material applies to these buildings the same as all buildings that I ever have built. This guarantee protects the buildings against depreciation. That is why I am always willing to repurchase any one of the 1,500 buildings that I have built at exactly the price at which I sold them, in exchange for any other building that I may have for sale.

You may have noticed my ads in which I offered five room buildings at prices ranging from $8,250 to $15,000. The same workmen, the same high grade material and the same guarantee applies to these five room buildings, which really are six room buildings, which I am selling at the lowest price that I have ever been able to offer buildings of this number of rooms.

The price is $6,450, on terms of $750 cash and $55 per month, including all interest. I will accept a deposit of $10 on any one of these houses, which $10 will be refunded by me at the end of a week if I decide that the applicant might be an undesirable purchaser. Or I will refund the deposit any time upon your request, without comment.

These buildings are located in the 4400 block of Rice-st. and Iowa-st., one block from the Chicago-av. car line and four blocks from the Crawford car line.

Today I will have no salesmen at these buildings to urge you to buy, but my representatives will be there to answer your questions and to accept a deposit of $10 providing you care to have a building reserved for you for one week.

COMPARE BRAESIDE

with other equally well located and developed communities on the north shore. Its situation overlooking the beautiful Skokie Valley and close to the lake; its homes architecturally beautiful and substantial; its proximity to good transportation and recreation facilities; its rigid protective restrictions; these and other advantages make Braeside an ideal community second to none on the north shore.

Braeside will stand comparison with the best—yet prices of desirable homesites in Braeside are comparatively low. A few of the choicest sites at Braeside are still to be had. Don't delay your selection.

CHIWAUKEE
"On the Lake"

The ideal place to build your home, where you will have a Golf Course at your door and the use of the Finest Bathing Beach

to be found on Lake Michigan

LOTS 100X200 FEET are to be had for but $15.00 PER FOOT

Lots in CHIWAUKEE at this price represent the lowest priced frontage known among the available real estate so ideally located and convenient to Chicago and lying between Sheridan-rd. and the Lake.

Many Chicagoans already have made reservations here and are profiting by so doing. Let us send you our literature, so that you may see for yourself that it would be folly to pass up this remarkable opportunity.

This is a full village development; everything to make it an ideal homesite. Property values here are experiencing the most rapid increase in the history of any real estate near Chicago.

CHIWAUKEE can be reached in 55 minutes by train or 1½ hours' delightful drive up Sheridan-rd. to the entrance of the property.

(?) A FAIRY STORY (?)

You do not have to be satisfied with an ordinary lot.

You can have an acre 1200 ft. frontage] of fine old forest trees for less than price of a 50 ft. lot.

Imagine that new home almost lost in the forest, protected by stately oaks that were old before you were born. Your lawn a vast expanse of green, shaded by oak, elm, maple, and hickory. A hard road for your car, miles of bridle path free from traffic, for you and your children's pony.

NOW LISTEN!

These wonderful estates are ten miles north of Howard-st., adjoining golf course; 5 minutes' drive to five other golf courses. All North Shore transportation; 35 min. to loop.

Make us prove this Fairy Story. Act now. Address S K 262, Tribune.

THE BRONX
M. J. FAHERTY'S SUBDIVISION
[Directly Opposite Dempster "L" Terminal in Niles Center.]
CHALLENGE THE ATTENTION OF THE SHREWD REAL ESTATE INVESTOR.

This is the outstanding development of our 41 years' success in Chicago real estate. Wherever greater Chicago has grown M. J. Faherty has been on hand, taking an active part in all sound development.

Every opportunity that existed in 1906, when we subdivided Albany Park, is now offered in the Bronx—

$1,000,000 in fine apartments, stores, offices and community undertakings have already been completed. Values are rising steadily. Investors, speculators, contractors and homeseekers will find that our property is $10 to $150 a foot below adjoining frontage.

Take the "L" to the Niles Center Terminal at Dempster-st., and inspect our property before buying elsewhere.

Chain Store Proposition.
An old established retail concern now operating 4 stores in Chicago desires to expand. We are seeking one reputable business man in every city of 50,000 or more population in the middle west. This man will open and operate a retail store under our selling plan, which has proven very profitable in Chicago. The man must be financially established so that we can safely extend him a line of credit, as we require no cash on this proposition. To the man who can qualify we can present a permanent proposition which may net him $10,000 to $25,000 per year. Interested parties communicate with our Credit Manager, 1348 S. Michigan-av., Chicago.

PAIGE BROUGHAM 5 PASS. COUPE '66. Roomy, luxurious, that was $3,075 new. Appears and performs like new. Newly painted. Has excellent tires. Rebuilt and guaranteed. Has every conceivable accessory. Easy riding, easy handling, ideal for city use or long distance touring. $700.

JEWETT LATEST MODEL TOURING. Virtually new, having been used but very little. We doubt if an expert could distinguish it from new. Has Hartford shock absorbers, hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, balloon tires are practically new, and much other equipment. Has been checked mechanically and guaranteed by us. Peppy, economical, and a joy to operate. $950.

HUPMOBILE LATE COUPE, 4 PASS. Has seat covers, spotlight, automatic windshield cleaner, steering post lock, motometer, 5 wire wheels and excellent tires. Rebuilt to our rigid standard and guaranteed. Dependable, reliable transportation, rarely priced so low as this. $500.

JEWETT DE LUXE TOURING WITH $175 FULL VISION ENCLOSURE. Ideal for any season or weather condition. Paint, top and upholstery like new. Spare tire at left side. Has trunk, excellent tires, 2 bumpers, spotlight, everything complete. Rebuilt and guaranteed. $600.

PAIGE 6-70 SEDAN, 5 PASS., 4 DOOR Model with spare tire complete at either side. Refinished, renickeled, and in new car condition mechanically and physically. Upholstery immaculate. Tires excellent, trunk carrier, spotlight, auto. w. s. cleaner, etc. Guaranteed. $1,175.

1925 WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN. After receiving low mileage, traded in A1 condition. So good would pass for new on the floor. Has 5 perfect balloon tires, 2 bumpers, motometer, spotlight, etc. This is the 4-door model with leather back and carriage bows, and delivers at $1,800. Our price, $1,225.

PAIGE 6-75 SPORT PHAETON, 4 PASS. Different from any Paige Sport you have ever seen. Refinished light desert brown; renickeled. Top, upholstery and all details just like new. Has been through our shops and rebuilt to the minutest degree. Guaranteed. Try to match its value at $1,075.

1924 JEWETT DE LUXE SEDAN. Refinished Colonial Blue, with radiator nickeled, and with its disc wheels and complete equipment presents a very pleasing appearance. Has balloon type tires, spotlight, and lots of extras. Rebuilt and guaranteed. $925.

1924 BUICK COUPE. Finish and upholstery condition that of a new car. Has disc wheels, 6 excellent tires, 4-wheel brakes, 2 Ramspring bumpers, winterfront, spotlight, etc. Rebuilt by us and guaranteed. Will not be here 24 hours, so act at once! $975.

1924 OLDSMOBILE 6 CYL. SEDAN, 4 DOOR. Economical, smooth running six that represents a wonderful value at the price. Repainted, renickeled, and rebuilt in our shops. Disc wheels, spotlight, bumper, excellent tires, etc. Can be put into immediate service with no expense. $600.

JORDAN GREAT LINE 8 SEDAN, LATEST MODEL. This is the larger Jordan 8 cylinder car. Has had demonstrating service only and kept in topnotch condition. Refinished to look like new; beautiful green with gold striping. Has balloon tires, hydraulic 4 wheel brakes, and all accessories. Delivers for $3,350 new. Guaranteed and priced at $2,200.

JORDAN LINE 8 SEDAN. This car's condition does not warrant calling it a "used" car. It has been driven but a few miles and there is not a mar or blemish on it anywhere. In fact, its exterior, interior, and mechanical condition would lead you to believe it had never been driven a mile. Is most completely equipped and is ready for instant service. Your chance to own one of these snappy Jordans and save $400.

JORDAN LATE 6 CYL. 4 DOOR BROUGHAM. Newly painted Rolls-Royce Blue and rebuilt in our own shops, this late Jordan offers an investment opportunity difficult to duplicate; Has semi-balloon tires, spotlight, motometer; all extras and guaranteed mechanically; $1,100.

JORDAN TOURING, 1923, WITH WINTER ENCLOSURES. This perfectly balanced car rebuilt and refinished and offers the next owner thousands of miles of economical service and unusual comfort. Ideal for any season. Guaranteed. $750.

1925 MAXWELL SEDAN. Different from the ordinary in that it is specially painted and equipped. Has 5 virtually new balloon tires and all extras. Has nickeled radiator and finished in snappy Desert Tan with disc wheels in pyramid brown. 100% mechanically. See this at once! $750.

NASH "6" TOURING CAR. Difficult to describe this car in a newspaper ad in a way that will do it justice. Refinished in beautiful Copenhagen Blue, with coach work 100%. Smart appearing disc wheels, 2 bumpers, 5 good tires, etc. Could not be improved upon mechanically. $650.

STUDEBAKER SPECIAL TOURING, 5 PAS. Late model, repainted French Gray and without doubt snappiest looking Studebaker in Chicago. Fully equipped, disc wheels, excellent tires, and lots of extras. This particular car cost new $1,850; our price $650.

CADILLAC 8 TYPE 61 SPORT PHAETON. Has had low mileage and offers smart appearance, together with every comfort, such as gray finish, red wheels, Lovejoy shock absorbers, 2 bumpers, body bars, auto. w. s. cleaner, 2 cutouts, 2 spare tires, etc. Sound mechanically; $975.

Studebaker Sedan.

5 passenger, Light Six. About 15 months ago this car sold for over $1,700. It is today better mechanically and better looking than many new cars selling at over $1,000. Its finish is beautiful and shows that the car has been given exceptionally good care; no mars or scratches on the car anywhere. Its Chase mohair upholstery and general coachwork look brand new. The equipment includes a large heater, extra tire, bumpers, front and rear, large size motometer, etc. Reduced to $685.

Studebaker Sedan.

A few weeks ago this late Special Six Sedan was traded in to us by the wife of a prominent loop banker. The car was chauffeur driven and there is not a mar or scratch on the fenders or body and there is not a worn place in the upholstery. It looks beautiful. The engine is guaranteed to be in the finest of condition. There are many special extras which go with the car besides the regular standard equipment. This sedan, which cost over $2,800 without the extra equipment, is reduced to $985.

Studebaker Touring.

Popular Light Six with its blue finish which looks brand new. When you drive this easy handling, powerful little car you will appreciate its value. It is economical to operate and has a riding quality which will be appreciated immediately and more so after a 500 mile trip. Its top, upholstery, and curtains are perfect. Its engine has been corrected in our shop and is guaranteed. The tires are only slightly used. An ideal car with every essential extra. Reduced to $465.

Studebaker Sedan.

Famous Big Six, 7 passenger; looks new. Owned by an official of this organization; oil changed every 500 miles; has had monthly inspections, including lubrication service. The vital parts, including Timken bearings in the wheels and rear axle, have been corrected to assure perfect service. This powerful sedan, luxuriously appointed, cost over $3,000 less than sixteen months ago. Has a large trunk in rear, 6 extra good tires, large motometer, Biflex bumpers, special snubbers and other extra equipment. Reduced to $1,085.

Studebaker Coupe.

Special Six, four passenger, with a brand new lacquer finish of Brewster green. It is seldom that one of these special coupes is offered for sale at such a low price. This one presents an unusually attractive appearance. There is not a scratch on either the body or fenders. Its Chase mohair upholstery and interior appointments look brand new. The engine has been corrected and runs very quietly and smoothly. Reduced to $685.

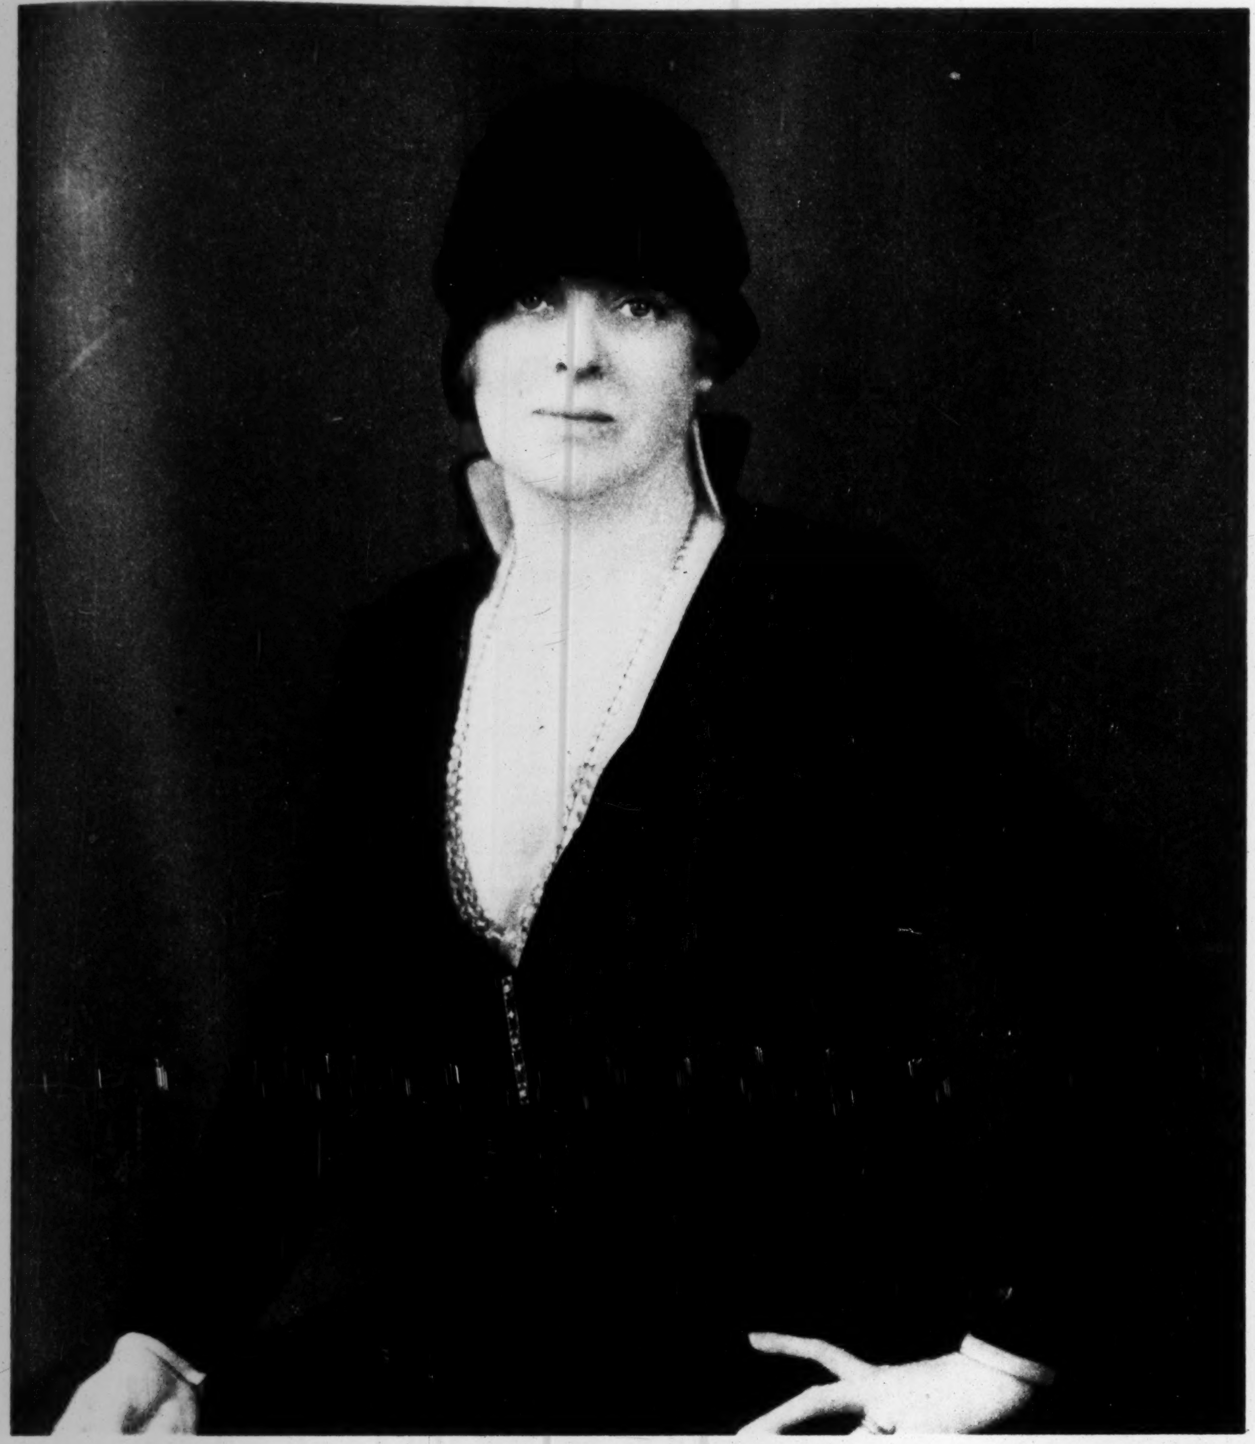
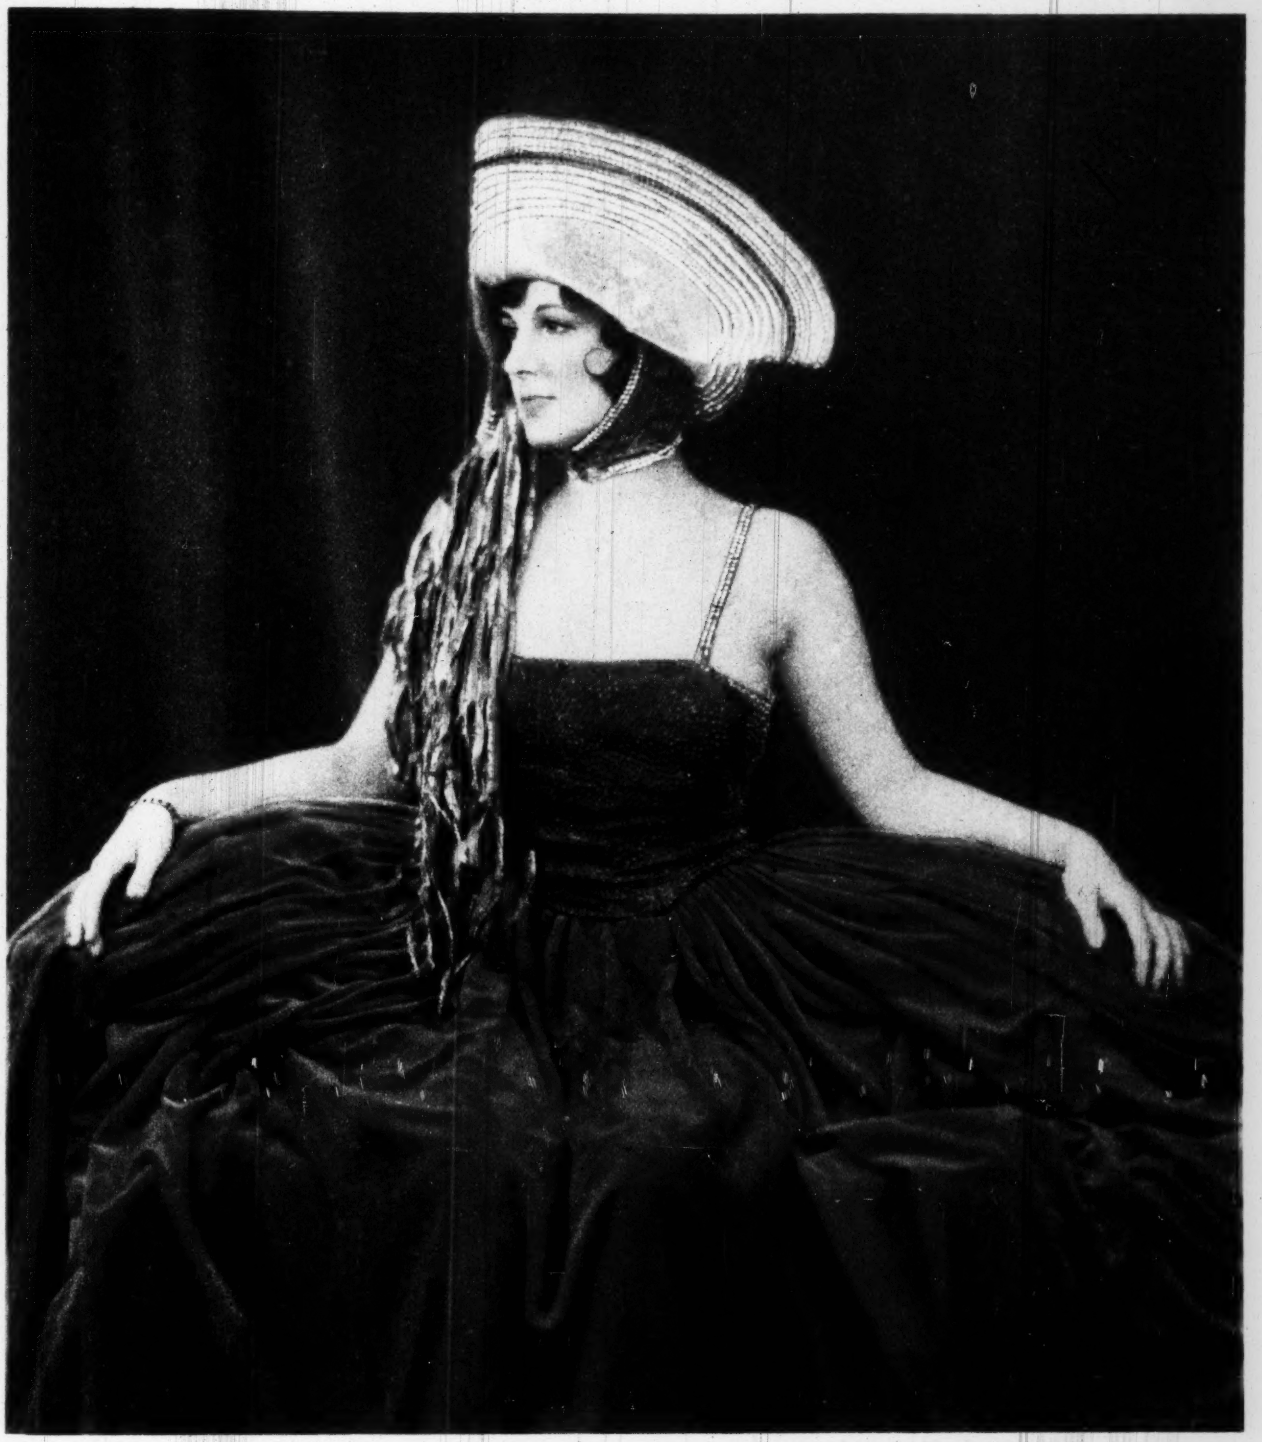
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

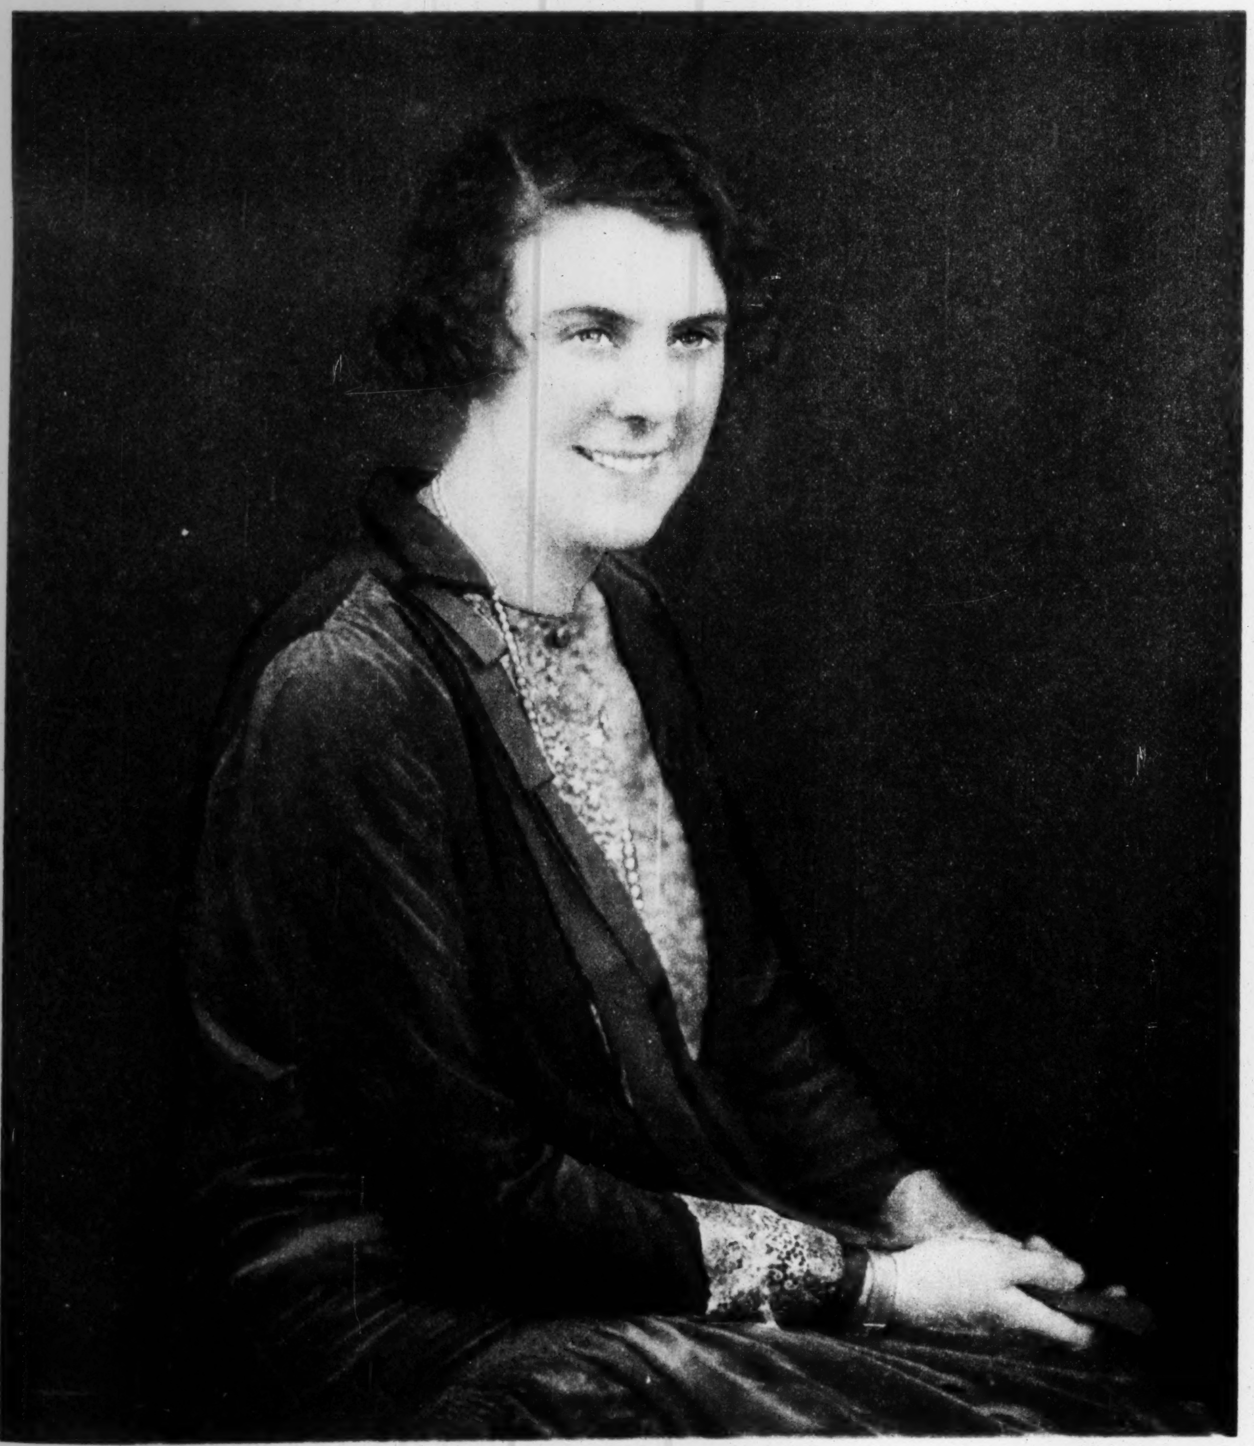
May 16, 1926



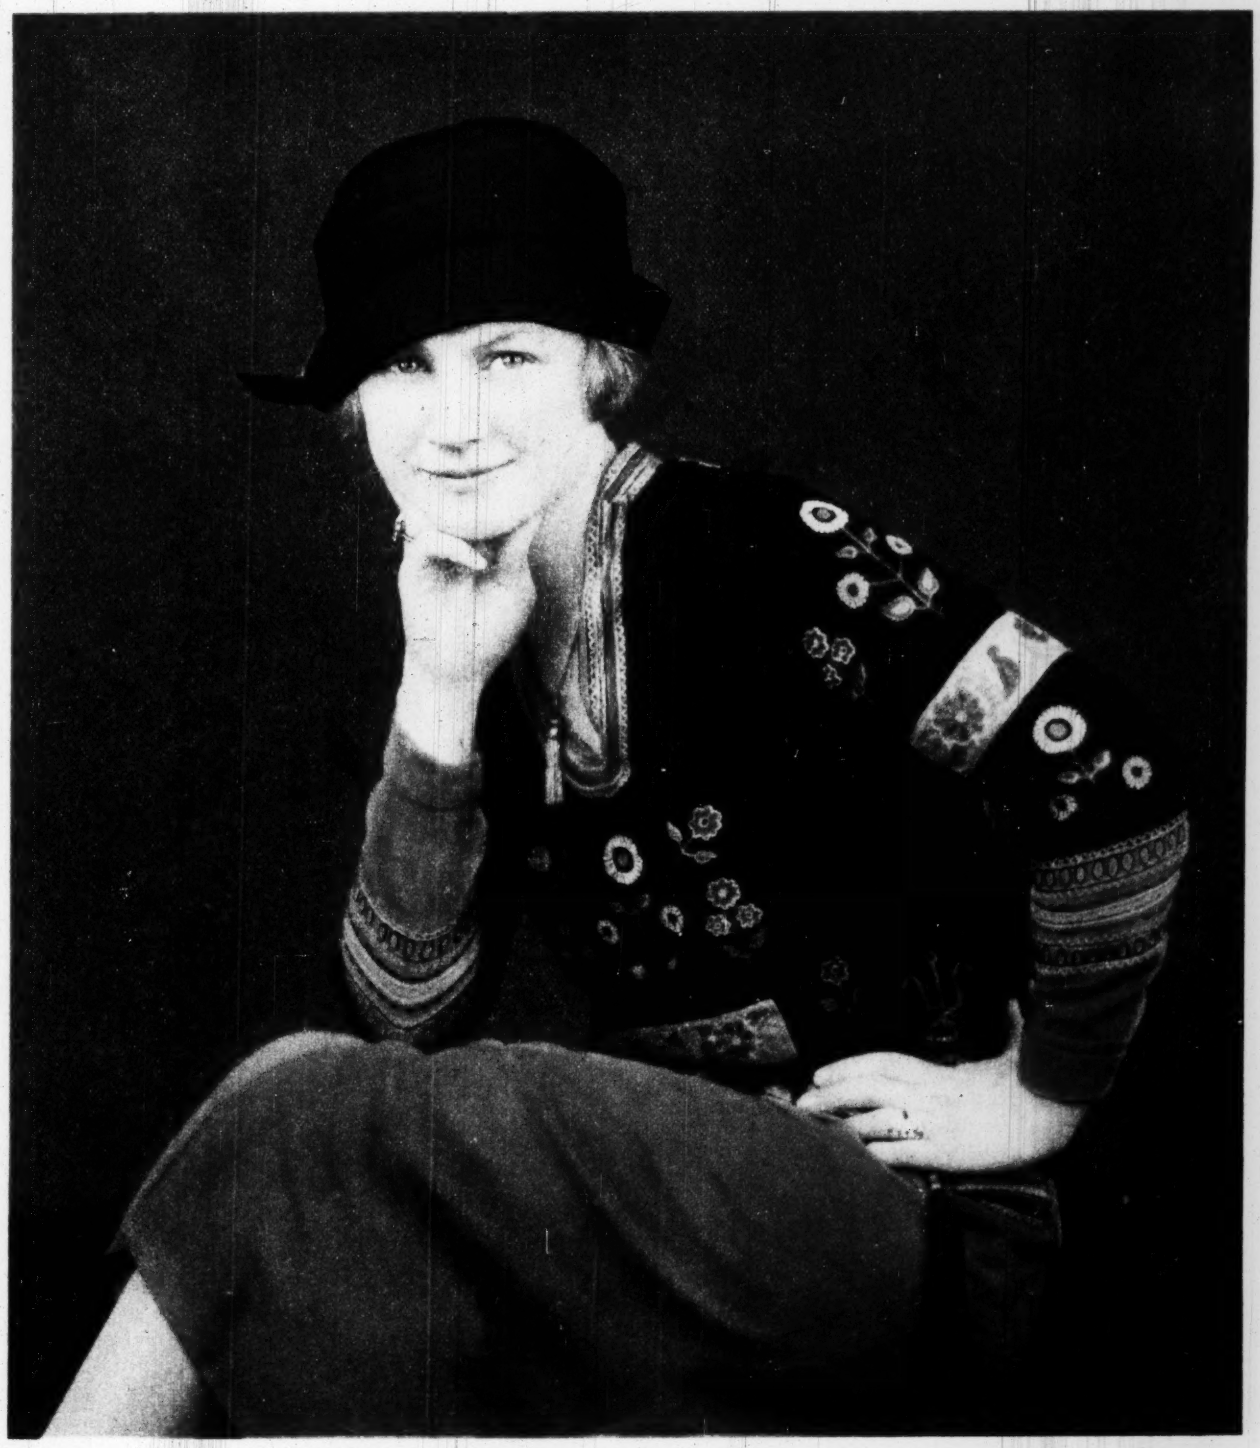
MISS MARY BOLAND has been giving her blonde and ample self all season in New York to "Cradle-Snatchers," a farce so wild that the English play-censor has refused to permit it to be acted in London.



MISS DOROTHY KNAPP is an unruffled figurante who has had more than any one girl's share of advertising this season as the prettiest woman on the New York stage. She is in Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

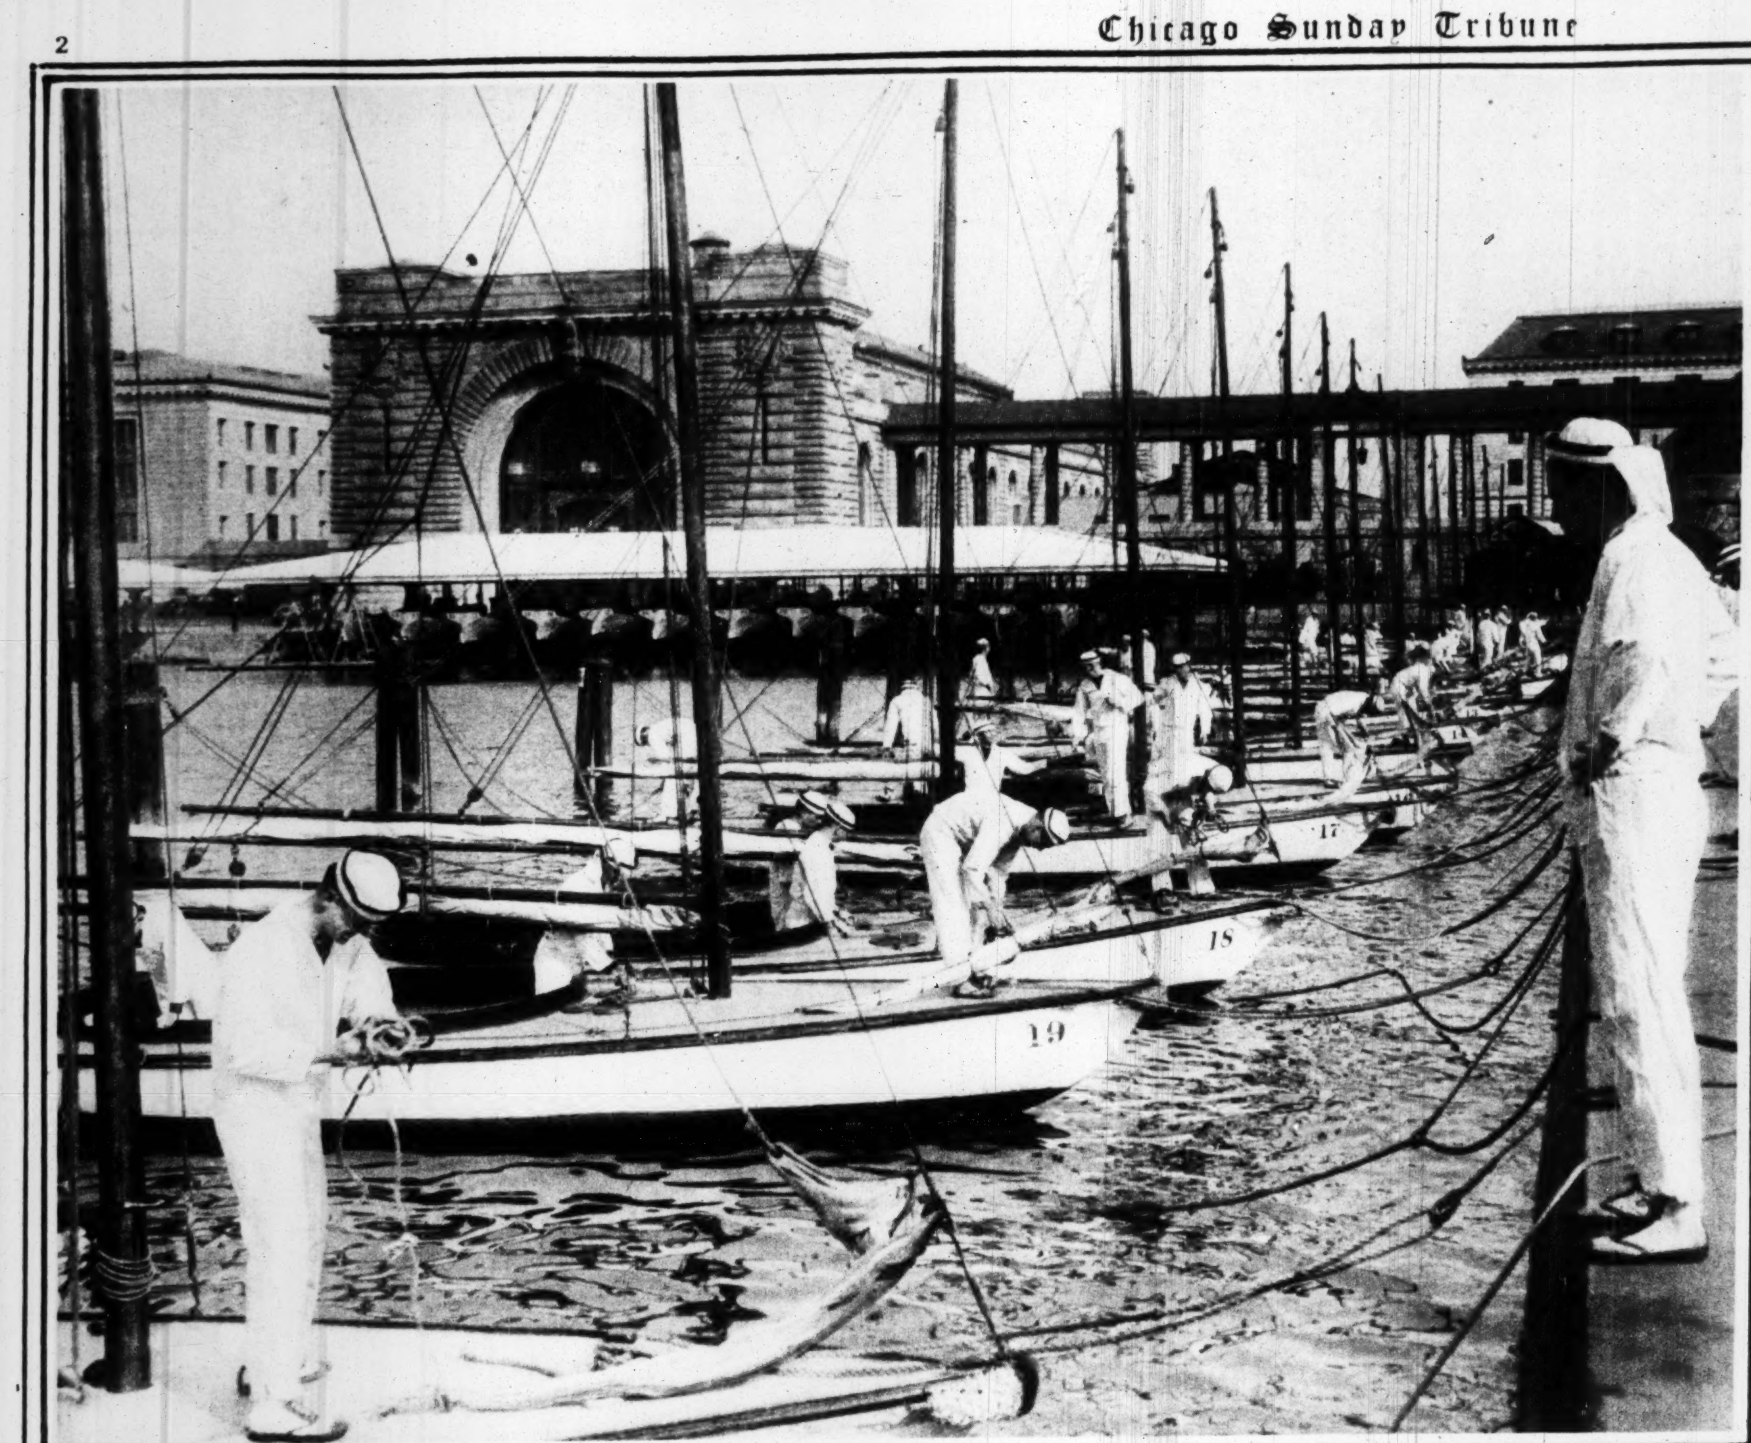


MISS CICELY COURTNEIDGE is Mrs. Jack Hulburt off the stage, and is her husband's co-star in the imported revue named "By-the-Way," a London success about which Mr. Donaghey has written informatively.

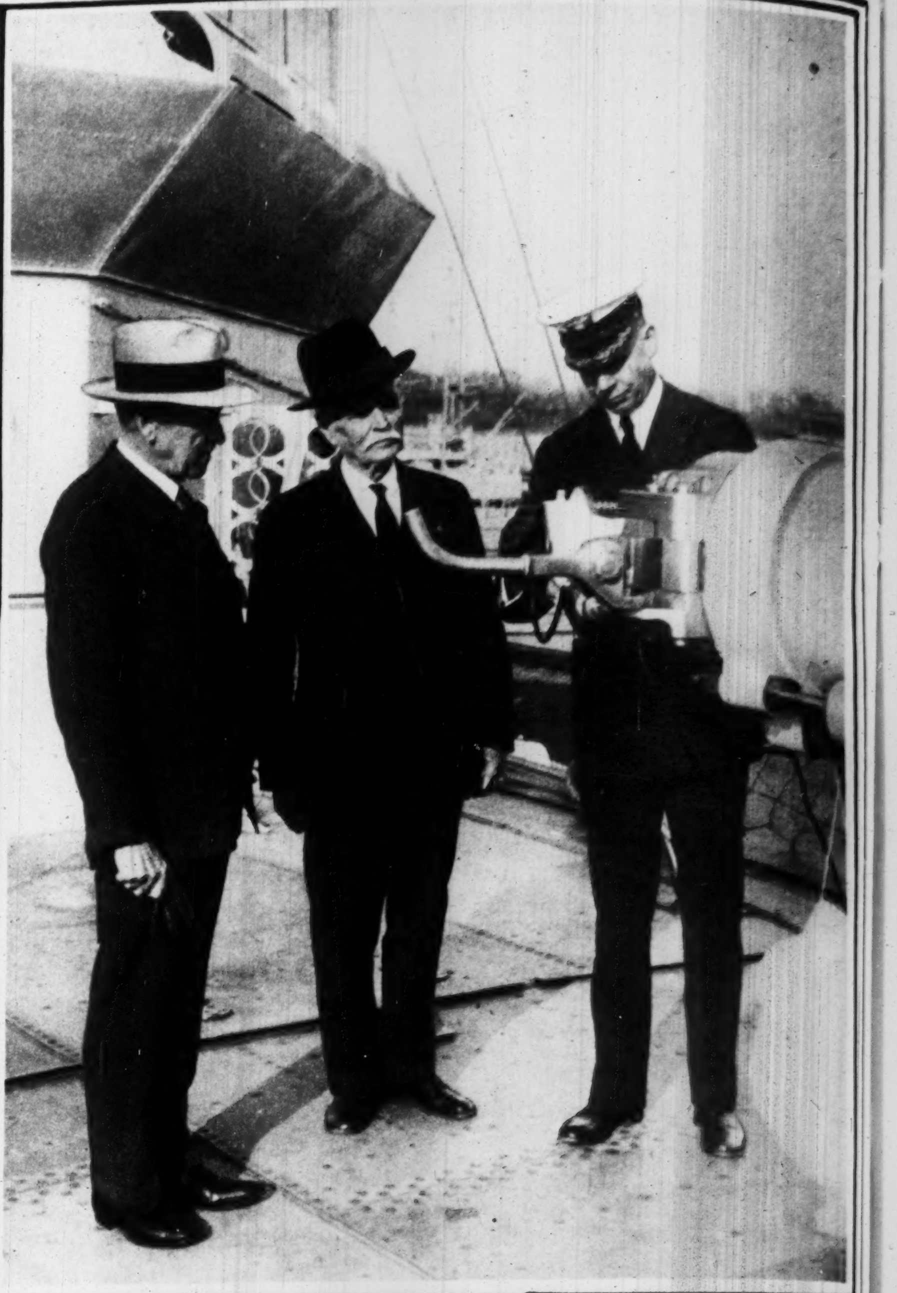


MISS QUEENIE SMITH is the daughter of the Hon. Sol Bloom, of the House of Representatives, and also the star of "Tip-Toes," a New York hit since January. She was in Chicago last year in "Be Yourself!"

(Color photos by Godfrey Lundberg.)



MAN O' WAR OR CATBOAT, it's all the same to Uncle Sam's sailors. These middies at Annapolis are trained to handle all manner of craft, from the smallest sort of tub to the biggest super-dreadnaught. The students get out on the water every day in this fleet of pups.



GRADS OF '61 AND '82 look things over at Annapolis with Commander W. L. Friedell. H. M. Hubbard of Des Moines, Ia., a graduate of 1882, and William W. Carnes of Florida, member of the class of 1861, are two of the men chosen by President Coolidge to report to Congress on the needs of the naval academy.

PUZZLE: FIND THE KING—George V. of England is here with a battalion of his Grenadier Guards, "the King's Own," in front of Windsor castle. Only men at least six feet two inches high are recruited for the guards. That makes the puzzle easy—King George is the smallish chap in the exact center of the front row.

(Photograph from Underwood & Underwood)

HERE'S KING GEORGE AGAIN, rushing ahead of Queen Mary to visit their new grandchild, the baby daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York. For the moment such disturbing thoughts as labor troubles in the kingdom were forgotten by the new grandfather. The Duke of York is the king's second son, and a twist of fate might some day bring this baby girl to the British throne.

THEY CAN'T REMEMBER THEIR WEDDING DATE, says Mindret Lord, scenario writer. But he and Marguerite Namara, formerly of the Chicago Civic opera, say they were married "in a little town near Paris some time last fall." What'll he do when it comes time to buy anniversary presents? Shortly before this marriage Mrs. Lord divorced Guy Bolton, noted playwright, in Paris. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

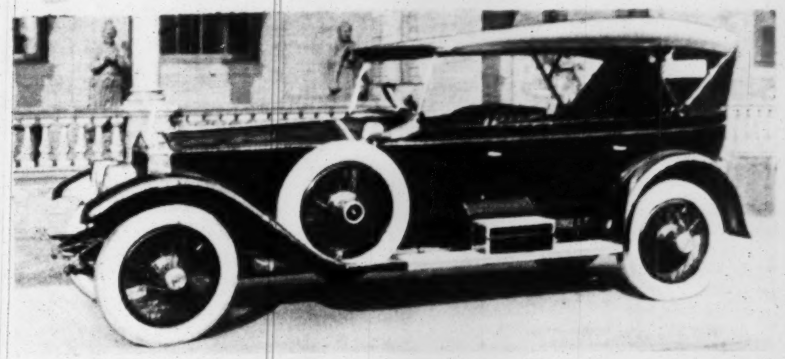
ROLLS-ROYCE

Motorists who appreciate Rolls-Royce performance and security can purchase a resale car at a saving of 30%



OFTEN, when you have seen a Rolls-Royce pass by, you have longed to own a car as fine. "Some day, I can afford one," you have said. That day is now. Your opportunity is here.

A number of Rolls-Royce cars are offered for resale in a variety of types of coach work. We know every detail of their mechanical history. Each car has been carefully examined and any part showing evidence of wear has been replaced. Consequently, these cars carry the same 3-year guarantee as new Rolls-Royce cars.

Here is assurance of the same luxurious and secure transportation that you purchase in a new Rolls-Royce; and the same freedom from mechanical ills. They will be painted and upholstered to your own specifications. These cars cannot be told from new automobiles.

OXFORD—7-passenger open model. A design most admirably expressing exceptional comfort and spaciousness in an open touring car. Price $9500.

Open models at $9500. Closed models at $10,500. The price includes complete Rolls-Royce accessories and new tires. Tax free. No delivery charges. Satisfactory terms can be arranged without expensive financing charges.

All Rolls-Royce owners, whether the car has been bought at resale or not, have access to the interested, helpful service of every member of our organization. The delivery of the car is the beginning, not the end, of our obligation. Direct works branches in every part of the United States and throughout the world.

You are invited to examine these cars and try them, or to write for a booklet which answers the questions many purchasers ask.

BILLY

derby-hatted, only to put

BILLY BEVAN is the droll fellow who gives us all so much joy in the Sennett comedies. Bulbous-nosed, derby-hatted, pop-eyed and heavily mustached, he has only to put in an appearance to get a laugh.

HARRY LANGDON AND JOAN CRAWFORD make an engaging team in "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," the latest Langdon comedy. This photograph could be labeled "Signs of Spring," for when you see a man and a damsel gazing into each other's eyes in the moon-dazed manner depicted in this picture, why—"then you know that spring is here."

THESE TRANSOM HOUNDS are Harrison Ford, Arthur Hoyt and Harry Myers as they appear in "Up in Mabel's Room." Up AT Mabel's Room—Yes?

LYA de PUTTI is the Hungarian screen star brought to this country by Paramount. Upon seeing her D. W. Griffith immediately chose her for the leading feminine role in his production, "Sorrows of Satan."

A welcome addition to your week-end market basket

THE Delicious Dozen! Twelve bottles of "Canada Dry" resting cozily in a small but substantial carton.

Twelve bottles waiting for you to call the sparkling bubbles forth to add a bit of health and cheer to luncheon and dinner.

To pour into the thin-edge glasses when entertaining! To serve to the children! To take with you on picnics and on motor trips! To bring relief from that mid-afternoon tiredness! To drink at bedtime when you feel the need of a refreshing little snack!

Just to have this Delicious Dozen in the pantry is an assurance that you will always have something distinctive to serve when good friends drop in unexpectedly or to vary the monotony of "just another meal" in your own immediate family.

You will find that "Canada Dry" is an especially good beverage for your home, because it is a real ginger ale, made from real Jamaica ginger, and it is one ginger ale that does not contain capsicum (red pepper) in any form.

For years and years it has been served in hospitals in Canada and it is now served in the leading hospitals in this country. Physicians actually prescribe it for their patients and it has been approved by The Tribune Institute and also by Dr. Wiley of the "Good Housekeeping" Bureau of Foods and Health. There could be no greater tribute to its purity and quality than that.

No other ginger ale will bring you the same refreshment because there is no other ginger ale like "Canada Dry." No other ginger ale is so good for you—so good for your children—so good for every occasion.

Keep it in mind, therefore, when you make up your next grocery order and include it in your list of week-end necessities. All "Canada Dry" dealers sell this Special Hostess Package of 12 bottles or will get it for you.

DR PRICE'S VANILLA

It's all vanilla —nothing else

LOOK at the label on a bottle of Dr. Price's Vanilla and you'll find these words, "Extract of true vanilla." That is your guarantee that Price's is true vanilla—and nothing else. Only the finest vanilla beans—the fruit of the vanilla vine—are used in its making. Then it passes through the slow, aged-in-the-wood process to develop its rare flavor and strength.

A bottle of Dr. Price's Vanilla costs more, but it's well worth the few extra cents because of its wonderful flavor and uniformity.

We will send, free of charge, an attractive recipe book, "Delicious Desserts and Candies," compiled by well-known cooking experts. Address the Price Flavoring Extract Company, Dept. C, Chicago, Ill.

Macaroon Ice Cream

1 quart milk; 1 tablespoon flour; ¾ cup sugar; 1 cup macaroons; ¼ teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon Dr. Price's Vanilla Extract; ½ teaspoon Dr. Price's Almond Extract; 1 egg. Dry, pound and measure macaroons. Mix flour, sugar and egg slightly beaten and milk gradually; cook in double boiler twenty minutes, stirring constantly at first. When cool, add salt, macaroons and Dr. Price's Extracts. Freeze.

Beauty adds Piquancy to Life!

TO live in this city—to be so near the salon of the greatest beauty-scientist in the world—and still to be lacking in the utmost beauty of face and complexion, is, frankly, deplorable!

The profound knowledge of MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN, who has devoted herself to facial beauty as a science, is easily available to you.

At her salon—you are ever welcome to a complete professional analysis of your individual skin needs. Specialized Valaze preparations and safe scientific facial treatments are provided for coarsened skin, drooping chin, puffy eyes, wrinkles, blackheads, enlarged pores, and all beauty-marring blemishes. Consultation and advice are without charge.

Special Helena Rubinstein creations to correct these beauty-marring conditions:

Blackheads—enlarged pores

VALAZE BLACKHEAD AND OPEN PORE PASTE — SPECIAL —This marvelous preparation washes away blackheads and all pore clogging impurities—refines the skin. 1.00, 2.00.

Lines — wrinkles — hollows

VALAZE GRECIAN ANTI-WRINKLE CREAM (Anthosoros)—richest of nourishing creams—supplies much-needed nutrition to the underlying tissues. Marvelous for smoothing out lines and crowsfeet, rounding out a hollow, emaciated appearance, and restoring youthful beauty to ageing hands or crinkled-looking eyelids. 1.75.

Sagging contours — double chin —puffy eyes

VALAZE ASTRINGENT ROMAN JELLY—an excellent muscle tightener. Patted in briskly, it strengthens and lifts the relaxed muscles and tissues; corrects the bagginess and restores the much desired firm, youthful contour 1.00

Oiliness and shiny nose

VALAZE LIQUIDINE—instantly removes shine and greasiness. Used two or three times daily, it frees the pores of excess secretions, corrects the oiliness—closes the pores—whitens and imparts a soft "mat-like" flattering finish. 1.50.

SPECIAL SUMMER AIDS to prevent tan, freckles, sunburn

VALAZE SUN AND WINDPROOF CREAM—prevents tan, freckles, sunburn and blisters by neutralizing the "burning" rays of the sun. Apply always before outdoor exposure. 1.00.

VALAZE SUNPROOF LIQUID POWDER—besides giving the skin a delightful finish, applied before exposure this powder will sunproof your skin against tan, freckles and sunburn. 1.50, 2.50.

"THREESTEPSTOBEAUTY"
—the ideal home treatment

VALAZE PASTEURIZED FACE CREAM—wonderful for cleansing—for molding out the "tired look" about eyes and forehead and for protecting the skin. Creates a youthful smoothness for all average skins and at the same time is the only cleansing cream equally beneficial to an oily, pimpled or acne-blemished skin. 1.00.

If your skin is inclined to be very dry, use instead Valaze Cleansing and Massage Cream. 75c, 1.25.

VALAZE BEAUTIFYING SKINFOOD—Helena Rubinstein's skin-clearing masterpiece. Whitens, purifies and refines the skin—removes sallowness, light freckles, darkened skin pigment of neck and throat. 1.00

VALAZE SKIN-TONING LOTION—closes pores, keeps the tissues youthfully firm—erases and prevents fine lines. 1.25.

The Ideal Finishing Touches

VALAZE COMPLEXION POWDER — for normal or oily skins, or VALAZE NOVENA POWDER—for dry skins—both fine, clingy, fragrant. 1.50, 3.00, 5.50.

VALAZE RED RASPBERRY ROUGE—the only authentic raspberry rouge. Rich, brilliant — becoming every type of skin. Compact 1.00; Rouge-en-Creme 1.00, 2.00, 5.00.

VALAZE CRUSHED ROSE LEAVES ROUGE—for the more conservative who desire the perfect natural make-up. Compact 1.00.

VALAZE RED GERANIUM ROUGE—new, vivacious, youthful—the most flattering shade for blondes. Compact 1.00, Rouge-en-Creme 1.00, 2.00, 5.00.

VALAZE LIPSTICKS—shades to match rouges. Ultra-smart. Remarkably adherent. 50c, 1.00.

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream is the modern way to make your teeth glisten gloriously. It will whiten them and bring out all their natural beauty. But even more important . . . it will help keep your teeth and gums healthy.

Colgate's penetrates every place where it is possible for germs and food particles to collect. It washes them away, leaving your teeth and gums absolutely clean. The warm, dark interior of your mouth is an ideal breeding place for germs. Colgate's literally goes right into their hiding places and removes those causes of tooth decay.

That's why more Chicagoans brush their teeth with Colgate's than with any other tooth paste. And you'll like its taste.

"AFTER FOUR YEARS' SERVICE in Cuba and the Philippine Islands, I suffered greatly from indigestion. Nothing I took gave real relief. A friend suggested I take a couple of Fleischmann's Yeast cakes daily. I did. In about a month the attacks of indigestion had disappeared. I enjoyed my food. Since then I have had wonderful health and a clear complexion—all due to Fleischmann's Yeast."

"LAST DECEMBER, there appeared a blotch of little blisters at one corner of my mouth. They gradually spread on my face and were very embarrassing. I tried different remedies but nothing seemed to help. I decided to try Fleischmann's Yeast. I have been taking two cakes of Yeast regularly each day for the past four months. I can truthfully say that, aside from clearing up the pimples, Yeast has improved my health in general."

Gertrude Scudder, Detroit, Mich.

"MY LITTLE SON Harry was very frail. In addition he was afflicted with boils. The suffering was intense. We decided to feed him Fleischmann's Yeast. We gave him nothing else. Certainly Yeast is entitled to all credit for his recovery. Harry has never had a recurrence of the trouble. He eats well, and his bowels are regular. We are thankful for the benefits he received."

"'YOU LOOK SO MUCH BETTER than we, who have had vacations, do,' remarked several of my teachers today. 'Is it the arduous work of summer school or prosperity that agrees with you?' The truth is that Fleischmann's Yeast has cured the constipation that sapped my strength for so long. To-day I feel like a new man."

New Lives for Old . . .

Vigorous, vital—freed from constipation, skin and stomach ills—through one simple food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, nibbled from the cake. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-760, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

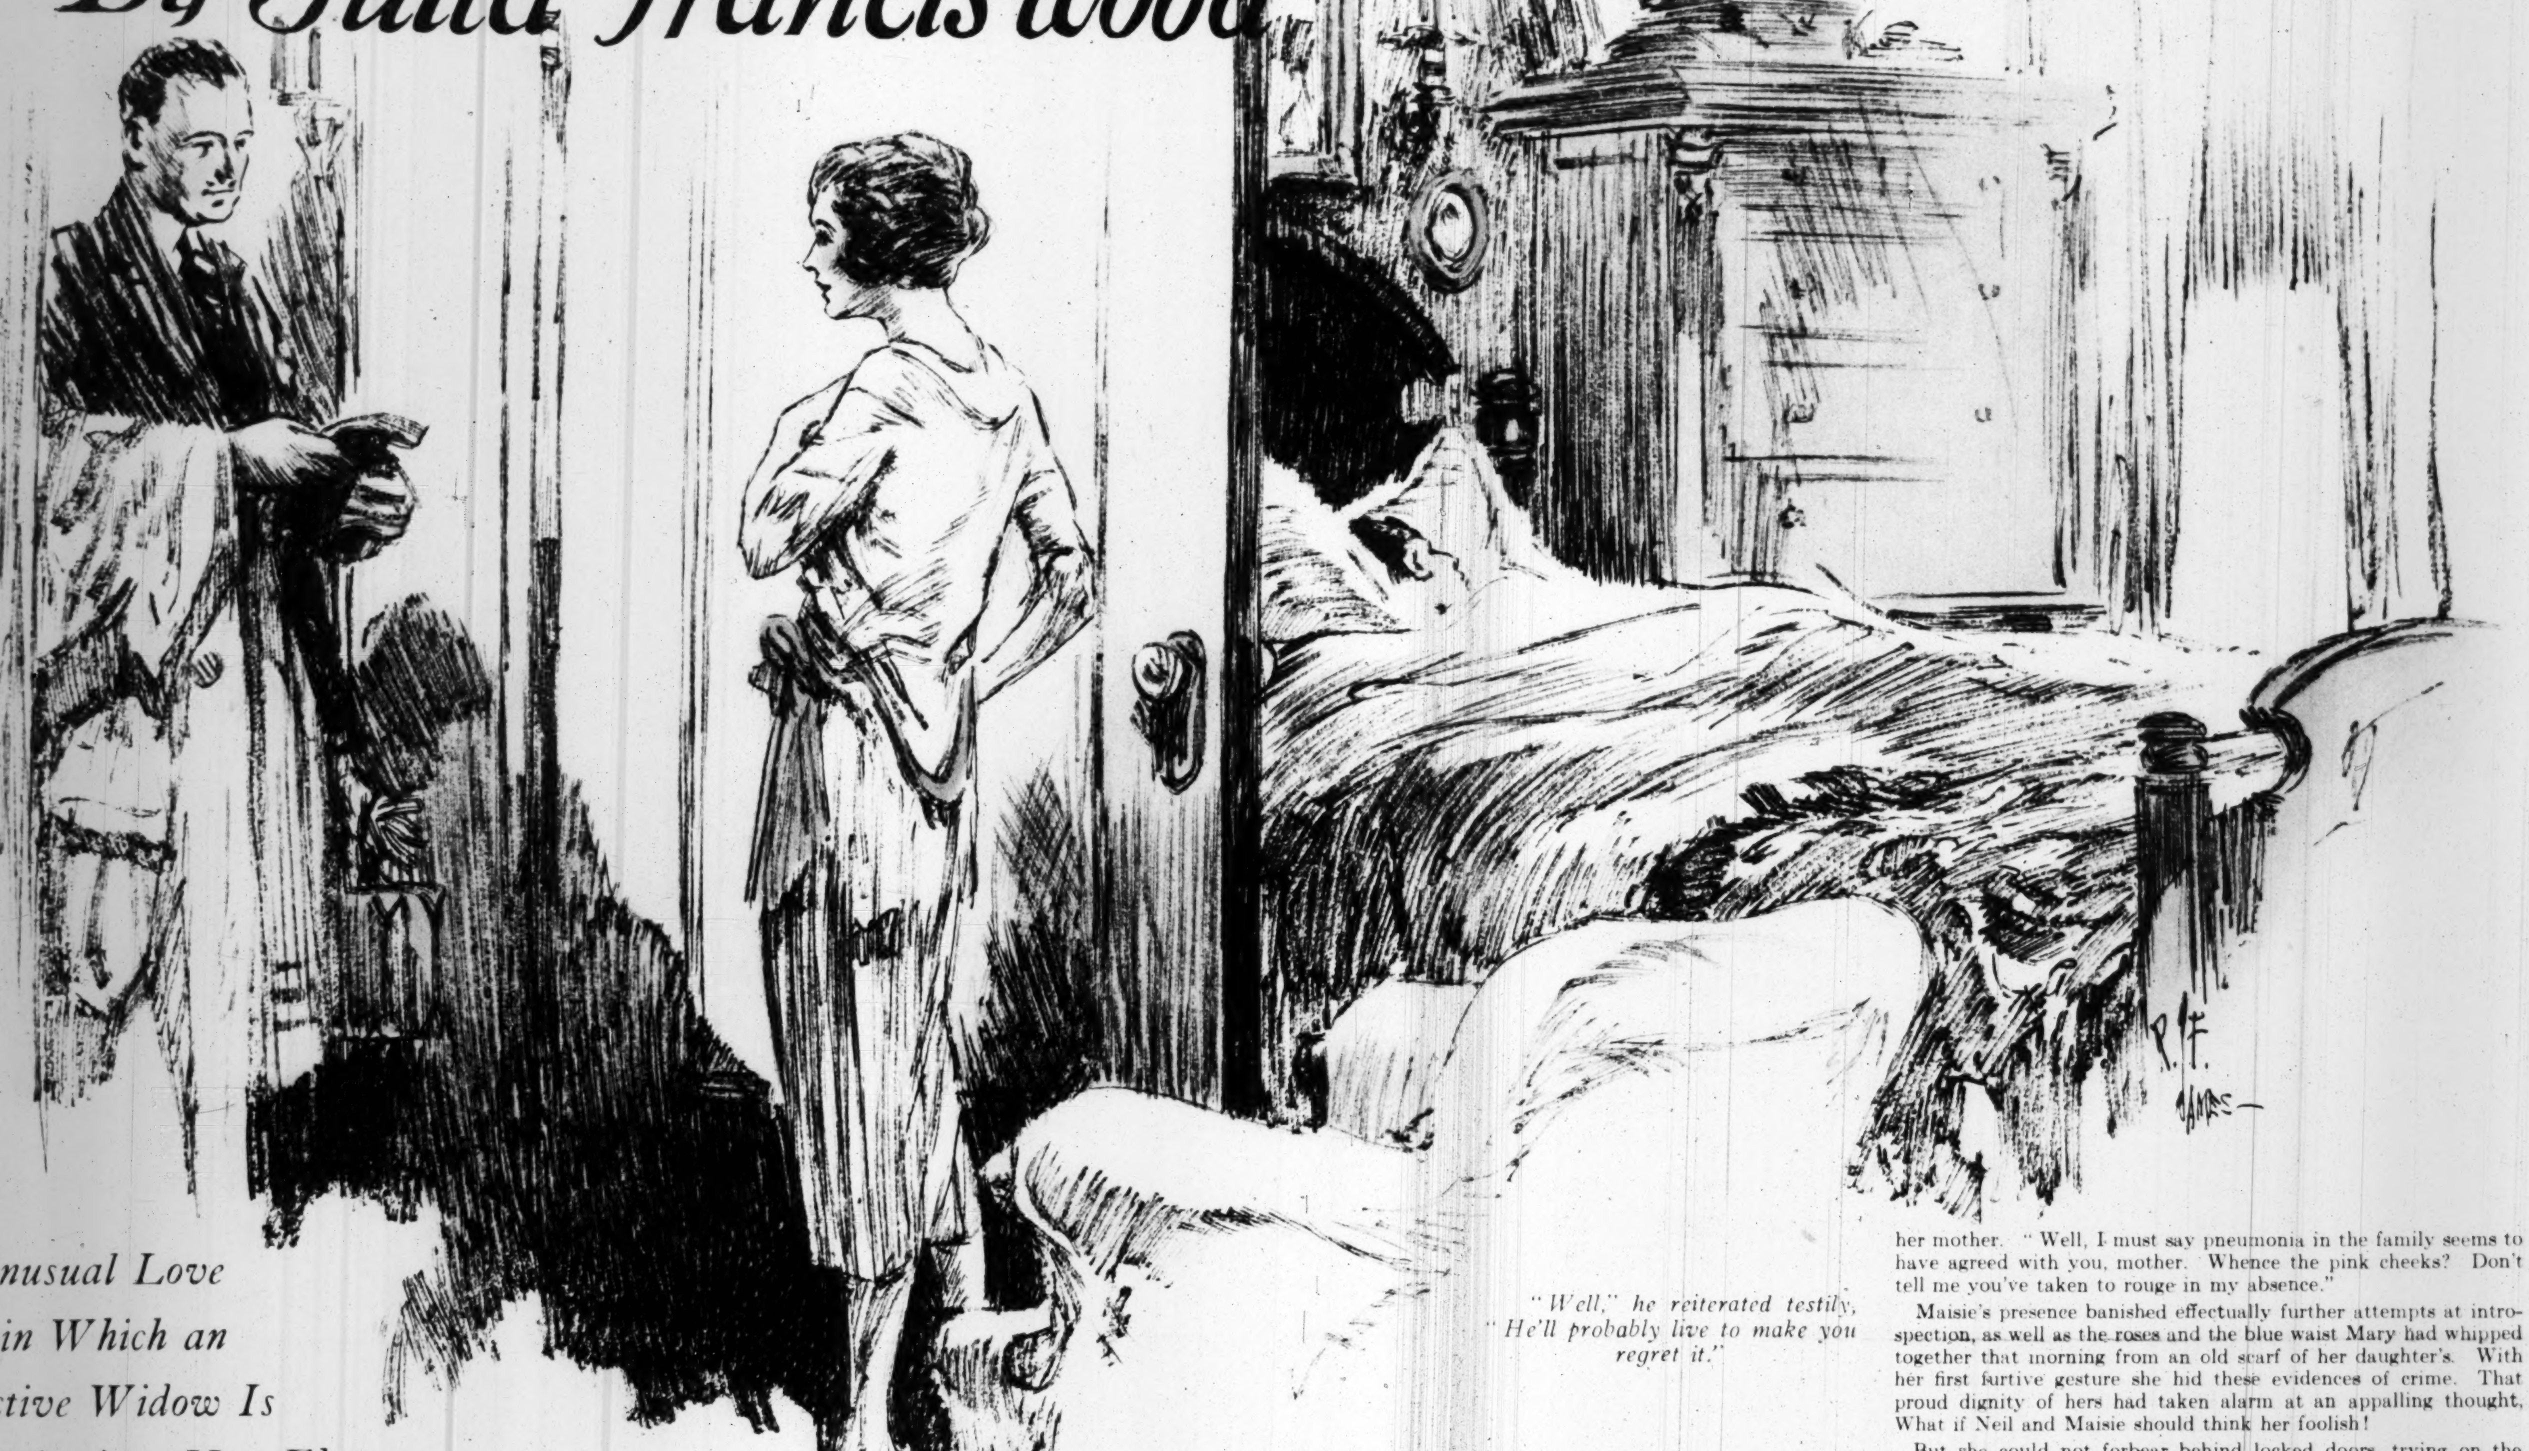
The FORGOTTEN ALTAR

By Julia Francis Wood



"Well," he reiterated testily, "He'll probably live to make you regret it."

An Unusual Love Story in Which an Attractive Widow Is Pitted Against Her Flapper Daughter in a Game of Hearts

ALWAYS Mary McAlpin dreaded Christmas. To others it might bring peace and good will, as ministers, magazines, newspapers, and shop windows united in reiterating, but to her for weeks beforehand it meant rising earlier in the morning to a grayer dawn, straining tired eyes later into the night; conditions more feverish, patrons more unreasonable, results more unsatisfactory. If Mary had been asked to epitomize Yuletide in one sentence she would have answered: "A new dress for every woman in New York except myself, which absolutely must be finished two days earlier than is humanly possible."

The physical labor was not the hardest part; Mary was used to that. But every year the same familiar heartache stabbed her at the thought of the two expectant stockings she would so have loved to cram with toys. It had been hopeless trying to camouflage their painful deficiencies ever since Maisie on the seventh Christmas had remarked cynically to Neil: "'Tain't no use gettin' 'cited 'bout those bulges. They ain't never nuthin' but an ole orange, and an ole apple, and some ole nuts."

If Maisie had scorned these at seven, each year had found her increasingly difficult to satisfy. At ten she had demanded of Santa Claus silk stockings, at fifteen a gold vanity box and crêpe de chine underwear, and now at nineteen was modestly requesting a millionaire husband. There were to be no apples, oranges, or nuts on Maisie's menu if she could help it; she was out for caviar and terrapin.

Yes, there was no doubt Maisie was a problem at Christmas, as she was three hundred and sixty-four other days in the year. In the rare moments allowed her for meditation Mary ransacked perplexedly her forgotten girlhood, trying to remember if she, too, had made then such insatiable demands on life. Was it because she had been the eldest of a large family, she wondered, that she had from childhood shouldered unquestioningly the burdens of existence? Life had been to her always serious, earnest, a thing of toil and stress, a battle to be fought in uncomplaining silence. Yet she had been a prettier girl than Maisie. If she had flung off responsibilities as resolutely as her daughter, had reached out such covetous hands toward luxury and pleasure, would they have been her portion instead of this ceaseless, bitter struggle? And, if so, would it have been right that they should be?

Never had a Christmas heralded a blacker approach than that never to be forgotten one. There had been glimmers of brightness the three preceding years, after Mrs. Witherspoon had taken the McAlpin family, willy-nilly, under her aggressive wing, had bullied Mary into better quarters, and had ruthlessly banished the "c" from her hitherto inoffensive name.

"It's got to be French. You've good ideas, Mrs. McAlpin, and you're the only conscientious dressmaker in New York, but you can't hope to make any real money in this burg unless you put it over that you're French. Clothes and Paris have just got to be married in New York City."

Maisie had taken to French extraction like a duck to water, but only the lure of an extra year in high school for Neil had bent Mary to Mrs. Witherspoon's will. She still flushed to the alias, and even for Neil would never lie when forced into the open by some too curious questioner.

"No; I was born in Brooklyn," she would respond, leaving her to make what inferences she would.

Mrs. Witherspoon's philosophy, however, had justified itself. The circle of Mary's customers was steadily widening—customers with richer materials, fatter pocketbooks, more exacting tempers. Just as the yoke had seemed to be lifting ever so slightly from her chafed shoulders Fate dealt two rapid blows in quick succession: Maisie flung away her first good position to escort to Florida Mrs. Vandier, Mary's most temperamental patron; hard upon her desertion of her mother at Mary's busiest season came Neil's sudden and alarming illness. He had caught cold delivering belated gowns in a heavy snowstorm. Two days later the doctor gave a terrifying verdict of pneumonia.

OUTSIDE, holly wreaths began to exhibit their cheerful circles on street corners and behind window panes; the stores became more seductive and more crowded; throngs jostled in and out of them, forcing merry, chattering paths up and down aisles and avenues; children grew daily more saucer eyed, and even the most blasé grownups caught something of the excitement and suspense of the season. But in the little Lexington avenue apartment, it might have been July or March for all its inmates knew. Neil tossed and moaned in delirium, and Mary, ashen, silent, and efficient, carried out the peremptory orders of the formidable doctor from Park avenue whom she had called in her despair. Under her composed exterior raged a tempest of revolt and despair. For the first time since her burdened childhood she had lost the steadfast courage with which unflinchingly she had faced life's cruelties.

"Not Neil!" she bombarded heaven in ceaseless, anguished appeal. "Dear God, not Neil! I have borne so much. That I cannot bear!"

The eleventh day of the siege the great doctor, who had worked as tirelessly over the case as if Neil had been lying behind a brownstone front, remarked casually as he struggled into his overcoat:

"It's all right. He'll get well."

Bereft of speech, Mary could only look up at him, her hand at her throat. He was a distinguished looking man in his middle forties, with hard, tired eyes and a distinctly cynical twist to a handsome mouth. To Mary he had assumed suddenly the aspect and beneficence of a god.

"Yes, that's what I said—'well,'" he reiterated testily. "He'll probably live to make you regret it—most of them do—but, such as it is, I make you a present of the news."

She lifted to him a face so luminous with joy that he stared back at her curiously through the opened door.

"Better not give you information like that very often," he remarked. "You'll be needing a chaperon when you go out."

All week Mary went about her work in a quiet ecstasy of happiness; unfinished gowns, unpaid bills, Maisie's problem clamored for attention in vain. Neil was going to get well, and nothing else mattered.

The second week of convalescence, however, the old familiar anxieties crept into consciousness. The doctor had said that Neil needed now only good nursing, but he still continued his daily visits. She accosted him one evening on the subject of his bill, noting with troubled eyes the opulence exuding from his fur lined overcoat.

"Perhaps it isn't fair to let you come so often, Dr. Sutherland, without telling you that I'm afraid it's going to take a long time to finish paying your bill."

"Fortunately I have a roof over my head and the coal's in for the winter," he returned dryly. "I think I can manage to worry along for some time without that bill. Forget it. And I shall keep on coming—unless you turn me out."

"Turn you out—after what you have done for Neil!" Mary groped for words to meet this extraordinary statement.

"He must be really interested in Neil," she reflected happily after he had gone. Who, indeed, wouldn't be?

But, strangely enough, the doctor evinced no desire to discuss his protégé. Even when he knew that Neil was out he popped in, in his brusque, disconcerting way. This time he suggested a drive to Mary.

"Nonsense," he retorted irritably to her astonished refusal. "Tell your client you have to go get some more chenille, or bombazine, or whatever you're using on her cursed dress. Don't you ever play, woman?"

She considered this a moment with her usual seriousness. "There is no time for play," she said. "I have my children to think of."

"Suppose you think of yourself for a change," he suggested, and came a step nearer to her in the dim little hall. "Do you know that you're a very baffling proposition?" he continued, with his strange, disturbing gaze bent down on her. "I can't diagnose you at all. What's under that stillness of yours, that remoteness? Don't you know that you're too young a woman to shut life out this way? Is it possible that you don't know—don't care—that you could be a beautiful woman if you wanted to? Why do you wear that eternal black? You ought to wear blue—periwinkle blue—the color of your eyes. Put it on to please me."

And as she still gazed at him, stricken speechless by these amazing words, he came closer still, caught her to him with sudden roughness, and put his lips to hers.

Before she had quite realized what had happened she had wrenched herself free and had stepped back, shaken and bewildered. He made no move to recapture her.

"I shall be here tomorrow evening—Christmas eve, isn't it?" he remarked, as if nothing at all had happened. "Hope you'll have something in my stocking for me."

With that he had gone, leaving her more agitated than she had ever been in her life before.

With his kiss, his words, something within her had leaped startlingly to life. What it was she did not yet know. But, facing her mirror with flaming cheeks and eyes, she did know that what he had said was true: she could be beautiful. With the knowledge a host of vague, strange, alarming desires surged through her heart, held out avid hands to the warmth, the color and brightness she had never before dreamed of claiming from life.

THAT unworldliness which Maisie so frequently chided kept her at first from remembering what might lay behind that kiss for herself, for the children. Her beauty had been too delicate, too easily blurred, to make much of an appeal in the environment in which it had been cast. It needed a discerning eye to read its possibilities. Even so, there had been more than one who had asked to fill John McAlpin's place. Mary had never reached the point of defining her action to any of these aspirants. Her preliminary test, "What kind of a father would he make to the children?" had never before been successfully passed. With Dr. Sutherland in that rôle, dazzled visions began to assail her of Neil at college, of Maisie in the atmosphere she craved. She was free for once to search her own heart. But the writing there she found too hurried, too illegible to read at that moment. Nothing in John's decorous courtship had prepared her for this chaos of emotions in which she found herself plunged. She could not even tell whether that unbelievable kiss had attracted or repelled her, whether she was longing or dreading for tomorrow night to come.

She was still more uncertain when early the next morning, to her relief after Neil had gone, came an armful of such roses as she had never seen before outside of a florist's window. There was a note with them in the bold hand which had so far indited for her only prescriptions.

"Wear these for me tonight. What are you going to put in my stocking?"

What indeed? Mary McAlpin was the last who could tell him.

A still more startling Christmas gift appeared in the afternoon when Maisie strolled in jauntily from Florida.

"Couldn't stand that boresome old hag a moment longer," she announced. "Expected me to be glued to her side day and night, listening eternally to her woes. Got so she even took her meals in her room. Hel—peach of a way to see Florida," she substituted a different word as a delicate tribute to her first day with her mother. "Well, I must say pneumonia in the family seems to have agreed with you, mother. Whence the pink cheeks? Don't tell me you've taken to rouge in my absence."

Maisie's presence banished effectually further attempts at introspection, as well as the roses and the blue waist Mary had whipped together that morning from an old scarf of her daughter's. With her first furtive gesture she hid these evidences of crime. That proud dignity of hers had taken alarm at an appalling thought, What if Neil and Maisie should think her foolish!

But she could not forbear behind locked doors, trying on the waist. It was not the periwinkle blue the doctor had prescribed but blue enough to deepen her eyes and to lift several years from her shadowed face. Looking at herself, Mary felt again that baffling, tingling sensation of power, of beckoning adventure, of eagerness to live.

OUTWARDLY she went about the intervening hours until evening with her cool remoteness untouched. Only she knew that her heart pounded at every unexpected footstep. When, however, he came, measured, assured, she fled to her own room and stood leaning against the door, trying in that last moment of reprieve to decide how she was to meet him, what she was to say.

It was Maisie, as usual, who determined her course. Ten minutes after Dr. Sutherland's arrival, just as Mary with shaking fingers was slipping off her black waist, Maisie precipitated herself into the room. For once she regarded her mother with wholly approving eyes.

"For the love of Mike, mother, is Mrs. Johnson right? Is that doctor person in there really the Park avenue Sutherland?"

At Mary's assent she executed an excited pas seul in the middle of the room.

"I certainly hand it to you," she congratulated her parent with unwonted graciousness. "To think that you, of all people in this world, alone and single handed, could lasso anything like that! Distinguished—wads of money (did you note that limousine)—O, boy!—good looking, and, though ancient, well preserved. I don't believe he's out of his forties, do you? To think that I've been combing Florida for him, and all the time here he was sitting in Neil's room. If I'd known that the world would have witnessed the most beautiful case of sisterly devotion on record. I'd have boarded the train the hour Neil was taken sick."

"What do you mean?" Mary asked her faintly. Already she had a sure and terrible prescience what Maisie was meaning.

"I mean that's the kind of husband I've been looking for." Nobody could ever excuse Maisie of beating about the bush. "Now I've met him, the next thing is to get him. Prepare to be shocked, mother. There's going to be some heavy vamping in this apartment tonight."

After she had gone Mary examined unflinchingly the new angle to which the situation had incredibly veered. The sharpness of her pain bewildered her. She did not love this man; the children would still have their glowing future.

White with shame, she traced steadfastly to its ignoble source that flame of fierce and resentful bitterness which had seared her with Maisie's words. It lay in the thrill of that blazing moment which had burned its way across the grayness of her life, intolerably drab now in contrast. She was no better then, she told herself, than these middle aged Circes she had fitted so often, listening with inward scorn as they gossiped with one another of flirtations, suitors, rendezvous. "Had they nothing better to think of at their age?" she had wondered. "Couldn't they find excitement enough in their children without looking for them in these silly tributes to their vanity?"

And now she, worse than they, was grudging passionately the future she had so often prayed might be granted Maisie. She fell on her knees beside the bed, burying her face in her arms. But Maisie, with her youth, her sparkle, her ruthlessness, might have a dozen chances to achieve that future; she would have only the one.

Finally she rose and grave, colorless, clad in her most uncompromising black gown, went in to greet Dr. Sutherland. She had not yet conquered the storm raging within her, but she had had no doubt from the beginning as to what she should do. The hideousness of rivalry with her own daughter could not be contemplated for a moment, and she knew only too well that Maisie was not one to relinquish what she wanted without a struggle. Mary was withdrawing proudly from an untenable position, but she could not yet achieve the gladness with which, in her code, Maisie's mother should have withdrawn.

Dr. Sutherland had viewed her entrance with an indignant start.

Lovely Estelle Clark

CAPTIVATING METRO STAR

Tells how to Keep Your Skin soft, smooth and Lovely

"Immaculate cleansing is the most important step in keeping a beautiful complexion", says Miss Clark. "I wouldn't think of letting my head touch the pillow until I've literally bathed my face, neck and arms with the delightful Black and White Cleansing Cream, which I've been using ever since I found so many of my friends are enthusiastic about it. This soft, melty cream leaves your skin free to recuperate its beauty overnight, and keeps it always sparklingly fresh and glowing."

Because it is made from lighter oils than cold cream, the pure, exquisitely textured Black and White Cleansing Cream will not overload the pores and make your complexion oily, like most cold creams do. It melts at a touch, goes gently into the pores and glands without rubbing, and coaxes out the impurities which clog or irritate your skin and cause blackheads, coarse pores or other blemishes. Girls who make its use a habit are always sure of a silky smooth and transparently fair complexion.

The high quality and excellence of Black and White Cleansing Cream and the other Black and White Beauty Creations make them the marvel of satisfied users everywhere. More than 80,000 dealers all over America are recommending and selling them at the low, popular 50c and 25c prices.

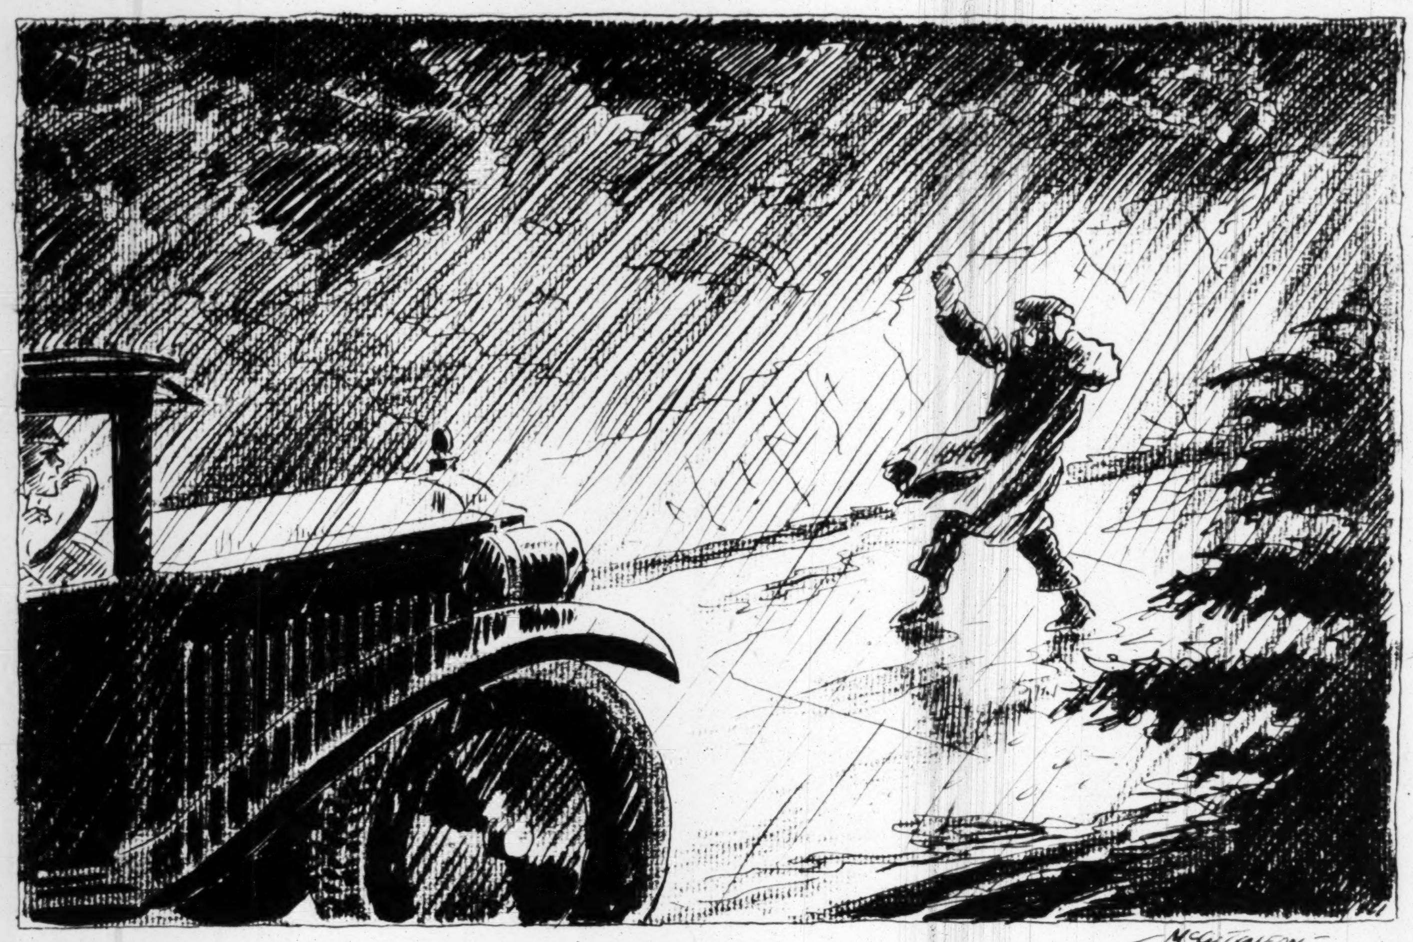
CROSSED WIRES BY John T. McCutcheon



A man appeared, waving his arms.

THE STORY SO FAR:

A WEALTHY American family, the Craytons, are in Paris. A worthless Frenchman, Pierre de Barsac, tries to win Virginia, the daughter, seeing the dollar sign glittering before him. The mother is willing, but Mr. Crayton is suspicious. To divert her he arranges to have another young man, an American he had met in Paris, sail back on the boat with them.

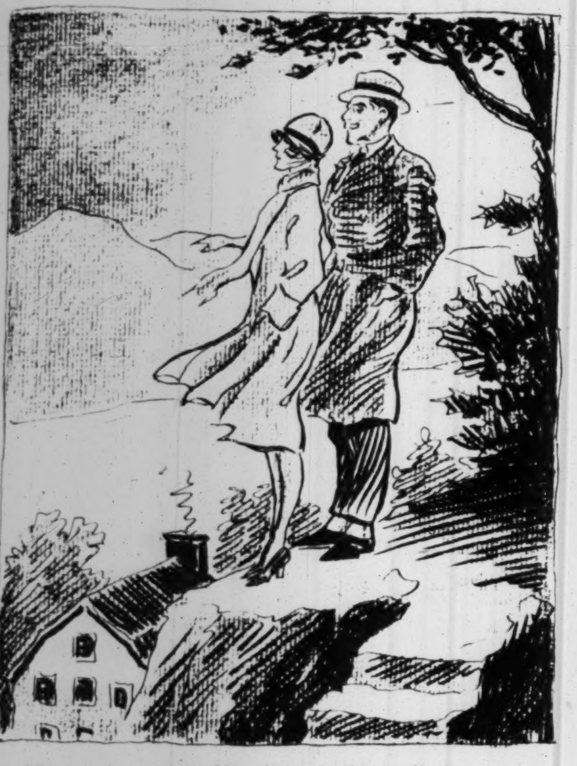
BEFORE the voyage is over this youth's mysterious manner has intrigued Virginia. But she is shocked when she learns Rasher has been a truck driver. Her father offers him a job as a chauffeur, and he accepts. He visits his lawyer and finds he is wealthier than ever. His real name is Bacon, but he prefers to travel incognito, being fond of adventure. De Barsac sees Virginia and is invited to motor home with them. She has another shock when she sees Rasher in the driver's seat. Pausing for lunch at a village, Rasher notices three suspicious looking characters eyeing them.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

A Meeting in the Storm.

THE Craytons, with Count de Barsac, were given a table overlooking a pleasant garden. Celeste, the maid, sat nearby, while Rasher, the chauffeur, took a place which commanded a view of the cars parked out in the roadway. Again his attention was idly drawn to the three men he had observed a few minutes before. They were still talking together and seemed to be arguing. At times they cast sidelong glances at the windows of the hotel. He then saw them place extra tins of gasoline in their car, after which, to his surprise, they started away, not in the direction of New York, where they said they were bound, but in the opposite direction.

"That's a little queer," thought Rasher. "I wonder what these birds are up to." As he ate his luncheon he was preoccupied and thoughtful. He never cast a glance at the Craytons or Celeste and was not aware that the latter was regarding him with anything but a friendly attention.



The count and Virginia had strolled away.

Her efforts to involve him in a flirtation which would cheapen him in Miss Crayton's eyes had so far met with no success. These efforts had so signally failed that he had not even suggested that they sit together at luncheon, which would have been the polite and sociable thing to do. Consequently she was piqued. Her black eyes snapped as she looked at him.

If he was conscious of the lively chatter at the Crayton table, he gave no sign. The count was now in his element—at a table with responsive women, and his remarks and comments were gay and amusing. In Virginia's eyes he had suddenly acquired a romantic glamour since he had related during the morning ride some of his courageous performances in the war.

She had often heard her young men friends at home tell of their war experiences, and for some reason these had slightly bored her. Perhaps she knew these boys too well to see them as heroes.

But with this attractive and polished Frenchman, equally brilliant in a drawing room or a trench, it was different. She could see him, in his horizon blue, unmoved and debonair, amidst the shriek of shells and the din of battle.

After the luncheon there was some delay before the party resumed its way. The Count and Virginia had strolled off to the top of a neighboring hill, from which a fine view of the river was obtainable. Rasher was busy studying his road map, speculating upon the time required to reach their next stop, a hundred and eighty miles farther along. It would be after dark, he thought, as he regarded with some impatience the leisurely course of the Count and Miss Crayton as they sauntered down the hill.

IT was after three when the car pulled out. The sky was overcast and there was a feel of impending rain in the air. Off to the southwest heavy black clouds were massing. In the back seat Mrs. Crayton was showing signs of nervousness.

"I do hope it isn't going to rain," she sighed. "I dread motoring in a rainstorm—the roads are so slippery. I do hope this new chauffeur is a careful one." Mrs. Crayton, having kept to her stateroom during the recent voyage, had not met Rasher, and for some reason, perhaps unknown to herself, Virginia had not told her mother that this new chauffeur was the same young man who had shared the table with her father and herself during that voyage.

"He seems careful enough," Virginia said listlessly. Her eyes, beneath slightly contracted brows, were fixed upon the banks of approaching storm clouds. "At any rate, we'll soon know."

"I do hope we get to our next stop before dark," Mrs. Crayton said, anxiously. "There are so many motor holdups these days."

"Holdups?" asked the Count. "I'm afraid I do not understand."

"Robberies—highway robberies," explained Mrs. Crayton, her voice tense. "You have no idea how these crimes have increased. The papers are full of them."

Virginia laughed reassuringly

"Well," she said, "we have a brave gentleman to protect us. I hope you have your trusty soixante quinze with you, Count. This morning while you slept, mother dear, the Count told me such thrilling stories about his experiences in the war. He will protect us from these bold, bad highwaymen."

"Have no fear, my dear ladies," assured the Count, gallantly, as he tapped his pocket. "I never go motoring without my pistol."

The rain now began falling, first in scattered drops and then in heavy gusts. A high wind had sprung up and the first flash of lightning lit up the sky. Mrs. Crayton drew her wraps closer about her, and moaned complainingly.

In the meantime the car continued smoothly at a uniform speed, never varying, and only at long intervals were other cars encountered. The lightning, now frequent, had increased in violence and the driving rain beat against the windows with whiplike blasts. There was something reassuring, thought Virginia, in the immobile form of the man at the wheel, so like the helmsman of a gallant ship fighting her way through a gale.

Presently the car slowed down for the descent of a hill, at the bottom of which a flash of lightning revealed a warning sign, "Danger! Sharp curve. Go slow." The road turned abruptly to the right, beyond which turning a steep slope upward appeared.

As Rasher threw the clutch into third speed, there suddenly appeared a man in the roadway ahead, waving his arms. Throwing out the clutch and jamming down his brakes, Rasher brought the Crayton car to a sudden stop. As the man, heavily muffled in a raincoat and a dripping cap pulled down over his eyes, approached the Crayton car, Rasher recognized him as one of the three men he had seen at their last stopping place.

Rasher sat where he could see the car.

THE FORGOTTEN ALTAR - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - By Julia Francis Wood

"It was very sweet of you to acquiesce so gracefully in my suggestions," he remarked grimly to her in the dining room, where he had followed her. "I infer that my humble roses did not find favor in your eyes."

"It was very kind of you to send them," Mary returned evenly. "But, of course, I could not wear them. I am too old for blue waists and red roses, Dr. Sutherland."

"It's easy to believe that tonight," the doctor struck home with brutality. "But there have been days when you've——" he took a step toward her as he had the night before in the hall.

She made no move to evade him, but her quietness, the remoteness he had challenged, checked him more effectually than any outcry could have done.

"You're an extraordinary woman," he told her, glowering down at her with evident discomfiture. "A queer anachronism in the twentieth century. But all right, all right. Stay in your damned little Victorian corner if you want to, knitting by the fire with a cap on your head before you're forty. You'll regret it when it's too late."

She was still standing motionless where he had left her when he reappeared in the doorway.

"Don't you know, Mrs. Sphinx, you're a half century behind the times—acting like this? Nobody believes any more in this sacrifice business. That altar you're worshiping was abandoned decades ago. Where've you ever gotten wearing yourself out for those children of yours—and for your husband before them probably—and your father and mother before him, I'll bet my hat. Catch up with the twentieth century and get something out of life for yourself."

"I couldn't get any pleasure out of anything," she replied, more to these new, tormenting desires than to her companion, "if it hurt my children."

"Would it hurt them," he demanded practically, "if you wore a blue waist—and my roses—and tried to cheer up a lonely old codger who hasn't any fireside of his own?"

IT was very hard to resist that unexpected appeal—in the face, too, of what he had done for her boy. But she stood firm.

"Maisie can cheer you up much better than I," she returned coldly. "I am too busy, I am afraid."

Maisie, it was fully evident from the first evening, was more than willing to assume that task. It was even harder than Mary had expected to remain in her corner as she watched her daughter descend gayly to the doctor's limousine Christmas afternoon en route to the matinée.

Once Mary would have welcomed the quiet afternoon before her as a rare chance to attack unfinished odds and ends or a still rarer chance to read and to reflect. Today found her too restless even for work, her lifetime ally. She flung on her hat and coat in desperation and set forth to wrest peace, if she might, from the outdoor world, bleak as it was.

All the Christmas cheer was bottled securely behind holly-hung windows; not a hint of it in the lowering sky, the unkind wind. She was glad it was unkind; it suited her mood. The gay, reckless, cynical, pleasure mad twentieth century, which she had thought barred out of her quiet life, had her out of its corner at last, tormenting her with a sense of frustration, mocking those obsolete slogans of Duty and Self-Sacrifice to which she had paid such honorable allegiance, shouting into her horrified ears its triumphant battle cry of individualism and of her right to live. Her one chance against Maisie's many, she kept saying to herself. She had done wrong not to seize it. She should have explained to Maisie that very first minute. It was not yet too late. There had been a too ostentatious indifference behind the doctor's smile today; she was not yet a cipher in his life. She could strike again that spark which had flamed for one momentous instant in the hall. Maisie was not wholly without her fine moments; she could be trusted to understand, Mary contended vehemently against her sick certitude that Maisie could not.

The children had all their lives before them; she had never yet begun to live. What did one gain by sacrifice on sacrifice on sacrifice? Surely she herself was a warning of the futility of struggle and abnegation. What had she to show for it all? Only vain withered offerings on an altar abandoned and forgotten.

Yet if she were to turn away from it—she had a sudden sick vision of herself, like Maisie, clutching, fighting for happiness at any cost; of a world of men and women trampling each other down, each for himself. No, no, they might deride her altar as they would—surely it was better than that. Maisie's generation might refuse to light its sacred fires; her own generation might forswear them; but for those few who still believed there could be no forsaking of them. And if they were worth lighting at all, she saw with new vision, the torch must be carried proudly, triumphantly, not by crushed and embittered victims, but by victors, glorying in a chance for greatness.

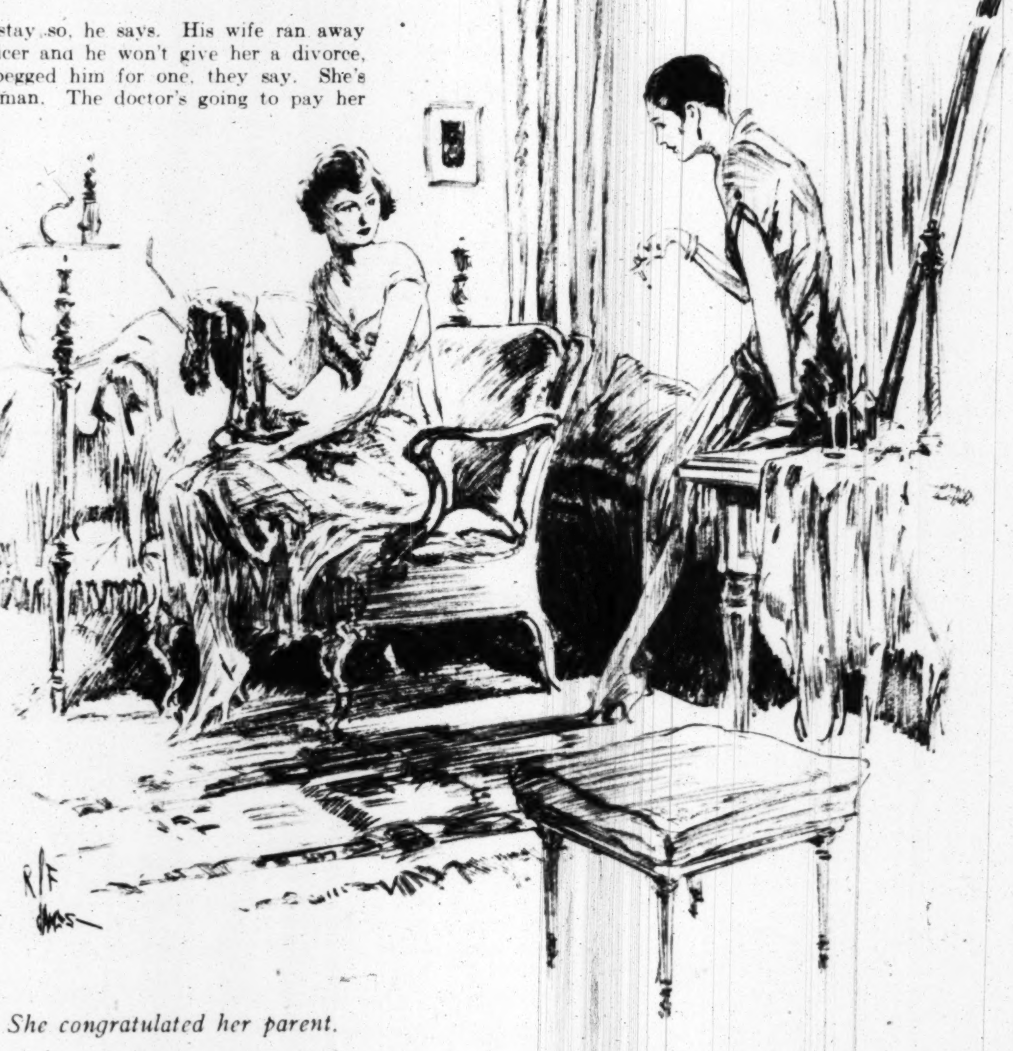
SHE returned so uplifted with this viewpoint that she could smile with unaffected pleasure upon the doctor's unflagging attentions to Maisie; so uplifted that she could even meet dauntlessly Mrs. Johnson's dreadful news, devastating to her new hopes.

"I wouldn't let Maisie play around the way she's doing with that doctor, Madame Malpin. You know, of course, he's married."

Madame Malpin's look of horror was all Mrs. Johnson had anticipated.

"Married and going to stay so, he says. His wife ran away years ago with a naval officer and he won't give her a divorce, though she's begged and begged him for one, they say. She's still living with the other man. The doctor's going to pay her back, Mrs. Reynolds—that's his housekeeper—heard him say once, if it takes him to the end of his life—her and any other woman he could hurt, into the bargain. His women patients are always getting crazy about him, Mrs. Reynolds says, and he throws 'em down like a ton of bricks. She's heard him say the only way you can hurt women is through their vanity."

Through Mary McAlpin's complex feminine heart flashed a spark of irrepressible pride that he had not been able to do that at least to one woman. It was quenched in a moment in the thought of what this revelation must mean to Maisie.



She congratulated her parent.

Maisie, however, as usual remained mistress of the situation, when her mother had summoned sufficient courage to tell her what she had learned.

"Have you just heard that?" Maisie queried, continuing with steady fingers to manipulate her curling iron. "I found it out two days after I met him."

"And have been accepting his attentions just the same?"

"Now, look here," Maisie whirled vehemently around upon her. "Supposing you let me manage this little affair, mother. I'm going to marry him. Do you hear me? I'm going to marry him, but I've got to go at it in my own way, and that won't be yours, needless to say. He's going to want me so bad before he gets through with me that he'll be willing to divorce fifty wives to get me. As yet he doesn't know that, but he's going to if I have to live with him first to make him. You just wait. And while you're waiting, don't talk any more about it. I won't hear another word."

Useless, indeed, to add another word, her mother knew, when Maisie was in that mood. Useless also to try to appeal to a man who loved to hurt women. She dared not unburden her heart even to Neil.

In the midst of her anguished perplexity she opened a box in the closet and came unexpectedly upon the blue waist the doctor had prescribed what seemed a century ago.

A long time she stood staring down at it. Then she lifted it from its wrappings.

She was wearing it when Dr. Sutherland appeared that evening. She did not look up from her work, and sensed rather than saw his start of surprise.

"What!" he demanded. "Can it be that the priestess has doffed the vestal garments—played hookey from the altar?"

Always slow of speech, Mary could find no words for repartee. To add to the bitterness of her humiliation, she could feel a hot blush flaming over her face and neck. She did not know whether it was generosity or guile which made him drop suddenly his bantering tone.

"Some fresh air goes with that prescription of the blue waist," he suggested rather hurriedly. "How about a ride, tonight?"

As she rose in mute acquiescence he called back to the gay greeting Maisie had halloed from the dining room: "I'm taking your mother out for a little spin. You children ought to see that she gets out more. She can't go on like this forever."

MAISIE was waiting for her mother when she got back, nearly two hours later, from her ride. The doctor had left her at the door with a curt good-night—had not even shaken hands. Maisie followed her ominously into her room and shut the door.

"Listen here, mother," she began, "if you've been talking about me to Dr. Sutherland——"

"I haven't," Mary assured her simply. She sank into a chair, suddenly conscious of immense fatigue.

"What in heck did you go out with him for, then?" Maisie demanded blankly.

"Dr. Sutherland is very kind," her mother evaded, amazed at this unexpected skill in deception. "He saw I was at the end of my rope. He used to ask me sometimes to ride—before you came back—when he saw I was tired out."

But Maisie was not yet fully satisfied with the situation. "What did you talk about?" she catechized.

"Dogs chiefly, I think."

"'Dogs!'" Maisie exploded. "Gosh! Must have been a scintillating conversation, I'll say, seeing you can hardly tell a bulldog from a Pomeranian. Look here, mother, you certainly aren't going to tell me that you went out riding to talk about dogs with a man you've been warning me about——"

"If it's safe for you to go with him, Maisie, surely it should be safe for your mother," Mary reminded her, with the quiet dignity that could check temporarily even her stormy daughter.

Disconcertingly, dogs had really been the chief subject of conversation during the ride. When they had climbed into the doctor's car she had laid upon the hidden altar the pride she had guarded jealously for so many years. What else she was to be called upon to offer she did not yet know. There were limits to sacrifice, even where Maisie was concerned. She realized poignantly how much of cleverness and finesse the situation demanded and how illy fitted she was for it—at any time—now above all when she was so desperately tired. In the afternoon it had seemed fairly easy to fence with the doctor's attentions, to hold him successfully at bay until she could bring home to Maisie, through his attitude toward her mother, what manner of man he was. Now, however, that she had actually started down this strange, devious road, her courage was failing her. She groped piteously for gayety, lightness of touch, and could only sit silent, sick at heart, waiting wretchedly for the unwelcome attentions her presence there was inviting. When he leaned over and pulled an extra robe over her shoulders her heart stood still.

Until then they had driven almost in silence. When she had recovered from that interlude of terror he had been talking for several moments about "Captain." It took her some time to grasp who "Captain" was. Some confederate in crime, she thought at first—until it developed that Captain had an astonishing propensity, which no punishment could curb, for chasing cats.

HER last thought, when she dropped off at last into troubled slumber, was of burning self-scorn that she could ever have fatuously imagined her poor worn remnant of beauty could sidetrack any man's interest from Maisie's riotous youth.

The next morning, however, Maisie had had plenty of time to reach the office when Dr. Sutherland called over the telephone, nor did he waste a moment in inquiries for her.

"It's one January day in a lifetime," he informed Mary. "I'm leaving all my patients to die and you leave yours without clothes and let's take a day off, for once. It'll be an investment in health—really."

This time she climbed into the roadster with less trepidation. It would surely be hard for the most sinister of men to harbor evil intentions at such an hour, on such a day, in this white, snow-clad world, which was sparkling and glinting and winking back at them like a million diamonds gone mad. She even laughed back at it like a delighted child as they sped through the intoxicating air.

"Do you know," the doctor commented, "that is the very first time I have ever heard you laugh. You smile, but you never laugh. Life ought to hold more laughter for you."

Then she remembered why she was there, and the gayety left her heart. She tried her best to counterfeit it, at first because it was necessary to her rôle, later because, enemy as he was, she could not somehow bear to dampen the boyish lightheartedness of her companion's mood. He had lost his caustic bitterness of speech and look, and with it a dozen years. She had to steel herself against the charm of his friendliness with the remembrance that it was thus villains must be wont to mask their designs.

Toward noon the doctor turned from the highway and they plunged into a maze of cross-country side roads, rolling in at length through high gates and descending from the car at the entrance of what looked like a frozen little wood.

"It's a shooting lodge I belong to," he explained. "Thought you'd like it better than a roadhouse or a country club."

She followed him up a winding path through a miniature shrouded forest of scrub oak and birches to a rustic looking bungalow. Outside it was of pioneer severity; inside, the long, low living room was aglow with comfort and cheer, though it was preëminently a man's room. Antlers branched from above the huge fireplace; weapons and trophies were the only bric-à-brac; the huge, comfortable chairs were essentially masculine. Mary sank to one of them while the doctor gave orders for luncheon to a silent servitor who had mysteriously appeared. Again she was conscious of that overpowering fatigue, and roused herself gallantly to combat this unexpected enemy who was threatening to frustrate her plot.

They ate lunch at a small table by a great window, alone in the silent room. Outside lay a silent world, wide sheets of snow stretching down to a baby lake fringed by the baby forest. Mary felt no fear, only an infinite sadness. She was having a glimpse of what life might mean if one could be entitled to golden days like this, even only an occasional one, without this never lifting burden of anxiety and suspense—or with some one who might share it.

As if in answer to her longing, the doctor leaned across the table and put his strong hand on hers.

"Can't you hand over a few of those worries to me?" he demanded startlingly. "I'd like more than anything in the world to help carry them. And my shoulders are mighty broad."

She smiled at him bravely. It would be disastrous to have this moment come when Maisie could not reap the benefit of it; on the other hand, she must not alienate his interest.

"I haven't any, any more," she asserted, "now that you've made Neil well."

"I don't believe it," he told her bluntly. "Why will you persistently keep me at arm's length, Mary? Look here!" He jumped to his feet, motioned her masterfully to a chair by the fireplace, seated himself opposite her. "You've got to listen to me," he commanded. "I'm going to begin at the very beginning."

THEN with rough, vivid strokes he made live before her a boy who had been neglected by a mother who cared only for pleasure; lonely days away at school, lonelier vacations. The boy became a man whose wife ran away with his best friend; she left behind her a little lame youngster who died with no mother at his bedside.

"You can see I haven't been trained to a very lively appreciation of your sex. I was down on all of 'em—until I met you.'

His crisp voice softened. Mary sat very still. She had entirely forgotten Maisie.

"From the very first I felt you were different. I'd seen plenty of mothers devoted to sick children—it wasn't that. But there was a kind of nobility about you, something gallant and heroic and yet so awfully sweet. If you hadn't been so darned attractive, your life wouldn't have been so unusual. It's easy for plain women to be good. I kept watching and studying you, and I found I was beginning to believe in you—to admire you. And I didn't want to—you see, that would be admitting I'd been building my life around a lie. When I kissed you that night I hoped you'd show you were just the usual common clay.

"I've done plenty of things to be ashamed of these last ten years—not much in them not to be ashamed of—but it isn't a habit of mine to go around embracing females that way, really," he interpolated boyishly. "Don't want to. I was just testing you out. And when you turned me down so hard in that sweet, grave way of yours, I got paid back for it, for I fell in love with you, head over heels, like any young calf in his early twenties," he described his condition poetically. "I played around with Maisie just to have a chance to be near you. And every day I loved you harder. That blessed reposefulness and self-forgetfulness of yours in this restless, flaunting, ogling, horrible sea of women. And that low, beautiful voice of yours when you do speak. I don't know what miracle made you trot out that blessed blue waist, but the world got all different when I saw you in it. I didn't dare say anything last night, I was so afraid I'd scare you off again, but I've just got to today. I'm really in love with you, Mary. And I trust you with all my heart—that's more from me. Could you care the least bit in the world for me?"

For all his brusqueness, he knew how to woo. And this time the writing in her heart was clear and plain. This was a man any woman might love. She had to fight to keep her voice unshaken.

"But you are married," she said.

"I'm getting unmarried just as fast as I can. I began divorce proceedings the day after I kissed you."

As she sat dazed by this revelation, he bent over her and caught her hand to his lips.

"Please, Mary," he begged her. "You can move the altar over to my house, and being a doctor's wife will give you plenty to do in front of it the rest of your life."

But she pulled her hand away, completely aghast by the results of her diplomacy. "What have I done?" she accused herself faintly. "I thought I was saving Maisie from you, and instead I've taken away from her the most wonderful thing in the whole world."

All the way home he argued and pleaded over this point. At first he had been highly amused by it. Then, when he saw the serious barrier it was erecting between them, he strove to demolish it. She would not betray to him Maisie's intentions, but kept reiterating that Maisie cared for him.

"Just as much as she does for that post over there," he reasoned with her. "Not but that she'd marry me, probably, in a minute—but for what I could give her. I wouldn't marry Maisie for millions of dollars. One venture in matrimony with a girl of her type is more than enough."

As she still clung steadfastly to her refusal even to consider his proposal, he took a second momentous ride that evening and laid his difficulties before Maisie. He repeated all that he had said that day to her mother, though in an entirely different tone of voice.

"I want you to help me get rid of this damn fool idea of hers, that she's interfering with your happiness. As I told her, I haven't a doubt you'd marry me for my money and position, you hardened young worldling. Now you can have that, with a handsome husband your own age thrown in."

"So that's what you think I'd be marrying you for?" she inquired.

She waited for a less populated section of the city to enlighten him. It was true that a month ago it would have made no difference to her plan of marrying him if he had been baldheaded, knock-kneed, false-toothed. But at their first meeting she had unexpectedly liked his voice, his eyes, his bearing; at the second she had decided she far preferred unruly hair graying at the temples to the beslicked pompadours of her younger friends, and that crowsfeet and lines added interest to a man's appearance; at the third she had reflected she would need all her wits when she married this man or he would be her master; at the fourth she did not care if he would be, for she had fallen genuinely in love with him. Maisie had not experimented in love since she was twelve without knowing the real thing when she met it. She had never intended to experience this disconcerting emotion; it disturbed her judgment, hampered her customary dexterity. It would have fitted much better into her plans to counterfeit it; however, here it was, and tonight she must make him realize it.

MAISIE knew the power of warm young arms around an obdurate neck, of warm young lips against even unwilling ones. She dismissed the thought of her mother as a rival as too fantastic for consideration. Old as she was, with that worn, pale face.

She wished she had not evoked the thought of its weariness, its pallor. It haunted her as she waited for some dark turn in the road. A rotten deal in life her mother had had, all right enough—always would have. With those queer ideas of hers she probably would keep on working, wouldn't take the doctor's money even when it belonged to Maisie. What a wonderful chance that proposal, dropping down on her today, must have seemed to her, and what a dead game sport she'd been to turn it down!

Despise herself as she did for this incredible weakness and sentimentality, these untoward thoughts grew in strength, overpowered her imagination, checked her ever ready speech, drove her into a course of action wholly inconsistent with her philosophy of life. As they went up the stairs, she found herself unbelievably promising:

"All right, old bird. Count on me. I'll make her see what's what. I'm certainly thanking God I'm not going to have to marry you myself to get the money into the family."

Her rôle of Cupid satisfactorily performed, Maisie developed an unaccountable restlessness. The doctor's proposal of a year at finishing school she hooted at; instead she substituted a winter in Hollywood.

"I'm not especially pretty," she pointed out with her accustomed frankness. "But there's something about me that makes people sit up and take notice, and that I bet I can get across the screen."

The doctor, who was in high good humor these days, seconded this modest assertion, and between them they overcame Mary's objections. Maisie, in the kind of clothes she had dreamed of, with the slimmest of silk umbrellas, shining luggage, and a generous wad in her pocketbook, set forth for the Mecca of so many youthful hopes.

On the way home Mary wept over her departure against the doctor's shoulder—a process both found amazingly agreeable.

"It's not just that I hate to see her go into that work," she grieved. "It's that she so obviously doesn't care an atom about leaving us. I don't believe Maisie has ever cared for anybody in all her life."

"She's not the only one," the doctor comforted her. "They're a tough proposition, this generation of youngsters. Live your own life, and the devil take the hindmost."

Maisie, to be sure, was not weeping in her berth. Instead she was engaged in applying more rouge to her already very vermilion cheeks, preparatory to a siege upon the affections of the opulent looking youth across the aisle. Admirers always came in handy, even if one could never hope to have the one man in all the world.

Maisie caught her breath in a sob, checked it fiercely, turned it into a muttered imprecation. Only she would ever know that under cover of rouge and oath and flirtation she was making her way up the steps of the forgotten altar. Her vestal garments were jerked up to a scandalous angle; her wreath was rakishly askew; but she carried her torch high in a hand that did not tremble.

The Dangers of - - the Permanent Wave

By Dorothy Vincent

This ingenious invention literally "reads" your hair—reveals its exact characteristics, indicates the exact proper treatment of your hair and insures a perfect natural permanent wave without chance of harm.

THOUSANDS of straight haired women have hesitated about having their hair permanently waved or rewaved solely and simply because they were afraid that their particular hair was not suited for it—that it wouldn't "take"—that their hair might be damaged. A friend perhaps who had her hair waved was dissatisfied with the way her hair responded. It was frizzy, dry and lifeless. That isn't strange. The miracle of it is that there haven't been more. For up to now—even with the famous Nestle Lanoil process, acknowledged as the greatest advance in hair science the world has ever known—results were occasionally not completely satisfactory to the skillful Nestle operator.

Amazing New Invention Assures Perfect Wave—With Safety

Now, however, every woman in America can enjoy all the charm and wonderful attractiveness of a beautiful permanent wave—and do it with positive assurance that not a single hair of her head will be damaged or weakened by the process.

Due to the amazing discovery of Mr. Charles Nestle and his invention of a wonderful new scientifically designed testing instrument, an absolutely perfect permanent wave can be given any type of hair regardless of its texture, color or condition, without any danger of frizzing, deadening or breaking. Furthermore, this wave can be given in considerably less time than is needed by the old fashioned methods and without all the old style cumbersome borax tubes, pads, sachets, caustic soda lotions and suffering hours of torture.

New Method Like Nature's Way

This amazing new process — called Nestle's Circuline Process—not only assures perfect safety for your hair but produces exactly the same identical wave—and in the same manner—as nature does for people with naturally curly hair. By gently opening the pores in the hair—allowing them to breathe and reabsorb the moisture they have been denied for years, the individual hair expands and because it cannot increase its length, it curls, becomes alive, fluffy, beautiful—which is exactly what happens in naturally curly hair.

Scientific Prescription For Each of the 10 Basic Grades of Hair Now Discovered By Astonishing Instrument—Works Wonders for All.

There are 10 general grades of hair, each of which demands a separate and distinct type of treatment in effecting a perfect permanent wave. Within these 10 distinct grades there are of course hundreds of variations in color, length, thickness, tensile strength, expansion and absorptive power.

Up to the present time, due to the lack of exact scientific facts concerning these many grades of hair textures, it has been as impossible to give perfect permanent waves for all hair, as it was to prescribe proper glasses for defective eyes until scientific methods of eye testing were perfected.

Now, however, by testing your individual hair by means of the amazing new Nestle testing device, the precise characteristics of your hair are revealed. Not only does this eliminate all danger of damage to your hair but it gives you a beautiful, natural and lasting wave that really improves your hair, making it thicker and healthier than ever before.

Your Hair Analyzed by Experts FREE!

You don't have to come to New York to obtain all the wonderful advantages of this personal hair analysis and the amazing new Circuline process. The exact waving itself can be handled by anyone of the 6000 highly trained Nestle operators located all over the country. The analysis is free.

Simply fill out the coupon below and mail it to us accompanied by a strand of your hair about 5 inches long and as thick as a knitting needle (no combings). Include with this a $1 deposit. This deposit will be credited to you on your next permanent wave by any authorized person or concern giving Nestle waves. The actual analysis of your hair by this scientific process therefore costs you nothing.

Don't take any chances of ruining your hair. Have this vitally important test made at once. It means all the difference in the world between a beautiful head of gloriously wavy hair and a stringy-looking, straggly mass of dead, broken ends. So send your hair sample today and end once and for all danger of damaging and ruining your hair when you have it waved. Mail the coupon NOW.

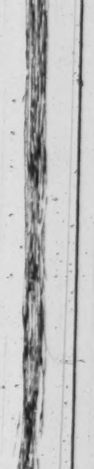

Illustration at right indicates exact size of hair needed for test — about 5 inches long — thickness of knitting needle — top hair, no combings.

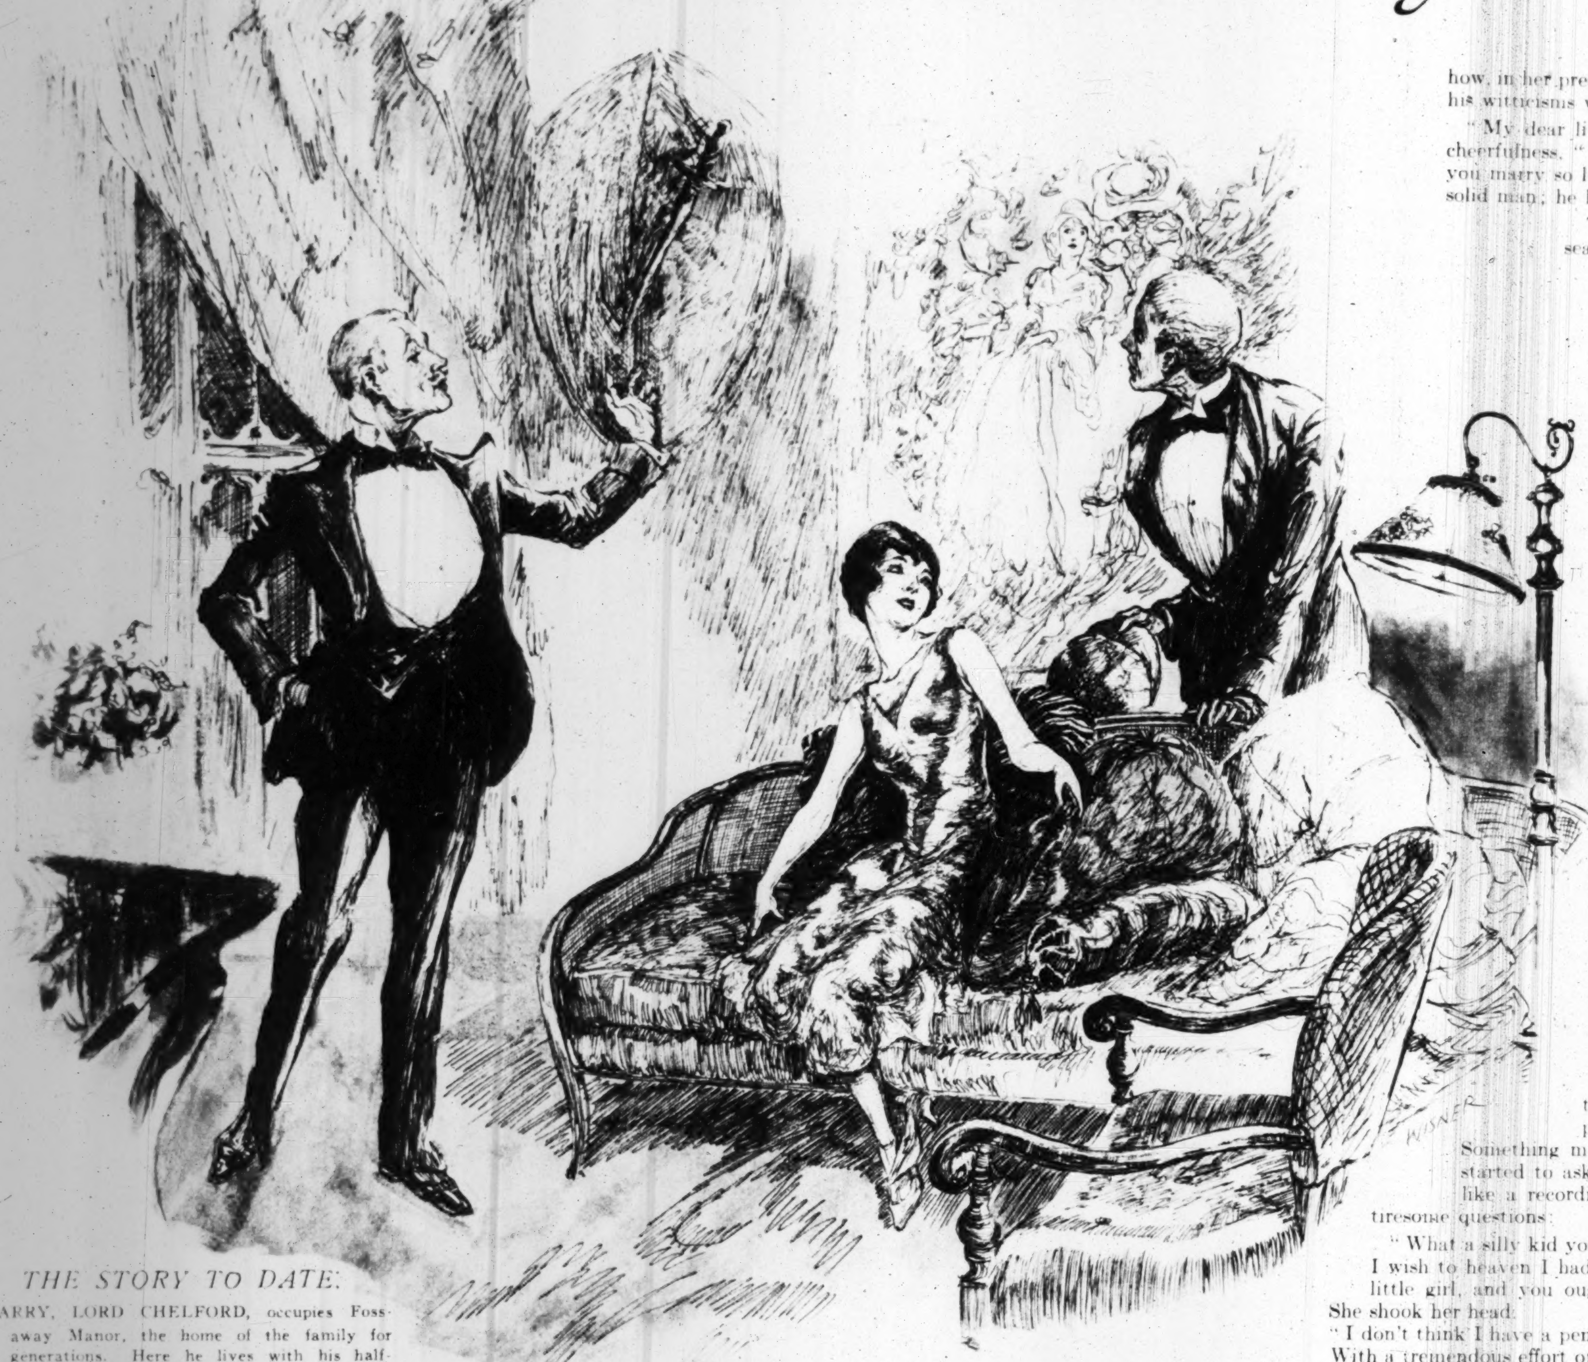
THE BLACK ABBOT by Edgar Wallace



Hanging against a shield was an iron dagger.

THE STORY TO DATE:

HARRY, LORD CHELFORD, occupies Fossaway Manor, the home of the family for generations. Here he lives with his half-brother, Dick, who manages the estate. Lord Harry devotes most of his time gathering together the legends concerning Chelford.

THE ruins of an old abbey are at one end of the estate, supposed to be the haunt of a former occupant. The apparition is known in the neighborhood as the Black Abbot. Lord Chelford is engaged to Leslie Gwyn, whose brother, Arthur, acts as Lord Chelford's solicitor. Fabrian Gilder, Arthur's chief clerk, discovers his employer is in financial difficulties. Mary Wenner, who had been Lord Chelford's secretary, offers to tell Gwyn where the hidden treasure is buried if he will marry her. Gilder gets Arthur into a trap, and then tries to force Leslie Gwyn to marry him.

INSTALLMENT V.

Dick Learns the Truth.

GILDER had recovered something of his command of himself and his feelings; the situation, awkward as it was, had brought him violently into the circle about which so far he had revolved. It were better to be considered as an undesirable suitor than to be denied consideration as a factor at all in Leslie Gwyn's life.

"May I ask by what right you dispose of my guests?" he demanded, but Dick took no notice of him.

"Look after your sister, Gwyn," he said, and there was a scarcely veiled menace in the words. "I will give myself the pleasure of calling on you this evening."

He took the girl's hand in his; she was still white and shaking, but smiled into his face.

"I've made myself rather ridiculous, haven't I?" she said in a low tone that only he could hear. "Dicky, perhaps I'm getting a little jumpy, and I may have taken offense——"

He patted her hand gently and walked with her past Gilder into the hall, Arthur following. It was Dick who opened the door and stood patiently until they had gone; then he turned to face the enraged owner of the flat.

"I had some real business to do with you, Gilder, but that can wait. First of all, I would like to ask, what have you said to Miss Gwyn?"

"That is entirely my business," said Gilder. His gaze was steady; again he was completely master of himself, if not of the situation.

"My business also," said Dick, without heat. "You are aware that Miss Gwyn is engaged to my brother?"

Gilder licked his dry lips.

"That doesn't really interest me," he said. And then, after a second's thought: "I'm going to be frank with you, Alford—we may as well clear the air. I have asked Miss Gwyn to be my wife."

"Oh, indeed?" said Dick softly. "And what had Miss Gwyn to say to that?"

"You didn't give her an opportunity of replying," said the other, "but I rather think that there will be no difficulty in the matter."

Dick did not conceal his smile. A shrewd judge of men, he had rightly understood the situation when he had seen Arthur's face on his return to the flat.

"You mean there will be no difficulty so far as Mr. Gwyn is concerned? I admit you have an historical precedent. You are not the first lawyer who wished to marry into his master's family."

If Dick had not been angry he would not have said this; immediately the words were out he was sorry. But Gilder took up the point quickly.

"I am not an Uriah Heep," he said with a grim smile. "I am neither humble nor lowly."

"I'm sorry, but, really, I don't think that matters very much, Gilder. Whatever Mr. Gwyn's attitude may be, there will be a considerable difficulty in respect to Miss Gwyn—and to me."

"To you?" Gilder's eyebrows went up and his lips curled. "Are you the lady's—er——"

"I am not engaged to Miss Gwyn, but my brother is," said Dick evenly. "But that is not the point. I am a friend of Leslie Gwyn's, and even if she changed her mind about marrying into my family, that would not affect the issue."

Gilder was about to speak, but Dick went on:

"I don't know what pull you have with Gwyn, or what dire threats you are holding over his head."

He saw the man start, and laughed.

"That went very near the mark?" he said. "But whatever influence you have, Gilder, you are not going to marry Leslie Gwyn."

Gilder's eyes narrowed.

"Is that a threat?" he asked.

"You can take it as a threat or as a pleasant compliment, or any old way you choose," said Dick, with that impish smile of his. "And now, if you don't mind, we'll come to business. You've bought a property of ours—Red Farm. You've paid thirty-five hundred pounds to Leonard. I have come to ask you to call off your bargain and to take five hundred profit."

"In other words, you want to buy it back, eh? Well, there's nothing doing!" said Gilder harshly. "I intend living at Red Farm, and there isn't a law in the land that can stop me. You may not like my presence, but that is neither here nor there. I am not living at Chelfordbury for the pleasure of seeing you every day of my life."

Dick nodded.

"I wondered why you wanted to live there at all, but now I think I understand," he said. "The offer I have made you is without prejudice to any action I may take. Unfortunately for you, Leonard has no power to retransfer the property without my brother's consent—which means my consent, for I hold his power of attorney. Leonard may hold the property, but you cannot. You're a lawyer, and it is not necessary for me to explain the intricacies of a copyhold lease, and that was all Leonard was buying. If you decide to fight the case, I'll take you into court, and you know that I shall get a verdict against you. I am offering you a chance of settling the matter amicably."

"Which I refuse," said the other promptly.

Dick inclined his head.

"Very good. You will probably, on considering the matter in a calmer atmosphere, take a different view."

He walked from the room, swinging his hat. In the doorway he turned.

"As for Miss Leslie Gwyn, you will be well advised to reconsider that question also."

"And suppose I don't?"

Again that unfathomable smile.

"You are going to be sorry," said Dick cryptically.

NOT a word did Leslie say about her interview with Gilder, and her brother seemed just as anxious to avoid the topic as she. They drove down from town, and all the time he kept up a ceaseless flow of talk about affairs which he thought might interest her. He was nervous, and once, when she woke him from a reverie with a question, he started and turned red.

"Sorry!" he stammered. "I was thinking of something."

"And something unpleasant, Arthur," she said gently.

He was staring straight ahead of him.

"Yes, something damnably unpleasant!"

They were nearing Chelfordbury now, and she put the question that had trembled on her lips throughout that long journey.

"Arthur, do you know what Mr. Gilder asked me?" And, when he did not reply: "He proposed to me," she said.

Still he avoided her eyes.

"Did he?" he asked awkwardly. "Well, that's an extraordinary thing for him to do!"

"Arthur, did you know he was going to propose to me when you left us alone?"

"He isn't a bad fellow," said Arthur Gwyn lamely. "Of course, the idea is preposterous. But, after all, it is no sin for a fellow to fall in love with a girl and want to marry her. I mean, one can see his point of view."

Leslie was a little shocked; she was more than a little angry. But she kept a tight rein on her tongue.

"But, Arthur, you wouldn't agree to that? You know I am engaged to Harry. Why, you told me that it was the dream of your life to see me wearing a coronet! Not that I want to wear the beastly thing, but that was what you said."

Ordinarily, Arthur Gwyn was possessed of a ready tongue and a nimble wit. He had lied his way out of many an embarrassing situation with more worldly wise people than Leslie. But somehow, in her presence his brain refused to function, and his witticisms were banal and vulgar even to himself.

"My dear little girl," he said, with an attempt at cheerfulness, "it really doesn't matter to me whom you marry so long as you're happy. Gilder is a very solid man; he has a considerable private fortune."

This time she swung round in her seat and faced him.

"Arthur, why do you insist upon the fortune? Where is my money?"

The question came point blank and was not to be fenced with. He roused himself to meet a situation which had never before arisen.

"Your money? Why, invested, of course!"

He tried very hard, but he could not produce that convincing note which was so necessary.

"Your income is in all sorts of shares and bonds. What a queer question you ask me, girlie!"

"How much money have I?" she demanded ruthlessly.

"About a quarter of a million—a little more or a little less. For goodness sake, don't talk about money, my dear."

"But I will talk about it," she said. "Arthur, have I any at all?"

His laughter did not carry conviction. And usually people accepted his word. Harry Chelford had asked him only a week before in what stocks was his late mother's fortune invested. And Arthur had replied glibly enough. It was the Miriam Chelford trust that occupied his mind through the journey. Something must be done there. Dick Alford had started to ask questions, and Dick had a memory like a recording machine. As for Leslie and her tiresome questions:

"What a silly kid you are! Of course you've got money! I wish to heaven I had half your wad! You're a very rich little girl, and you ought to be a very happy little girl."

She shook her head.

"I don't think I have a penny," she said, and his heart sank.

With a tremendous effort of will he met her questioning eyes.

"Why do you say that?"

She shook her head.

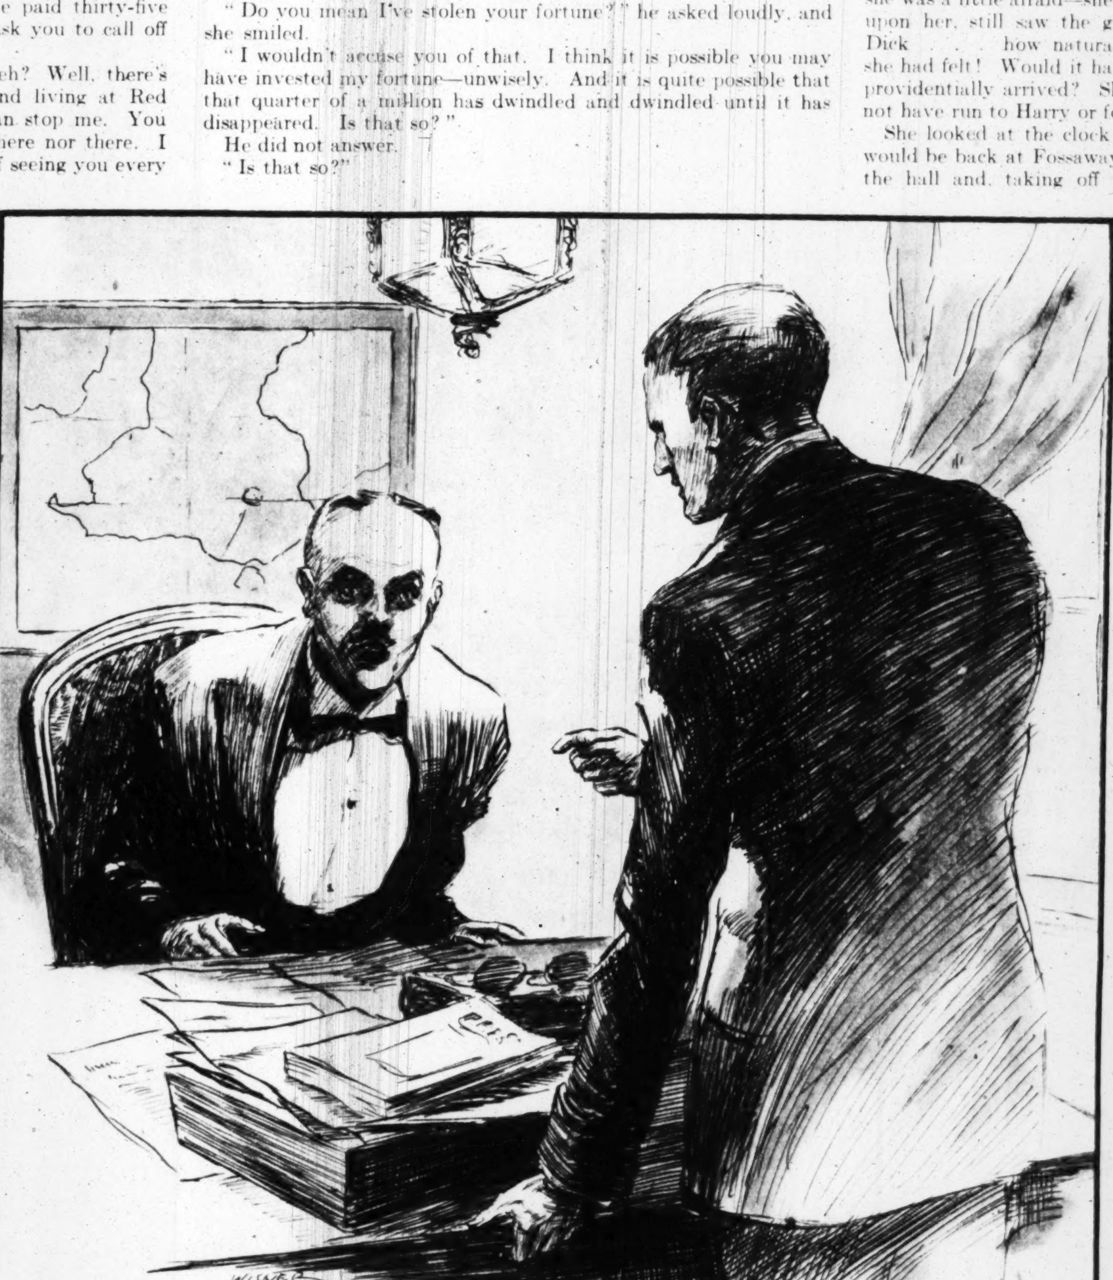
"I don't know. In a way, I hope I'm poor. I know I had money left me, because you showed me the will a long time ago. But you've been handling it, Arthur, and I've an idea that things haven't been going too well with you."

"Do you mean I've stolen your fortune?" he asked loudly, and she smiled.

"I wouldn't accuse you of that. I think it is possible you may have invested my fortune—unwisely. And it is quite possible that that quarter of a million has dwindled and dwindled until it has disappeared. Is that so?"

He did not answer.

"Is that so?"



Dick asked a question that brought the man to his feet.

"I wish to God you wouldn't ask such stupid questions," he said irritably. "Of course it isn't so!"

For one wild moment he had the impulse to tell her the truth; but vanity, a shrinking from the possible effects the news would have upon the one person in the world for whom he had a grain of affection, inhibited the confession.

Back he came naturally to the one thought present in his mind, as he chattered and as he brooded. His last hope lay in the discovery of the Chelford treasure. If that were found he could snap his fingers at Gilder, could restore the wasted fortune of his sister, and establish himself beyond assail. Gilder would never dare bring his story of the four bills to a court of law, and if he did, backed by the Chelford fortune, Arthur could face the storm, confident that, if he made restoration to the man he had robbed, no evil consequences would follow. He was grasping at a straw and knew it. But Mary Wenner was a shrewd little devil, not the kind of girl who, for the sake of making a sensation, would come to him with a cock and bull story. She might have been mistaken; on the other hand, she was so brimful of confidence that he could not believe the story was altogether without foundation.

The road to Willow House skirted the grounds of Fossaway Manor, and he saw the crumbling arch, red in the setting sun, standing like a fiery question mark that attuned with his mood of doubt and hope.

ARRIVED at his home, he went up to his room to bathe and change before dinner, and it was with a positive sense of freedom that he found himself alone. He was a fool not to have told her the truth, he thought. After dinner he would get her in a softer mood and make a clean breast of it. And then, at the tail of this decision came the recollection of his interview with Mary Wenner. Suppose she had told the truth? Suppose he found these millions of pounds that had lain for centuries in the ground? He formed yet another plan.

To his unspeakable relief, Leslie was in her most cheerful mood throughout dinner, and the thought of Fabrian Gilder seemed to have been effectively banished.

"Leslie," he said, after the coffee had been served, "I want you to do me a great favor."

She looked at him across the table, doubt in her eyes.

"Do you remember Mary Wenner, who used to be Harry's secretary?"

She nodded.

"Yes. Dick doesn't like her very much; he was telling me the other day——"

"Never mind what Dick likes or dislikes," he said testily. "Great heavens! Are our lives to be run according to his fancies? I'm very sorry," he apologized with a laugh, "but you'll have to forgive me—I'm rather nervy tonight——"

"What about Mary Wenner?" she asked.

"I was wondering whether you would like to ask her down here to stay a week-end? I shall have a lot of work to do, and she's a very excellent stenographer. But I'll be perfectly frank with you and tell you that that is not the only reason I'd like you to invite her. She's been in some kind of scrape and I want to help her through."

Leslie Gwyn was not curious or she might have questioned him more about this mythical trouble.

"I don't know why she shouldn't come," she said. "If you'll give me her address I will write to her. I rather fancy that Dick's main objection to her is that she had some sort of attachment for Harry."

"She's almost forgotten Harry," smiled her brother. "To be perfectly candid, I like the girl. She's not a lady, of course, but 'lady' nowadays is a vague and meaningless term. And there was really nothing in her affair with Harry. I mean it was not serious."

"I've never thought so," said the girl, and thereupon the question of Mary Wenner was dismissed.

He had, he said, some work to do that night, and left her alone in the drawing room, and for once she did not find time hanging very heavily upon her hands. Ordinarily the prospect of an evening spent alone would have seemed intolerably dull, but she had so much to think about, so many perspectives to adjust, that she rather welcomed her solitude.

Even at so short a distance of time her experience with Fabrian Gilder seemed grotesquely unreal. Perhaps she was still numb from the shock of it, for, going over that unpleasant feature incident by incident, she could be neither angry nor amused. Perhaps she was a little afraid—she still felt the pressure of his strong hands upon her, still saw the gray fires that burnt in his eyes. And Dick . . . how natural it had been to go to him—how safe she had felt! Would it have been the same if Harry Chelford had providentially arrived? She was sure in her mind that she would not have run to Harry or found comfort in his encircling arms.

She looked at the clock; it was ten minutes after nine. Dick would be back at Fossaway Manor by now, and she went out into the hall and, taking off the receiver of the telephone, gave a number.

Arthur's study door opened into the hall and he came out.

"To whom are you telephoning?" he asked, suspiciously.

"I'm calling up Fossaway Manor," she said.

"You're not going to invite Dick Alford over, are you?" he demanded resentfully.

Before she could reply he heard the ring of a bell in the servants' quarters and she ran to the door. Through the glass panel she saw the gleam of a white shirt front on the unlighted porch and switched on the lights. It was Dick, and, with an oath, Arthur Gwyn flung back into his room and slammed the door. He had hoped that Dick had forgotten his threat to call that night.

"Enter, Richard of Chelford!" said the girl dramatically, as she threw open the door. "I was just phoning you. I'm bored to extinction and I want amusing."

Which was not true.

"I don't feel at all amusing," said Dick, as he closed the door and hung up his cap on the hatrack.

She took him by the arm and led him into the drawing room.

"Arthur is invisible tonight; he is working very hard. He doesn't approve of you, and you hardly approve of him, so we shan't be interrupted! Dick, it was lovely of you to arrive as you did this afternoon."

"Gilder proposed to you, I understand?" said Dick quietly.

"Did he tell you?" She fetched a long sigh. "Yes; I was amazed. I suppose it was very complimentary, but why did he do it in such a great hurry, do you think?"

Dick took a cigaret from the box she offered him and lit it before he replied.

"That is exactly what I've come to discover," he said. "I feel rather like a grand inquisitor, but I must know."

"And I can't tell you."

She was acting. He knew that her one object was to turn him from an interview with her brother, and she in turn knew that her efforts would be in vain.

"You had no hint of this precious proposal in advance? Arthur told you nothing?"

"No. Arthur couldn't possibly have known. He told me that Mr. Gilder wanted us to see his new flat, and although it was a great bore going out to tea with somebody one doesn't know, I went——"

"To oblige Arthur, of course?"

"No," she insisted; "you must credit me with a reasonable amount of feminine curiosity. Bachelors' establishments intrigue me. Your one drawback, from my point of view, is that you've only a poky little office and, I presume, a wretched little servant's bedroom."

"For a second son I'm rather well off," said Dick with a

CURVFIT The Woman's Razor

A Modern Miracle of Beauty

An amazing creation that removes hair safely, swiftly and gently, from the underarm and limbs

SUAVE WHITE SKIN! Skin that rounds its satin nudity—undimmed by the shadow of hair—to the intimate curves of the underarm and limbs! So must every modern woman present her own personal loveliness to the world when she accepts the modes of today.

Evening gown and dancing frock—summer dress and sheer silken hose—and, above all, the bathing suit—they cry for beautiful hairless flesh!

That has been woman's problem—to remove superfluous hair without danger or difficulty—without scar, blemish or irritation.

The Miracle Happens

The miracle has happened! Man, inspired by his ideal of woman's loveliness, has created an exquisite implement of the toilette that removes hair in an instant—with absolute safety—and with the gentleness of a caress!

It is CURVFIT, a curved razor—the only safe razor ever designed exclusively for use upon the tender, delicately textured skin of women.

CURVFIT is the masculine safety razor, curved to fit every contour of a woman's body. And the curve permits a slender, doubly guarded blade to touch with a single denuding caress every inward and outward contour of the underarm and limbs. CURVFIT has been tested—by the most exacting tests possible to any implement of the toilette.

Slip into the luxurious boudoir of the woman of society, who spends half her life in décolleté gowns. There upon the dressing table—or in the marble-and-crystal bathroom beyond—you will find, in an imported leather case, a golden CURVFIT, pearl-handled, lying in a satin bed.

Visit the dressing room of the exquisite beauty of the stage or screen, who must give the utmost perfection of her personal loveliness to her audiences. You will find CURVFIT upon her dressing table, ready to kiss away the faintest shadow of hair.

A Type for Every Woman

To smart, beautiful women everywhere, CURVFIT has become a necessity. Already, in more than 50,000 boudoirs, CURVFIT is an essential part of those intimate rites of beauty which compose the art of the toilette. Now, every woman may possess it. There is a type of CURVFIT, for every taste. And with her CURVFIT, every woman may enjoy the supreme ease of perfect grooming, the absolute assurance of safety in denuding her flesh of hair—wherever her costume requires it, and the instant before her costume is worn.

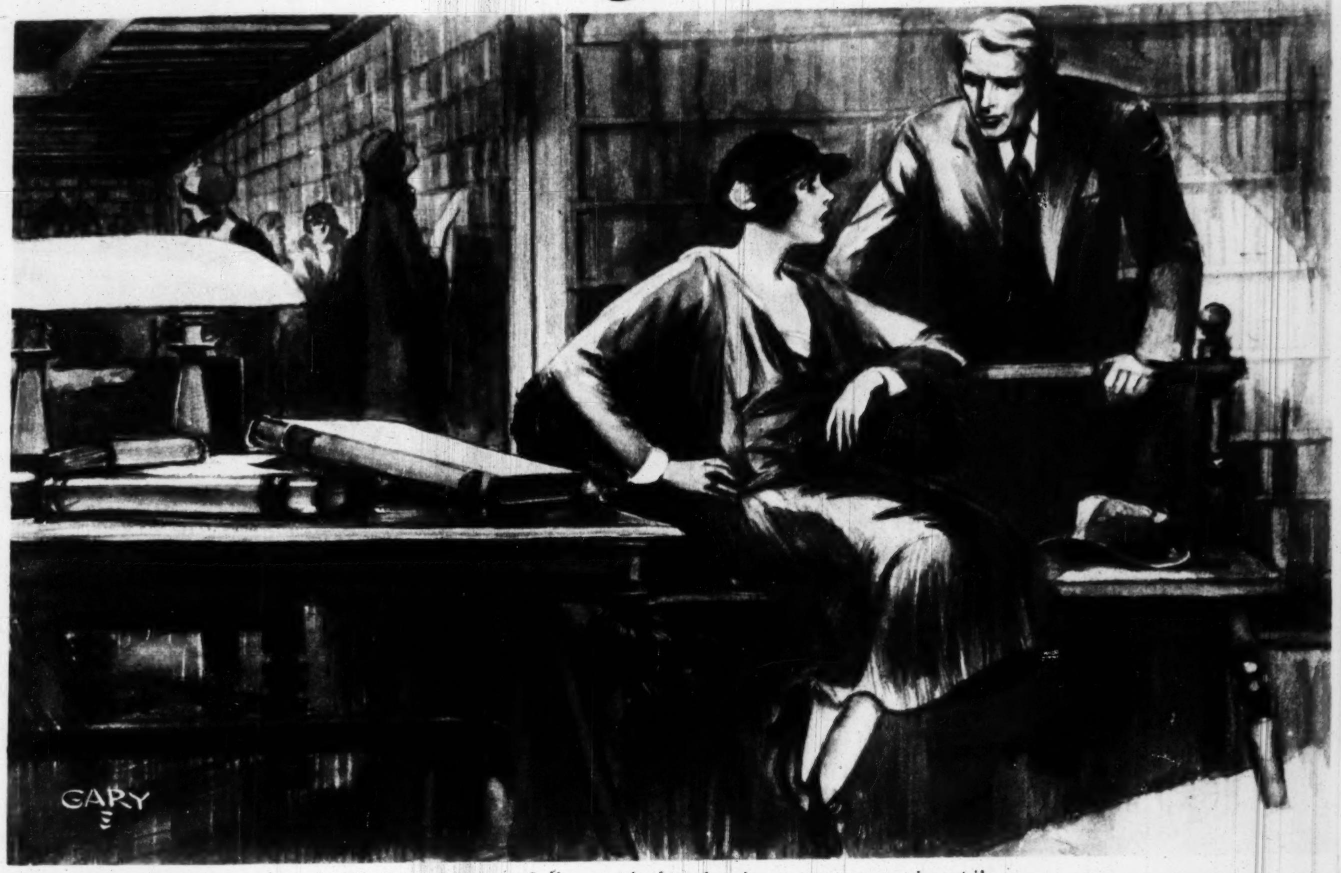
Two In a Library A Story from Real Life



"D'you know I dropped that book on purpose, dear!."

BANG!

"O, I'm so sorry! Did it hit your foot?" asked the young man with the gray eyes.

"No. It's quite all right," answered the girl in brown, giving him a little smile.

The two spoke in whispers, for they were talking in the hushed and dignified precincts of the public library. The public library: the vast, mosaicked, sculptured, vaulted, intricate, lordly, palatial house of literature which occupies two city blocks at the busiest corner of New York City, Fifth avenue and Forty-second street.

Few people realize that this severe, aloof building is the meeting place, the rendezvous, of many pairs of lovers; that under its towering roof many romances blossom; yet such things happen. Take the case of the gray eyed young man and the girl in brown.

"I am sure it just missed your foot," declared the youth, determinedly prolonging the conversation.

"No, it didn't, really. Suppose you pick it up," returned the girl in brown, nothing loath, apparently, to conversing in smothered tones.

The young man bent, as advised, and lifted the heavy tome which lay sprawling in undignified disarray. The girl caught sight of the title as he settled the book under his arm.

"So you are interested in old houses, too!" she exclaimed.

"Well, in a way. I was born in an old revolutionary house. My folks are still living in it, and I hope, perhaps some day when I get enough cash to spare to restore it somewhat. It is up to us American families to preserve the landmarks, don't you think?" he queried with a faint trace of pride.

"I certainly do," responded the girl warmly. "Back in Somerset, N. J., where I come from——"

"Do you?" interrupted the boy delightedly. "Why, my home is three miles from there. Say——"

"I would like to hear more about it," said the girl, observing a vinegary spinster who was scowling at the enthusiasm shown by the two youngsters. "Let's go into the corridor and find a seat."

And that's how it started.

"D'you know, I dropped that book on purpose, dear," stated Billy Edwards unblushingly, some weeks later. "I was so horribly lonely. Didn't know a soul in New York. I spent most of my time in the public library, as one seems less alone there. Then I saw you one day in the circulating department and watched you day after day, just longing to speak to you, but I didn't dare till I hit on the stunt of using the clumsy old book as an introduction."

"I noticed you, too," admitted Barbara. "Just fancy, you and I coming from the same part of the country and being terribly lonely and homesick, knowing nobody in New York! Ten months in my case. Then by a gorgeous accident we gravitate to the same place."

"Not so accidental. Fate intended it," returned Billy sententiously.

"Now, Billy dear, don't get sentimental again. You know you can't afford marriage on your salary. And, remember, you are saving up to restore your father's house, so we will not go to the theater as you suggested," decided Barbara firmly.

"I want to treat you to something better than a bus ride or a cheap movie. I am so afraid of losing you, Barbara, now I have found you." His young voice was deep with emotion. "I am scared stiff of some one more amusing and with more money to spend on you coming along and spoiling our wonderful companionship."

"When one does I'll let you know," said Barbara cheerfully. "O, Billy, just look at those gorgeous flowers!" indicating Fifth avenue's most expensive florist. They were going for their usual Saturday afternoon bus ride. They rode on the top in the front seat, getting on at Washington square for that purpose, for it was early spring—everything looked beautiful to them and every outing was delightful because they were young and together.

"Yes," responded Billy, dolefully. "They are gorgeous and it would take my whole week's pay to buy you one of those fanciful baskets of blooms."

"Cheer up, Billikins," coaxed Barbara. "What is the matter with you this afternoon? Money isn't everything; look what dandy times we have without it."

"Yes, we do, Barb. But you are growing more and more charming, and I feel it in my bones that I shall not enjoy your undivided attention much longer," Billy answered gloomily.

"Thank you for the compliment, William, but I don't think any one else is likely to drop a book in front of me or seek an introduction any other way," declared Barbara with a twinkle in her eye.

BUT she was wrong. Stanley Wayne was on his way from Europe.

Barbara was employed as a stenographer in the office of Griffiths & Wayne, architects and contractors. Wayne, the junior partner, had been on a prolonged trip to Europe to study the architecture and construction of old country houses, principally in England.

He returned armed with endless sketches, plans, and photographs in preparation for a big project to build a garden city in a suburb of New York. Having been away over a year, he had yet to encounter his partner's new stenographer; he was not back in the office a day, however, before he noticed Barbara.

Barbara looked particularly charming and springlike that day. She had on one of those high necked Russian blouses. It was white, fresh, and dainty, and the color of her neat brown costume skirt repeated that of her trimly marceled bob.

On her desk was a small bunch of violets. Billy had given them to her the previous evening and begged her to place them where she could see them, and in seeing them to think of him. Wayne's roving eye caught all these charming details, and with the eagerness of a hunter he started off after new game.

Wayne was handsome in a bluff, hearty way, and was proud of his reputation of being a devil with the women. In England he had acquired Savile Row tailored suits and an exaggerated English accent, and in France some polish and savoir faire.

Within a week he had unostentatiously engaged Barbara's attention by appearing not to notice her. Barbara began to pay more attention to the perfectly tailored back of the junior partner than she did to her work, thereby incurring a reprimand from her employer.

She was very distraught and out of sorts when she met Billy that night and they had their first tiff. In the first place, Billy wore his office suit, which was shiny at the elbows, tight in places, and had a decidedly provincial cut with the old fashioned slit up the back. Barbara asked him if he could not get a tailor to seam that slit up to bring the suit more up to date. Of course she was thinking of Wayne's loosely modeled clothes à la prince of Wales.

Then, in referring to the Woolworth tower, Billy stressed the second syllable in tower and Barbara mentally compared it with the way Wayne would say it, "ah."

Barbara spoke of the junior partner's return from Europe, and in her effort at casual tones Billy, with a lover's intuition, detected more than a business interest in Wayne and promptly got jealous. Whereupon the two young people parted with bitter words. A week ago they had said au revoir with unconscious delight in each other's happiness, and none can be so bitter as two who have been friends.

Billy was frightfully miserable the following week, but, with a man's detachment from personal things, threw himself into his work, that of real estate agent, with such concentration that he earned the enthusiastic commendation of his boss and an increase in pay.

Barbara was miserable, too, but defiant, and, like a woman, promptly lulled her active conscience by encouraging interest in another man. Wayne was nothing loath, saw the time was ripe to take a shot at his quarry, and climbed down suddenly from his lofty height of indifference to extend an invitation to the theater.

To say that Barbara accepted is superfluous; of course she went, dolled up in the best her limited wardrobe could summon. Some of her hard earned savings went into a simple little evening frock and the necessary accessories; even so she felt Wayne's critical eyes on her as he gave a subtle compliment on her appearance.

In spite of the money the evening's entertainment cost—it even extended into the early hours of the morning dancing in a Greenwich Village cabaret—Barbara felt a sense of loss, of dissatisfaction. Somehow the evening was not half as exhilarating as some she had spent with Billy in a cheap movie show or on a bus.

THE next day she met Billy at closing time outside her office. He was waiting for her with as acutely miserable an expression as she had ever seen on his homely but likable countenance. She was glad to see him, but of course she did not say so. She gave him a disdainful look, incidentally lingering just long enough for him to speak to her.

"Barbara, I have been so miserable the last week." Being a man, he spoke necessarily of his own feelings. "Please let's be friends again."

After the usual verbal fencing, in which Barbara reduced the penitent Billy almost to tears, they walked off together at peace with themselves and the world.

When Barbara told Billy that she had been out with Wayne they quarreled again, so she further tormented the jealous boy by saying she was going to a notorious roadhouse with the junior partner the following night.

Billy went to the library the next evening and tried to compose himself to read, but happy memories of the hours spent there with Barbara kept intruding themselves between him and the narrative in which he endeavored to become engrossed.

He had picked out a volume of Poe, and the great writer's impressive but depressing story served to stimulate Billy's already active imagination. He pictured her riding through the night in Wayne's high powered roadster—saw her being conducted to a private dining room; Wayne plying her with potent synthetic booze; making love to her; she was in danger—— Billy started to his feet, dropping the book on the floor, the palms of his hands oozing moisture.

She was standing opposite him, a couple of books under her arm, smiling sweetly into his distraught countenance. "I was not going with Wayne. I only said that to tease you," she whispered to the unspoken question in his eye.

"Barbara, we are going down to the city hall tomorrow and get married. And we'll spend our honeymoon right here."

If you were in the public library a few days ago and saw a young couple engrossed in each other it was probably Barbara and Billy.

THE BLACK ABBOT - - - - - - - - - - By Edgar Wallace

quizzical smile. "You are sure Arthur didn't give you any forewarning of this proposal?"

"Absolutely sure. He was as much astonished as I was."

"Have you discussed it with him?" he asked quickly.

She hesitated.

"Yes, I spoke about it in the car on the way down, and Arthur was rather—astonished."

"Only astonished—not furious?"

"He may have been furious, too. Arthur doesn't carry his heart on his sleeve."

"I should imagine not," said Dick dryly, and then: "Will you ask him if I can see him for five minutes?"

She looked at him with troubled eyes.

"You're not going to quarrel, are you, Dick?"

He shook his head.

"No, I'm going to ask him a question or two. You realize that I'm entitled to know."

"Why are you 'entitled'?"

"Don't you think I am?" he asked gently.

HER eyes went up to his for a second and then dropped as she read something there that thrilled and hurt her. Without a word she went out into the hall and knocked at Arthur's door.

"What does he want? I can't be bothered tonight," said Arthur Gwyn fretfully. "What a fellow he is for interrupting people when they're busy!"

"I think you'd better see him, Arthur," she said, and added: "And get it over."

"What do you mean—get what over?" he asked.

"Whatever there is to get over," said Leslie quietly.

Arthur looked down at the picturesque confusion of papers that covered his library table.

"All right; shoot him in," he said ungraciously

He did not attempt to rise from his chair when Dick entered, closing the door behind him.

"Sit down, will you, Alford? Leslie tells me you want to see me."

"Leslie need not have given you that message. I'd already told you this afternoon that I would come to you for an explanation."

"Of what?"

"Of the unpleasant happening at Gilder's flat. This man proposed to your sister—you know that?"

"Leslie told me," said the other, after a moment's silence.

"And you were annoyed, one supposes? You will dismiss this clerk of yours tomorrow?"

The other leaned back in his chair.

"I don't see why I should," he said coolly. "After all, it's no crime for any man to propose to a pretty girl. Of course, he's not the sort of fellow I should choose for a brother-in-law, but if brothers had to choose husbands for their sisters, you know, Alford, there would be some very queer marriages!"

"What is his pull?" asked Dick quietly.

"I don't——"

"What is his hold on you?'

"What the devil do you mean?"

"Just what I say. You would never tolerate a man like Gilder paying attentions to your sister, apart from the insult he offered to a prospective countess of Chelford unless he had such a grip on you that all your natural indignation was crushed by the fear of some consequence he held over your head."

Arthur Gwyn found it difficult to control his voice.

"My dear fellow, how very melodramatic!" he scoffed. "'Hold over me'! You must have been studying the latest Drury Lane play! Naturally I would rather see Leslie married to your brother, but I certainly would put no obstacle in her way if her heart was set elsewhere."

"On Gilder, in fact?"

"On Gilder," nodded Arthur gravely, as though the matter had been the subject of deep thought and much self-communion.

And then Dick Alford asked a question that brought the man to his feet, white and shaking.

"Is it the question of the bills?"

"The—the what?" faltered the lawyer.

"The four bills which were supposed to be backed by my brother—the signatures being forgeries. I thought you knew that I had seen them. They were shown to me at the bank, and fortunately I did not disclaim them—fortunately for you, I mean. When I went to see them again they were taken up. I presume Mr. Fabrian Gilder redeemed them. That would have cost him a little over five thousand pounds, and I presume he did not do that out of sheer altruism."

Arthur Gwyn's mouth was dry; he could scarcely articulate.

"I didn't know until today," he muttered. "Harry was ill at the time. The money was due to me for—for—legal costs. I went down to the bank to take them up and found they had been honored."

"Was that the pull?"

He did not meet the steady gaze that was fixed on him.

"Yes, that was the pull, if you want to know. You don't suppose I'd allow Leslie to marry a swine like Gilder unless—unless he had something on me, do you? Can't you understand my position, Alford? I'm ruined! That fellow could send me to jail—he still can."

Dick shook his head.

"Fire him tomorrow," he said. "If he produces the bills I will undertake that Harry will acknowledge the signatures."

The pink came back to the colorless face of the lawyer.

"You'll do this?" he said eagerly. "My God! you don't know what a weight you've lifted off my mind. You're a brick, by jove! I'll fire him tomorrow."

He held out an eager hand and Dick took it with some hesitation. At the best of times Arthur Gwyn did not impress him; at this moment, almost incoherent with relief, he seemed a pitiful coward.

"I will pay Harry every penny. I have something on the stocks now that will bring me in a fortune, that will wipe out all my debts and put me on my feet again."

There was humor in the situation; for the thing which was to rehabilitate his fortunes was no less than the barefaced robbery of Harry Chelford's inheritance! But Arthur was not conscious of the irony of the position. He would deal with Gilder in the morning. Thank God, he had not gone still deeper into the mire! The knowledge that in his pocketbook was another bill as yet unuttered did not cool the glow of virtue he was experiencing. Henceforth he would walk the straight way.

"There's one thing you could do for me, Alford—hurry along that marriage. Fix it for next month if you can. Leslie is just a foolish girl; she is trying to put off the inevitable, but that's natural, isn't it? Can't you buck up Harry——"

Dick Alford looked at him steadily.

"The matter must be left entirely to Leslie," he said, and there was something very definite and final in those words.

THEY came out of the library together; Leslie waiting, a little fearful, saw the smile on her brother's face and breathed a sigh of thankfulness.

"You're not going?" Dick was reaching for his cap.

"I have to get back to the house," he said, and, seeing her look of disappointment, he stood irresolutely.

"Come along in and play mah-jongg. I am in a mah-jongg mood," said Arthur, almost jovially.

If there was one thing that Dick could not endure that night it was to sit vis-à-vis with Arthur Gwyn. He would like to have remained with the girl, but for a moment her brother seemed an inevitable third. And he was terribly informative.

"Here is something that will interest you!"

He pointed to the wall. Hanging against a dark wooden shield was an iron dagger—black and sinister, the handle worn smooth, the long blade notched and jagged. Dick had seen it before.

"That should be at your place, Alford. The veritable dagger of the veritable Black Abbot's slayer—Hubert of Redruth! Look at his arms on the hilt. . . ."

"I have seen it," said Dick shortly. "Put on your coat and come for a walk, Leslie," he suggested, and the obliging Arthur, who would have been agreeable to any scheme he propounded, seconded the suggestion.

The night was cool and dark. There was a full moon, visible at intervals through the drift of the cloud. Leslie slipped her arm into his as they walked down the dark avenue.

"Did you quarrel?" she asked.

"N-no, we didn't quarrel," said Dick. "There was a little plain speaking, but I think it cleared the air, and, after all, that was what I came for. He is dismissing Gilder tomorrow."

She was silent at this, and did not speak again until they were on the road.

"Is that wise?" she asked. "I'm a little afraid of the man. I feel he would be a very bad enemy."

She heard his soft laugh and felt reassured.

"He's that, all right," said Dick; "the worst enemy any man could have, I should imagine. But an enemy is only dangerous in ratio to his hurting power. I don't think Mr. Gilder will hurt anybody."

"Not Arthur?" she asked.

"Not Arthur, and certainly not you."

She squeezed his arm in hers.

"You'd be a wonderful brother," she said.

"I am," he said curtly, and she smiled in the darkness. "Your handsome relative asked me to persuade you to marry next month, and I told him pointblank I would do nothing of the kind. Leslie, do you know that I never see Harry from one week-end to another?"

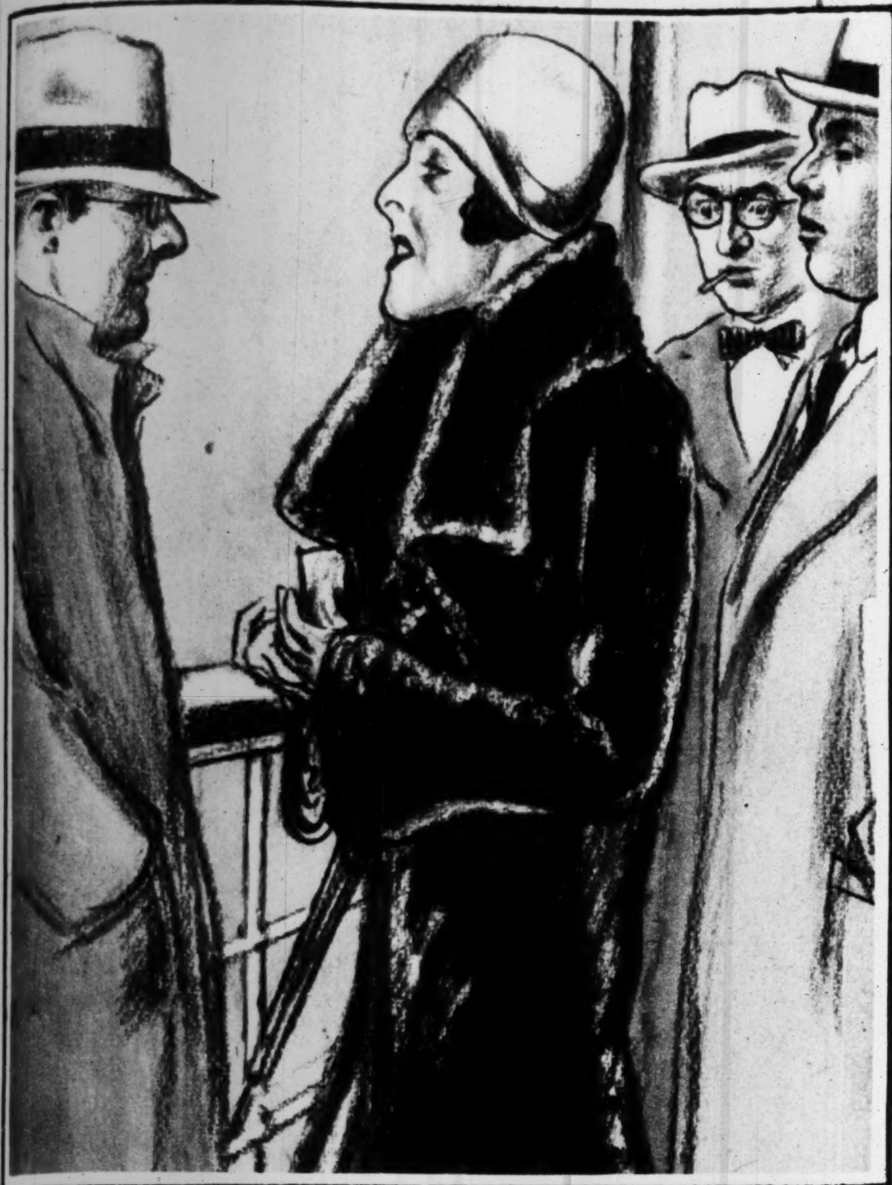
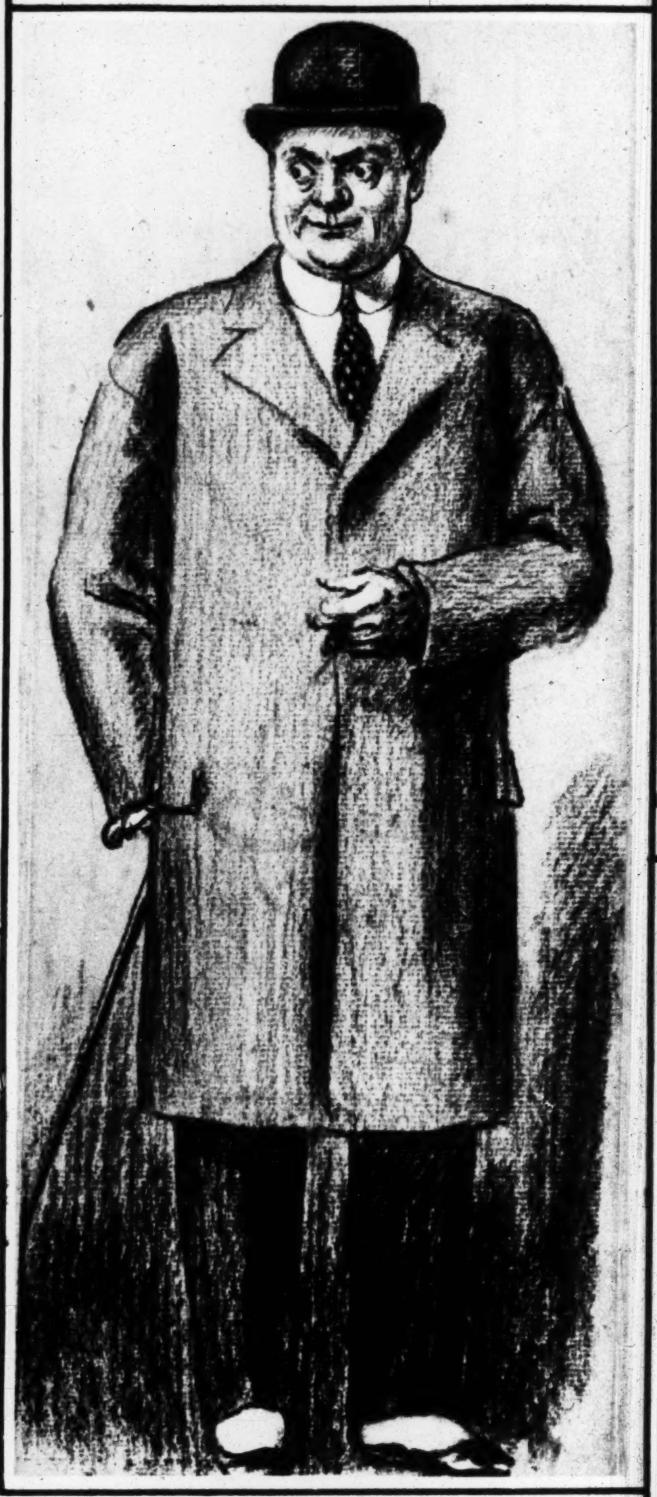
The Merry Month of May

By W. E. HILL

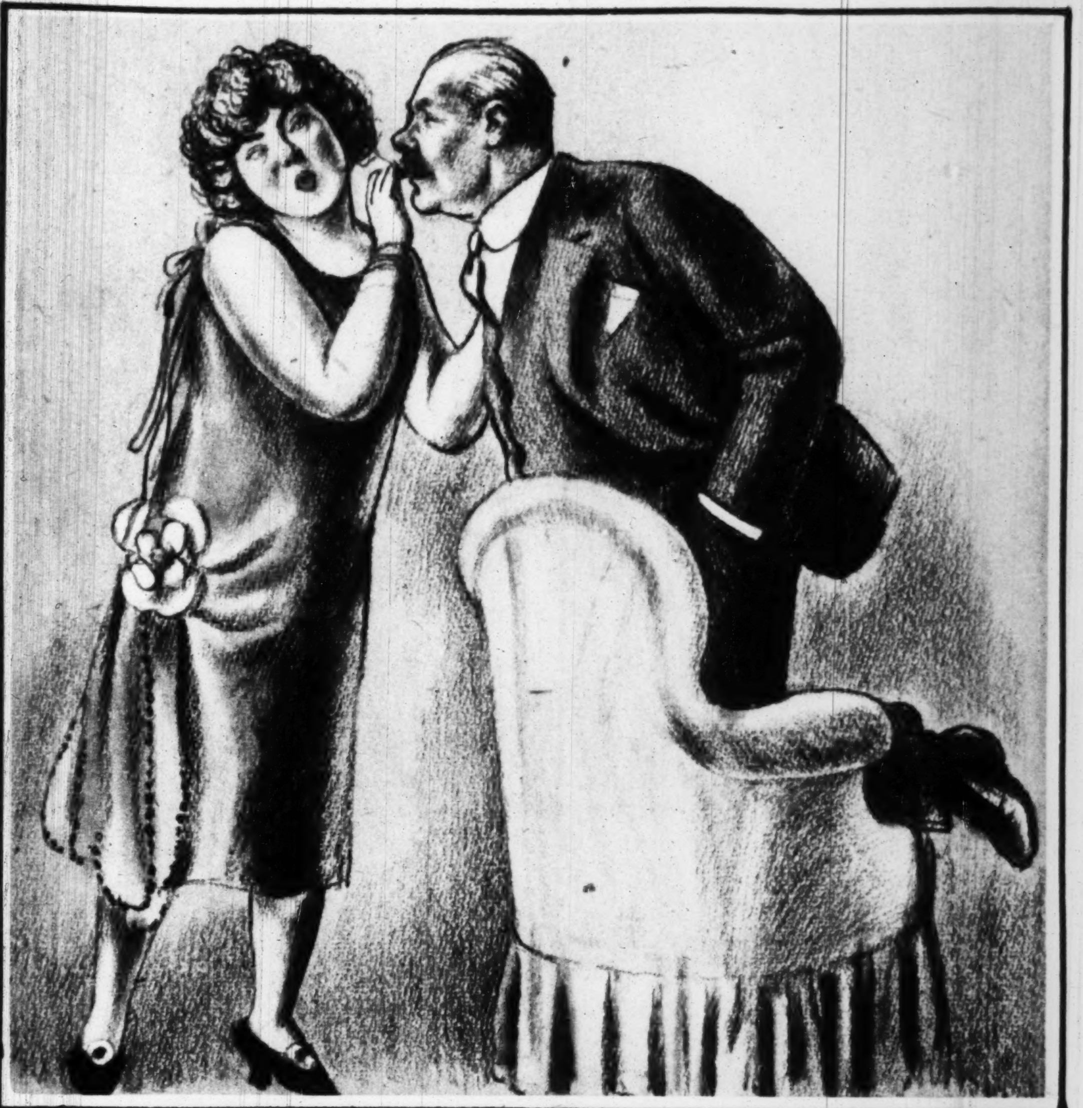
Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune



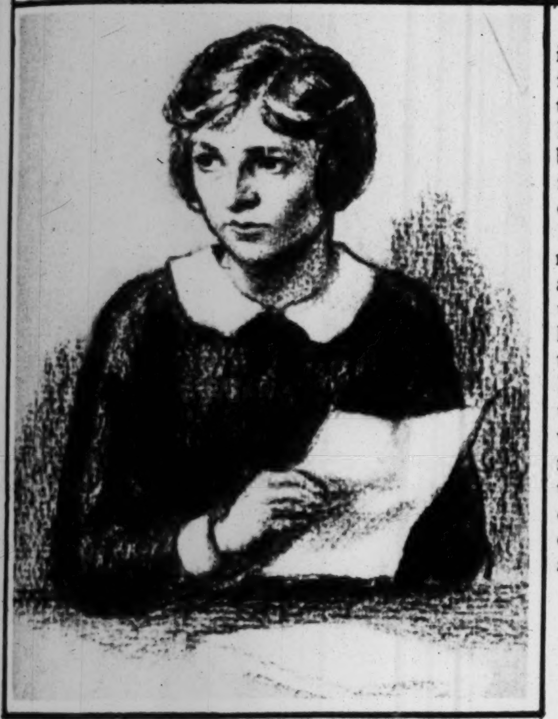
The merry month of May is a very sad season for some folks. For instance, take the honorable Maude St. Maude, who is on her way back to England after having tried and tried unsuccessfully to get detained at Ellis Island on ground of moral turpitude. Her press agent even tried pulling wires in Washington, but he couldn't get her detained. The honorable Maude had a scenario or two to put over in Hollywood. But, of course, one needs a little publicity these days to put anything over. "What do you think of America?" a reporter is asking.



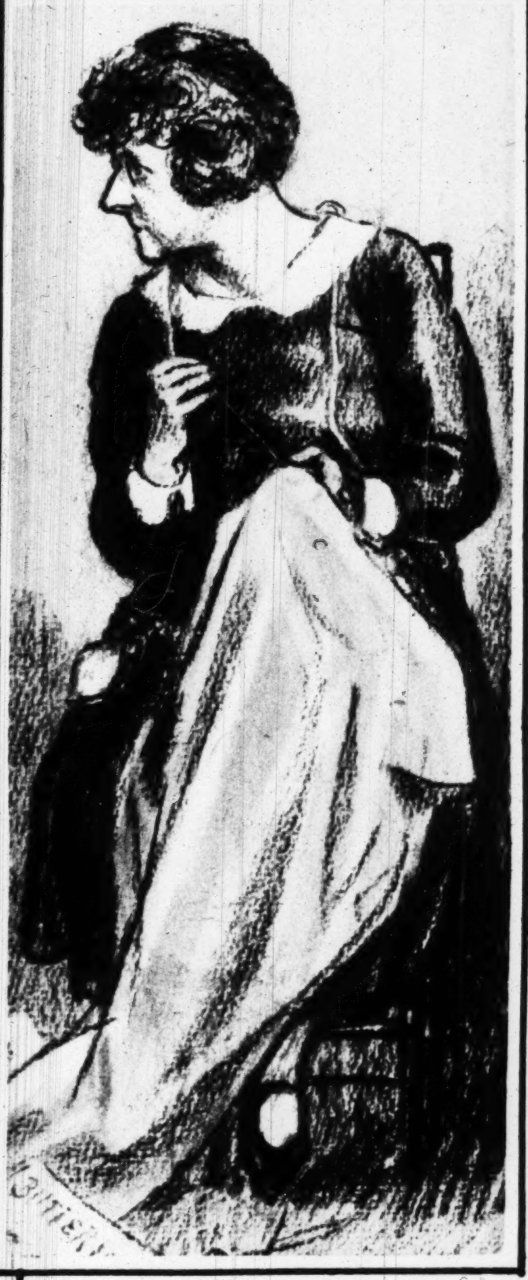
May is a dangerous month for susceptible gentlemen of advancing years. "In the spring an old boy's fancy—" runs the adage.



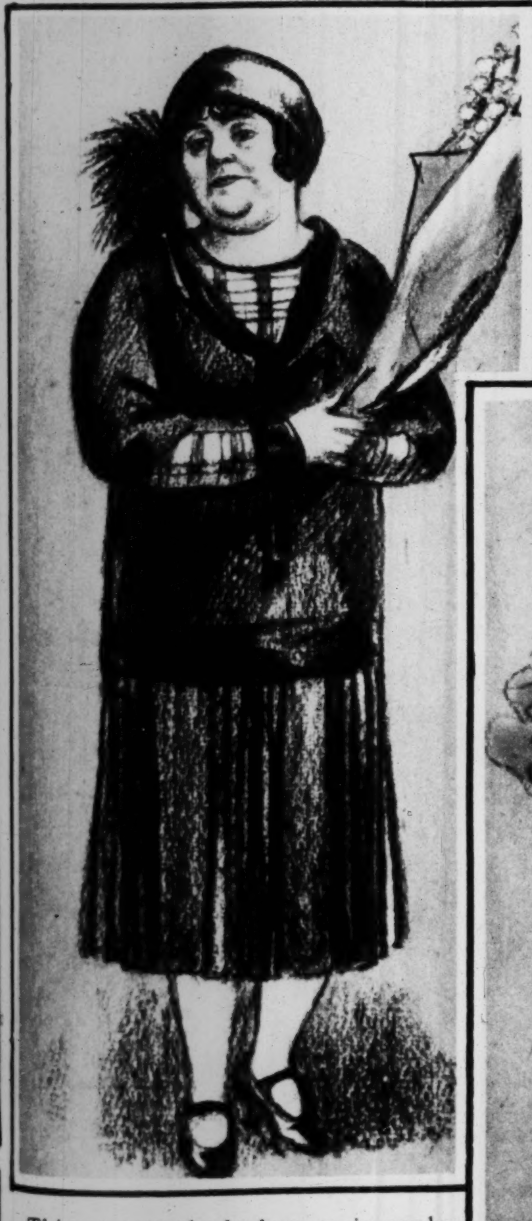
"Now don't you dare peek!" Dotsie and her Georgie Porgie are being too roguish for words over a chocolate bon bon! The merry month of May is, every one knows, the mating season for sober, middle aged couples. With the first warm days they throw constraint to the winds and turn cute all over the place.



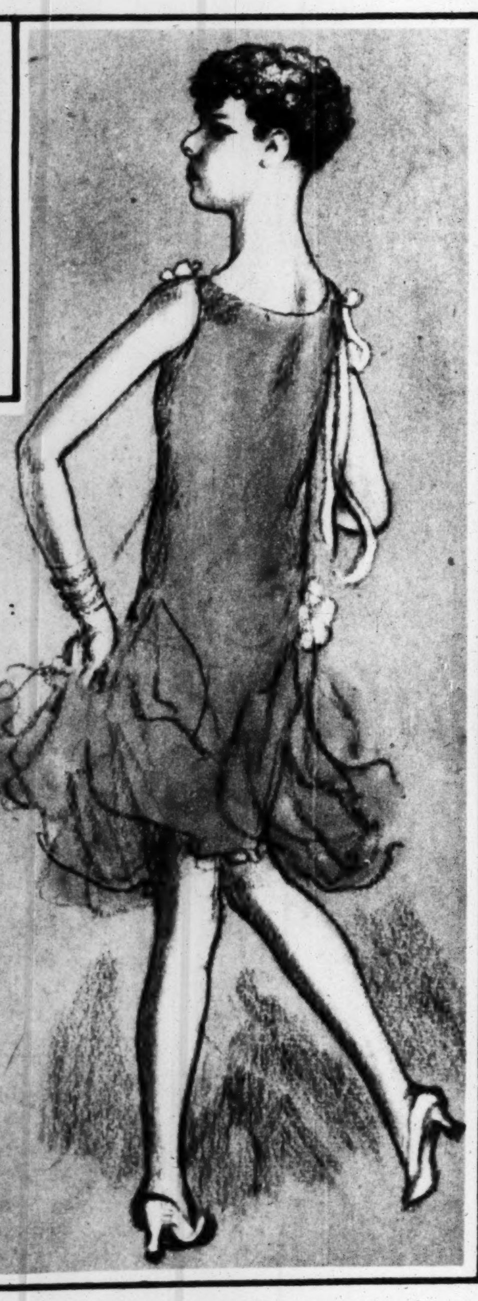
Miss Beeman, who presides over the primary boys, is busy getting her darling little charges ready for the Decoration day exercises. It's going to be anything but a merry month teaching Adolf Lutzkin to spout Lincoln's Gettysburg address!



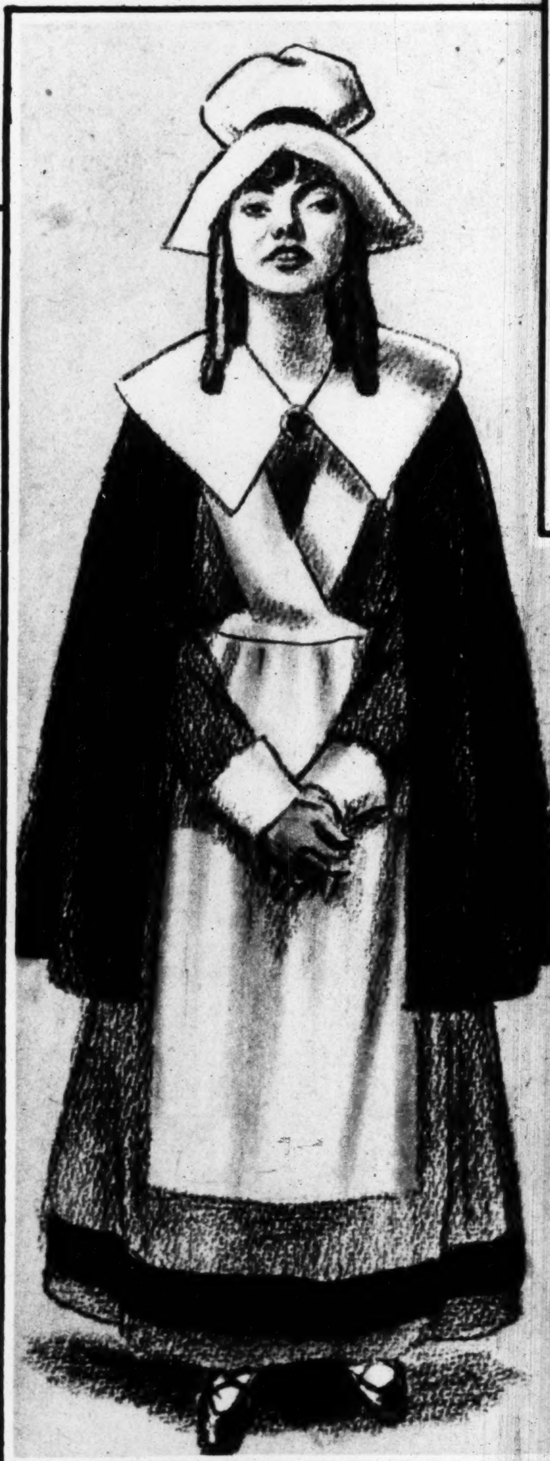
"They say his mother-in-law being so nasty to him is what started Fred Beerhoven drinking. Judging from some of the goings on when I was there last—well!" May is a busy month for the little seamstress who comes in by the day for the purpose of fixing over last year's dresses into this year's models. Has a lot of data on the best families, and will part with it if urged ever so slightly.



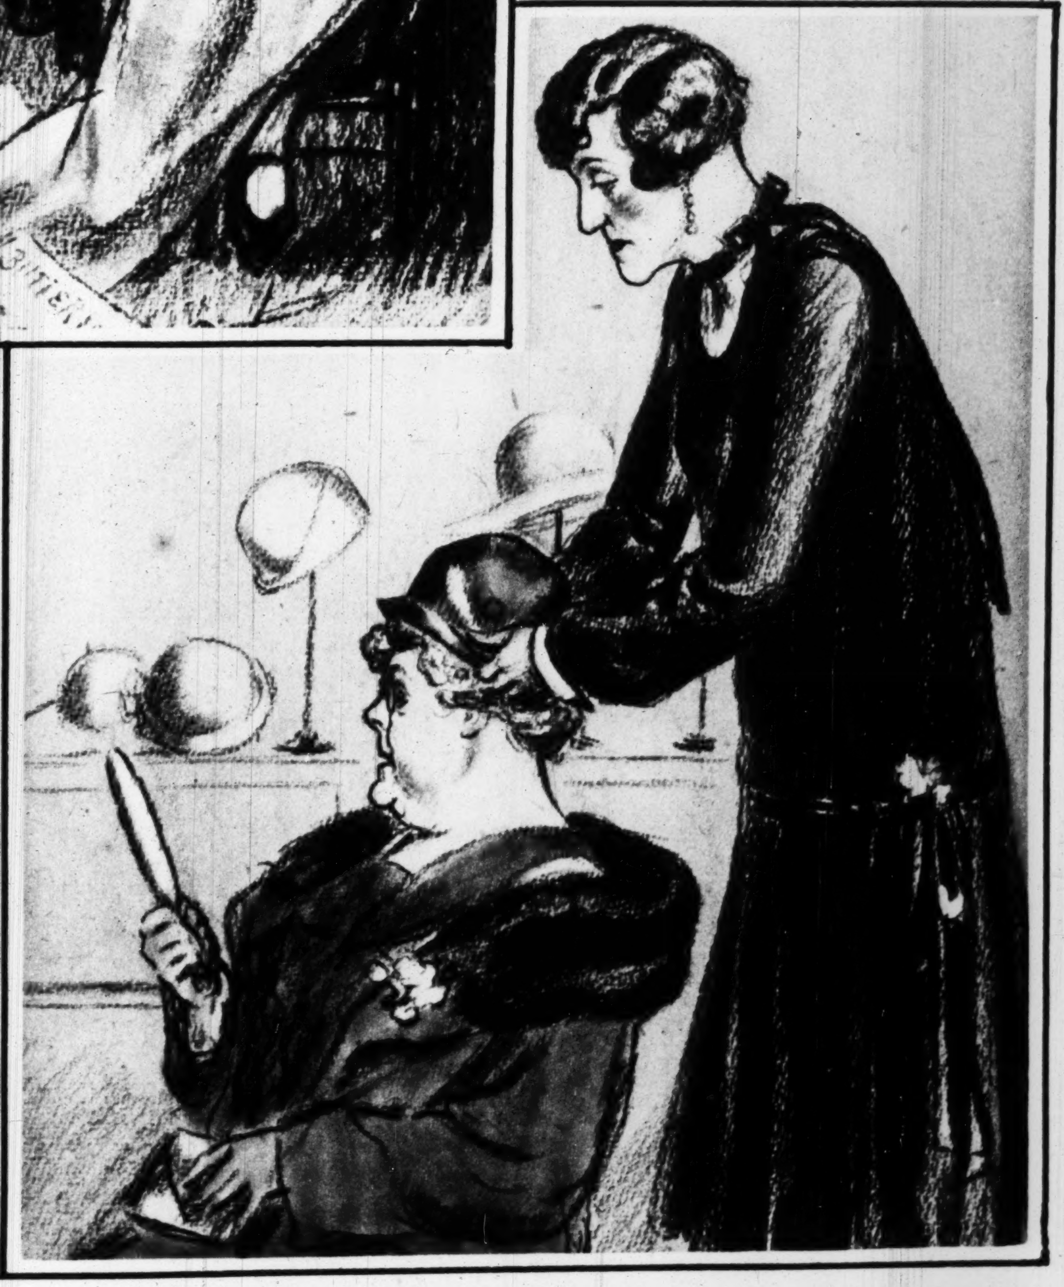
This, as everybody knows, is apple blossom time, and what is prettier in the home than a nice spray of blossoms? Mrs. Gracie Tungston is carrying home several branches of pink cloth blossoms culled from the artificial flower counter of Woolworth's.



The dance around the May pole, in these modern times, has given place to the Charleston, and the May parties are livelier than ever.



This is the open season for historical pageants—with the druggist's lovely daughter as Priscilla in the Miles Standish episode.



"Dearie, you don't realize what chic this little hat gives you! It's simply made for you!" There's a sign in the milliner's window display announcing the glad tidings, "Any hat in this window, $5." Even the ladies who take extra large head sizes can't resist a spring sale. Once inside, Mme. Eloise will do the rest.

The Somnometer finds no sleep unit offering Comfort equal to the Masterpiece Bed Spring

THE SOMNOMETER is a new instrument used by psychologists to measure our comfort while we are asleep. When connected to your bed spring it makes a chart or record of every interruption to your comfort.

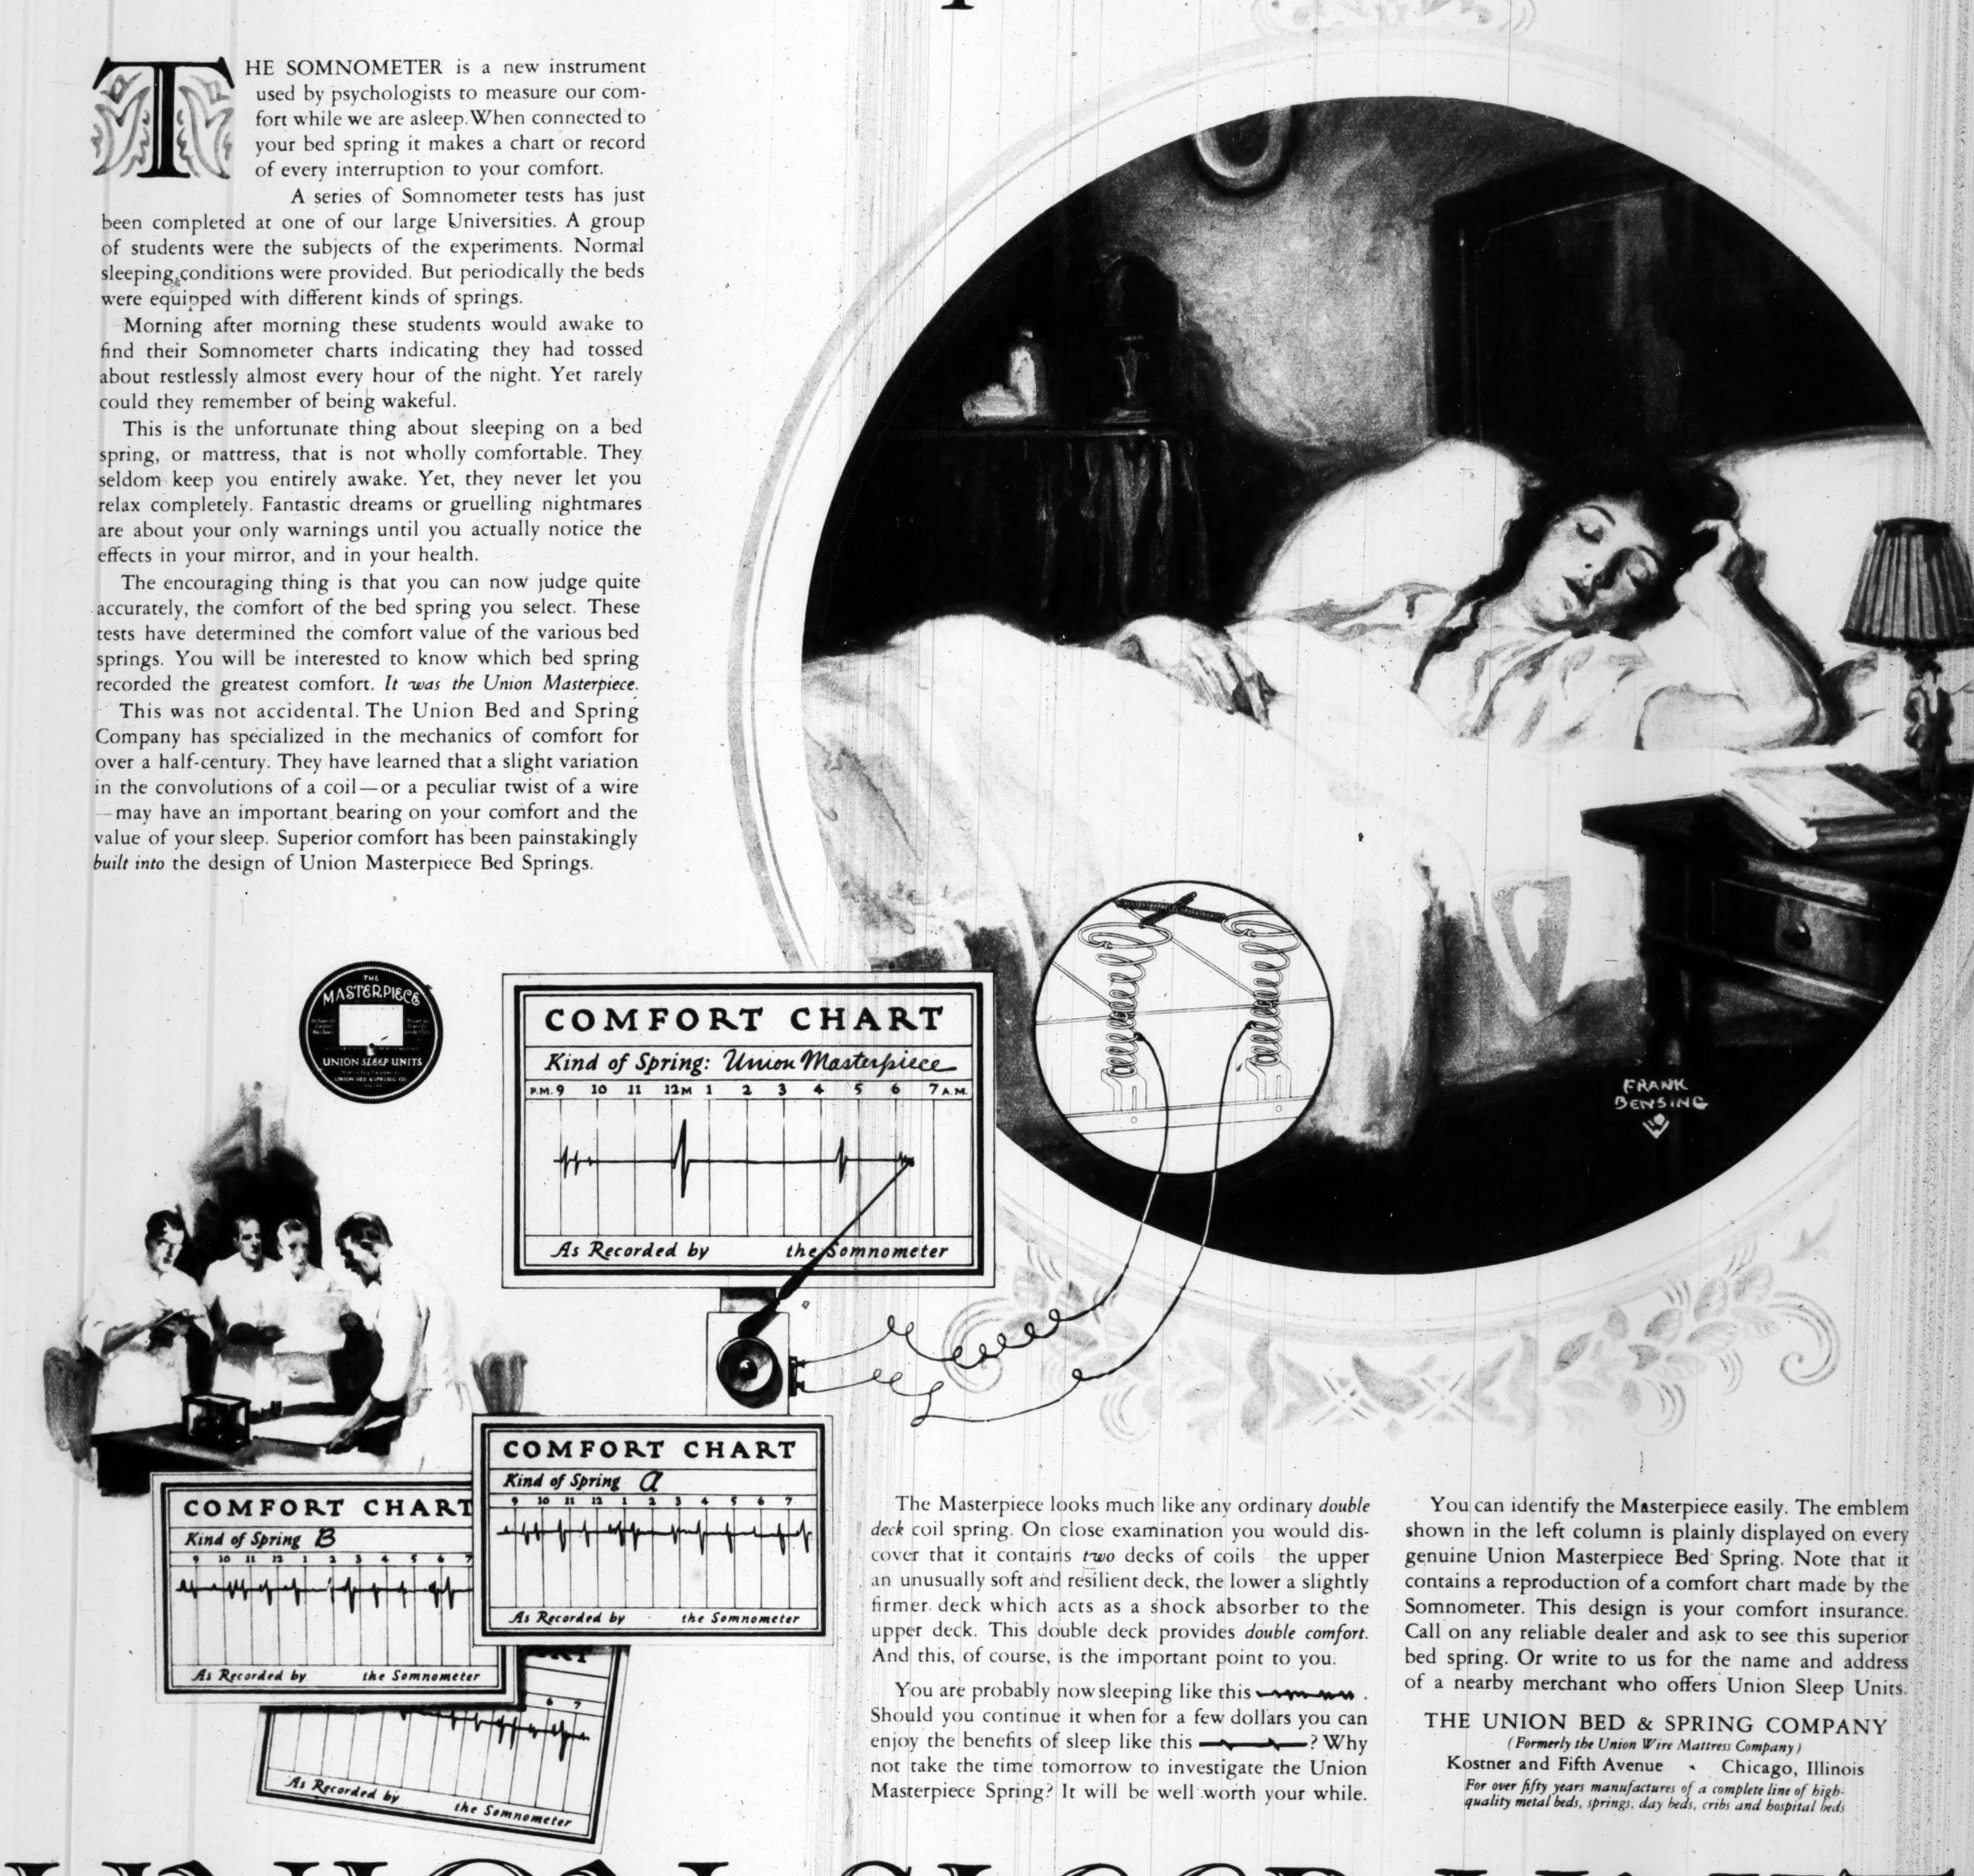
A series of Somnometer tests has just been completed at one of our large Universities. A group of students were the subjects of the experiments. Normal sleeping conditions were provided. But periodically the beds were equipped with different kinds of springs.

Morning after morning these students would awake to find their Somnometer charts indicating they had tossed about restlessly almost every hour of the night. Yet rarely could they remember of being wakeful.

This is the unfortunate thing about sleeping on a bed spring, or mattress, that is not wholly comfortable. They seldom keep you entirely awake. Yet, they never let you relax completely. Fantastic dreams or gruelling nightmares are about your only warnings until you actually notice the effects in your mirror, and in your health.

The encouraging thing is that you can now judge quite accurately, the comfort of the bed spring you select. These tests have determined the comfort value of the various bed springs. You will be interested to know which bed spring recorded the greatest comfort. It was the Union Masterpiece.

This was not accidental. The Union Bed and Spring Company has specialized in the mechanics of comfort for over a half-century. They have learned that a slight variation in the convolutions of a coil—or a peculiar twist of a wire—may have an important bearing on your comfort and the value of your sleep. Superior comfort has been painstakingly built into the design of Union Masterpiece Bed Springs.



The Masterpiece looks much like any ordinary double deck coil spring. On close examination you would discover that it contains two decks of coils the upper an unusually soft and resilient deck, the lower a slightly firmer deck which acts as a shock absorber to the upper deck. This double deck provides double comfort. And this, of course, is the important point to you.

You are probably now sleeping like this ∿∿∿∿ . Should you continue it when for a few dollars you can enjoy the benefits of sleep like this —⋏——⋏—? Why not take the time tomorrow to investigate the Union Masterpiece Spring? It will be well worth your while.

You can identify the Masterpiece easily. The emblem shown in the left column is plainly displayed on every genuine Union Masterpiece Bed Spring. Note that it contains a reproduction of a comfort chart made by the Somnometer. This design is your comfort insurance. Call on any reliable dealer and ask to see this superior bed spring. Or write to us for the name and address of a nearby merchant who offers Union Sleep Units.

'S MATTER WITH YOU, SANDY? DROP THAT ROPE-DANGER
Z-Z-Z
LISTEN, SANDY- WHILE GRUNTS IS TAKIN' HIS NAP LET'S YOU AND I TAKE A WALK AND GIVE THIS TOWN THE ONCE OVER-
Z-Z-Z
JUST A SECOND AND I'LL BE READY- GOTTA GIVE THE NATIVES SOMETHIN' TO LOOK AT-Z-Z-Z
THERE NOW- LET 'EM STARE- GUESS WHEN THEY SPOT THIS MAKEUP THERE WON'T BE ANY DOUBT 'BOUT OUR BEIN' WITH TH' CIRCUS-
BUT WHATEVER WE DO, SANDY, WE MUSTN'T GET CHUMMY WITH ANY OF THESE TOWN BIRDS- ALWAYS REMEMBER WE'RE P'FORMERS- SEE?
LET'S STEP IN HERE AND GET A SODA OR SOMETHIN'- WHADDYUH SAY, SANDY?
ARF!
DRU
ONE STRAWBERRY SODA AND ONE ICE CREAM CONE-
GO ON, BUCK- AST HER-
ER- ER- C-C-COULD I AST YOU SOMETHIN', COULD I?
HOW'S THAT, YOUNG FELLER?
YOU SEE ME AND MY GANG WAS FIGGERIN' ON RUNNIN' AWAY FROM HOME AND GOIN' WITH THE CIRCUS AND WE WANTED TO AST YOU IF----- WHAT?
YOU'RE OUT O' YOUR HEAD, SEE? LEAVE YER HOME AND FOLKS TO GO WITH THE CIRCUS? FORGET IT, KID- YOU DON'T KNOW WHEN YOU'RE SITTIN' PRETTY-
WHAT COULD YOU DO AROUND A CIRCUS, ANYWAY? THEY DON'T WANT KIDS IN TH' WAY- COURSE ME, I'M A P'FORMER- BUT EVEN SO IF I HAD A HOME I'D JUMP THIS RACKET IN A SECOND-
CAN YOU BEAT IT, SANDY? ANY KID WITH A HOME, AND FOLKS TO LOVE 'EM AND TAKE CARE OF 'EM, OUGHT TO SPEND EVERY MINUTE 'PRECIATING HOW LUCKY HE IS- AM I RIGHT?
ARF!

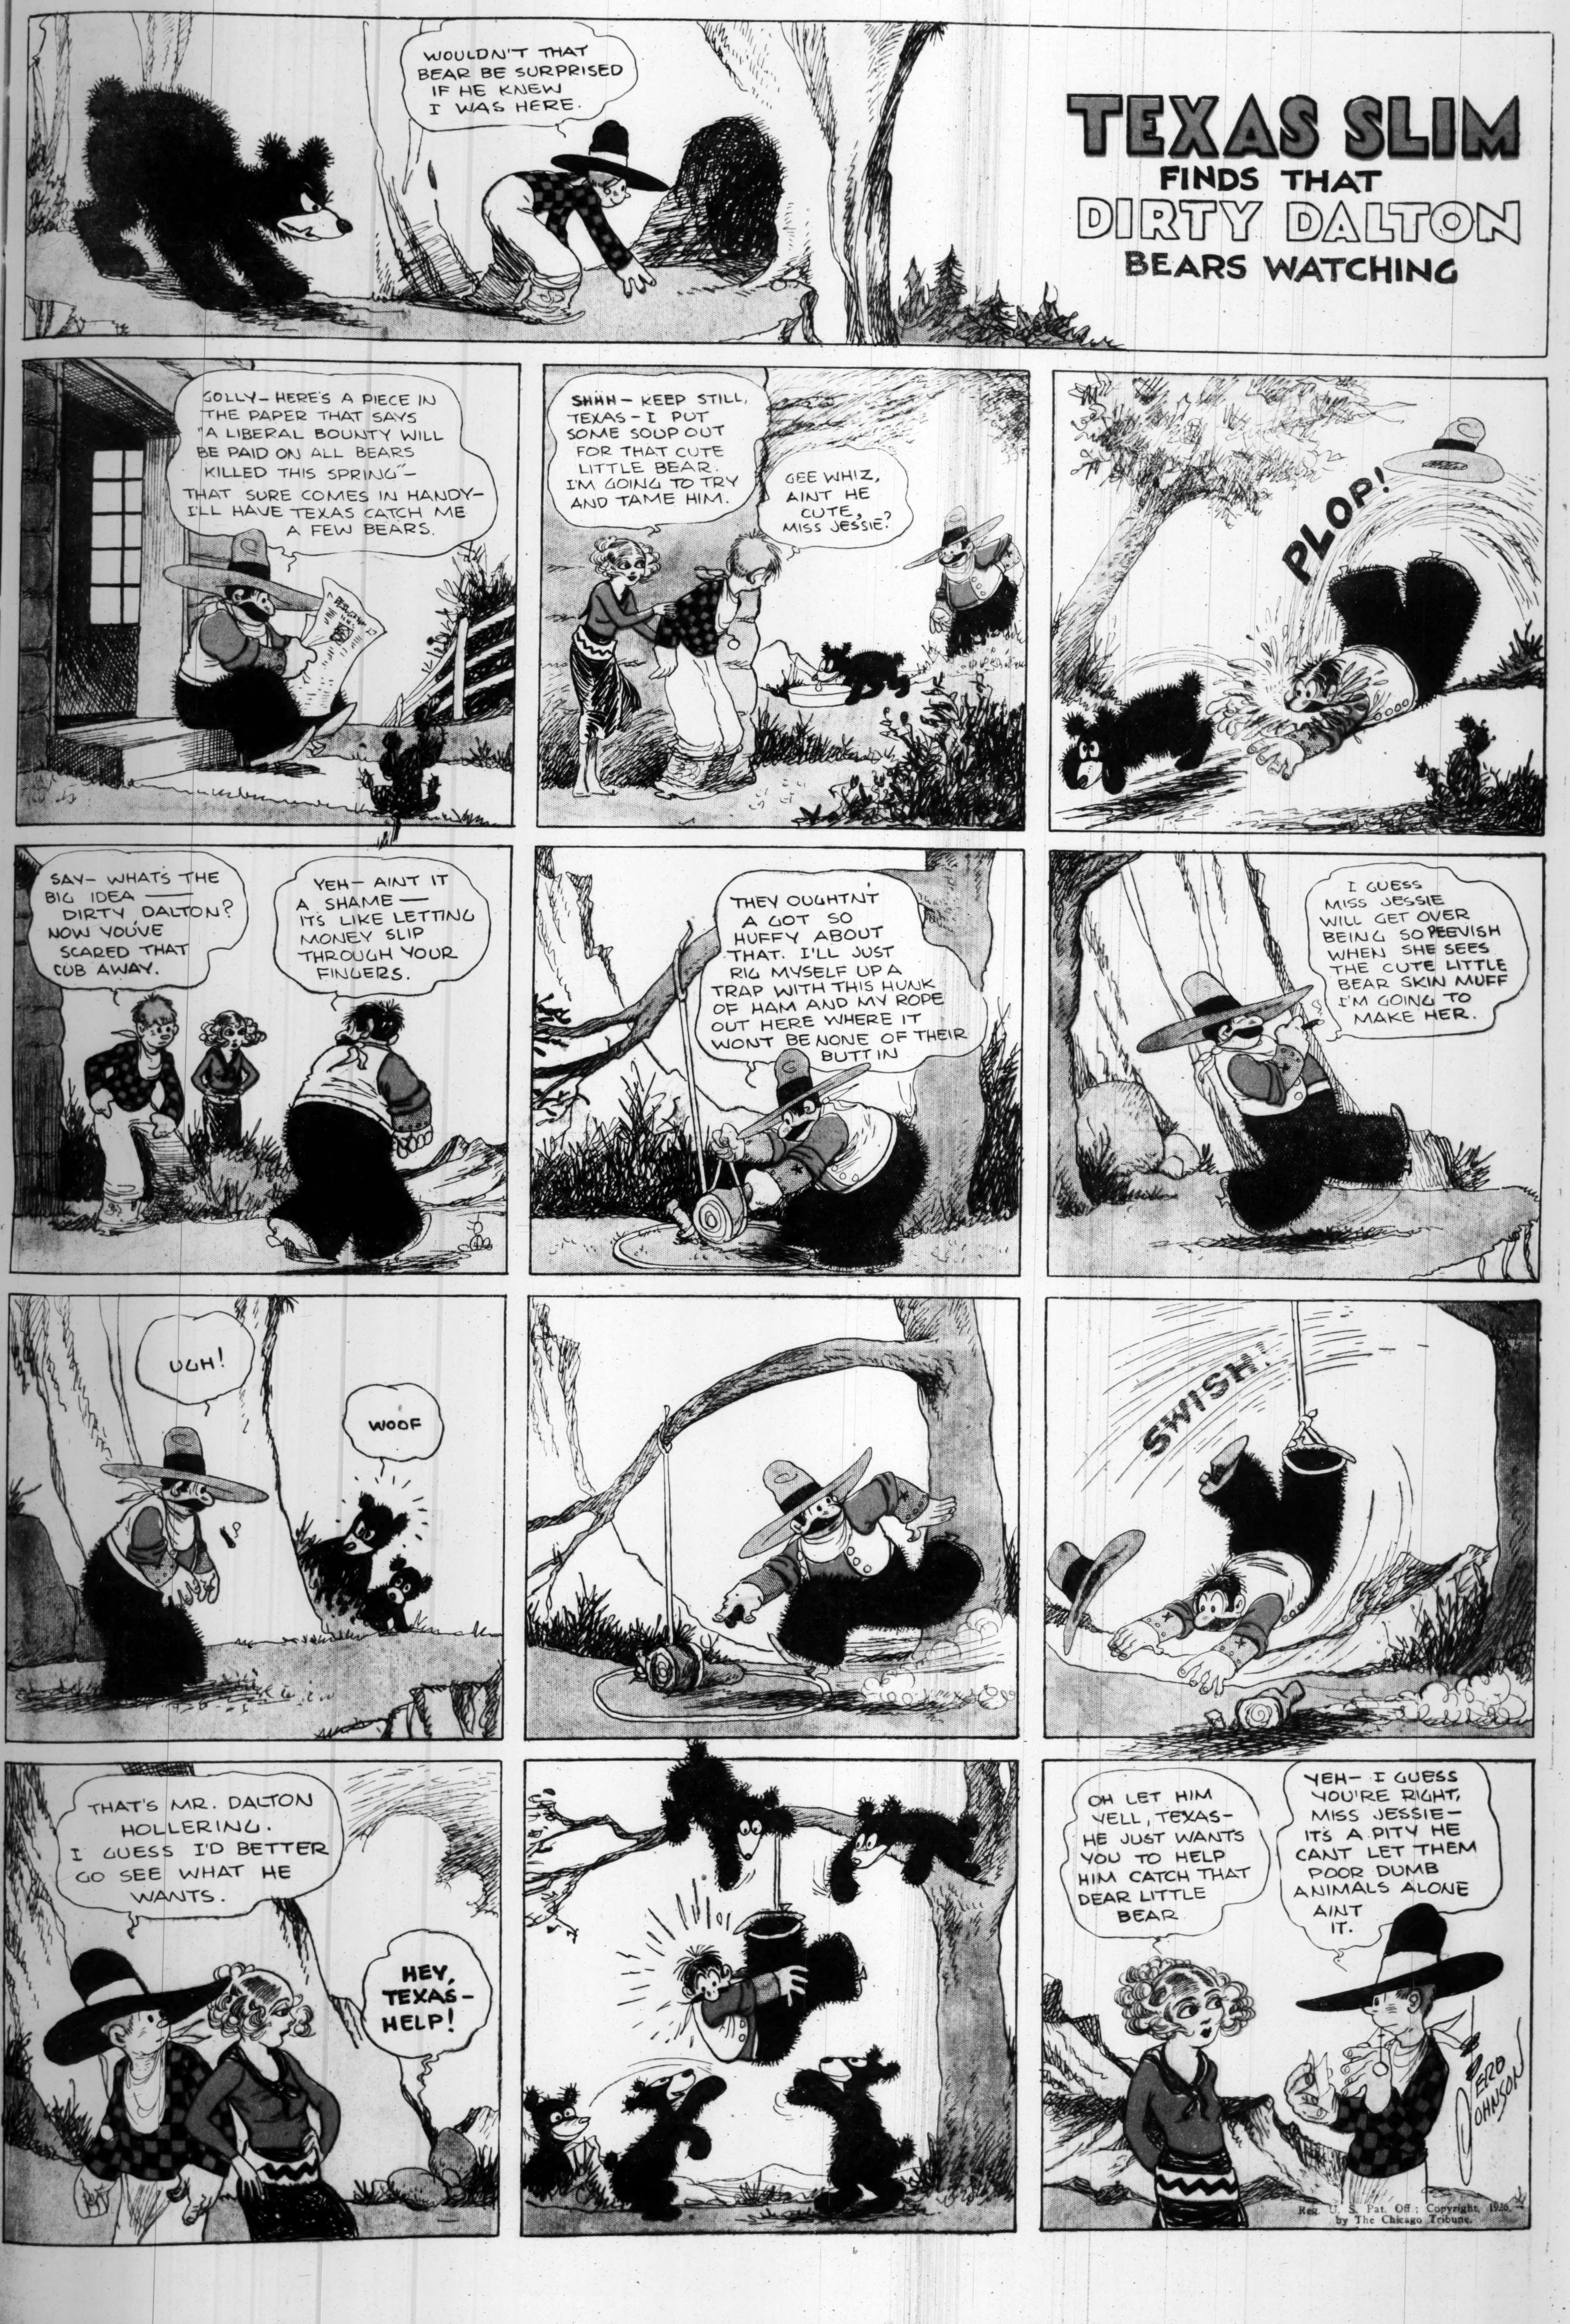
TEXAS SLIM FINDS THAT DIRTY DALTON BEARS WATCHING



WOULDN'T THAT BEAR BE SURPRISED IF HE KNEW I WAS HERE.
GOLLY- HERE'S A PIECE IN THE PAPER THAT SAYS "A LIBERAL BOUNTY WILL BE PAID ON ALL BEARS KILLED THIS SPRING"- THAT SURE COMES IN HANDY- I'LL HAVE TEXAS CATCH ME A FEW BEARS.
SHHH- KEEP STILL, TEXAS- I PUT SOME SOUP OUT FOR THAT CUTE LITTLE BEAR. I'M GOING TO TRY AND TAME HIM.
GEE WHIZ, AINT HE CUTE, MISS JESSIE?
PLOP!
SAY- WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA —— DIRTY DALTON? NOW YOU'VE SCARED THAT CUB AWAY.
YEH- AINT IT A SHAME —— ITS LIKE LETTING MONEY SLIP THROUGH YOUR FINGERS.
THEY OUGHTN'T A GOT SO HUFFY ABOUT THAT. I'LL JUST RIG MYSELF UP A TRAP WITH THIS HUNK OF HAM AND MY ROPE OUT HERE WHERE IT WONT BE NONE OF THEIR BUTTIN
I GUESS MISS JESSIE WILL GET OVER BEING SO PEEVISH WHEN SHE SEES THE CUTE LITTLE BEAR SKIN MUFF I'M GOING TO MAKE HER.
UGH!
WOOF
THAT'S MR. DALTON HOLLERING. I GUESS I'D BETTER GO SEE WHAT HE WANTS.
HEY, TEXAS- HELP!
OH LET HIM YELL, TEXAS- HE JUST WANTS YOU TO HELP HIM CATCH THAT DEAR LITTLE BEAR
YEH- I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT, MISS JESSIE- ITS A PITY HE CANT LET THEM POOR DUMB ANIMALS ALONE AINT IT.

YOU SEE THE FIRST TIME THE CHILDREN WENT INTO THE WOODS THEY DROPPED PEBBLES BEHIND THEM AND THEY FOUND THEIR WAY BACK. BUT NEXT TIME THEY DROPPED CRUMBS. THE BIRDS ATE THEM AND THE CHILDREN WERE LOST.
I'D DROP PEBBLES, UNCA WALT.
I PICK UP LOTS AN' LOTS O' PEBBLES. CRUMBS AREN'T ANY GOOD.
I DROP 'EM ALL ALONG AN' I FIND MY WAY OUT TO UNCA WALT AGAIN.
STONES ALL GONE RIGHT BY BIG WHITE TREE. I STAY RIGHT NEAR IT.
YEP, I CAN SEE THE WHITE TREE. I WON'T GET LOST.
WAIT, I WOULDN'T HURT YOU! I BE NICE TO YOU!
OH, LOOK! NICE LIL SQUIRREL! COME HERE. I FIND YOU A ACORN.
GREAT JUMPIN' GRASSHOPPER! I WONDER IF THAT LITTLE TIKE HAS GONE INTO THE WOODS!
I GO TO THE WHITE TREE AN' FIND MY PEBBLES AN' GO BACK TO UNCA WALT.
WA-AAH! LOTS O' WHITE TREES!
SKEEZIX! I'VE BEEN HUNTING YOU! WHY DID YOU COME INTO THE WOODS?
I CAN'T FIND MY PEBBLES, UNCA WALT!
GREAT SCOTT I THOUGHT I'D LOST YOU SURE.
DID YOU BRING MORE PEBBLES? WE CAN'T GET OUT IF YOU DIDN'T DROP PEBBLES!
